Dear Fellow American:

I am writing you on a matter of utmost importance. The authoritative Congressional Quarterly, a political news digest, recently summed it up: "The shape of elective politics in the United States for the entire decade of the 1970's will be influenced strongly by what happens in this year's elections."

What happens in your state of Georgia, and around the country this year could well depend on how you answer my letter now, my fellow American.

Let me explain. I recently called an emergency meeting in Washington of conservative leaders to discuss a frightening report that had just been completed by the American Conservative Union (ACU) staff. The report was an analysis of the radical Left's legislative demands for the 1970's. Conservative leaders present at the meeting were Thomas Winter, Editor, Human Events; Hon. Philip Crane of Illinois; William A. Rusher, Publisher, National Review; Alan MacKay, past chairman of YAF; Hon. Albert Watson of South Carolina; and Daniel Mahoney, Chairman, New York Conservative Party.

The far Left's legislative goals are so revolutionary that if enacted they would drastically change the political and family life of 200 million Americans -- including yours and mine. Three of their top priority demands are:

--A complete guaranteed annual income -- as high as $7500 a year -- for all welfare recipients;

--A complete take over of our public schools (including busing and all the rest of the Liberal "cure-alls") by ruthlessly using the threat of cutting off federal funds to any local school district that doesn't comply with the government's demands;

--A drastic reduction of U.S. military superiority over such enemies as the Soviet Union and Communist China by scrapping essential defense systems like the ABM.

Make no mistake, my fellow American, the Left is deadly serious about their revolutionary legislation. And they are going to spend millions of dollars in this year's Congressional elections to achieve them. They are already working in the primary elections. The Left is uniting Big Labor, tax-exempt foundations, civil rights and peace organizations into a number of campaign front-groups to raise money to elect and re-elect peace candidates to Congress. (For instance, the tax-exempt Ford Foundation plans to give 1 million dollars to Black Left-wing candidates as "educational help." Big Labor spent $60 million in the '68 elections!)

Unfortunately, we cannot depend on regular party channels to counter the Left's campaign plans. An ACU staff study shows that the GOP senatorial and congressional committees contribute indiscriminately to both conservative and liberal candidates. Conservatives cannot afford to have their contributions diluted. We must put our money where it will do the most good.

The conservative leaders who met with me in Washington decided that the only chance we had to defeat the Liberals in the Congressional elections was to establish a responsible conservative campaign fund to be used exclusively to help elect responsible conservative candidates. The ACU CONSERVATIVE VICTORY FUND will concentrate on Senate and House seats now held by Liberals that conservatives have a good chance of winning. (See enclosed partial listing.)

The ACU CONSERVATIVE VICTORY FUND needs your immediate help to counter and defeat Liberals and gain conservative control in the House and Senate in November. A contribution of $15 or more entitles you to receive ACU's campaign newsletter, Battle Line, to keep you fully informed from now through the elections. Contributors of $100 or more will also be made Lifetime Members of the American Conservative Union. Whether you send $5 or $500, $10 or $10,000 -- please send it immediately! Conservative victories in November depend on winning conservative victories in the primaries now.

I urge you to send your most generous contribution to the CONSERVATIVE VICTORY FUND today to help insure conservative victories in the all-important primary elections.

Sincerely,

John M. Ashbrook

John Ashbrook
Member of Congress

P. S. Please be sure to register your vote on the enclosed "Conservative Victory Ballot" and return it with your contribution in the envelope provided. The results of this conservative opinion poll on key election issues will be announced to the press, and sent to President Nixon, the GOP campaign committees, and to all Republican Congressional candidates. We must show the party leadership and the nation that conservatives have tremendous vote power, and that we mean to use it in November to restore good government, a sound economy, and a safe and strong America.

State Said Target Of Communists

Communists headquartered at key points in the South have aimed a death blow at Mississippi, Myers G. Lowman, executive secretary of Circuit Riders, Inc., declared in Jackson yesterday.

Lowman, whose home is Cincinnati, heads the nonprofit organization committed to ridding church circles of Communist influences.

He was slated to speak at 7 tonight at the King Edward Hotel to a public dinner sponsored by the National Defense Council of the Mississippi Society, Daughters of the American Revolution.

"Mississippi is being treated now on a Communist front approach basis," Lowman said. "The people of Mississippi of all races and creeds have not been good bait for the Communists, so they're getting the 'Tyhpoid Mary' approach."

The effort to split, embitter and neutralize the state is being directed by Communists headquartered at New Orleans, Nashville and Atlanta, Lowman asserted.

Wittingly or unwittingly, he said, Mississippi clergymen and educators have given their support to Communist fronts. He said one such organization with Mississippi support is the Fellowship of Reconciliation whose emeritus head is A. J. Muste, who once directed the Trotsky division of the Communist Party in this country.

Lowman tagged most of these "front" petition signers and supporters as simply misguided, with only a small portion anywhere actual sympathizers of Communism.

A principal objective of Communism, he said, is to undercut American faith in God and the principles of freedom as embedded in the nation's fundamental documents.

"We are in this country in an era of quasi-agnosticism," Lowman said, "when people generally don't know what they believe."

Much of this confusion has resulted from the "40 years of ideological pounding away at America by the Communists," he added.

Lowman described the present as the worst threat to national security in the nation's history.

"The Communism in this country," he said, "can be compared to the Trojan Horse. But the Trojan horse of Troy was a bare outline, a mere toy, compared to the modern Trojan horse."

The Union Theological Seminary in New York was singled out by Lowman as the institution with the highest percentage of Communist front supporters among students and faculty.

Circuit Riders, Inc., was formed to oppose use of church personnel and property to push Communism and its allied causes.

'Damn Liar,' Says Hodding Carter

Replies to Charge by Witness In Subversion Hearings

By BERRY REECE, United Press International

JACKSON, Miss.—A legislative committee headed into its second day of Communist subversion hearings today after its first witness was branded a "damn liar" by a newspaper editor.

Dr. J. B. Matthews, 66, former researcher for U. S. Senate and House sunbversion probes, named 11 persons who allegedly have engaged in Communist-front work in Mississippi in a full day of testimony before the General Legislative Investigating Committee.

Matthews said Greenville Editor Hodding Carter and others were among 50 members of "an interlocking directorate" of the Southern Regional Council, the Southern Conference Education Fund, and the former Southern Conference for Human Welfare, all of which he said were Communist-tainted.

Carter fired back from Greenville that "Of the organizations named by professional anti-Communist J. B. Matthews, the only one to which I belonged was the Southern Regional Council.

Interracial Organization

"I belonged to it openly and believe it a worthwhile interracial organization in these unhappy times. In implying that I am in any way linked with the Southern Conference Educational Fund and in stating that the SRC is Communist-tainted, Matthews is a damned liar," Carter charged.

Others named by Matthews as onetime members of Communist-front or infiltrated groups included Bishop William R. Wright, negro, chancellor of Campbell College in Jackson; instructor Chester W. Quimby of Wood Junior College; the late P. H. Easom, director of the negro division of the state Department of Education.

Former Prof. Lawrence Raymond Lavelle of Mississippi Southern College; Mrs. Winifred Feise, formerly of Jackson; Grady Jenkins, alleged former "Communist organizer" in Tennessee; M. E. Tilly, field secretary for the Southern Regional Council; Carl and Anne Braden, field workers in Mississippi and other Southern mates for the Southern Conference Education Fund.

Dr. Matthews admitted he himself once was a member of the Communist-front group, the American League Against War and Fascism. But he said he broke with it in 1943.

He did not say any of the people named were members or former members of the Communist Party. He said Communists like to have the majority of the front groups' membership non-Communist for deception purposes.

"But it does little good to probe their motives or say they're dupes," Matthews said, adding they were aiding the Communist cause.

Carter Hits Back At His Accuser

By United Press International

GREENVILLE, Miss.—Editor Hodding Carter pointed out today that he is civilian aide to the Secretary of the Army and a member of the National Defense Executive Reserve, which required security checkups prior to his appointment.

"If the government of my country, whose Constitution I respect—unlike some of my critics—does not view me with suspicion, I cannot be too concerned over the paid testimony of a man who reminds me of what is found in wet places beneath a rotted log." Carter said in a page one statement in the Deltea Democrat Times. "And this goes for those who hired him."

Carter referred to the testimony of J. B. Matthews of New York before a legislative committee in Jackson. He referred to the Southern Regional Council, of which Carter was a member, as a "Communist front" organization, which Carter and other members have strongly denied.

Carter's statement said "No responsible person who knows me could believe that I have or ever have been connected with any Communist, Communist front or other subversive organization. To the contrary I have our country think me subversive. As an officer in the U. S. Army during World War II, I served in two top secret establishments. After the war, I was appointed to the Air Training Command's first advisory board. Five years ago I was offered and declined an appointment as second in command to our nation's Information Service. 11 Mississippians Are Linked In Red 'Infiltrated' Groups

By KENNETH TOLER

From The Commercial Appeal Jackson, Miss., Bureau

JACKSON, Miss., Nov. 18. — Testimony associating 11 Mississippians with organizations the Communist Party assertedly has infiltrated or is using as fronts to create racial unrest in the state was given Wednesday to the General Legislative Investigating Committee.

However, none of those named was accused of being a communist or member of the party organization or knowingly aiding that cause.

Mississippians Named

Dr. J. B. Matthews of New York, formerly associated with unAmerican and Internal Security committees of Congress, said those linked at one time or the other with groups infiltrated or used as fronts by the communists included:

Mrs. Winifred Fiese, listed from Jackson but said to be a resident of New Orleans; Bishop Sherman L. Greene and Chancellor Richard R. Wright, both connected with Campbell Negro College in Jackson; Chester Quimby, said to be with Wood Junior Methodist College at Mathiston; Lawrence Raymond La Velle, formerly with Mississippi Southern College at Hattiesburg; Grady Jenkins, listed as an organizer in Mississippi, Tennessee and Louisiana; Mrs. M. E. Tilley, field secretary of the Southern Regional Council, and Mr. and Mrs. Carl Braden, listed as field organizers of the Southern Conference Education Fund; Hodding Carter, editor of the Delta Democrat-Times at Greenville, and the late Dr. P. H. Eason, supervisor of Negro education in the State Department of Education.

Pointing to the interlocking directorates of the SRC, the SCEF and the former SCHW, Dr. Matthews said two names appearing were those of Mr. Carter and the late Dr. Eason.

Mr. Carter, advised of the statement, said he formerly was a director of the SRC, but the accusation of his connection with the other two groups "is a lie."

'Without Understanding'

Dr. Matthews admitted that some of those he named as "supporting the communist conspiracy are doing or have done so without any understanding of what they were doing."

Dr. Matthews was careful to explain that those he named were not communists or members of the party but were associated with groups which he said the Communist Party has infiltrated or was using as fronts in its goal to "destroy all free and democratic forms of government and supplant them with the Godless form of government known as world communism."

He said he had been associated with those being used by the communists but that he broke with them in 1934.

He said the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People is one organization the communists have infiltrated. He said the NAACP could rid itself of the accusation by ousting some of its leaders whom he named.

Editor Brands Witness Liar After Statements To 'Subversive' Probers

JACKSON (UPI) — A Legislative committee headed into its second day of Communist subversion hearings today after its first witness was branded a "damn liar" by a newspaper editor.

Dr. J. B. Matthews, 66, former researcher for U. S. Senate and House subversion probes, named 11 persons who allegedly have engaged in Communist-front work in Mississippi in a full day of testimony before the General Legislative Investigating Committee.

Matthews said Greenville Editor Hodding Carter and others were among 50 members of "an interlocking directorate" of the Southern Regional Council, the Southern Conference Education Fund, and the former Southern Conference for Human Welfare, all of which he said were Communist-tainted.

Carter fired back from Greenville that "of the organizations named by professional anti-communist J. D. Matthews, the only one to which I have belonged is the Southern Regional Council.

"Damned Liar"

"I belong to it openly and believe it a worthwhile interracial organization in these unhappy times. In implying that I am in any way linked with the Southern Conference Educational Funds and in stating that the SRC is Comunist-tainted, Matthews is a damned liar," Carter charged.

Others named by Matthews as onetime members of Communist-front or infiltrated groups included Bishop William R. Wright, Chancellor of Campbell College in Jackson; instructor Chester W. Quinby of Wood Junior College; the late P. H. Eason, director of the Negro division of the State Department of Education.

Former professor Lawrence Raymond Lavelle of Mississippi Southern College; Mrs. Winifred Feise, formerly of Jackson; Grady Jenkins, alleged former "Communist orgaizer" in Tennessee; M. E. Tilly, field secretary for the Southern Regional Council; Carl and Ann Braden, field workers in Mississippi and other Southern states for the Southern Conference Education Fund.

Is Ex-Red Fronter

Dr. Matthews admitted he himself once was a member of the Communist-front group, the American League Against War and Facism. But he said he broke with it in 1943.

He did not say any of the people named were members or former members of the Communist Party. He said Communists liked to have the majority of the front groups membership non-communist for deception purposes.

"But it does little good to probe their motives or say they're dupes," Matthews said, adding they were aiding the Communist cause.

Matthews also said the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People has been successfully infiltrated in its leadership since 1929.

The six-member standing committee headed by Sen. Hayes McGehee of Meadville has been working toward this hearing for almost a year. The investigation is headed by Asst. Atty. Gen. Dugas Shands and much of the work was done by State Sen.-Elect Frank Barber of Hattiesburg. Both formerly worked for Sen. James O. Eastland's Internal Security Subcommittee.

Senator James O. Eastland today stated to Hodding Carter, editor of the Delta Democrat-Times, that he is taking no part in the current investigation.

Senator Eastland also said that to the best of his knowledge J. B. Matthews had never worked for the Senate investigating committee of which the senator is chairman.

Chief Investigator Zack Van Landingham of the State Sovereignty Commission testified before the committee today that some alleged Communist front workers have addressed NAACP meet-

J. B. Matthews

Some Background On Professional Witness

Who is J. B. Matthews, the professional witness who accused the Editor of The Delta Democrat-Times of membership in Communist front organizations?

He is, among other things, a proven liar whose falsehoods have been condemned by Senator John McClellan of Arkansas, Senator Harry Byrd of Virginia, President Eisenhower and many Protestant, Catholic and Jewish clergymen.

A one-time investigator for the notorious McCarthy committee, he is the author of the slander that "the largest single group supporting the Communist apparatus is composed of Protestant clergymen." He also said that at least 7,000 such clergymen were "party members, fellow-travellers, espionage agents, party-line adherents and unwilling dupes."

The late Senator Joe McCarthy offered him an $11,000 a year job at almost the same time as his attack on the Protestant clergy. Three Democratic members of the McCarthy committee—McClellan, Stuart Symington of Missouri, and Henry M. Jackson of Washington—immediately demanded Matthews' ouster. They called the attack shocking and unwarranted and that it could not be supported with facts.

Their denunciation of Matthews was joined by Senator Byrd who said that unless Matthews could prove his charges he would "stand convicted as a cheap demagogue willing to blacken the character of his fellow Americans for his own notoriety and personal gain."

The matter came to a crux on the afternoon of July 9, 1953, when the White House received a telegram signed by a priest, a rabbi, and a Presbyterian minister, speaking for the National Conference of Christians and Jews. The telegram called Matthews' attack on the Protestant ministry "unjustified and deplorable."

President Eisenhower, who had been reluctant to be drawn into the battle of the McCarthy era, entered this one unhesitantly, allying himself with those taking strong issue against the Matthews' article.

The president made public his reply which stated he "fully agreed" with the three clergymen that the attack on the Protestant clergy "is unjustified and deplorable."

The president went on to say, "If there be any American among us, whatever his calling, guilty of treasonous action against the state, let him legally and properly be convicted and punished. This applies to every person, lay or clergy."

As the telegrams were being made public at the White House, McCarthy "very reluctantly" accepted the resignation of Matthews.

The following morning, the Wisconsin senator tried to save face by getting Republican majority of the committee to vote to give him complete power to hire and fire all his staff employes.

It was a straight party-line vote, 4-3, and shortly afterwards, the three Democratic members of the committee, after obtaining the full backing of the Senate Democratic leadership, resigned in bloc.

Senator McClellan told the press at the time, "This committee's work is so sensitive and so delicate that it should try to work in complete harmony. Any member of the staff who might be objectionable to any member on any reasonable grounds should be subject to a discharge by a majority of the committee."

Not until the following January when Congress reconvened and Senator McCarthy surrendered his "one-man" rule, with the repeal of the Committee regulation allowing him to hire and fire employes, did the three Democrats return.

About three months after his forced resignation from the McCarthy Committee, Matthews made a conspicuous appearance in Arkansas. Addressing a Freedom Forum session at Harding College of Searcy October 23, 1953, Matthews discussed in more qualified terms his charges against the Protestant clergy and contended that his article and earlier remarks on the subject had been exaggerated by the press.

Expanding into other fields, Matthews said he had information that American aircraft parts were being smuggled to Russia. He quoted a "high undisclosed source" as saying a Russian MIG airplane surrendered by a North Korean pilot to United Nations Forces was made "largely of American parts." Military leaders "didn't dare bring the plane to this country" because they were afraid to let the American people know" this secret, he added.

The Air Force immediately denied Matthews' charge. Within weeks the plane had been brought to the United States and put on public display at Air Force bases throughout the country.

A Personal Statement

This statement is not being addressed to my fellow citizens of Greenville and Washington County, among whom I have lived for 23 years. Whatever else they may think of me, I doubt that any responsible person who knows me could believe that I am or ever have been connected with any Communist, Communist-front or other subversive organizations. To the contrary, I have fought such groups all of my adult life.

Nor does the government of our country think me subsersive. As an officer in the United States Army during World War II, I served in two top-secret establishments. After the war, I was appointed to the Air Training Command first Advisory Board. Five years ago, I was offered and declined an appointment as second in command of our nation's information service. I am now a member of the National Defense Executive Reserve, whose duty it is to supplement key personnel in the various executive branches of our government in the event of war. My own assignment has to do with combatting enemy propaganda.

I have been for six years Mississippi's Civilian Aide to the Secretary of the Army. Two months ago I attended a meeting of the Civilian Aides at which all the subjects under discussion were classified as secret.

In all of these posts, I underwent security checkups because of the nature of much that I would see or hear.

If the government of my country, whose constitution I respect —unlike some of my critics—does not view me with suspicion, I cannot be too concerned over the paid testimony of a man who reminds me of what is found in wet places beneath a rotted log. And this goes for those who hired him.

—Hodding Carter

What Is SRC?

The Southern Regional Council grew out of the Commission on Inter-racial Cooperation established by leading Southern church and lay leaders in 1919. Since 1951 the Council has studied segregation problems, believing that the Southern problems can not be solved unless Southerners are willing to discuss them frankly, critically and realistically.

The Council is a non-political, non-profit and non-denominational body made up of 80 prominent Southern board members.

Though accused by critics as being everything from "liberal" to "radical," the SRC has always been cleared of charges of subversion, is listed on neither the House Un-American Activities Committee list of subversive groups nor a similar Attorney General's list.

State Laws Hinted To Curb Subversion

Accused Speakers Revealed

By PHIL STROUPE
State Times Staff Writer

The 1960 legislature which meets here in January may write stronger laws on anti-subversive activities in Mississippi.

The laws, if enacted, would be based on findings of the General Legislative Investigating Committee which yesterday concluded its two-day hearings into Communist influences in Mississippi.

Committee Chairman Mayes McGehee of Meadville denied the hearing was held to pave the way for specific legislation, but one reliable source said the committee now has some sort of anti - subversive bills in mind.

The committee ended its hearings yesterday afternoon as one of the persons who had earlier been cited as a Communist, made a dramatic unannounced appearance at the hearing.

Carl Braden of Louisville, Ky., who said he worked for the Southern Conference Educational Fund, showed up at the House of Representatives where the committee was hearing testimony concerning his activities in Mississippi.

When asked by newsmen if he agreed with the testimony about himself, Braden replied curtly, "I have no comment on anything that has gone on here today. I don't think it is worthy of comment."

Witnesses

Witnesses called yesterday included Zack Van Landingham, chief investigator of the State Sovereignty Commission; Joe Ellis, editor of the Clarksdale Press-Register, and John Sullivan of Vicksburg, former FBI agent.

Testimony offered by the three witnesses sought to prove that some of the 11 alledged Communist-front workers named Wednesday by Dr. J. B Matthews, self-employed Communist hunter, have been active in Mississippi recently.

Braden was one of those 11 named by Dr. Matthews. Braden said he had been in New Orleans when he heard of the Mississippi hearings and "stopped by here to see what was going on." He said he was returning to Louisville where he and his wife Anne edit "The Southern Patriot."

Members of the Investigating Committee declined to confirm reports that the hearings were aimed at establishing a basis for outlawing the NAACP.

Van Landingham testified that six of those 11 persons named by Matthews Wednesday had addressed NAACP meetings in Mississippi in recent years.

He said those who spoke at meetings in Clarksdale, Marks and Jackson included:

training school at Highlander Folk School in Monteagle, Tenn.

Ruby Hurley, director of the NAACP's southeast division, whom Matthews said was on the board of the sponsors of the New York Youth Council in 1947 and the World Youth Congress in 1945.

Atty. John Bolt Culbertson of Greenville, S. C., whom Matthews said was a vice president of the Southern Conference Educational Fund. Matthews had said the SCEF was a Communist - front organization.

Van Landingham testified that Bishop C. Eubanks Tucker of Louisville, Ky., had addressed a Negro ministers' meeting in Marks telling them "if any of you advocate segregation in any form your license will be revoked and you will be brought to trial for dishonor to your profession."

Matthews had said, "I know of no organization in the United States so heavily infiltrated with Communists as the NAACP."

The legislature directed the investigating committee to look into subversive influences and report its findings.

Anti-Subversion Legislation May Be Result Of State Probe

By BERRY REECE

JACKSON (UPI) — A two-day hearing into alleged Communist influences in Mississippi today possibly paved the way for anti-subversion legislation in the 1960 legislature.

State Sen. Mayes McGehee of Meadville, chairman of the General Legislative Investigating Committee, denied the hearing was held to pave the way for specific legislation.

But according to a reliable source, the committee now has some sort of anti-subversion bills in mind.

Witnesses called Thursday were chief investigator Zack Van Landingham of the State Sovereignty Commission, Clarksdale editor Joe Ellis and former FBI agent John Sullivan.

They testified that some of the 11 alleged Communist-front workers named Wednesday by self-employed Communist hunter, Dr. J. B. Matthews of New York, have been in Mississippi.

Unworthy Of Comment

One of those cited, Carl Braden of Louisville, Ky., showed up at the afternoon session and told newsmen afterwards he thought the testimony calling him a Communist "is not worthy of comment."

Braden said he worked for the Southern Conference Educational Fund, which Matthews called Communist-front, but Braden said the purpose of the SCEF was merely integration. He said he is currently appealing a one-year prison sentence for contempt of the House Un-American Activities Committee for pleading the 1st Amendment.

Van Landingham, a former FBI agent, testified that six of those scored by Matthews had addressed meetings of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People in Mississippi.

Lists Meetings

Van Landingham said the following spoke to NAACP meetings in Jackson, Clarksdale and Marks.

Rev. Martin Luther King of Montgomery, Ala., whom Matthews said attended a Communist training school at the Highlander Folk School at Monteagle, Tenn.

Mrs. Ruby Hurley, southeastern regional director of the NAACP, whom Matthews said was on the board of sponsors of the New York Youth Council in 1947 and the World Youth Congress in 1945.

Attorney John Bolt Culbertson of Greenville, S. C., whom Matthews said was a vice president of the SCEF.

Texan Tells Hotel-Motel Backers

New Hotel Benefits All City Businesses

HERBERT WILSON

The manager of a community-financed hotel in Nacogdoches, Texas, said last night that the people of his community — from shine boys to bank presidents — are grateful for the hotel.

Herbert Wilson, manager of the Fredonia Hotel, told a packed dinner meeting of the Greenville Hotel-Motel campaing leaders his hotel enjoys phenomial prosperity — but so does the rest of the city's economy.

He said retail sales jumped 17 per cent in the city the first year the hotel opened, and have in-

Nacogdoches has a 15,000 population; has two second rate hotels downtown and five good motels along the city's perimeter. One federal highway passes through the community.

Since its construction, 50 conventions a year have come to the city with from 75-300 delegates, sometimes more. Each spring about 40 high schools in a 50-mile radius hold proms there instead of in the school gymnasiums as formerly.

Despite high occupancy, the food volume handled is up to 3 times as great as the room volume, Wilson says, feeding 1,000 people at a buffet from 1-3 p. m. each Sunday while other business goes to the coffee shop. Weekly, 27 civic clubs eat there.

Profits were so impressive after the first year, he said, that the directors voted to put the money into a $300,000 expansion program instead of dividends. The directors also voted to pay off the original debt in 9 years instead of 17, as contracted.

CHRISTMAS SEAL TIME—About 100 members of the Washington County TB association stuffed some 7,500 envelopes with Christmas seals during all-day operations Wednesday and Thursday. The envelopes will be mailed to county residents asking that they purchase the seals. The money raised, which has averaged about $3,000 yearly, goes to support the county's mobile x-ray unit, produce educational materials, and send county patients to the sanatorium. Argue Insanity Plea In Gambrell's Trial

HATTIESBURG, Miss. (AP) — The state today placed on the stand five rebuttal witnesses who said they had talked with Thomas B. Gambrell prior to the slaying of a highway patrolman and that in their opinion the defendant was sane.

Gambrell is accused of the Aug. 19 murder of H. L. Duckworth, 42, who was shot in the back with a .22 caliber pistol in the defendant's motel room here.

The defense, which rested its case today a few minutes after circuit court convened at 9 a.m., has sought to prove Gambrell was insane at the time Duckworth was killed.

A string of defense witnesses, including one psychiatrist, said during Wednesday and Thursday court sessions that they believed the 33-year-old Jackson attorney was insane.

A psychiatrist, a law professor and a former employer of Gambrell, a 33-year-old Jackson lawyer, testified yesterday.

The psychiatrist, Dr. Claude Brown of Mobile, Ala., told the jury Gambrell was "not competent. . .not in his right mind" at the time of the shooting.

Brown said he considers Gambrell clearly in a psychotic condition then and now and unable to determine a proper course of action.

Owners Of Series E Savings Bonds Can Swap For Series H

WASHINGTON AP) — Owners of the popular series E savings bonds will be given a chance to swap them for series H bonds, which pay interest twice a year.

Those who make the switch will be able to postpone paying taxes on the interest they've earned on their E bonds. This interest is collected—and taxed—only when the bond matures or is redeemed. Its exchange for the series H bond would delay the due date of the

Nab Two Suspects In Robbery Of Louisiana Bank

BASTROP, La.(UPI) — The Morehouse parish sheriff's department said Thursday night it was holding two men fitting the description of the robbers who held up the Oak Ridge La., bank Wednesday and got away with $13,050.

The two were described as "drunk and displaying a lot of money." Both men were believed to be strangers in the area. At the same time, state police reported a car examined near Goodwill, La., in West Carroll parish, believed to be the getaway car.

Two men, their faces splotched with paint, walked into the little bank shortly before closing time and lined the three employees against a wall. They held them there with a sawed-off shotgun while they rifled the vault. Then they locked the employees in it.

Hopes Dim On Steel Strike As Workers Reject New Proposal

By DAVID A. LEHERR

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Hopes for a settlement in the nationwide steel dispute were dimmer today after the United Steelworkers spurned the newest proposal of the basic steel industry.

R. Conrad Cooper, chief industry negotiator, disclosed the new offer Thursday. He said it was a "fair offer to do what can be done and still keep within non-inflationary bounds in the cost of steel production."

USW President, David J. McDonald, termed the proposal as "something only a company-controlled union would accept." He said the offer was just a rearrangement of "the same old package offered by the industry on Oct. 17."

Board Says No

The new offer was submitted to the union Nov. 15 during secret negotiations between both sides. McDonald said the union's 33-member executive board turned it down the same day.

Had the proposal been accepted, said Cooper, it would have meant a 30-cent-an-hour package over a three year period. He added that the new offer also tempered industry demands for more say over working conditions.

McDonald disagreed, claiming that the proposal would mean a gain of only 24 cents an hour over the three year period.

Little Change

"The only changes in the work rules issue are a stay of sentence in the same old attempt to deprive steelworkers of hard won gains and protections," McDonald declared.

"The offer is almost the same proposition which the companies had made in October and which was rejected by the full wage policy committee as recently as Nov. 12th," he added.

Industry estimated that the new proposal provided an increase of 6-10 of a cent an hour over the 29.4 cent hourly package offered by the industry on Oct. 17 in another three-year proposal.

Delay Indictments Against Trio In Tupelo Violence

TUPELO, (UPI) — The Lee County Grand Jury reconvenes next Monday to consider the charges against three Negroes for stabbing white persons here.

The jury adjourned Thursday night. A statement issued by Dist. Atty. N. S. Sweat said some witnesses and evidence were not available to the Grand Jury this week.

Sweat said investigation would not be completed before next Monday and that some evidence had been sent to the laboratory for study.

"Additionally, we understand that the three stabbing victims are in serious condition." Sweat said. "And in the event one of them fails to recover, the State would present this Grand Jury a charge of murder."

County Attorney Dudley Carr said three Negroes are charged with armed robbery, a capital offense in Mississippi.

In addition to this charge, Otto Jones Jr., 18, is charged with assault and battery with intent to kill and J. B. Little, 16, and T. L. Carothers, 17, are charged as accessories.

Matthews' Attack On SRC Was Ill-Founded; History Shown

By JOE FRANKO

Professional witness J. B. Matthews, whose fantastic charges cost him his job with the McCarthy sub-committee, has pointed the finger of innuendo at the Southern Regional Council.

Six years ago Matthews leveled a groundless blast at Protestant clergymen, alleging that at least 7,000 of them were Communist dupes, or worse.

But now he has taken on a group even more formidable than the Protestant clergy, in that membership of the SRC is composed of leading Southern citizens including some prominent churchmen of all faiths.

In accusing the SRC of being "Communist tainted" and implying that its members were Red dupes, Matthews left himself wide open for an avalanche of evidence that may disrobe him of any credibility as a witness.

SCHW Infiltrated

The SRC has been labeled as a Communist infiltrated group before, mainly on the false contention that the Council is an outgrowth of the defunct Southern Conference on Human Welfare. The SCHW was originally loyal but became infiltrated with Red leaners and eventually found a spot on the Attorney General's list of subversive organizations.

The SRC however, had no connection with the SCHW. The Council was incorporated in 1944 but its origin really dates back to 1919 when the Commission on Interracial Cooperation was formed by a group of outstanding southern churchmen.

The Commission was generated by a need for interracial harmony during the KKK days of terror and lawlessness following World War I.

Post War Problems

By the early 1940s the racial situation had changed considerably and the integration of the armed services presaged some critical postwar problems for the south. It was obvious the Interracial Commission had outgrown its usefulness and another agency was needed.

In October, 1942, a group of prominent Negroes met at Durham, N. Car., and issued the famed "Durham Statement" asking for an end to racial discrimination, the establishment of Negro rights, and equality in Negro-white relations in the South.

During the following spring a group of white southern leaders met at Atlanta and issued a complementary statement praising the courage, vision and frankness of the Negroes and offering to cooperate with the Durham representatives.

With this meeting of minds the Southern Regional Council was born and chartered in 1944. The Commission for Interracial Cooperation merged its assets and aims with the new SRC and went out of business.

Incorporators Listed

The incorporators of the Council were Bishop Arthur J. Moore, Methodist church; Ralph McGill, editor of the Atlanta Constitution; Dr. Rufus E. Clement, president of Atlanta University; Dr. Charles S. Johnson, president of Fisk University, Dr. Howard W. Odum, professor of sociology at the Uni-

Lists Meetings

Van Landingham said the following spoke to NAACP meetings in Jackson, Clarksdale and Marks.

Rev. Martin Luther King of Montgomery, Ala., whom Matthews said attended a Communist training school at the Highlander Folk School at Monteagle, Tenn.

Mrs. Ruby Hurley, southeastern regional director of the NAACP, whom Matthews said was on the board of sponsors of the New York Youth Council in 1947 and the World Youth Congress in 1945.

Attorney John Bolt Culbertson of Greenville, S. C., whom Matthews said was a vice president of the SCEF.

Bishop C. Eubanks Tucker of Louisville, Ky., called a director of the SCEF by Van Landingham; and Dr. Glenn Smiley and Rev. J. M. Lawson, whom Van Landingham said were officials of the Fellowship of Reconciliation, labeled Communist-front by Matthews.

Editor Ellis said Braden visited his office in 1958 to "straighten out the facts" on a story critical of often-questioned SCEF head Dr. James Dombrowski of New Orleans.

Sullivan, who runs the Delta Investigating Bureau, said he conducted a private investigation on Braden and said U. S. Senate Judiciary Committee testimony in 1957 branded him a Communist.

UPI Profile On Controversial Professional Witness Matthews

WASHINGTON (UPI)—J. B. Matthews, called a "Damned Liar" by a Mississippi publisher, is no newcomer to controversy . . . A 66-year-old one-time Fellow Traveler . . . Became an ardent anti-Communist . . . Often in the headlines as former aide to Congressional committees.

A native of Nashville, Tenn., served as executive director of the Senate Permanent Investigating Subcommittee in 1953 . . . Set off bombshell then by writing in American Mercury magazine that "Largest single group supporting the Communist apparatus in the United States is composed of Protestant clergy."

Article led to a bitter fight which pitted the late Sen. Joseph McCarthy, Chairman of the Subcommittee, against other members of Senate group . . . Matthews finally resigned.

Matthews started out as a Protestant clergyman whose zeal lead him to a Mission in Java . . . His enthusiasm switched from evangelism to "Interacialism" . . . Spent four years in Nashville where he "proposed and supported little programs for Negro and white children to get better acquainted."

Shortly before Depression, he joined the Fellowship of Reconciliation, a pacifist organization . . . That started radical period of his life . . . Over four years span, he was active in 28 different front organization, including Friends of the Soviet Union.

Matthews later detailed his activities during those years in a book called "Odyssey of a Fellow Traveler" . . . In 1934, Matthews disavowed Communist causes. By 1938, he was a prominent witness before the House Committee on Un-American Activities . . . Later became a committee researcher.

Dr. John Fox, a professor of law at the University of Mississippi, recalled a talk with Gambrell in 1958. Fox said he was "clearly convinced he was insane."

J. B. Reynolds of Jackson, claims adjustor for an insurance company, said he asked for Gambrell's resignation in March, 1958, and the defendant quit soon afterward.

There were times, Reynolds said, when "he became so incoherent I couldn't tell what he was talking about."

"We let him go because we were afraid he was going to kill himself or someone else," Gambrell's former employer said.

Two other witnesses said Gambrell fell from a horse when he was about 12 years old and received a head injury. He never received any medical treatment for the injury, they said.

Owners Of Series E Savings Bonds Can Swap For Series H

WASHINGTON AP) — Owners of the popular series E savings bonds will be given a chance to swap them for series H bonds, which pay interest twice a year.

Those who make the switch will be able to postpone paying taxes on the interest they've earned on their E bonds. This interest is collected—and taxed—only when the bond matures or is redeemed. Its exchange for the series H bond would delay the due date of the tax until the new bond matures.

The Treasury announced Thursday that, starting next Jan. 1, anyone who owns E bonds may exchange them at any time for H bonds. The offer also is being made to owners of series F and J savings bonds—types no longer sold.

Officials believe hundreds of thousands of people will make the switch. Altogether, between 35 and 40 million Americans own E bonds.

Farm Bureau Wants Balanced Budget With No New Taxes

JACKSON, Miss. (AP) — The Mississippi Farm Bureau Federation wants the state to balance its budget without any new taxes.

The federation urged yesterday that the state live within its present income during the next four years.

The farm group also went on record in favor of preservation of segregation in education and the appointment of a committee to investigate specific complaints with regard to textbook content and teaching.

In recommendations for the national program, the delegates reaffirmed their support of states rights legislation and their opposition to federalization of the National Guard in civil rights law enforcement.

The organization's Distinguished Service Award went to Sen. George B. Walker. The presentation was made at Walker's home in Stoneville because the senator was ill with the flu. The plaque was for outstanding service to agriculture.

Complete Rat Bait Distribution Today

City and State Plant Board workers are expected to finish distributing poisoned rat bait in Greenville today. They have put out more of it than they had expected to. Originally 5,000 pounds of corn meal was mixed with the rodent poison. Today an additional 500 pounds of meal was to be procured and mixed with poison.

The rat campaign began Monday with the Washington County Health Department, the State Health Department and the State Plant Board cooperating with the city which provided the money.

Workers have been giving rat poison away from door to door in paper sacks. The poison must be eaten several times by rats or mice.

Under ordinary conditions it will not kill pets and would have to be consumed in very large quantities to injure humans.

Mohasco Tells Of Increased Stock Dividend Today

Mohasco Industries, Inc., announced today an increase in the rate of quarterly dividend on its common stock from five cents to 10 cents a share.

The boost will be effective on Dec. 15, the common dividend payment date. In addition there will be the payment of a year-end dividend on common stock for five cents per share, making the total dividend to common stock holders .15.

Preferred dividends at the regular quarterly rate of .87½ and $1.05 respectively on the 3½ percent and 4.2 percent series will also be payable on that date.

Nov. 30, 1959, will be the record date for both the common and preferred dividends.

Outlook Encouraging

Herbert L. Shuttleworth, II, president, indicated that this increase in the quarterly common dividend rate and the payment of a year-end common dividend is warranted by the favorable operating results in 1959, the encouraging outlook for 1960 and the continued improvement in the company's financial condition.

He considers this action to be another step in the company's efforts to translate this improvement into tangible benefits for its stockholders. He cited as earlier steps the resumption of preferred dividends in 1957, the liquidation of preferred dividend arrearages, the resumption of common dividends and the payment of a year-end extra common dividend in 1958 and the payment of a 10 percent common stock dividend on Oct. 15, 1959.

New Labeling Eases Cranberry Scare

WASHINGTON AP) — A new labeling plan helped today to ease the cranberry scare.

The government Thursday assured housewives they didn't have to worry about including cranberries in their Thanksgiving menus —if the berries they buy are labeled as being safe.

Secretary of Welfare Arthur S. Flemming told berry shoppers to look for one of these labels:

1. "Examined and passed by the Food and Drug Administration of the U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare."

2. "Certified safe under the plan approved by the U.S. government for cranberries." This statement must be signed by the packer distributor who has the testing done in line with government procedures, Flemming said.

Misuse of the labels will be regarded as a crime, the secretary added.

Cranberry industry spokesmen assured housewives there will be plenty of certified berries for the holidays.

The cranberry scare developed last week when Flemming told a news conference that traces of a weed killer had been found on some berries grown in the Pacific Northwest. He said the weed killer, Aminotriazole, had produced cancer when fed to laboratory test rats.

Paul Nunnery Heads County BSA Leaders

Paul Nunnery of Hollandale was elected chairman of the Washington (County) District of the Boy Scouts of America at a supper meeting of the district leaders Thursday night.

Also elected at the meeting, held in the Hollandale Community House, were Bill Kimbrell, Greenville, first vice chairman, and Lester Watson, Leland, second vice chairman.

The meeting was presided over by outgoing chairman Joe Wroten, who termed the key to succes for the scouting program "regular meetings of all committees."

"What is needed is the opportunity to sit down and regularly survey what we have and have not accomplished," Wroten said.

Among the 21 scout leaders present were scout field executive Chuck Thomas and committee chairmen Eugene Raphael, Jack Madison and Dave Davidow all of whom gave short talks on the progress of the Washington County scouting program in their various fields.

District Commissioner Bob Fulmer told the scout leaders that overall scout membership was 1093 in the district in November as against 1223 in January, 1959. The total should be higher by December 31, Fulmer said.

In his concluding remarks Wroten said that being district chairman has "been a unique experience. It gave me a chance to see the human values which are reached in the scouting program."

not be completed before next Monday and that some evidence had been sent to the laboratory for study.

Ike Nixes Proposal To Take Democrat Along On His Trip

WASHINGTON AP)—President Eisenhower has turned down a suggestion that he take a top Democratic leader with him on his foreign tour next month.

He said he thought a pre-departure discussion with congressional leaders of both parties would be more useful. He said he has already proposed such an arrangement.

The President stated his views in a letter to Sen. Thomas J. Dodd (D-Conn) from Eisenhower's vacation headquarters in Augusta, Ga. Dodd made the letter public Thursday night. There was no further comment from Eisenhower.

The letter was in reply to a suggestion Dodd made last week that one or more Democrats experienced in international affairs be invited to make the trip. He specifically suggested former President Harry S. Truman, among others.

Eisenhower leaves Dec. 3 on a 20,000 mile tour of 11 nations.

Truck Hits Deer; 27 Laborers Hurt

LUCEDALE, Miss. (AP) — A truck loaded with day-haul Negro workers slammed into a deer on Highway 98. The deer was killed and 27 truck passengers were injured.

The highway patrol said yesterday the driver was Booker T. Fairley, 39. Officers said Fairley told them the deer bounded onto the highway and he hit the animal and lost control of the truck.

The vehicle went down an embankment and overturned.

Most of the victims were injured slightly, but 9-year-old Leonard Ray Moody was hospitalized with a possible brain injury.

After Series Of Grass Fires

Warns About Burning Of Trash

Fire Chief A. Z. Lokey today warned citizens of Greenville and the area near the city of the danger of burning trash.

The chief pointed out that Greenville has a city ordinance prohibiting burning of trash.

Chief Lokey issued his warning after a rash of six grass fires Thursday caused by careless burning of trash.

The chief said Thursday runs were made to most of the fires but city firemen were unable to answer a call to a trailer court on North Broadway because all of the companies were busy.

The biggest hazard, the chief said, is that of having firemen out fighting a grass fire and a conflagration break out in the downtown area or in one of the city's big industrial plants. If a factory fire broke out it and the plant damaged men would be thrown out of work.

With cold weather and chill winds, burning trash in an incinerator at this time will hardly be the right thing to do because trash falls from an incinerator and catches fire.

The chief said people in the city and in the county areas on the fringe of Greenville should be more careful.

New Lutheran Church Dedication Is Sunday

Rev. Roy A. Jacob, pastor of Faith Lutheran Church of Greenville, has announced that the congregation will dedicate its new house of worship Sunday afternoon at 4:30. The service will be open to the public.

The church is located on the intersection of Old Leland Road and Dublin Way in north Greenville, across from the Fulwiler elementary school. Refreshments will be served following the service.

Ground for the new $38,000 structure was broken on February 22. The building is intended to serve as a multi-purpose first unit of a master plan which calls for the eventual construction of an educational building and a main church. Its features include four Sunday School rooms, a pastor's study, a kitchen and balcony.

The main sanctuary will accommodate 150, and the entire building will be cooled throughout by central air-conditioning. A nursery will also be operated during church hours.

The building, designed by Harry Dickman of Greenville and constructed by Lancaster Bros., is of modern style architecture, featuring glass paneling in the front wall and laminated wooden arches in the interior, which has been purposely designed with an off-center effect.

Rev. Jacobs said that most new Lutheran churches are now being constructed in the modern style of architecture because of its economy, beauty, simplicity and utility.

The speaker for the dedication service will be the Rev. E. L. Coyner, pastor of Messiah Lutheran Church of Vicksburg and Circuit Counselor for the North Mississippi Circuit of the Lutheran Church — Missouri Synod.

CLEVELAND — Services for Sylvester Givens Sanders, who died after a long illness Tuesday at his home near Ruleville, were conducted at 2:30 p.m. Wednesday at Dockery Baptist Church with the Rev. Marion Gray officiating. Burial was in Ruleville cemetery. Thweatt Funeral Home was in charge. He was 58.

Born in Yalabousha county, Mr. Sanders came to the Ruleville area in 1942 where he has since lived. He was an automobile salesman, and member of Dockery Baptist Church.

He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Pearlie Mae Sanders; a son S. G. Sanders, Jr., of Greenville; three daughters, Mrs. Ruth Virginia Lofton of Indianola, Mrs. Roy Phillips of Texakana, Texas, and Mrs. Margie Mae Sanders of Ruleville; three brothers, Tom Sanders of Memphis, John Sanders of Prairie, Miss., and Sim Sanders of Kilmichael; five sisters, Mrs. Lillian Hall and Mrs. Roma Neely of Memphis, Mrs. Rosie Lucius of Greenville, and Mrs. Nettie Fowler of Sweatman, Miss. He is also survived by four stepchildren, Floyd Lee Smith, John Lloyd Smith, Myrtle Mae Smith, Dixie Jean Smith, of Ruleville; 13 grandchildren.

Agricultural Census Begins In County Today

The 1959 Census of Agriculture began today in Washington County after census enumerators attended two days of school in Greenville and Hollandale.

The last census, in 1954 revealed the following statistics: $21,853,925 worth of farm products sold. This included $20,442,348 in crops ($37,638 worth of vegetables, $44,973 for fruits and nuts, $24,775 for horticultural specialties and $20,334,962 for field crops). Livestock and livestock products sold totaled $1,386,690 ($223,350 for dairy products, $83,793 for poultry and poultry products).

The value of forest products sold from the county's farms was $24,887.

David E. Ouzts Services Saturday

Funeral services for David E. Ouzts, 76, of Greenville, a retired Texas business man, who died in Memphis Thursday at Baptist Hospital, will be conducted at 10 a.m. Saturday at the chapel of Wells Funeral Home by Dr. Perry Claxton, pastor of First Baptist Church. Burial will be in Greenville Cemetery.

Mr. Ouzts was born in Limestone county, Texas, and engaged in the textile business at Houston, Texas, until his retirement several years ago.

He and his wife moved to Greenville three years ago to make their home with a niece, Mrs. Tommy Taylor, 519 Walker street. Mrs. Ouzts died last March. He was a member of the Baptist Church.

He is survived by a sister, Mrs. C. H. Crouch of Sedaw, New Mexico; three nieces, Mrs. G. E. McKinley of Shreveport, La., Mrs. Gee Hodes of Dallas, Texas, Mrs. Tommy Taylor of Greenville; and two newphews, W. M. Ouzts of San Diego, Cal., and C. H. Crouch Jr. of Albuquerque, New Mexico.

versity of North Carolina.

Other men prominent in the organization of the SRC were M. Ashby Jones and Ryland Knight, Baptist ministers; Rabbi David Marx, Atlanta Temple; Stuart R. Oglesby, Presbyterian minister; Most Rev. Gerald P. O'Hara, Bishop of Savannah-Atlanta; J. McDowell Richards, president of Columbia Theological Seminary; Bishop John Moore Walker, Protestant Episcopal church, and Goodrich C. White, president of Emory University.

Dr. Odom was the first president. He was succeeded by Paul D. Williams, Richmond, Va., prominent Catholic layman and co-founder of the Catholic Committee of the South.

The Southern Regional Council consists of 80 southerners representing the major religious faiths, both races, and the 13 states of the region.

The Council is non-profit, nonpolitical and non-denominational. Financial support comes from several sources. The most abundant are church funds of six different denominations, philanthropic foundations, trade unions and Human Welfare.

The SCHW was organized in 1938 by some leading Americans and was originally a reputable organization. Many well-intentioned and patriotic southerners participated in its early activities. However, when it became apparent that Communist sympathizers had infiltrated the organization, loyal members withdrew and a number joined the SRC.

The Council has refuted subversion charges repeatedly and successfully. The staunchly segregationist Richmond Times-Dispatch has defended the honor — if not the goals — of the SRC, as have the Atlanta Constitution and the Chattanoga Times, among others.

Defended In Congress

Rep. Richard Bolling (D-Mo.) defended the loyalty of the SRC on the floor of the House of Representatives. Sen. Paul H. Douglas, of Illinois, did the same thing in the Senate.

Rep. Francis E. Walters, of Pennsylvania, chairman of the House Un-American Activities Investigating Committee, gave the Southern Regional Council a clean bill of health.

Perhaps the feeling toward the SRC and effect of Matthew's charges can be best summed up by the remarks of a prominent Greenville businessman discussing the allegations:

"I have no love for the Southern Regional Council but anyone who calls it 'Comunist tainted' must be crazy."

Delta Farm Weather

Very Low Humidity Dries Fields

STONEVILLE—Dry weather with somewhat higher temperatures will give good conditions for field operations today and Saturday. Temperatures will climb into the mid 60s this afternoon and near 70 on the week end. Lows at night will be around 40, the Weather Bureau said.

The humidity dropped to an unusually low level—in the teens—Thursday afternoon. This dried out field crops, however the soil is still moist and some low places have mud or puddles. Excellent drying conditions will continue today.

Low pressure over southwest Texas with a weak front extending northeast into Kansas is due to move slowly eastward. There is a chance of a few light showers as it moves through this area late Saturday or Sunday. However the air over the mid-South is so extremely dry that very little in the way of rain is likely. In fact, generally dry weather is likely to continue into the middle of next week.

Greenville Tonwing Company's motor vessel, Ben McCool, radioed at 5 a. m. today at mile 890 and downbound on the Ohio river. For the record straight day the GTC's vessel, Walter Williamson, was tied up at Mayersville, south of Greenville, discharging cargo.

Valley Towing Company's towboat, City of Greenville, enroute to Memphis, radioed early today at mile 632 and northbound on the lower Mississippi. Another Valley towboat, Lady Ree, beamed a message listing Memphis as its location where cargo is being discharged.

Port City Towing Company's motor vessel, Etta Marie, at 6 a. m. today radioed her position at mile 74 on the upper Mississippi enroute to St. Louis.

Eleven towboats beamed radio messages Thursday on passing Warfield Point, 5 miles south of Greenville, on the main channel of the Mississippi. The southbound boats passing included the Mark Eastin, Mary B., and Bonus H. Northbound boats included the United States, Jane T., City of Greenville, Sandelier, Sally Polk, Jean C. Hutchinson, Jamel and Lipscomb.

After passing Warfield Point at 9 o'clock last night, Delta Towing Company's motor vessel, Jamel, at 6 a. m. today radioed her position at mile 557 on the lower Mississippi. The Jamel is enroute to Charleston, West Virginia. Another DTC towboat, the Nita Dean, at 6 a. m. today radioed the office here her position at mile 743 on the lower Mississippi river. The Nita Dean's destination is Louisville, Ky.

The Council is non-profit, nonpolitical and non-denominational. Financial support comes from several sources. The most abundant are church funds of six different denominations, philanthropic foundations, trade unions and some business firms. Individuals support the Council with contributions, legacies and dues.

The SRC operated within the framework of "separate but equal" for seven years. In 1951 the Council formally committed itself to the aim of an unsegregated society. "It did so because it believed segregation to conflict with moral values, with democratic principals, and with the best interests of the country and this region," the SRC states.

Since the 1954 Supreme Court decision declaring school segregation unconstitutional the Council has favored compliance through methodical integration.

Brought Under Fire

This stand has brought the SRC under fire from southern conservatives a number of times. Detractors are goaded on by the fact that some SRC members had previously belonged to the defunct red-lined Southern Conference on the floor of the House of Representatives. Sen. Paul H. Douglas, of Illinois, did the same thing in the Senate.

Rep. Francis E. Walters, of Pennsylvania, chairman of the House Un-American Activities Investigating Committee, gave the Southern Regional Council a clean bill of health.

Perhaps the feeling toward the SRC and effect of Matthew's charges can be best summed up by the remarks of a prominent Greenville businessman discussing the allegations:

Subversion Legislation In Mississippi Wind?

NOV 22 1959

'Bills in Mind,' Report: More Names Called in Jackson Hearings

By BERRY REECE, United Press International

JACKSON, Miss.—A two-day hearing into alleged Communist influences in Mississippi today possibly paved the way for anti-subversion legislation in the 1960 Legislature.

State Sen. Mayes McGehee of Meadville, chairman of the General Legislative Investigating Committee, denied the hearing was held to pave the way for specific legislation.

But according to a reliable source, the committee now has some sort of anti-subversion bills in mind.

Witnesses called yesterday were Chief Investigator Zack Van Landingham of the state Sovereignty Commission, Clarksdale Editor Joe Ellis and former FBI Agent John Sullivan.

They testified that some of the 11 alleged Communist-front workers named Wednesday by Communist hunter, Dr. J. B. Matthews of New York, have been in Mississippi.

Braden Cited

One of those cited, Carl Braden of Louisville, Ky., showed up at the afternoon session and told newsmen afterwards he thought the testimony calling him a Communist "is not worthy of comment."

Braden said he worked for the Southern Conference Educational Fund, which Matthews called Communist-front, but Braden said the purpose of the SCEF was merely integration. He said he is currently appealing a one-year prison sentence for contempt of the House Un-American Activities Committee.

Van Landingham, a former FBI agent, testified that six of those scored by Matthews had addressed meetings of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People in Mississippi.

Van Landingham said the following spoke to NAACP meetings in Jackson, Clarksdale and Marks:

Rev. Martin Luther King of Montgomery, Ala., whom Matthews said attended a Communist training school at the Highlander Folk School at Monteagle, Tenn.

Speaker Accused

Mrs. Ruby Hurley, southeastern regional director of the NAACP, whom Matthews said was on the board of sponsors of the New York Youth Council in 1947 and the World Youth Congress in 1945.

Atty. John Bolt Culbertson of Greenville, S.C., whom Matthews said was a vice president of the SCEF.

Bishop C. Eubanks Tucker of Louisville, Ky., called a director of the SCEF by Van Landingham; and Dr. Glenn Smiley and Rev. J. M. Lawson, whom Van Landingham said were officials of the Fellowship of Reconciliation, labeled Communist-front by Matthews.

Editor Ellis said Braden visited his office in 1958 to "straighten out the facts" on a story critical of often-questioned SCEF head Dr. James Dombrowski of New Orleans.

Sullivan, who runs the Delta Investigating Bureau, said he conducted a private investigation on Braden and said U.S. Senate Judiciary Committee testimony in 1957 branded him a Communist.

'Guilty Plea' By NAACP Official

Roy Wilkins, executive secretary of the NAACP, said in New York:

"The action against the NAACP in Mississippi is reported to have been launched because our organization has goals 'contary to Mississippi's segregated way of life.'

"We plead guilty to this charge. We have fought the Mississippi way of life for the 50 years of our existence and we expect to continue our efforts until segregation is eliminated from American life.

"NAACP is not now nor has it ever been either a Communist or a Communist front organization."

Red-Hunt Hearings May Mean More State Laws

By JOHN HERBERS
United Press International

A question around the state capitol this week is what's behind the two-day subversion hearing conducted by the Legislative Investigating Committee. Why was it conducted and what did it accomplish?

Members of the committee have acted very mysterious about the matter. The first word of the hearing came out Tuesday afternoon when Sen. Mayes McGehee of Meadville, committee chairman, called a news conference and distributed a one-sentence signed statement to the effect that there would be a public hearing at 10 a.m. the next day in the House chamber.

And that was all he would say about the nature of the hearing.

It was known the committee had at least one investigator assigned to a secret project for more than a year. It was obvious this was it. But why?

When the hearing opened the next day the main witness was J. B. Matthews, 66, the highly controversial anti-Communist, a former fellow traveler and integrationist who later turned against the party and spent several years as aide to congressional committees until he was let out of the McCarthy committee for a magazine article he wrote saying "the largest single group supporting the Communist apparatus in the United States is composed of Protestant clergy."

Matthews' testimony on Communist infiltration and front groups was substantially the same as that repeated many times before federal and state investigations except that he threw in some local names. He established no difference between known Communist front groups and the Southern Regional council which is supported by many leading Southerners and has been cleared of subversion charges by the federal government.

But that turned out to be a side issue to the next day's testimony.

Zack Van Landingham, chief investigator for the State Sovereignty Commission, used Matthews' testimony to show that speakers at NAACP and regional council of Negro leadership meetings in Mississippi had been active in Communist front groups.

The Legislative committee previously has confined its investigations to state institutions and agencies as a "watch dog" group to see that there was no graft or corruption. But the 1958 Legislature adopted a resolution authorizing the committee to investigate the NAACP for subversive influences and to determine its purpose.

The hearing apparently was an answer to that but it was not known whether the hearing would be used as a basis for outlawing the organization. Some legislators are opposed to that on the basis that it can be better watched when its activities are legal and open.

However, the hearings may form the basis for some anti-subversive legislation at the 1960 Legislature. The state now has laws that would permit arrest of any out-of-state NAACP speaker but possibly some legislators think more are needed.

The hearing may be a prelude to another raft of anti-integration legislation. Large volumes of this type laws were passed at the 1958 and earlier sessions.

On outlawing the NAACP, such action has stood up in only one state—Alabama. There the organization was fined $100,000 after the NAACP refused to make public its membership list. The NAACP did not pay the fine and therefore is not allowed to exist. Similar organizations with the same purposes sprang up in its absence.

Mississippi is armed with a 1958 law that would permit Mississippi to take the same action against the NAACP as Alabama did.

Neighbors Behind Carter

GREENVILLE, Miss., Nov. 21.—A group of leading Washington County citizens, including the entire legislative delegation, Saturday released a statement supporting Greenville editor and publisher, Hodding Carter. Mr. Carter, author and Pulitzer Prize winner, was accused this week of belonging to communist front organizations.

Their statement said in part: "We strongly condemn the smear technique by which a man's good name can be dragged in the mud..."

Signers included state Senator-elect and Leland Mayor William J. Caraway, Representative Joe Wroten, and Representatives-elect Deloach Cope and Horace Meredith Jr., Leroy Percy, former president of the Delta Council, Maj. Gen. Galla Paxton (USA, ret.), Monty Payne, president of the Washington County Farm Bureau, and other county leaders.

McCarthyism In Mississippi

TWO observations seem in order following the two day hearing by the General Legislative Investigating Committee in Jackson The first is that it accomplised no good purpose and unearthed no new information but did blacken the names of a number of innocent people. The second is that in technique and intent the Committee followed a course highly reminiscent of the old McCarthy pattern of smear and run.

What exactly did the committee unearth? First of all, they brought forth a professional anti-Communist, J. B. Matthews, who very carefully hedged everything he implied or stated and ended by making no charges which could be acted upon. Of the people he mentioned, some are dead and most are out of the state.

The one person he mentioned who is still active in Mississippi, the editor of this paper, was able to prove both his loyalty and the falsity of the charges brought by Matthews. What cannot be fully countered, however, is the lie which has now been spread abroad, for fact rarely completely catches up with fiction. This the smear artists and witch hunters know full well. Sadly enough, of course, none of the others named by Matthews have a forum from which to answer his allegations.

Both days saw the witnesses neatly mixing up the names of one or two known Communists and fellow travellers with a large percentage of non-Communists. The committee's counsel brought out the desired effect of muddying the waters so that everyone mentioned came out under suspicion.

Indeed, when asked whether the committee wasn't in reality practicing guilt by association, the chief investigator for the State Sovereignty Commission, Zack Van Landingham, told the questioner to "draw your own conclusions."

The conclusion is inescapable. What was being practiced was McCarthyism plain and simple, with all the forms and practices which were discredited nationally five years ago reemerging. Guilt by association, half-truths, and outright lies — these were the rule rather than the exception during the committees hearings.

The question is, where is Mississippi heading? During the course of the past six months we have seen vicious attacks made upon our schools' textbooks, upon the University of Mississippi, and upon a simple film on tolerance in the state department of education. Now this committee hearing.

The answer which appears inescapable at the moment is that those who are in the saddle in the state today are determined to impose total control on the entire community of Mississippi, Negro and white. To do this they are willing to see freedom of thought, freedom of opinion, and freedom of inquiry totally destroyed.

They are well on the road to success.

Cranberry, Cigarettes And Cancer

IT is pleasant to know that the cranberry controversy has come conclusive, but nary a peep do we hear from Secretary of Welfare

Cranberry, Cigarettes And Cancer

IT is pleasant to know that the cranberry controversy has come to an almost happy ending. We have been assured that safe and sane cranberries will be available at the grocery stores, so we're going to have the works with our turkey after all.

All this controversy about the possible cancer-inducing effect of cranberries makes us feel just a little cynical about the government's bravery, however. The Food and Drug people are not really sure that the chemical ingredient in the weed killer put on some cranberries will cause cancer in humans, but the government rushed madly in to block all sales through adverse publicity and confiscating some cranberries. The cranberry industry only does business valued in the millions, however.

The link between cigarette smoking and cancer is far more conclusive, but nary a peep do we hear from Secretary of Welfare Arthur Fleming that, if he were a housewife, he'd think twice about buying cigarettes.

As an out, of course, the government can say that there's no law concerning harmful agents in cigarettes while there is one covering food, but it could be the fact that the tobacco industry is in the multi-million category while the cranberry boys aren't has something to do with it, too.

In any case, we're glad that cranberries will be on the market and we're pleased to see a government agency taking a public stand against cancer producing products. Now if one of those bureaus up there would just carry this war against cancer to its logical conclusion, we might get somewhere in the war against the dread disease.

Justice In The Spotlight

TUPELO and Corinth in all probability will be the scene of trials which could attract national attention.

In Tupelo three Negroes have been charged with the stabbing of three white men, all of whom are injured seriously. In Corinth eight white boys face murder charges in the shotgun slaying of a Negro teenager.

The two cases have parallels that may put the administration of justice in Mississippi to a strict test.

In both cases groups of teen age boys have been charged with unprovoked attacks on males of another race they did not even know. In the Corinth case the victim was slain immediately. In the Tupelo case the grand jury consideration of charges has been delayed so that murder charges can be filed if one of the victims died.

Indictments and trials occurring almost simultaneously in these two Northeast Mississippi Cities in all likelihood attract the attention of many people outside the state. Up to the present time, the actions of citizens and law enforcement officers in the two cases has been exemplary.

The crucial test will come in the way both sets of assailants, Negro and white, are prosecuted. Once again the state's reputation is on trial as well as the accused. Justice must be done in the two cases in complete and impartial form, if we are to regain a reputation for fair play in our courts regardless of race or circumstance.

MISSISSIPPI — Cloudy to partly cloudy through Sunday with a few showers mainly north portion this afternoon. Not much change in temperatures.

ARKANSAS — Partly cloudy through Sunday. No important temperature changes. Highest Sunday in 60s.

Legislative Probe May Be Aimed At Outlawing NAACP In State

By JOHN HERBERS

JACKSON (UPI) — A question around the State Capitol this week is what's behind the two-day subversion hearing conducted by the Legislative Investigating Committee. Why was it conducted and what did is accomplish?

Members of the committee have acted very mysterious about the matter. The first word of the hearing came out Tuesday afternoon when Sen. Mayes McGehee of Meadville, committee chairman, called a news conference and distributed a one-sentence signed statement to the effect that there would be a public hearing at 10 a. m. the next day in the House Chamber.

And that was all he would say pose.

The hearing apparently was an answer to that but it was not known whether the hearing would be used as a basis for outlawing the organization. Some legislators are opposed to that on the basis that it can be better watched when its activities are legal and open.

See Legislation

However, the hearings may form the basis for some anti-subversive legislation at the 1960 Legislature. The state now has laws that would permit arrest of any out-of-state NAACP speaker but possibly some legislators think more are needed.

The hearing may be a prelude to another raft of anti-integration legislation. Large volumes of this type laws were passed at the 1958 and earlier sessions.

On outlawing the NAACP, such action has stood up in only one state — Alabama. There the organization was fined $100,000 after the NAACP refused to make public its membership list. The NAACP did not pay the fine and therefore is not allowed to exist. Similar organizations with the same purposes sprang up in its absence.

Mississippi is armed with a 1958 law that would permit Mississippi to take the same action against the NAACP as Alabama did.

25 County Citizens Condemn Red Smear

A 25 man group of Washington County citizens today issued "an open letter to the people of Mississippi" in which they affirmed their belief "in the good citizenship, honesty and patriotism" of Hodding Carter, editor-publisher of the Delta Democrat-Times.

The statement by the local group, which included the entire legislative delegation of the county, followed charges made on Wednesday at a legislative committee hearing in Jackson that Carter was a member of a communist "tainted" organization.

The text of the statement said:

"We the undersigned citizens of Greenville, and Washington County, Mississippi, wish to express our belief in the good citizenship, honesty, and patriotism of our fellow citizen, Hodding Carter, who has been accused in a legislative committee hearing of having Communist front connections. We have not always agreed with him, but we recognize his right to differ as well as our own.

"We recognize also that such rights are in peril in our state today. We strongly condemn the smear technique by which a man's good name can be dragged in the mud. And we earnestly hope that the recent hearings in Jackson have not set a pattern for the future."

The signers included:

LeRoy Percy, State Senator-elect W. J. Caraway, Rep. Joe Wroten, Rep-elect Deloach Cope, Rep.-elect H. L. Meridith, Jr., Lt. Gen. (ret.) A. G. Paxton, C. A. Hollingsworth, Chancellor S. B. Thomas, Wade Hollowell, Albert Lake, Emmet Harty, W. C. Keady and Howard Dyer.

Also included were Robert May, Frank Baird, Jake Stein, Edmund Taylor, Joe Virden, Roger Generally, McClain Bowman, Arch Toler, Frank Hall, Sr., Jesse Brent, Monty Payne, and Rabbi Herbert Hendel.

Legislative Probe May Be Aimed At Outlawing NAACP In State

By JOHN HERBERS

JACKSON (UPI) — A question around the State Capitol this week is what's behind the two-day subversion hearing conducted by the Legislative Investigating Committee. Why was it conducted and what did is accomplish?

Members of the committee have acted very mysterious about the matter. The first word of the hearing came out Tuesday afternoon when Sen. Mayes McGehee of Meadville, committee chairman, called a news conference and distributed a one-sentence signed statement to the effect that there would be a public hearing at 10 a. m. the next day in the House Chamber.

And that was all he would say about the nature of the hearing.

Year's Project

It was known the committee had at least one investigator assigned to a secret project for more than a year. It was obvious this was it. But what?

When the hearing opened the next day the main witness was J. B. Matthews, 66, the highly controversial anti-communist, a former fellow traveler and integrationist who later turned against the party and spent several years as aide to Congressional Committees until he was let out of the McCarthy committee for a magazine article he wrote saying "the largest single group supporting the Communist apparatus in the United States is composed of Protestant clergy."

Matthews' testimony on Communist infiltration and front groups was substantially the same as that repeated many times before federal and state investigations except that he threw in some local names. He established no difference between the Communist front groups and the Southern Regional Council which is supported by many leading Southerners and has been cleared of subversion charges by the federal government.

Side Issue

But that turned out to be a side issue to the next day's testimony. Zack Van Landingham, chief investigator for the State Sovereignity Commission, used Matthews' testimony to show that speakers at NAACP and Regional Council of Negro leadership meetings in Mississippi had been active in Communist front groups.

The Legislative Committee previously has confined its investigations to state institutions and agencies as a "watch dog" group to see that there was no graft or corruption. But the 1958 Legislature adopted a resolution authorizing the committee to investigate the NAACP for subversive influences and to determine its purpose.

The hearing apparently was an answer to that but it was not known whether the hearing would be used as a basis for outlawing the organization. Some legislators are opposed to that on the basis that it can be better watched when its activities are legal and open.

However, the hearings may form the basis for some anti-subversive legislation at the 1960 Legislature. The state now has laws that would permit arrest of any out-of-state NAACP speaker but possibly some legislators think more are needed.

Believes Matthews Overstepped Self

State Times,

Can you find out by what authority this man "Matthews" is the supreme authority on who is and who is not a Communist, and also why the Legislative Committee selected him to do their witch-hunting? I believe he overstepped himself when he included among those "banned" the name of Dr. P. H. Easom, former Director of the Negro Division of the State Department of Education. Dr. Easom was not a personal friend of mine but I knew him and his work well enough to know, beyond a doubt, that he was a highly-educated, Christian gentleman of the highest honor and integrity. Dr. Easom gave his life to the cause of justice, fair-dealing and harmony between the races. Since he cannot speak for himself it behooves some one to speak for him. Our state is strong for "States Rights" (and I am too), but what about "personal rights" and "individual liberty?" If these liberties are not guaranteed to us then, after we are dead and gone, some one (like Mr. Matthews) may come along to smear the record we left. What about it?

I am a Mississippi - born white, voting citizen—one who cherishes the "right of the individual", which I think is the basis of American freedom.

The Mud Won't Stick

DR. J. B. MATTHEWS is barking up the wrong tree when he accuses Hodding Carter of being a Communist-fronter.

Matthews, by his own admission a former member of a Communist-front group, and by Carter's description now a "professional anti-Communist," attacked the distinguished Greenville, Miss., editor in testimony before the General Legislative Investigating Committee of Mississippi.

We believe history will show Hodding Carter as one of the great, effective foes of Communism, both inside and outside of this country.

Carter is pursuing an intelligently conservative course in these difficult times. He understands that the United States must live in the world and stands firm for the minimum of what the U. S. and the South can have of what we want in view of world affairs.

Thousands know just how loyal, intelligent and courageous Hodding Carter is. Some hot-headed, short-sighted individuals do not because they will not.

Fortunately, Carter's prestige is so great that attacks such as those by Matthews cannot hurt him.

CHATTANOOGA TIMES

Candles in the Darkness

R-SIS,

The Mississippi legislative committee investigating what it call subversive forces at work in the state followed a familiar pattern in listening to horrendous charges without producing much substantive proof of their accuracy.

J. B. Mathews, the discredited professional witness, was a key figure as he has been in so many of these witch hunts. In the course of his testimony, he termed Hodding Carter, editor of the Greenville (Miss.) Delta-Democrat Times and a known liberal, a member of the "interlocking directorate" of Communist-tainted organizations.

"That was a lie out of the whole cloth," commented the Pascagoula Chronicle Star, "as Carter rightly labeled it."

It was too much, too, for a group of the editor's fellow townsmen, including his county's entire legislative delegation. In an open letter to the people of Mississippi, they made this statement:

"We, the undersigned citizens of Greenville and Washington County, which to express our belief in the good citizenship, honesty and patriotism of our fellow citizen, Hodding Carter.

"We have not always agreed with him, but we recognize his right to differ as well as our own.

"We recognize also that such rights are imperiled in our state today. We strongly condemn smear techniques by which a man's good name can be dragged in the mud."

CHATTANOOGA TIMES

In recent years, Mississippi has become an abode of intimidation, an arena of suppression, in which scarcely a voice was raised to protest conformity with a way of life decreed by the White Citizens Council.

The council said service on the advisory council of the Civil Rights Commission would be "traitorous," and for months no Mississippian would accept appointment. Finally, Joel Bliss of Wiggins, a state legislator, said he would ignore the council's admonition and would "think for himself" rather than let the council do it for him. The Tylertown Times hailed his decision as "an indication there is still room in our state for a difference of opinion; this is as it should be."

A few Mississippians are lighting candles instead of cursing the darkness that has descended on their state. It is good to hail actions which so many have avoided for so long.

Smear Campaign Can Hurt Cause Of Mississippi

By OLIVER EMMERICH

A group of 25 Washington County leaders, including the county's entire legislative delegation, have emphatically voiced faith in the "good citizenship, honesty and patriotism of our fellow citizen, Hodding Carter."

The meeting of these leaders in Greenville followed the meeting of a legislative committee in Jackson in which Editor Hodding Carter was named as one of 11 Mississippians belonging to Communist front organizations.

No one could convince us that Hodding Carter is a Communist.

Nor can it be said that he is not a patriotic American, interested in the things which are best for America.

Mr. Carter is a segregationist. He has repeatedly stated his position in this respect. He has, however, throughout his career opposed racial injustices and in so doing has created some bitter opposition.

We do not agree with all of the editorial positions taken by Editor Carter. Neither do we condone the smear tactics that have been used against him.

It is wrong to condemn the smear tactics used in other countries and then embrace them in Mississippi and America.

There is no question but that Hodding Carter is being used as a whipping boy. Things are being charged against him that are contrary to the truth, founded upon hearsay and enlarged upon by rumor. It is a reflection of the frustration that is typical yet understandable in Mississippi today.

When we disagree with a position, it is right that we condemn it. Differences of opinions are essential to growth. But there is a wide difference between the American concept or differing and the use of smear campaign tactics which have characterized the campaigns of countries whose ideologies do not embrace that of individual liberty.

The statement by the Washington County group, in an open letter to the people of Mississippi, said:

"We, the undersigned citizens of Greenville and Washington County, Miss., wish to express our belief in the good citizenship, honesty, and patriotism of our fellow citizen, Hodding Carter, who has been accused in a legislative hearing of having Communist-front connections.

"We have not always agreed with him, but we recognize his right to differ as well as our own.

"We recognize also such rights are imperiled in our state today. We strongly condemn smear techniques by which a man's good name can be dragged in the mud. And we earnestly hope that the recent hearings in Jackson have not set a pattern for the future."

Among those signing were Leroy Percy, planter and past president of the Delta Council; Sen.-elect J. W. Caraway of Leland; Rep. Joe Wroten; Reps.-elect Horace L. Meredith Jr. and Deloach Cope; Lt. Gen. A.G. Paxton, former commander of the Mississippi-Alabama National Guard division; Sheriff-elect Alton Hollingsworth; Chancellor S. B. Thomas; Wade Hollowell, president of the state Blue Cross organization; Greenville city attorney Albert Lake; Arch Toler, president of the Greenville Bank and Trust Company, and barge line owner Jesse Brent.

Anyone who is acquainted with the leadership of the Mississippi Delta, home region of the Greenville newsman, must agree that the people who issued this protest against "smear campaign" tactics are loyal and patriotic Mississippians. They would not voice an opinion if they did not sincerely believe in it.

TITLE OF BOOK:

EIGHTY ADVENTUROUS YEARS

Author:

Sherwood Eddy

Publisher:

Harper & Brothers
New York, N.Y. (1955)

In the book entitled "Eighty Adventurous Years", autobiography of Sherwood Eddy, a Socialist and a pioneer for racial integration and "racial equality", which is an altogether impossible accomplishment, we find the names of organizers of Hillhouse settlement in Bolivar County, Mississippi called Rockdale and the Providence Cooperative Farm in Holmes County.

A comment attached to the front of the book states:

". . . . Eddy flug himself into the fight for social justice as he helped found and operate the Delta Cooperative farms in an area where tenancy and peonage were at their worst."

Sherwood Eddy posed as a christian, but he used church organizations as a vehicle to subvert the minds of young people and to reduce our American government to a welfare state.

He was for approximately forty years an official of the Y.M.C.A. and in this capacity he spread his socialistic and subversive influence over the world. Eddy was a pioneer promoter of the student movement which is now agitating for racial integration and for a Communist World. He boast in the foreword, Page 13:

"I approach the close of my thirty sixth book - - - I have had the unique experience of working for sixty years in thirty countries over four continents."

The introduction to this book is written by Reinhold Neibuhr of Union Theological Seminary, who has a long and disastrous record in the field of communism in the churches. Speaking of Eddy he states:

"After that he enlisted me as a helper in his tour of Colleges and insisted on paying the salary of an assistant minister for my parish to free me for college work. Subsequently he was instrumental in bringing me to the faculty of Union Seminary. - - - His passion for social justice embodied the best in the tradition of the social gospel. - - - He conducted more college missions than any other christian leader. - - - I could enumerate at least a dozen enterprises in which Eddy gave leadership and enlisted the services of men who were probably intellectually his superiors but who were willing followers of his leadership and the grateful beneficiaries of his uncomplicated directness. - - - Mr. Eddy is a vivid reminder to us all that evangelical experience and social passion can be united."

In addition to his work with the Y.M.C.A., he was secretary of the Student Volunteer Movement in India and Ceylon and was one of the first organizers of a Foreign Educational Exchange program.

Page 104

"I believed then with Einstein that if only 2 per cent of us -- enough to fill all our prisons and jails -- would go on strike against war, refusing to fight under any circumstances, it would mean the abolition of war. In desperation the makers of national policies would have to find some other method of settling disputes."

"Most of the world is colored, and any policy of "white supremacy" is ultimately doomed. Most of the world is poor. Per capita income in the United States is fourteen times that of Africa, sixteen times that of the Middle East, over twenty times the average of South Asia and China. Most of the world is ill fed and nearly two-thirds of its people go to bed undernourished. Most of the world is sick and the majority have no access to scientific medicine or surgery. Most of the world is illiterate; the preponderance of the population of Asia and Africa cannot read or write."

"Through inevitably bound up with the economic order, conditioned and compromised by it, I came to the conclusion that henceforth I must live a social life, proclaim a social message, and help to organize a socialized society."

"Our task, then was not only to win or change individuals, all important as that was, but to build a new social order and to Christianize the whole of life and all its relations, industrial, social, racial, and international. We had not only to pluck brands from the burning but to put out the fire. We had not only to relieve poverty and misery but to remove their causes."

"I began with others of like mind to work to build a new social order based upon the demands of economic justice, a social order that would include clean politics, complete racial brotherhood, and international co-operation toward the goal of abolishing war and substantiating peace.

"The proclamation of a new social message involved the exposure of our unjust social order and meant inevitable controversy. Reactionary vested interests have opposed almost every radical new message, whether argued by Socrates, Roger Bacon, Copernicus, Columbus, Galileo, Kepler, Newton, or the army of martyrs. It was under the conviction that I would be embroiled in controversy that I went to Vienna in 1920 to meet John R. Mott, the head of the North American YMCA, and to resign from the Association. I felt I could not continue to ask rich men for their money while, at the same time, I criticized their methods of making that money. I knew that many of the men I had solicited would never tolerate the social gospel I felt impelled to proclaim. My wife and I agreed that we would stand together as we embarked upon this uncharted and hazardous course.

"In answer to my proposed resignation, Mott replied that no organization needed a social gospel more than did the YMCA. He asked me not to resign, but when I returned to New York I placed my resignation before the International Committee. They also refused to accept it. I warned them that I was bound to embarrass them personally, for many of them were men of wealth, and that there would be trouble for the Association. And soon there was. Judge Gary took up the cudgels for big business and by implication threatened a boycott of the YMCA by industrial leaders. He demanded my expulsion from the Association; like-minded industrialists from Chicago seconded the demand. The battle was on and life became increasingly exciting, with all the zest of big-game hunting once again. There was plenty of jungle and more than enough game, red in tooth and claw.

"In addition to the capitalists who took up the fight on the side of Judge Gary, organizations began to line up. The American Legion repeatedly tried to have my meetings canceled. The commander of the Legion said he would like to see me silenced in peacetime and shot in time of war. The Daughters of the American Revolution, the Better America Federation, and other convinced or professional patrioteers were likewise not failing in their duty to save the country from an individual who, according to them, was being "supported by Moscow gold"; and they were all the more certain of my contamination because I had long advocated the recognition of Soviet Russia by our government. I now had the privilege of having my name appear on the honor rolls of the various black lists."

"The story encounters, the hecklers, the public denunciations--these were dramatic. But underneath lay deep problems which had to be thought through. I faced the looming alternatives of individualism and collectivism, capitalism and socialism, Fascism and Communism. These systems I had known only traditionally, following them blindly or rejecting them by inherited prejudice. Now I had to study each on its merits and arrive at a critical, and if possible unprejudiced, judgment concerning all of them."

"As my work carried me north and south in our own country and east and west across the world among people white and black, yellow and brown, the problem of race obtruded itself and would not be downed. Racial justice, equal education, Oriental immigaration, segregation vs. social intercourse, mob violence and lunching, Negro subjection and anti-Semitism--these were all facets of the problem."

"From each country I sent home report letters through my private secretary, whose support was provided by Madam McCormick. When I reached London I went to hear my friend, Maude Royden, preach, and after the service was invited by her to a later-supper with John D. Rockefeller, Jr. To help meet the abysmal needs of China he gave me $25,000 a year for three years, the money to be administered by the China Council of Churches, the YMCA, and the YWCA. It was hoped that this experiment in China would eventually show the way to change the inferno in which most of the cheap labor in Asia were living."

"At the end of the tour, in the library of the International Labor Organization at Geneva, I wrote The New World of Labor. In that book I made this challenge:

> 'History repeats itself, from the strike of the oppressed Hebrew bricklayers in Egypt to the volcanic upheaval in autocratic Czarist Russia. And yet in every age, learning nothing and forgetting nothing a Bourbon class arises in industrial, policital or religious life, claiming a special privilege which in the nature of the cases can only be enjoyed by a small minority, at the expense of the rights of the vast majority. And in every age, just because it is human and cannot deny its God-given irrepressible instincts, that majority rises, organizes and claims its rights, peacably if it be under a rule of liberty, violently if it be under a system of repression. Man has at last won liberty of conscience in the religious sphere, the ballot and some measure of democracy in the political sphere; he has not yet won industrial democracy or justice in his economic life.'

"In addition to writing and speaking, I gave my support to organizations working for social change in ways that seemed sound and wise to me. I helped to found the Fellowship for a Christian Social Order and was a member of the early group out of which came the Fellowship of Socialist Christians. I voted for Norman Thomas. And I had the privilege of paying Reinhold Niebuhr's salary during his first years at Union."

"And so in 1921 began the annual pilgrimage which came to be known as the American Seminar. It continued for nearly two decades, until 1939, when World War II made its continuance impossible. In 1950, at the suggestion of British leaders who hoped to strengthen the ties between Britain and America, it was reorganized as the Sherwood Eddy Seminar and has since conducted a party of some fifty lecturers, educators, and ministers through the principal countries of Europe each summer.

"The first party included, among others, Bishop Charles D. Williams of Detroit, Bromley Oxnam, Governor William E. Sweet of Colorado, Fletcher Brockman, Henry P. Van Dusen, Paul Blanshard, Jerome Davis, Sidney Gamble, Arthur Holt, George Stewart, Alva W. Taylor, Kirby Page, Cameron Hall, and Ben Cherrington. The first speaker to address our group at Toynbee Hall, where the London sessions were held, was Ramsay MacDonald, speaking on the coal strike. Before our visit had ended we had listened to and engaged in discussion with R. H. Tawney, Sidney Webb, G.D.H. Cole, George Lansbury, Margaret Bondfield, Philip Kerr (later Lord Lothian), Seebohm Rowntree, Harold Laski, W.E. Orchard, A.E. Garvie, Bishop Temple, Hugh Dalton, Philip Snowden, Robert Smillie, J.A. Hobson and Arthur Greenwood. Lord Robert Cecil addressed us at the League of Nations Union House. Lady Astor gave us a reception at her home, a courtesy which she repeated almost annually, and Ramsal MacDonald and Arthur Henderson invited us to tea on the terrace of the House of Commons. Similar invitations were extended year after year.

"Our first program on the continent laid foundations for future years.

"In 1923 the third seminar group included Reinhold Niebuhr, Bishop William Scarlett, James H. Causey, E. E. Barnett, Kirby Page, W. O. Mendenhall and some fifty members. Among others we were addressed by Lloyd George, Lord Haldane, Lord Milner, Bernard Shaw, Gilbert Murray, Maude Royden, and H. G. Wells. The successive Archbishops of Canterbury met with us annually: Lord Davidson, and later Cosmo Lang, William Temple, and Geoffrey Fisher."

"With the Seminar and on personal trips I came to know well both Czarist and Societ Russia, which I visited fifteen times; twice under the Czars, in 1910 and 1912, and thirteen times under the Soviet regime, in 1923, 1926, 1929, and then annually through 1939. Under the Czars, the Russian nobility to the very end dined and danced and caroused over the exploited bodies of the people. A shot in far-off Serajevo brought about the precipitous mobilization of the Russian imperial army, which proved to be the match that ignited World War I. Then under the weight of corruption and the waging of war on a colossal scale came the collapse of the old Czarist system followed by the Kerensky revolution and later, on November 7, 1917, by the seizure of power by Lenin and Trotsky.

"Once more I was almost on the ground floor of revolution, arriving six years after Bolshevism had achieved power, two years following the adoption of the New Economic Policy, and only a year after the terrible famine which affected forty million people. (The famine he refers to was manmade by taking away the wheat crop. Krushchev ordered and supervised the slow-starvation of 5,000,000 Ukranians.) When I arrived in 1923, few foreign visitors were being admitted to Russia. Memories of civil war were still vivid, and only three years before had the Allied armies of occupation withdrawn, including the armed forces of the United States in Siberia. I found the people just emerging from the abyss of misery. They had suffered from World War I, two revolutions, civil war between the Red and White armies, invasion by fourteen foreign armies fighting at one time on a dozen fronts, and a world blockade to starve Russia. Some ten million people had perished. Industrial production had fallen to 17 per cent of the Czarist maximum. The government had had to face the sabotage and opposition of the old bureaucracy and the bourgeois class but somehow had managed to survive.

"I did not go to Russia because I had any fondness for Communism but because, from the beginning, the experiment there seemed to be both a warning and a challenge to us. I had great eagerness to understand what was going on. Not until 1926 was I able to make arrangements for the first visit of the American Seminar, composed of twenty-four educators, editors, religious leaders, social workers and businessmen. Four members of our group spoke Russian. Among the members of our party were Charles Clayton Morrison, Chester Rowell, Jerome Davis, William H. Danforth, Louise Gates, William Scarlett, Tully Knowles, Kirby Page, Frew W. Ramsey, Mrs. Ralph Adams Cram, Cameron Hall, Matthew Spinka, and Sidney Gamble.

"In the early years of Communism, before Stalin had killed or imprisoned his enemies, there were things good and bad side by side in Russia, and evidence of the early idealism embodied in the first Russian constitution could be found.

"Later in the purges Stalin had Ossinsky shot with thousands of others whom he suspected of agreement with Trotsky or who differed from him on the right or on the left. All the other members of Lenin's first Politbureau and most of the heroic "old Bolsheviks" who had risked their lives for the revolution were "liquidated" by Stalin until the early idealism of the movement was destroyed. Yet so secretly were most of these purges conducted -- men simply disappeared at midnight from their homes -- that years afterward many of the youth of Russia still believed they alone could build a new world and were prepared to sacrifice life itself to that great end."

"And out of this came another significant experience. I had pointed out to the Soviet leaders that in three cities of Russia, under the unspeakable Czarist regime in 1912, I had been able to give lectures and conduct religious meetings for students. Why then was I not free to do so under the present regime?"

"As I reflect on the visits of the American Seminar to Russia, I am amazed that we could go back regularly year after year and were allowed so much freedom. Every member of the Seminar knew that he was free to speak his mind when he returned to the United States, and to write what he saw fit. Personally, I never felt any restraint in voicing my convictions about the situation in Russia. I went all over Russia, often without any guide, spy, or official and was allowed great liberty. I sought eagerly to see every possible value and any possible lesson that America might learn from Russia. However, I am compelled to record the growing evils that began to menace, Russia and the world under Stalin.

"I saw the official atheism of the Soviet system furnish the logical foundation for immorality and amorality. Then I saw in the distance some of the first of their slave labor camps, which I was never allowed to visit. My friend and fellow engineer H. K. spent two years as a prisoner in these awful camps and then in my office dictated to my secretary an account of his whole experience. He was later murdered by the Communists in Korea because he knew too much.

"What is Russian Communism? It is an economic theory of Karl Marx; it is a power system for world conquest inherited from the imperalistic Czars; but, deepest of all, it is a passionate, fanatical, sacrificial faith, as much as Islam ever was.

"Better than statistics, an illustration will show what I mean by Communism's being a religion. On an early visit to the Soviet Union I sat between two young men upon a park bench. Upon my asking how many hours a day in unpaid labor each was working for his Communist cause, one replied three and the other four hours a day. My guide Ellen, a student in the University of Moscow, was working five hours a day, outside her studies. In five languages, she was corresponding with the youth leaders of Europe and America, not of course to Christianize but to communize them. I tried to think of any student in our colleges, or youth in our churches, who was working as effectively and sacrifically as were these young people, whether for America, or for "free enterprise", or for the Church, or for Christianity, for God or man, but I could think of none."

Chapter 8 entitled
"Building a New America"

This chapter deals with the activities IN THE STATE OF MISSISSIPPI -- of one of the worst groups of subversive agents in the United States. It verifies the fact that this group has had holdings in Mississippi since 1936, named the Cooperative Farms, Inc. in Bolivar County and Providence Cooperative Farms in Holmes County. We have proof that negotiations have recently been underway to procure acreage in Leflore County near the Ita Bena Vocational (Negro) College under the name, Delta Foundation.

We know too, that since 1936 members and agents of these cooperatives have continuously engaged in subversive work throughout this state among Negroes and a certain type of white people. How long they were operating before that date is not known. But they are very active at the present time.

"When I retired from the Young Men's Christian Association at the age of sixty, I was given a farewell banquet by friends in New York, on January 27, 1931. Addresses were given by Alfred E. Marling, John R. Mott, and Raymond Robins. I was surrounded by old and dear friends, and we all caught the spirit of the festive occasion. Much hilarity was engendred by the brilliant chairman Alfred Marling's attempt to "rate" my traits of character. On the scale of 100 I was given only 48 for modesty, for "shrinking from giving my opinions" ... But some marks were much higher, 110 for cocksureness, and 116 for nerve!

"I pointed out that this conviction meant several things for me: basic economic justice, brotherhood and fellowship in race relations, clean politics, right international relations, the abolition of war ... On the question of politics, I said at that time:

> 'I am not a Communist; I am not a Capitalist; I am a Socialist. I voted for Norman Thomas at the last election and for La Follette at the election before that'

"After retirement I was free from all organisational responsibility, but I continued the work of personal and social evangelism in the colleges, at youth gatherings, and in the churches.

"For the next two decades from the platform, in the pulpit, in articles and pamphlets and books, I brought a continuing indictment against our present social order and entreated men to help build a Christian society.

"As I survey past history I think I can see that nations pass through various stages in their economic progress. From slavery, to feudalism, to capitalism; then to some form of controlled or regulated capitalism; and finally to the socialized planned economy of a welfare state. Each stage is fiercely defended by its beneficiaries, who condemn the threat of the impending new order. Reactionary neo-Fascists today assure us that "the welfare state is half-way to socialism, socialism is halfway to Communism, and Communism more than halfway to hell.

"Though strangely backward in many respects in culture, in character, and in spiritual qualities, America is today the richest nation on earth, capable of the largest production the world has ever known, and with the responsibility of assuming world leadership to help other nations gain or regain their footing.

"As I have shuttled back and forth for sixty years among thirty nations, I have been able to see my own beloved country more objectively and impartially than if I had never left it. From a world viewpoint I find that Americans are practical, utilitarian, efficient, mechanical, often materialistic, progressive, adaptable, courageous, adventuresome, generous, philanthropic, moral, and religious. These qualities are almost ideal characteristics for world leadership.

"But I find also that, compared to Europeans, Americans are adolescent, immature, isolationist in tendency, hypersensitive to criticism, often crude, sometimes vulgar, lack-in culture, sentimental, emotional, in certain situations hysterical, mob-minded in crises, with a bad record in graft and crime from the time of George Washington to Senator Kefauver. I find all these traits confirmed by Professor Henry Steele Commager after he has lived, lectured, and journeyed much abroad, and by other liberals.

"There have been great economic and social tensions in our country, and my eyes were opened to one of them -- the plight of the sharecroppers in the South -- through an experience with violence in Arkansas. With my fellow worker, Sam Franklin, of Tennessee, I visited Arkansas and Mississippi in the spring of 1936 to investigate the predicament of evicted tenant farmers. The first day we saw aspects of slavery, feudalism, and Fascism in the attitude of the planters and landowners toward the evicted sharecroppers and tenant farmers, both black and white. The ordinary sharecropper in Arkansas was then receiving an average income of $212 a year per family. Twenty-five thousand of these poorest sharecroppers had formed the Tenant Farmers' Union, which was bitterly opposed by the landowners and planters, who were genuinely alarmed lest it liberate these men from the existing system of peonage and semi-slavery. The result was that scores of families, white and black, had been evicted from their farms and homes, this wholesale eviction being the weapon used to check the growth of the Union. I went out from Memphis with several friends, including a professor of the University, to visit one colored colony of recently evicted families. Within half an hour after we had arrived at the tent colony and had begun to investigate conditions we were arrested by Deputy Sheriffs Tip Sullivan and J. W. Shelby of Parkin, Cross County, Arkansas. We were taken to a large cotton store and locked in for two hours, while a score of planters and leading men were brought in to tell us "the truth about these damned niggers who won't work." They bitterly resented our coming from other states, seemingly to interfere with their victims and their own "state's rights."

"Further investigation revealed appalling conditions among tenant farmers in several other states. Standards of living were disgracefully low, undernourishment was widely prevalent, and virtual peonage was practiced across wide areas. We decided that something should be done at once; at least a beginning might be made to challenge this system of peonage and help these farmers to achieve a better standard of living, a liberated life. We bought a farm on the spot, raised $17,500 in thirty days and paid cash for the 2138 acres which we called Rochdale, located in Bolivar County, Mississippi. Within a few months thirty evicted families were settled on the farm. Then Cooperative Farms, Inc., was formed with Reinhold Niebuhr as president, myself as secretary-treasurer, Sam H. Franklin, Jr., as director, and Bishop William Scarlett, John Rust, and William Amberson as trustees. Response to the public appeal for financial assistance was so generous that within a year the farm was clear of indebtedness, and improvements to the extent of $30,000 had been made.

"In 1939 a second farm, the Providence Cooperative Farm, was purchased on the edge of the Delta in Holmes County. Activities were gradually transferred to Providence, and the Delta Rochdale Farm was sold in 1942 for $34,000 cash. The history of the project for the next decade was one of constant struggle in the midst of bitter race prejudice, a mixture of failure and success, and of sacrificial service rendered by volunteer workers from near and far. The war, which brought relative prosperity to cotton workers as it did to farmers generally, disrupted many activities and resulted in the loss of farm families and staff members. After a checkered history, this collective, or producers' co-operative, had been dropped, and the land is being operated by individual families. But for fifteen years some of us had thrilling adventures in fighting lawlessness, race prejudice, and poverty in one of the most backward states in the deep South. We pioneered in a number of experiments that were later copied in more elaborate government projects undertaken by the New Deal. The publicity regarding our farm and the Southern Tenant Farmers' Union during this period of violence and dire poverty helped to focus the attention of the country on the South, which, in the words of President Roosevelt, was "the nation's number one economic problem." Conditions have been slowly but radically improved throughout Mississippi, both economically and in race relations. Our experience seems to confirm that of others in the past that a consumers' co-operative store, or a credit co-operative, if conducted on sound lines on the Rochdale plan, is usually successful. But it also seemed to show that producers; co-operatives, whether in agriculture or in industry, have practically always failed in the free world, as a century ago Emerson and Hawthorne found at Brook Farm and Fruitlands and Robert Owen at New Harmond, Indiana. One of the important continuing features of our Providence Cooperative Farm is the Medical Clinic, under the able direction of Dr. David R. Minter. Having treated over twelve thousand patients, mostly Negroes, Dr. Minter is still treating them at the rate of some fifty a day in his new clinic. The work of A. E. Cox as director has also been efficient and devoted.

"I have become increasingly aware of the disastrous practice of lumping together in a single category varied types of social change. For thirty years I have been trying to help people recognize the differences between old-line predatory capitalism, New Dealism, Fair Dealism, Norman Thomas socialism, Earl Browder-Eugene Dennis Communism and American neo-Fascism. Constantly I have combated the widespread habit of labeling all departures from orthodox capitalism as "red" or communistic. From the days of the Lusk Committee on the Un-American Activities and Senator McCarthy, the practice has prevailed of looking upon socialists and liberals and pacifists as "subversive", "red", and "communistic".

"I have myself often been the victim of this practice. Countless times the charge has been made that I am a Communist, or at least a fellow traveler. This falsifying has not been stopped by constant affirmation and reiteration in my addresses, pamphlets, articles and books that it is morally impossible for me as a Christian to be a Communist or fellow traveler. I am proud that my name was included in The Red Network, edited by Elizabeth Dilling in 1934. Since this volume has been "the Bible" of organizations and individuals following the practice of lumping together socialists and liberals and pacifists, and because it is still being used as an authoritative source, let me point out certain things about it.

"Among the organizations listed as "subsersive" were the invaluable and courageous American Civil Liberties Union, the American Friends Service Committee (Quakers), the Catholic Association for International Peace, the Federal Council of the Churches of Christ in America, the Fellowship of Reconciliation, the Foreign Policy Association, National Catholic Welfare Conference, Union Theological Seminary, the YMCA and YWCA. Among individuals listed as "reds" were

Jane Adams, Secretary of War Newton D. Baker, Senator William E. Boarh, S. Parkes Cadman, S. M. Cavert, John Dewey, Paul H. Douglas (now Senator), Albert Einstein, Harry Emerson Fosdick, Felix Frankfurther (now Justice), Mahatma Gandhi, Charles W. Gilkey, Lynn Harold Hough, Paul Hutchinson, Senator La Follette, Rabbi Louis L. Mann, Bishop F. J. McConnell, Charles Clayton Morrison, Reinhold Niebuhr, Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt, Bishop William Scarlett, Luther A. Weigle, and Rabbi Stephen S. Wise. Though unworthy, I am proud to belong to such an honor roll.

"This smearing of liberals and pacifists has reached its culmination in the actions of Senator McCarthy. With skill and ruthlessness he has used the device of guilt by association, guilt by accusation, by character assassination, by insinuation and falsification. He early discovered the technique of the "big lie" in his smear campaign. In the Congressional Record for February 20, 1950, he said in almost succeeding sentences, "vast numbers of other Communists" (in the State Department), "over 200", " the names of 57 Communists", "the cases number 81". and then: "I know absolutely of one group of approximately 300 certified to the Secretary (to be) discharged because of Communism." Up to the moment of writing he has failed to prove the guilt of a single case. -- whether 205, 57, 81, 200, 300, or finally even "one chief Russian spy." Further, he has attacked in turn three of the most distinguished men in America, switching from Professor Owen Lattimore of Johns Hopkins University, to Dr. Philip C. Jessup, and then to a sixty-thousand-word, violent, bitter, and false attack on General George C. Marshall, former Secretary of State, Chief of Staff and Nobel Prize winner, as a traitor who "had always supported Soviet interest." I could literally fill a whole chapter with an account of innocent people who have suffered, lost their positions or their reputations by the lies and gratutious, unproved accusations of Senator McCarthy and his henchmen. I was proud of the defense made by my former private secretary, Bishop G. Bromely Oxnam, in his I Protest, after his eventful twelve-hour day before the committee. He truly says: "This is not an investigation. It is intimidation. It is a 20th-century inquisition."

"I hope McCarthy will soon pass from the scene as did Huey Long -- whom I knew personally and who was our one potential Hitler in his day. I mention McCarthy only as a symptom of moral degradation in America. I believe, however, that as Germany reached an all-time low in Hitler, and Russia in Stalin, McCarthy marks an all-time moral low in our own country.

"Readers of Alan Bullock's Hitler: A Study in Tyranny must have been struck, as was President Eisenhower's brother, by the many similarities between Hitler and McCarthy. Both were nominal Roman Catholics, though neither gave evidence of believing in God or man. Neither had the advantage of a wholesome, happy home life. Both were attacking Communism and each professed to be the savior of his country from this dire evil. Both used the method of violent vituperation, and both seized the initiative by repeated attacks against every opponent, often without offering evidence and without bothering to defend their own falsehoods. Both had ability, both were clever charlatans, both were able speakers, both despised the lack of intelligence of the common people and believed they could command a following and increase the national hysteria that would bring them into such power that they would never have to justify the false and evil means they had used. The same ugly rumors persisted concerning the top associates of both Hitler and McCarthy. Both had a consuming ambition for power and believed that the end justified any means whatever.

"Upon his return to the United States, Dr. Roswell P. Bates, speaker of the Maine House of Representatives, a member of our seminar in Europe in 1953, stated in the Bangor Commercial that out of sixty-six speakers heard by the Seminar in all of Europe, fifty raised the issue of McCarthyism in criticism of America. Adlai Stevenson in his journey around the world had the same experience. Both men found that McCarthy had lowered American prestige all over the world, as the representatives of our State Department in all countries have reported.

"Perhaps the most serious aspect of the present crisis in our national affairs is the fact that a man of this character and with this record could be elected to high office by the vote of the people. The man himself is a revelation of the gullibility, the passions, the fears, the hysteria, the moral callousness of many citizens. In attacking McCarthy we are really indicting ourselves. I have been amazed at the number of reputable Republicans since Senator Taft, some of them earnest professing Christians, who have been blind to the inevitable moral results of using the slanders of Senator McCarthy for the advantage of cheap party politics.

"We must be on guard, however, against bitterness and contempt for our fellow men. I am convinced by overwhelming evidence, confirmed by fearless articles by Justic Douglas and our best commentators, that Senator McCarthy is a national menace. I do not hate but I have pitted and abhorred Hitler, Stalin and McCarthy and shall fight against their influence to my last breath.

"In striving to build a new America I agree with the transparently devout Roman Catholic, Father James Keller, in his recent book, You Can Change the World. Father Keller shows that less than one per cent of our population are gangsters, criminals and Communists, intent on tearing down our social order. He pleads for another one per cent as "Christophers," of Christ-bearers, to overcome these forces of evil and play a part in building the new America and the new world. If real Christians, Catholic and Protestant, and all liberals and decent people can thus unite we can indeed build a new America.

"As Justice Douglas points out, nothing less than a welfare state, demanding justice for all, concerned with the impoverished masses and with "the people's livelihood" can possibly save India or any other land in Asia."

The following is Eddy's comment on Red China where Communism has caused the atrocious murder of more than 50 million people and made slaves of the 600 million they have allowed to exist.

"No individual has any rights before the absolute Communist state. The intellectual worker or teacher must continually reveal his mind to the authorities under a rigid "thought control". The system seems to be destroying many of the human values built up through long centuries of both Confucianism and Christianity.

"All of these things being true, many Americans, as well as the American press, seem to feel it is disloyal to admit any good trait in Communist China. However, my friends in China inform me that while all the evils I have mentioned do characterize the Communist regime, it has nevertheless launched a score of desperately needed reforms. A land reform, however ruthless, has at last materialized, and half the country's land has been divided among some forty million of the landless peasants, who consequently defend the regime that gave them the land. Inflation, long the bane of China, has at last been controlled. For the first time the "people's livelihood" has been taken seriously and the government seems determined to realize a higher standard of living for all. The age-long curse of graft and corruption has been largely swept away. Taxes, though high, now go into the government coffers. Banditry, which has been widespread since the warlord period, has markedly decreased. Laws made in the capital, Peiping, are now administered in the remotest village.

These people were allowed ownership of the land only long enough for the Communists to take over and send the husbands to one labor Commune, the wives to another and the children to a Communist indoctrination Commune then the Communist government took the land.

"Many of these facts were confirmed by the report of the United Nations Economic Commission for Asia and the Far East in 1953. Half the cultivated land of China has been distributed to 90 per cent of the peasants in small holdings. Nationalization has extended to 80 per cent of heavy industry and 90 per cent of light industry. The government operates all railways and 60 per cent of the steamships; is responsible for half of the wholesale and 30 per cent of the retail trade; controls 90 per cent of all loans and deposits. And 90 per cent of the rural population appear to have benefited by the agrarian reforms."

Here he reveals his closeness to John Dewy, who fathered the subversive Progressive Education program, which has for decades been downgrading American ideals and using school text books to brainwash our youth with an anti-national One World Policy.

"I agreed with my dear friend John Dewey at this point that the quest for absolute philosophic certainty was forever vain. I was now a candidate for truth -- all truth.

"Many of my adventures have been in pioneering in dangerous or unpopular fields. To become a herald of the social gospel and demand justice of selfish capitalism, or to urge equal brotherhood without segregation in southern colleges and churches, or to demand peace in a warring world as it enters the atomic age are all adventures in controversy that are painful unless one becomes a bit tough and really loves a fight. Finally, when I tackled the most unpopular cause of all in investigating psychic research, I little realized that I was entering one of the greatest adventures of my life. I felt I must find out if there actually is sufficient scientific evidence to support belief in survival, or personal immortality, or whether such belief is purely a question of blind religious faith."

"In this statement of my beliefs I claim no originality, for like Sir Isaac Newton I "stand on the shoulder of giants." It is not necessary, however, to use quotation marks because it will be quite evident what and how much I owe to my beloved friend Reinhold Niebuhr, to Paul Tillich, William Temple, and more recently younger men like Nels Ferre'.

"I find nothing closed, final or perfect -- n either the Bible, the Church, human reason, nor anything in the whole swirling universe."

"I rejoice that Nels Ferre' and Karl Barth, neither of whom seems as yet to have a closed system or a closed mind, "seem to be turning to a universalist doctrine that in the end all are saved." If God is love, if it is not his will that any should perish, if Christ died for the ungodly, than given all time and eternity, all power and all love in God, may it not be literally true that "we have our hope set on the living God who is the Savior of all men, especially of those who believe" (I Timothy 4:10)? There are many passages contradictory to this one, but so there are contradictory passages on all other essential doctrines. In any case, I hold to this hope of universal salvation."

Nels Ferre' is the so-called minister who said that Christ was most likely the son of a Roman soldier and a harlot.

ACTIVITIES OF A. E. COX OF THE DELTA FOUNDATION AND SOME OF HIS ASSOCIATES

In 1936 Sherwood Eddy, Reinhold Neibuhr, Bishop William Scarlett, Samuel H. Franklin, John Rust and William Ambrose bought a tract of land near Hillhouse in Bolivar County, Mississippi for $17,000.00 and established a settlement known as Rochdale Cooperative Farms. Since Rockefeller was a generous contributor to Eddy's project, we wonder if that is not why this farm was named Rochdale. This settlement was composed of white and Negro tenant farmers. According to a statement Eddy made in his autobiography, Cox was an agent of this corporation.

In 1939, this group purchased Providence Plantation in Holmes County. This project operated under the title of Providence Cooperative Farms, owned by the Delta Foundation.

On this farm, which Eddy said was in an area where "tenancy and peonage was at its worst", a colony of white and colored tenant farmers were located for the purpose of promoting racial integration.

A. E. Cox and Dr. David R. Minter were in charge of this operation. Dr. Minter set up a medical clinic and A. E. Cox was business director of the project.

For quite some time little notice was given to this settlement, but as time went on it became evident that something unusual and contrary to the best interests of both the white and colored races was taking place in this colony. Negroes were seen in swimming with white children, and it was then found that white and Negro families attended the same church together and visited in each other's homes.

After the unusual happenings at Providence commanded the attention of the people of Holmes County, it became evident that other individuals were participating in activities taking place there. Among them were Will D. Campbell, who at that time was on the Payroll of the University of Mississippi, as Director of Religious Life, and Mrs. Hazel Brannon Smith, at that time editor of the Lexington Advertiser and Durant News, but who is now publishing the Flora Banner, the Northside Reporter, and the Negro Free Press, which is a vicious, trouble-making sheet agitating for complete racial integration. Other known participants were two Negro integration leaders, Dr. Felix Dunn and Dr. Gilbert Mason, who have been trouble-makers on the Mississippi Coast and were prominent in the Biloxi beach integration incidents.

Each of these four individuals have played leading roles in the Communist promoted racial integration issues in the state and elsewhere.

Will D. Campbell is now employed by the National Council of Churches. He wrote instructions for the sit-in campaigns which have upset the nation and have cost the states millions of dollars and incited no end of racial strife. He traveled over the country soliciting support and assisting in organizing these sit-ins.

From instructions sent out to officials of "United Church Women" from their New York headquarters, the following is quoted:

"United Church Women
475 Riverside Drive
New York 27, New York October, 1960

"How we wish it had been possible during the months since the sit-in movement began to have talked with those of you in key positions in United Church Women and in your community so that our total United Church Women movement could profit from your thinking and experience. We are grateful, however, that this could happen at least in part, through the Board of Managers Meeting in April.

"I am writing yesterday as president of your local council, together with other presidents in cities where sit-in demonstrations have occurred, to share with you what has been done nationally, and to send you material which we hope will prove useful as you face the question of what you as an individual leader, or as one of a group in the council, feel you can do in the coming weeks to help bring about a just and equitable solution in your community.

"Because situations are changing so rapidly, it may be that your city has already reached an adequate answer, and that this has occurred since the list of cities was revised. If this is the case we should be so glad to have you write us, giving any experiences which could be valuable for other communities.

"Nationally, as you may well know, the Christian Social Relations Advisory Committee contacted all its state chairmen in the spring, expressing support of the non-violent protest to effect desegration at lunch counters and suggested practical steps which might be taken nationally and locally. Since that time resolutions have been adopted by the Board of Managers of United Church Women at its annual meeting in April and more recently by the National Council of Churches. Copies of these statements are enclosed.

"We have tried to act nationally on the recommendations made to us. We wrote to the headquarters of the Woolworth and Kress Companies and have also had a long interview with Kress Vice President in charge of public relations. We have had consultations with other Divisions and Units of the National Council of Churches and with related organizations such as the Y.W.C.A. Our experience resulted in the conviction that the key to any effective solution lies not with bodies or individuals outside but with the concerned people in each local community. Those close to the whole situation say that desegration has not occurred in any city except with the help of a local committee which has the respect of both sides enough to make communication possible and to effect a reconciliation of views culminating in an acceptable formula for a just solution. This has led us to feel that the most useful service United Church Women nationally could render would be to share with the local presidents that conviction and provide material about the nature and methods of citizens' committees in cities where desegregation has occurred.

"We are therefore enclosing two brief materials prepared especially for the United Church Women.

"Committees Playing a Supportive Role in the Sit-In Movement", prepared by Rev. Will D. Campbell, Associate Executive Director, Department of Racial and Cultural Relations, National Council of Churches . . . . . .

"Very often individuals within United Church Women, because of their conviction, experience and the respect in which they are held, are in a position to provide strong support for, or where necessary initiate, something such as a citizen's committee, either directly themselves or through some appropriate person or persons in the community.

"If your city should be at a point where it would be valuable to rely upon the experience of a person rather than material alone, you might want to contact Rev. Will D. Campbell, 1716 West End Avenue, Nashville, Tennessee. Mr. Campbell, a native of Mississippi, whose professional responsibility as a National Council of Churches staff member is to give help in the area of human relations, has had a great deal of valuable experience, as the material he has prepared indicates. Within the limits of his travel schedule he would be glad to be of use to you.

"We shall share with you any further insights or information which may come to us.

Sincerely,
Margaret E. Kuhn
Chairman"

(This letter is not quoted in its entirety.)

Mrs. Hazel Brannon Smith has for years worked continuously with Negro agitators for integration. She has figured prominently in many trouble-making racial issues in Holmes County over a long period of time. She assisted in the recent Clarksdale "boycott". She has participated in meetings with officials of the NAACP and is known to maintain regular contact with Negro Medgar Evers, State Field Secretary of the NAACP.

The above mentioned are only a few of Mrs. Smith's many activities which have done much to arouse and stimulate dangerous tensions between the white and Negro races.

A news item under a Carbondale, Illinois dateline of July 20, 1960, stated that Mrs. Hazel Brannon Smith, editor of the Lexington Advertiser had won the Elijah Parish Lovejoy award and said:

> "Mrs. Smith, publisher of several papers besides the Advertiser, has been the target of a group which opposes her news and editorial policies supporting integration."

It is a matter of public knowledge that Mrs. Smith's papers have been subsidized by hard core Communists such as Sydney Hollander of Baltimore, Maryland, and Communist Foundations. (See letter)

She was closely alligned with Dr. Minter and A. E. Cox on the Providence Farm and it is reliably reported that A. E. Cox still calls on her regularly.

Mrs. Smith came to Mississippi in 1936. Since that is the year the Sherwood Eddy group, with Cox and Minter, came to Mississippi, and since their mutual interest is promotion of racial integration, the question arises as to whether or not their arrival in Mississippi in the same year was coincidental.

Mrs. Smith gained notoriety as a racial agitator on the state and national level in 1954 when the Holmes County Sheriff shot a negro in the leg. She wrote numerous libelous articles about the sheriff and published them in the columns of her papers, and as a result the sheriff sued, and obtained a judgment against her.

The people of Holmes County had long been cognizant of Mrs. Smith's activities among the Negro population, but after this large scale attempt to stir up a racial issue was picked up by the press in New York, Chicago, St. Louis, Los Angeles, and over the nation, they became aware of the liberal and Communist element who alligned themselves with her.

Among the Communist and pro-Communist organizations and people who have backed and subsidized Mrs. Smith's racial activities are the following:

The Edith Lauer Fund, the Fund For the Republic, Southern Regional Council, and members of the National Citizens Political Action Committee such as Sydney Hollander, Nelson Poynter, and James Dombrowski. Ralph McGill, H. N. Heiskell, Mark Ethridge, Francis Harmon, and Hodding Carter have been identified with her activities.

Hodding Carter, who has worked for racial integration on the national and international front has worked closely with Mrs. Smith. He recommended her for an award from the Fund For the Republic for defending "Civil Liberties". She was awarded $500.00 and Hodding Carter collected it and turned it over to her.

Mrs. Smith is known to have worked with CORE and NAACP in the racial strife which has swept the state during the past year, causing fearful damage to the heretofore generally harmonious race relations and forcing a terrific expenditure of state and municipal funds.

In 1955, the "Social Experiment" in racial integration being conducted by A. E. Cox and Dr. David Minter on Providence Plantation erupted into a sensational incident when a white girl on a roadside awaiting a school bus was accosted by four Negro youths, one of whom made obscene suggestions to her. A few minutes later a lady who lived in the county drove by and picked the girl up to give her a ride to her school in nearby Tchula. This lady immediately noticed that the girl was emotionally upset and inquired as to the reason. Upon being told, she drove straight to the school and reported the incident to the school superintendent who in turn called the Sheriff and the Negroes were soon taken into custody for questioning.

The girl's parents lived on the Providence settlement, and when A. E. Cox heard that the Negroes were being held he went to the Sheriff and tried to get him to drop the charges and release the Negroes. This the Sheriff refused to do.

After the Negroes were jailed, they were questioned and their testimony which was recorded on tape verified the fact that racial integration was practiced on the project. It was then decided that a mass meeting should be called and the tape played so that the people might know of the activities taking place in their community.

Following the playing of the tape a resolution was offered requesting A. E. Cox and Dr. Minter to leave Holmes County for the good of all concerned. All but a few of the 500 to 700 people voted in favor of this resolution.

Mrs. Smith and her husband were in the audience, as were A. E. Cox and Dr. Minter. In the audience also was a Presbyterian minister, Marsh Calloway, who arose and challenged the meeting. "What legal or moral right do you have for such a meeting as this?" he asked. He was loudly booed and sat down. Calloway revealed the fact that he had known

Dr. Minter for 29 years. The attitude of this minister in his defense of Cox and Minter was such that his congregation of the Presbyterian Church at Durant released him from this charge immediately.

Calloway came to Durant from Arkansas, as did the parents of the girl involved in the incident.

Mrs. Smith undertook the defense of Cox, Minter and Calloway, through the columns of her papers and attacked the citizens of Holmes County and the people of the town of Lexington, who fought against racial integration. She wrote such bitter and slanted articles that soon reporters from Chicago, Los Angeles, New York and elsewhere began coming to Lexington and writing ugly articles to further incite local trouble and to give the state bad publicity.

Up until 1955, it had been the custom of the Negro Saints Industrial School and College, of which Dr. Arenia Mallory was president, to celebrate May Day with a parade on the streets of Lexington. But shortly before this date an announcement through the press had stated that at the annual Negro Leadership Council to be held in the Delta, there would be a panel discussion on "The Place of the Negro in Integrated Society", and that Arenia Mallory would conduct the panel. This announcement brought more emphasis on existing racial situations.

In view of the tense feelings growing out of the previous year of integration activities, the Mayor and Board of Commissioners were fearful that some incident might touch off serious trouble, and as a precautionary measure, it was decided to pass an ordinance prohibiting parades on the square.

When Mrs. Smith head of this, she immediately put in a call for Negro Arenia Mallory who was in New York City at that time. Her papers came out with big headlines PARADES OUTLAWED IN LEXINGTON. The gist of the article was that the action was foolish and stated that she had failed to reach Dr. Mallory for comment.

The November, 1957 issue of "Ebony", a Negro magazine carried Mrs. Smith's picture over this by-line "Hazel Brannon Smith edits two crusading newspapers -- which have been called the conscience of Holmes County."

Sometime later, a Methodist minister was invited to hold a revival in Durant, and word leaked out that he had taken a stand for racial integration and his invitation was withdrawn. Again Mrs. Smith entered the issue and defended him through the columns of her papers.

On March 28, 1961, Mrs. Smith took an active part in an interracial meeting which took place in St. Andrew's Episcopal Church on Capitol Street in Jackson. Other participants in this meeting were Mrs. Wallis I. Schutt of the Civil Rights Commission, nine Negro students from Tougaloo Negro College, who took part in the "Sit-ins", seven Negro students from Jackson State College. Others present were William Higgs, a Negro whose name is Turner, Edd Ezell, Edward Harrison, pastor of St. Andrews, Power Hearn, and a Rabbi, name not known.

Mrs. Wallis Schutt, who is a member of the Civil Rights Commission, came to Jackson from Washington, D. C. some twenty years ago. Many believe she is a "plant". She has been a regional director of the Girl Scouts, works with The Little Red Schoolhouse, is president of the United Church Women, and with the Negro sit-in groups. At the Episcopal Church meeting, she made the statement that she was considering entering Tougaloo Negro College to further her education.

On Friday night, December 15, 1961, Hazel Brannon Smith participated in an integrated meeting at 1072 West Lynch Street in Jackson, in which other participants were Negro Medgar Evers, Mississippi Field Secretary for NAACP, William Higgs, Robert L. T. Smith, Negro, three unidentified Negro men and Walter Dyer Smith, husband of Hazel Brannon Smith.

Mrs. Smith has seized every opportunity to use the columns of her papers to publish scathing editorials attacking organizations and individuals who have striven to maintain segregation of the races.

A. E. Cox, who has worked in Mississippi in connection with the Harwood Eddy group is now living at Whitehaven, Tennessee and travels over Mississippi and several other states. He was with the National Council of Churches, for several years, and is now traveling over the South promoting the Rural Area Development program of the Kennedy Administration.

He was seen at the trial of Elliott Dogan in Federal Court at Oxford, December 21, 1961, when two busloads of Negro students from Rust College took over the courtroom.

On February 9, 1962, Cox was interviewed in the New Capitol in Jackson. When asked about his present activities, he stated that he was working with the Delta Foundation in conjunction with RAD. When asked if he were an employee of the government receiving a government salary, he said no. He stated that he traveled over several states and sought out areas which had been stricken by mechanical farming, throwing many farm laborers out of work.

He stated that he visited with preachers and sold them on the idea that it was their Christian duty to talk for and to sponsor projects good for those who have been thrown out of employment, and that he told them about what had been done in Oklahoma, Arkansas, and Texas. He said he tried to show preachers that "Smoke-stacks and Church-steeples are closely related, and that where the economy runs down the Church would

When questioned about the National Council of Churches, he said he was an employee from 1956 to 1960, but was no longer with that organization, although he was still closely alligned, and attended their meetings in the south and southwest. Asked why he attended if no longer employed, he stated "To contact preachers and to learn their local problems and advise them how they and their community can benefit by RAD", said he did not work for but with the NCC, trying to better living conditions of mankind.

After stating that he was not on a government salary, and was not an employee of the NCC, he was asked where he got his traveling expenses. His reply was, "The Delta Foundation." Asked where the Delta Foundation get its funds he stated "from various sources, churches and civic clubs, but refused to name any of them. He stated that he had no other source of income.

When questioned as to who comprised the Delta Foundation, Cox stated that it was a non-profit corporation of which he was president, his wife a director, and that Dr. and Mrs. David Minter were directors. This foursome, he said, held all the offices in the Delta Foundation, which had received no donations recently but were operating on profits made on a previous sale of a tract of land purchased in Bolivar County for $17,000 and sold for $35,000. He stated that they took $20,000 and had the YMCA Secretary Earl Brandenburg of New York to invest it for them in 1942, and that the investment had brought them more than $40,000 in dividends since that time.

Cox stated that the Delta Foundation still owned 1600 acres in Holmes County and that he personally owned 143 acres adjoining and that Dr. Minter owned 280 acres, but that after the salary of the Negro who ran the farm, and his wife who runs the store was paid and the taxes taken care of, there was no profit left.

The Negro woman Fannie Booker who runs the store on Providence Plantation is said to be Cox's secretary and has been his dancing partner too, citizens of that community have reported. It is also reported that she makes trips to St. Louis twice each year for some unknown purpose.

Cox was reminded that the $40,000 dividend on investments over a period of twenty years would amount to only $2,000 per year, which could not possibly cover expenses incident to his extensive traveling, living expenses, clothing and taxes. He then admitted that he did have other income but would not reveal its source. When pushed for this information he suddenly decided he was in a great hurry and had to leave, but said he would write and give this information a little later. To date, May 3rd, 1962, this information has not been received.

He apparently is being financed by some source he fears to reveal, and seems to fear an investigation of his activities. He stated that he felt he was being persecuted by some people who called him a communist, and added, "Maybe there are things I believe which are the same as the communists believe, but that does not mean that I am a communist."

Cox inquired about James Meredith's chances of entering Ole Miss and was told that his chances, in the opinion of the interviewer, were slimmer than they had been in the past twenty years. He admitted that he didn't doubt it, but said that knowing some of the professors at Ole Miss as he did that he felt that if Meredith had made application in 1954 immediately after the Supreme Court Decision entrance would have been easily accomplished since these professors would have recognized the decision as the law of the land. He added that a few years ago a lot of people would express themselves for or against integration, but that now Mississippi had perhaps 100,000 people organized to fight the Supreme Court Decision.

Cox stated that he thought the Clyde Kinard conviction for stealing chicken feed was a terrible miscarriage of justice.

He admits that he is an integrationist, and that he feels the Negro is abused and denied his civil rights. He stated that integration is coming and the best the South can do is to prepare the Negro intellectually and socially to take his place in the white man's society. He intimated that the time was very near, and it is the opinion of his interviewer that Cox would go to extreme ends to bring it about when he feels that the time is right.

Cox and Minter have recently been negotiating for a tract of land in Leflore County adjacent to the Ita Bena Vocational College for Negroes. Minter at present is living in Arizona.

The activities of A. E. Cox take him regularly to Mt. Beulah Negro College near Edwards. People who live in that area have expressed themselves as being skeptical of the activities at Mt. Beulah.

Officials have stated that school buses are frequently seen after midnight delivering Negroes in various parts of the county, and they have made numerous inquiries about the nature of these meetings but have had little enlightment.

Mt. Beulah was visited recently in an effort to ascertain the nature of its operation. A Negro minister, an employee by the name of Walker was asked about Cox. He said he knew him but insisted that Cox had no connection with Mt. Beulah.

Aaron Barker, a white minister, was interviewed. He stated that he knew Cox but insisted that he had no connection with Mt. Beulah, that he came there to visit his friends, the Hendersons. (These are the same Hendersons who formerly lived on Providence Plantation, coming there from Arkansas.)

Barker was asked if he knew about the trouble on Providence Plantation. He said he had heard of it and that he thought Cox and Minter were treated very badly in Holmes County, and that he thought Cox was a fine person. He stated that integration was definitely unavoidable, and approaching, and that he had no objection to integration as he felt that God made no distinction between the races.

Barker was asked what church Cox belonged to. He pretended not to know, but said he thought Presbyterian. He was then asked if it were not a fact that Cox attended the Christian Church in Vicksburg when Barker was pastor there. He admitted that he did. Asked if he had ever discussed integration with Cox, Barker replied that he had not. He admitted that Cox visited Mt. Beulah regularly every 60 to 90 days.

The interviewer was told by an official in Edwards that Cox wrote checks on Mt. Beulah Institute. This official reported that he had numerous inquiries for directions to Mt. Beulah from strangers most of whom were white and who spoke with a brogue. He stated that meetings were held there every Tuesday and Friday nights which lasted until almost daylight. He said the people in that area were suspicious about what goes on out there and felt that no good purpose was served.

The officer said that Mt. Beulah was consolidated with Tougaloo College and supported by the Congregational Church which does not conform with Christian beliefs.

The fact that Cox made deposits and wrote checks on the Mt. Beulah project was verified by authorities in Edwards and at the Bank of Edwards.

After obtaining proof that Cox was definitely transacting business for Mt. Beulah the interviewer went back to Barker who had emphatically stated that Cox had no connection with Mr. Beulah. Barker was asked how Cox got the authority to make deposits and draw checks on Mt. Beulah, and was told that probably Mary Dale, who is in charge of their Agricultural Executive Department of their Home Missions in Indianapolis, Indiana, must have done it.

Barker finally stated that Cox, he believed, but did not seem to be sure, served in his place last summer while he was on vacation. (A bad memory?) He was asked if it were not unusual for Cox, a Presbyterian, to be appointed to direct a Christian Church institution. Barker then stated that it was probably due to the fact that Cox was with the National Council of Churches.

It has been found that Cox and Barker both attended and finished at Texas Christian University at Ft. Worth, Texas, and that Cox is not a Presbyterian, but a member of the Christian Church.

Barker stated that the school is now giving not more than 50 Negro youths special training for college entrance. (Are they being trained to integrate white colleges?) He said that it was better to train Negroes to assume responsibilities as first class citizens than for them to assume these responsibilities without this training.

The interviewer remarked to Barker that he could not understand how a Christian could confuse communism when it was completely God-less. Barker, with no denial of embracing Communism, stated that the Communist doctrine was founded on God and said that Communists in America do not think precisely as the Russian Communists do. He further stated that the Communist doctrine is derived from a Godly doctrine and is well intentioned.

It is our belief that several of the people mentioned herein should be brought before the Legislative Investigative Committee and questioned about their activities.

Mrs. Hazel Brannon Smith,
The Lexington Advertiser
Lexington, Mississippi

Dear Mrs. Smith:

How are things with you and the ADVERTISER? I hope that between your own efforts and those of your friends enough was raised to take care of the ADVERTISER'S needs, for it's highly important that good liberals like yourself shouldn't be forced out by bigots like the Citizens Councils or self-serving politicos.

I was indeed glad you were able to suggest a method by which the Edith Lauer Fund could give a hand, and I hope its $1000 grant proved helpful.

Please let me know the subscription rates of the ADVERTISER as I'd like to become a regular reader.

Cordially,

TOUGALOO SOUTHERN CHRISTIAN COLLEGE
Tougaloo, Mississippi
April 25, 1962

Dear Friend:

You are cordially invited to attend a reorganization meeting of the Mississippi Council on Human Relations in the Science Hall at Tougaloo Southern Christian College, Thursday, May 3rd, at two o'clock.

A group of concerned people met at Waveland, Mississippi, last fall, convinced that men and women of both racial groups in Mississippi could contribute to the promotion of better human relations by meeting and working together.

A planning committee was set up at the Waveland meeting to explore the possibility of reorganizing the Mississippi Council on Human Relations or to set up some similar organization to provide opportunity for people of good will to work together on some of the important issues confronting us as citizens of Mississippi.

An organization meeting is called for Thursday, May 3rd, at Tougaloo. We hope that you will attend and bring with you any friends who would like to share in this cooperative effort.

To stimulate our thinking a proposed "Statement of Purpose" is enclosed. This statement has not been adopted. It is sent to you for your reflection and reaction. Please bring the statement with you and be prepared to discuss it at the May 3rd meeting.

We shall look forward to seeing you at Tougaloo Southern Christian College, near Jackson, on the extension of North State Street, on May 3rd at two o'clock.

Planning Committee:

Mr. H. Power Hearn (Jackson), Chairman
Bishop Joseph Brunini (Jackson), Vice Chairman
Rabbi Charles Mantinband (Hattiesburg), Vice Chairman
Rev. Henry Clay (Laurel)
Rev. Murray Cox (Gulfport)
Dr. D. I. Horn, Jr. (West Point)
Mrs. Lillian Rogers Johnson (Clarksdale)
Rev. E. A. Mays (Jackson)
Dr. A. D. Beittel (Tougaloo), Secretary

Proposed

Statement of Purpose

Mississippi Council on Human Relations

Believing that all men are of equal worth in the sight of God, and drawing our inspiration and guidance from the Judaeo-Christian continuity of prophetic witness for social justice, and desiring to support in the State of Mississippi those objectives in this direction which elsewhere within our nation have won general recognition and acceptance, we hereby propose to form in Mississippi an organization to be known as THE MISSISSIPPI COUNCIL ON HUMAN RELATIONS.

We wish to set forth as clearly as possible a bill of particulars presenting our concerns in the form of protest against specific existing conditions and support of certain constructive objectives.

We stand in opposition to:

1. The attitudes and practices of the Citizens' Council of Mississippi in its domination of the political, economic and social structure of our state through propaganda, intimidation and reprisals.

2. The existence of a sovereignty commission which is designed through an un-American method of inquisition to preserve the un-American institution of enforced segregation.

3. The condition in which the Negro does not receive equal Justice before the law in many places within the state.

4. The many manifestations of the evil of taxation without representation and access to tax-supported institutions and facilities.

5. The inequality in application of procedures of registration for voting.

Within the context of these social injustices under which as citizens of the state we find ourselves now living, we feel constrained to adopt a number of specific objectives.

We express support of:

1. The traditional freedom of speech including its class-room counterpart of academic freedom for all teachers.

2. The basic freedom of assembly in which men who believe in democratic institutions may meet together without anxiety.

3. Absolute impartiality as to race in the enforcement of law by police and courts and in the selection of jury members.

4. The application of one set of requirements in one manner to all individuals who seek registration for voting, regardless of race.

5. Employment in industry and agriculture on the basis of merit.

6. Wise compliance with the spirit of the Supreme Court Decision of 1954 within the living context of the situation in Mississippi through:

a. Voluntary removal of state and local laws enforcing segregation.
b. Prompt acceptance of qualified Negro applicants on the part of colleges and graduate schools.
c. Initiation, on the part of men of good will of both races within local communities of plans for compliance in the lower schools, in advance of compulsory action by federal courts.
d. Immediate representation by qualified Negroes on local and state boards of education where these posts are appointive.

Recognizing that in the current climate of public opinion, which tolerate defamation of character, there will be the charge that those who advocate this program are "communist-inspired", we feel it may serve some purpose to do what ought not to be necessary: put forth our profound opposition to communist theory and practice which also denies the dignity and worth of the individual. At the same time we would dissociate ourselves from the various rampant forms of chauvinistic nationalism which constitute the last refuge of those who would conceal their crass self-interest and virulent prejudices.

We propose that membership in this organization shall be limited to residents of the state of Mississippi. While it is intended primarily to unite Christians and Jews who so interpret the common prophetic witness and moral imperative of their respective faiths, members of other faiths and those who call themselves humanists who are also in sympathy with the purposes set forth above are invited into full membership.

We propose affiliation with the Southern Regional Council because we intend to build in association with members of other southern states a new way of life which will preserve what is of abiding value in our best traditions, purged now of the poison of legalized segregation.

OFFICERS OF THE MISSISSIPPI COUNCIL ON HUMAN RELATIONS

A. D. Beittel - Chairman

Dr. D. I. Horn, Jr. - Vice Chairman

Rabbi Charles Mantinband - Vice Chairman

Lillian Rogers Johnson - Secretary

I. S. Sanders - Treasurer

Rev. Henry Clay - Executive Committee Member

Aaron Henry - Executive Committee Member

Mrs. Wallis Schutt - Exectuvie Committee Member

Beittel, Mantinband and Mrs. Schutt are white and the others are Negroes.

Steps should be taken to stop Mrs. Wallis Schutt from her activities in the Mississippi Girl Scout organization.

MISSISSIPPI COUNCIL ON HUMAN RELATIONS

On March 12, 1957, MANNING JOHNSON, a Negro self-confessed Communist Party member testified before a Legislative Committee at Baton Rouge, Louisiana to the effect that the Mississippi Council on Human Relations was a transmission best of communist infiltration in the South. Johnson named the following individuals as officers and directors of this organization. Some of these individuals are white and some are colored:

Mrs. W. H. Ratliff, Sherard, Mississippi, President
Mrs. C. E. Dishman, Piney Woods, Miss., Vice-President
Bishop Joseph B. Brunini, Jackson, Miss., Sec.-Treas.
Charles T. Morgan, Mathiston, Mississippi
Alexander Fitzhugh, Vicksburg, Mississippi
Miss Alma Hickman, Hattiesburg, Mississippi
Mrs. E. R. Dear, Hattiesburg, Mississippi
Rabbi Charles Mantinband, Hattiesburg, Mississippi
Rev. Duncan M. Hobart, Meridian, Mississippi
F. W. Miller, Jackson, Mississippi
Dr. H. G. Williamson, Grenada, Mississippi
Dr. Thomas L. Zuber, West Point, Mississippi
Mrs. J. A. Burt, Jr.
Mrs. C. A. Williams
Mrs. C. C. Clark, Jackson, Miss.
Miss Jamie Turnage, Jackson, Miss.
Ernest Borinski, NAACP member, Tougaloo College, Miss.
Sam Barfield, Miss. Southern College, Hattiesburg, Miss.
J. J. Bolton, principal of Campbell College and High School, Jackson, Mississippi
Harold Fleming, Atlanta, Georgia
Mrs. A. Charles Hunter, Columbus, Miss.
Ruby Lyells
Rev. John Mangum, Chaplain, Tougaloo College, Miss.
M. G. Pruett

The Southern Regional Council was receipient of a gift of $445,000 from the Ford Foundation Fund For The Republic, IN SUPPORT OF STUDIES AND ACTIVITIES TO PROMOTE INTERRACIAL ACTIVITIES IN THE SOUTH. The three year report of THE FUND FOR THE REPUBLIC dated May 31, 1956, on page 22 states The Southern Regional Council "has concentrated on building strong state organizations so that each of its groups will be able to stand on its own feet when FUND support is terminated." (See New York Times, 12-16-1956)

The Southern Regional Council was founded in 1944 and is a successor to the COMMISSION ON INTERRACIAL COOPERATION, INC. The "Objectives and Purposes", stated were "TO ORGANIZE AND MAINTAIN A REGIONAL COUNCIL FOR THE IMPROVEMENT OF ECONOMIC, CIVIC AND RACIAL CONDITIONS IN THE SOUTH. . . . To reduce race tension, the basis of race tension, racial misunderstanding and distrust; to develop AND INTEGRATE LEADERSHIP IN THE SOUTH ON NEW LEVELS OF REGIONAL DEVELOPMENT AND FELLOWSHIP."

The Superior Court of Fulton County, Georgia, filed the names of five of the incorporators of the Southern Regional Council. The names are: RALPH McGILL, BISHOP ARTHUR J. MOORE, RUFUS E. CLEMENT, ATLANTA, GEORGIA, CHARLES S. JOHNSON, NASHVILLE, TENNESSEE, AND DR. HOWARD W. ODUM, CHAPEL HILL, NORTH CAROLINA. (See New York Times, 10-17-1955)

(You will note that the cities represented by these men were first to integrate.)

The official organ of the Southern Regional Council is "New South".

The head office in Atlanta has, since the $445,000 GRANT, from The Fund For The Republic increased its activities to extend over 12 SOUTHERN STATES as of 1956 -- Arkansas, Alabama, Georgia, Florida, Kentucky, Louisiana, North Carolina, South Carolina, Tennessee, Texas, Virginia and MISSISSIPPI.

A "RED FRONT"

Manning Johnson, a self-confessed member of the Communist Party, appearing before the Louisiana Legislative Committee on Segregation revealed information to the effect that THE SOUTHERN REGIONAL COUNCIL WAS "FORMED BY JAMES E. JACKSON, A SOUTHERN ORGANIZER OF THE COMMUNIST PARTY" AND "IS AFFILIATED WITH THE MISSISSIPPI COUNCIL ON HUMAN RELATIONS."

In hearings before the Subcommittee To Investigate The Administration Of The Internal Security Act and Other Internal Security Laws of the Committee On The Judiciary, United States Senate, held in New Orleans, March 18, 19 and 20th, 1954, respecting SUBVERSIVE influence in the Southern Conference Educational Fund, Inc., the following points are brought out.

"THE SOUTHERN CONFERENCE FOR HUMAN WELFARE" (OF WHICH THE MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE IS AN ADJUNCT) "WAS CONCEIVED, FINANCED AND SET UP BY THE COMMUNIST PARTY IN 1938 AS A MASS ORGANIZATION TO PROMOTE COMMUNISM THROUGHOUT THE SOUTHERN STATES. Earl Browder, former general secretary of the Communist Party in the United States, in a public hearing, identified the SOUTHERN CONFERENCE FOR HUMAN RELATIONS AS ONE OF THE COMMUNIST PARTY'S TRANSMISSION BELTS."

It was cited on June 12, 1947 by the Congressional Committee on Un-American Activities as a Communist-front organization "which seeks TO ATTRACT SOUTHERN LIBERALS on the basis of its seeming interest in problems of the South," although its "PROFESSED interest in southern welfare is simply an expedient for larger aims serving the SOVIET UNION and its subservient Communist Party in the United States.

Hodding Carter of the Greenville Democrat Times was cited at this same investigation as being affiliated with this organization.

James A. Dombrowski of 822 Perdido Street, New Orleans, is Executive Director of the Southern Regional Council. Communist Carl Braden, who has recently finished a prison term, travels over the Southern states representing the Southern Conference Educational Fund in the promotion of racial integration.

U. S. Senate Internal Security
Sub-Committee Report

March 1, 1960

RE: Congress of Racial Equality (CORE)
513 W. 166 Street, New York, N.Y.

The Congress of Racial Equality (CORE) has received cordial publicity and promotion in the Communist press, notably, The Worker of December 20, 1959, pages 3 and 14, and February 21, 1960, pages 1 and 14. (Photostats can be secured.)

The Congress of Racial Equality has not been cited as a Communist front by either the Attorney General or any Congressional or state committee.

Among its supporters, however, are individuals who have contributed significantly to the support of Communist causes.

A. J. MUSTE, member of the Advisory Committee of CORE, (letterhead, February 16, 1956), was selected as an observer to the 16th National Convention of the Communist Party, U.S.A., with that organization's approval. (Daily Worker, 2/11/57, p. 1) He has been consistent and active in support of Communist cases prosecuted under the Smith Act. (Daily Worker, 1/4/59, p. 5; 10/4/56, pp. 1 and 7; 3/14/56, p. 3; 9/27/59, p. 5; 1/7/57, p. 8; 12/21/55, p. 1; 11/8/59, p. 16) He has even gone to the length of urging clemency for Julius Rosenberg, convicted atomic spy. (Daily Worker, 1/18/53, p. 2)

ROGER N. BALDWIN, member of the Advisory Committee of CORE (letterhead, February 16, 1956), has a record-breaking list of affiliations with organizations cited as Communist fronts by either the Attorney General or the House Committee on Un-American Activities, or both. He has been active in support of Communist cases prosecuted under the Smith Act. (Daily Worker, 10/30/49, p. 6) (People's World, 6/22/51, p. 1)(Daily Worker, 2/11/54, p. 3)

STATE ... Central

On some occasions, Roger Baldwin has ventured to differ with the Communists.

A. PHILIP RANDOLPH, member of the Advisory Committee of CORE (letterhead, February 16, 1956), has in the past supported organizations which have been cited as subversive by the Attorney General, notably, the National Negro Congress and the North American Committee to Aid Spanish Democracy, American League Against War and Fascism, American League for Peace and Democracy, United May Day Committee, Southern Negro Youth Congress, and other organizations. His reputation in the labor movement as the president of the Brotherhood of Sleeping Car Porters is that of a strong anti-Communist who has broken with his past affiliations.

LILLIAN SMITH, a member of the Advisory Committee of CORE (letterhead, February 16, 1956), has in the past supported the campaign for the Freedom of Earl Browder, General Secretary of the Communist Party, U.S.A. (Daily Worker, May 2, 1941, p. 2). She has also supported the National Council of American-Soviet Friendship. (Daily Worker, November 19, 1944, p. 2) This organization has been cited as subversive by the Attorney General. She was also associated with the Emergency Peace Mobilization, which held a meeting in Chicago from August 31 to September 2, 1940. This organization was also cited as subversive by the Attorney General. She was a member of the Committee for Equal Justice for Mrs. Recy Taylor, an auxiliary of the International Labor Defense. (Booklet, August 1945). The International Labor Defense has also been cited as the "legal arm of the Communist Party" by the Attorney General.

ALLAN KNIGHT CHALMERS, member of the Advisory Committee of CORE (letterhead, February 16, 1956), has lent his name to the support of Communist cases prosecuted under the Smith Act, notably that of Gilbert Green and Henry Winston. He has denounced Congressional investigating committees as "contributing to the subtle break-down of our democratic process." (Daily Worker, 4/15/53, p. 2)

IRA De A. REID, member of the Advisory Committee of CORE (letterhead, February 16, 1956), has an extensive record of affiliations with organizations cited as subversive by either the Attorney General or the House Committee on Un-American Activities, notably the Jefferson School of Social Science, the American Committee for Protection of Foreign Born, the Council on African Affairs, the Southern Conference for Human Welfare, the United States Congress Against War, the National Council of the Arts, Science, and Professions, the Scientific and Cultural Conference for World Peace. In 1941, he signed a letter to President Roosevelt urging freedom for Earl Browder, General Secretary of the Communist Party. (Daily Worker, 11/3/41, p. 2).

GOODWIN WATSON, member of the Advisory Committee of CORE (letterhead, February 16, 1956), has written a book entitled "Action for Unity" in which he comes out openly in support of the following Communist fronts, cited as such by the Attorney General; International Workers Order, National Negro Congress, National Federation for Constitutional Liberties, and the People's Institute for Applied Religion. He has consistently opposed the efforts of Congressional committees to investigate Communist activities. (Daily Worker, 4/8/40, p. 2; 1/8/40, p. 4). He pleaded with President Truman for amnesty for convicted Communist leaders in August 1952. The Americanism Commission of the Westchester County American Legion has charged him with championing the "objectives of the Communist conspiracy." (New York Times, March 6, 1954, p. 22.)

An exact copy of a map taken out of the secret files of the Communist Party. The blacked-in area represents what the Communists have some day (if they can promote a bloody revolution) will be the Negro Communist Soviet. It represents approximately 140,000 square miles. About 14 million white people will have to be driven out of their homes. Among the leading cities that will be turned over completely to the Negroes will be Charleston, Atlanta, Shreveport, New Orleans, Savannah, as well as many others. The land which now belongs to the whites will be confiscated and turned over to the Red bureaucrats for control. Shortly before the war this plan was discussed in detail by Josef Stalin in an address before Lenin University where 2,000 American Communists are being trained now to run the United States. As late as February 16, 1947, a copy of a textbook, now being used in the Russian Army, was exhibited before the Congressional Committee for the Investigation of the Un-American Activities. The title of the military textbook is "How to Bomb and Sabotage the U.S.A." Under the Communist plan the dark line marks the territory to be segregated on the border of the Black Soviet. All this, along with the blacked-in area is to be governed by Paul Robeson or another loyal follower like him.

THE ANTI-DEFAMATION LEAGUE

Its full name is Anti-Defamation League of B'nai B'rith. B'nai B'rith means "Children of the Covenant", and was organized in 1843 as a purely American institution. Of the 7 million Jews in this country, it represents roughly 3%, or about 200,000. The Anti-Defamation League is an appendage organization to B'nai B'rith, as its name indicates. It was organized in Chicago in 1913. Its headquarters are still in Chicago. It maintains organized branches in about 20 American cities, and membership branches in possibly 75 or 80 more. The number of its present membership is unknown, but believed to be between 30,000 and 40,000. Its last published budget was no less than $5 million per year, which is an amount hard to account for, unless it be used for activities which it does not care to disclose.

Its stated purposes are two-fold: first, to combat racial and religious intolerance, particularly against Jews, and the supposed defamation of Jews; and second, to carry on a propaganda program. But its aims and program, as deduced from its acitivities, are greatly different. These may be briefly outlined as follows:

1. The League is internationalist, and violently anti-nationalist. It seeks to condition the mind of youth to Communism, and Internationalism. It has various deceptive disguises. It has, no doubt, infiltrated the schools by lectures, and textbook adoption for these purposes. It has long advocated the establishment of a world court with unlimited powers. It favors the Genocide Pact, and promotes the activities of UNESCO, and many other ideas of internationalsim which would tend to destroy the sovereignty of the American government.

2. The League is a secret police organization within the B'nai B'rith. It is known to report on the activities and opinions of almost every person in public office who openly express opinions which are not in conformity with its own, even including citizens in private gatherings.

3. The League defames all who actively and aggressively oppose Communism, but there are no known instances of its defaming or attempting to suppress anyone engaged in pro-communistic activities. It has had in its open employ at one time, such pro-communists and smear artists as: Carey McWilliams, John Roy Carlson, whose real name is A. B. Daroumian, and who is the author of the smear volume "Under Cover". There is no telling how many such people are in its services covertly. Among the many public figures who have been attacked at one time or the other by this organization are: Senators McCarthy, Wheeler and Eastland; Representatives Martin Dies and Francis Walter; Fulton Lewis, Jr., Dean Manion, and countless others.

4. It is seeking to make the Jews as race conscious as possible, and whether by connection or not, the Communists have taken advantage of this effort to brand nearly all anti-Communist activities as anti-Semitic. This easily fits into the League's program of coupling in the public mind the anti-Jewish crimes of the Nazis with anti-Semitism in this country. The two have no connection, but the slighest criticism of anyone who is identified as a Jew, whether he be engaged in communist activities or not, is immediately seized upon, and the whole idea is looked upon as a crime. In fact, that is just what the Anti-Defamation League has tried to make it.

5. The prinicpal themes of the League's propaganda coincide with the principal theme of Communism. The League's program is subtle, but continuous and effective in undermining of our unity and traditions. The race propaganda tends strongly to divide the "majority" and to pit minorities against the majority. The Communist Party drives this wedge hard, possibly aiming at open warfare at the propitious moment.

6. The League indicated that it has a foreign program. What this foreign program is, and by what right a private, secret organization presumes to carry on operations abroad remains a mystery.

7. The League often uses techniques identical with those of the Communists in all countries. Character assassination, for instance, to keep down opposition to Internationalism and Communism.

8. The effect of the League's work is to set up Jews in a preferential status- a "chosen people" in this modern age when all people have equal rights. The League seeks to bring other minorities under its leadership in a race rivalry fanned by its propaganda. To accomplish this end, it has joined with a great many other organizations of like aim. For instance, we generally think of the FEPC being solely a creation of the NAACP. Actually, the FEPC is largely a creation of the Anti-Defamation League, which has continuously advocated further and further adoption of so-called FEPC laws. It might be noted in passing, that the president of the NAACP is Albert Spingarn, who is also a member of the Anti-Defamation League.

Among its more recent activities are the following:

1. Wrote letter to Baldowski of Atlanta Constitution congratulating him for cartoon depicting high cost of contesting integration.

2. Sent Sandy Griffiths to Montgomery as agent provocateur in spring of 1960.

3. Became a Member of the National Consultative Congress on De-Segregation along with: American Civil Liberties Union; Americans for Democratic Action; American Jewish Congress; American Jewish Committee; Southern Regional Council; National Share-Croppers Fund; and the NAACP.

4. Issued a list of several Pro-Integrationist Tracts.

5. One of its speakers, Levine, made a bitter attack against South in Nashville.

6. As early as 1933, took steps to stifle sale of Madison Grant's "Conquest of a Continent", which was the first book alerting the American people.

7. Called on Justice Department to take action against Citizens Councils in 1956.

8. Published and spread pamphlet by Chester Bowles, "The Negro Progress and Challenge"-1954.

9. Now working through Southern Regional Council to promote intergration in the South. It is financing the Sou. Christian Leadership Conf. rather generously.

How an organization like this can set itself up as a spokesman for the Jews in this country is more than I can understand. But it has, and in the process has intimidated newspaper editors, radio and T. V. sponsors, under threat of withholding advertising. It has effectively prevented any discussion of its aims and activities on the floor of Congress, although these are well known in that body. It even has members here in Jackson who do not hesitate to call on citizens who dare question the activities of any Left-Wing members of the Jewish Race. Upton Close has this to say about it:

"On the lips of too many people of all kinds today is the whisper: "Look out! - Shh! - The Anti-Defamation League!" Deservedly or not, it has achieved in the minds of too many Jewish and Gentile Americans alike a fear-inspiring quality and a status above the law such as attached to the private secret police organizations of upcoming dictators in unfortunate European countries.

Some persons have come with apprehensions that their telephones have been tapped, their mail opened, their names referred to smear sheets and their intimate associations intruded upon, their professional standing attacked, their business boycotted, their employers or customers alienated by a mysterious network organization with vast funds and agents available to follow cases anywhere. Some have suffered legal persecution. Some American citizens of Jewish ancestry have come to confide that their own feelings and better judgment were ruthlessly over-ridden in the process of campaigning and collecting funds for the purposes of "fighting anti-Semitic defamation".

It is high time, therefore, to reveal this organization and its money-raising and money-spending activities. It is time to discover its place in American life and its part in Jewish world community trends. If some sinister force is using the remendous potentialities of this richly-financed staff, its own officials and representatives ought to be called to account, and its supporters ought to know such facts. The American people and American Congress ought to know them."

HARRY ALLEN OVERSTREET

Professor Overstreet was born in San Francisco in 1875, and finished at the University of California, and Balliol College of Oxford University. He became Professor of Philosophy at the City College in New York in 1911, and was later appointed Head of the Philosophy Department, retiring as Emeritus Professor in 1939.

About 1920 Professor Overstreet became a member of the John Reed Club. John Reed was a notorious Harvard educated Communist, who spent a number of years in Russia, and devoted his life to writing about the superiority of Communistic government. Since this club was largely composed of open and avowed Communists, and it is ridiculous for Professor Overstreet to say that he did not know what kind of organization he was joining.

In 1924 Professor Overstreet became a lecturer at the New School of Social Research in New York City, which the New York State Legislative Report on Seditious Activities stated to have been founded by "men who belong to the ranks of near Bolshevik Intelligentsia". The Communist and Socialist press was continually writing up the programs of its lecture hall, and indeed they should have, because some of the most active participants in this organization were either outright Communists, or some of the most notorious Communist-fronters that this Nation has ever produced. Several of its lecturers were Reds who had been driven out of Germany prior to, or during World Was I. It seemed to be obsessed with two subjects: the promotion of Communism; and extensive and probing lectures in the very lowest levels of human sexual behavior. We can only speculate on the subjects of Professor Overstreet's lectures at this place, but knowledge of them would probably be revealing. A few of his fellow lecturers were: Waldo Frank, Harold Laski, Hanns Eisler, Harry L. Barnes, Horace Kellen, etc., all of whom have completely Communistic records.

In 1932 he was one of the signers of a letter addressed to Congress by the "Fellowship of Reconciliation", advocating the recognition of the Soviet Government. This fellowship has been cited by the House Un-American Activities Committee as a vicious Communist front.

Around 1935, one Hilda Smith, working under a W. P. A. literary project in Washington, prepared a manual in which certain reading material was recommended for workers, and teachers of workers. The list of periodicals recommended by this woman was nothing less than a library of Red aims and procedures, as almost every single one was written by a man who was an openly avowed Communist, or who was particularly active in Red-front organizations. Squarely in the middle of this activity was Professor Overstreet, along with Abraham Epstein, Harold O. Rugg, V. F. Calverton, and others of a like ilk. For a more extensive discussion of this phase of Professor Overstreet's activity, see Elizabeth Dilling's book, "The Red Network".

Around 1939, Eleanor Roosevelt organized a program called "World Peace Ways", and toured the country giving lectures entitled "Ways of Peace". The purpose of this group was to indoctrinate this country with hopeless, helpless pacifism, and they came very near to doing it. Aside from Harry Overstreet, several of its members who could very easily be identified, were: Norman Thomas, Franz Boaz, Mary Woolsy, many members of the ACLU, and other Garland fund-supported organizations.

Around 1938, he was active in several of the Communist fronts, organized for the aid to the Communist side in the Spanish Civil War. Among these were: American Friends of Spanish Democracy; Hospitalization for the Abraham Lincoln Brigade; and a leaflet entitled "For the Rescue of Refugees". Each and everyone of these were cited for Communist fronts, or publications.

Around 1939, he was an active member of the cited front organizations known as "The American Committee for Democracy and Intellectual Freedom", and of the "Citizens Rally".

Around 1940 or 1941, Professor Overstreet was one of the principal editors, and far left-wing speakers on the radio program "Town Hall Meeting of the Air". This program hardly ever used anything except Red-tinged speakers.

In the early 1940s he signed a statement entitled "For the Rescue of Refugees", cited as a front publication.

In 1943, as a member of the "National Federation for Constitutional Liberties", he addressed a letter to Congress urging the abolition of the House Un-American Activities Committee. This organization also has been cited as a Communist front.

Also in 1943, he signed the message of the "National Federation for Constitutional Liberties", twice cited as a Communist front. In this same year he joined others in signing a letter to Governor Dewey, urging the release of one Morris Schnappes, who had been convicted of Communist terroristic activities.

Professor Overstreet continually attacked Senator McCarthy throughout the Senator's efforts to expose Communism in the Federal Government. In 1952 he wrote one of the most vicious smears on Martin Dies, who was at one time Head of the House Un-American Activities Committee, which was ever printed. In both instances, the attacks were actuated because these men were trying to protect our country from a government which Professor Overstreet and his kind have been advocating over 30 years.

Professor Overstreet was at one time a member and sponsor of the "Descendants of the American Revolution", also cited as a Communist-front organization.

All told, according to the American Legion's preliminary report "United World Federutionalists, Inc.", of which he was also a member, Professor Overstreet has linked his name and exerted his efforts in no less than 10 cited Communist-front organizations.

In 1951 Professor Overstreet was one of the signers of a letter in the New York Times, defending the notorious Hollywood Ten, who had been convicted and jailed for contempt of Congress. Most of these men were either Communists or Communist-Sympathizers, beyond any doubt.

In spite of all this record, much of which is detailed in the pages of the House Un-American Activities Committee reports, the Senate Internal Security Committee reports, the report of the New York Legislative Committee, and others, Professor Overstreet and his wife, Bonaro, now have the unmitigated gall to claim that they never knowingly entered or worked with a Communist-front organisation. It is quite apparent that he lacks the courage of Whitaker Chambers, Lewis Budenz, Frank Myer, Russel Kirk, and Elizabeth Bentley, all of whom admitted outright Communist activities or membership in Communist-fronts before changing their colors and becoming patriots. Instead, Overstreet and his wife have prepared and issued a 12-page affidavit which states that they were "cleared" by the House Un-American Activities Committee. This is a completely fallacious affidavit, inasmuch as this Committee grants no "clearances", since it was not activated for any such purpose.

I have not read Professor Overstreet's book "What We Must Know About Communism", and do not intend to, but in view of the above, I cannot believe that he either has the capability or the intent of writing a straightforward discussion on this subject and that instead, he has probably included statements in the book which would tend to infer the superiority of Communism in some phase of life, and that the acceptance of such statements would lead to still further conclusions that Communism is an ideal form of government.

To say that a man with a record like this is fit author, or even part author, of textbooks to used by children in the Jackson High Schools is a travesty on political decency.

HARRY OVERSTREET AND HIS "WHAT WE MUST KNOW ABOUT COMMUNISM"

The Atlanta Library leaflets, (reproduced on pages 58) prepared for Vera Dean's "Great Decisions," named as a popular work on Communism, Harry Overstreet's WHAT WE MUST KNOW ABOUT COMMUNISM instead of J. Edgar Hoover's MASTERS OF DECEIT. This choice moved us to investigate Overstreet's background, which we did with the following illuminating but not unanticipated results --

Harry Overstreet has been identified with a number of organizations cited as subversive by an agency of the United States Government, nine of these being listed in the record furnished by the House Committee on Un-American Activities which is reproduced on the following pages.

In 1953, Overstreet got from the Committee the list which we have reproduced and then submitted to the Committee a twelve-page "affidavit" in which he explained to his satisfaction, (but not necessarily to any one else's) how he had been gulled into forming what he described as "certain tenuous associations" with groups "tainted by Communist infiltration." This "affidavit" which is a tissue of laboriously contrived plausibilities contains not even a hint of the cocky Overstreet whose self-proclaimed deep knowledge of Communism qualified him to write what certain undiscerning critics have called a definitive work on the subject. Instead we meet an entirely different character, an "uninformed" and unwary "intellectual" who plaintively asks the Committee to understand that he was too busy and too innocent to detect the taint in the organizations to which he had lent his name. A perfect picture of a professor so absent-minded and so unworldly that he believed he was reacting to humanitarian impulses when he "unsuspectingly" endorsed Communist fronts committed to the destruction of America, long after some of those fronts had been officially declared subversive.

This same type of absent-mindedness can be noted in the interesting omission from the "affidavit" of his co-sponsorship on January 17, 1952, of a New York Times ad which defended the convicted Hollywood Ten (Communists in contempt of Congress). As this pro-Communist outfit was not on the list supplied by the Committee, Overstreet probably reasoned that he should not borrow trouble, and anyway it would have been pretty hard for even this learned Communist-fronter to explain why he had absent-mindedly tendered his "tenuous" support to ten men who had been convicted in a fair trial in an American Court.

After filing the "affidavit" Overstreet claimed the Un-American Activities Committee gave him a "clearance" which purged him of his Communist front past. The Committee did not do this as will be noted from the letter reproduced on page 71.

In the following excerpt reproduced from his "affidavit," Overstreet entreats the House Committee to understand that he endorsed this particular Communist front through lack of knowledge of "communist tactics" -- a surprising admission from this arrogant authority who had the gall a few years later to write a book telling the American people what they must know about Communism.

This excerpt reproduced from the "affidavit" Overstreet filed with the Committe. Is not this "expert's" innocence touching? Ed.

The National Federation for Constitutional Liberties:

As I recall, the January 1943 message to the House of Representatives was in the nature of a protest against the proceedings of the Dies Committee. I think it proposed the discontinuance of that Committee. I still feel that the House Committee hearings as they were being conducted at that time called for protest. With hindsight, however, I recognize that I made two mistakes when I signed that particular message. One was my failure to suspect that the Federation for Constitutional Liberties was not what I took it to be: an authentic American organization set up to defend civil liberties where these seemed threatened. All I knew about it was what I read in the materials it sent to me; and I doubt that these would have disclosed to any lay citizen not versed in communist tactics the hidden character and motives of the group. (I see by your Committee's report to me that it was already listed as subversive six months before I signed its message. But I, absorbed during those war years with a heavy schedule over the country, was not keeping posted on listings,-- and I think very few of us were, or are even today, because of the shortage of time and regular access to materials. In any event, I at that time knew the organization only as a channel through which I was given what seemed a legitimate chance to protest certain Committee methods that seemed to me unfair.)

In the above excerpt, Overstreet gives the impression that he was critical of congressional hearings "as they were being conducted at that time" (1943). Please read below what Edward Janisch had to say about this intentional deception in his article, WHAT WE MUST KNOW ABOUT OVERSTREET which appeared in the October 1959 edition of American Opinion.

"Dr. Overstreet in 1952, shortly before he filed his affidavit with the House Un-American Activities Committee, wrote one of the most vicious attacks on Congressional investigations ever printed. He pictures the Hon. Martin Dies as a malicious reactionary, who has used the cover of a feigned Communist threat to smash liberal ideas, and all ideas. Similarly, Overstreet finds 'McCarthyism' a 'ruthless' imitation of the techniques of totalitarianism. The professor charges that the House Committee, 'far from guarding our nation against subversives,' has used the trust of the American people 'to subvert certain American freedoms . . . It has been able, in an alarming degree to terrorize non-conformity into silence.' Venom-spewing Overstreet insists that the Committee's practices 'had been a favorite method of totalitarianism.' The hearings 'appear' to be imitating 'the mass trials of Communist China (where) thousands of the accused were disposed of by the roar of the 'People's' Court -- Kill - Kill - Kill!"

- - - - - - - - - - - - -

Like most of the reading matter recommended by the FPA, the Overstreet book is crammed with glib double-talk about Communism. Why John Foster Dulles in his final hours praised the work to President Eisenhower we do not know. Perhaps he was so close to death at the time as to have his critical faculties impaired. (In good health his judgment was not always perfect as was indicated by his choice of law partners and by his fierce defense of Alger Hiss at the time of his exposure.)

- - - - - - - - - - - - -

We do not recommend Overstreet's WHAT WE MUST KNOW ABOUT COMMUNISM.

We do recommend that Americans read J. Edgar Hoover's MASTERS OF DECEIT.

Mr. Hoover does not join Communist fronts -- he investigates them

Note: To strengthen a statement made on page 263 of his book, Overstreet quotes from a work of "top American psychiatrist" Karl Menninger. Menninger's record of association with subversive organizations is reproduced on a later page. Ed.

Dear Mr. Nichols:

I have received your letter of May 31, 1960 in reference to Harry and Bonaro Overstreet.

In response to your request for information on these individuals, I am enclosing herewith a report of the information contained in the files of the Committee on Un-American Activities on the Overstreets.

With reference to your inquiry about a so-called "clearance" by this Committee, may I say that the Committee on Un-American Activities does not issue clearances, either of individuals or organizations, at any time.

With best wishes,

Sincerely yours,

INFORMATION FROM THE FILES OF THE COMMITTEE ON UN-AMERICAN ACTIVITIES
U. S. HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

DATE: June 7, 1960

FOR: Honorable Francis E. Walter

SUBJECT: Harry A. Overstreat

This Committee makes NO EVALUATION in this report. The following is only a compilation of recorded public material contained in our files and should not be construed as representing the results of any investigation or finding by the Committee. The fact that the Committee has information as set forth below on the subject of this report is not per se an indication that this individual, organization, or publication is subversive, unless specifically stated.

Symbols in parentheses after the name of any organization or publication mentioned herein indicate that the organization or publication has been cited as being subversive by one or more Federal authorities. The name of each agency is denoted by a capital letter, as follows: A—Attorney General of the United States; C—Committee on Un-American Activities; I—Internal Security Subcommittee of the Senate Judiciary Committee; J—Senate Judiciary Committee; and, S—Subversive Activities Control Board. The numerals after each letter represent the year in which that agency first cited the organization or publication. (For more complete information on citations, see this Committee's "Guide to Subversive Organizations and Publications.")

Prof. H. A. Overstreet, C.C.N.Y., was a member of the New York Committee of the American Committee for Democracy and Intellectual Freedom (C-1942) as shown on letterheads dated September 22, 1939 and December 1, 1939. Prof. Overstreet was named as a signer of a petition of the organization (mimeographed sheet attached to letterhead dated January 17, 1940) and was a sponsor of a Citizens' Rally held April 13, 1940, by the organization in New York (leaflet on the rally).

The Daily Worker of August 10, 1950, page 5, reported that Prof. Harry A. Overstreet signed a statement against denaturalization issued by the American Committee for Protection of Foreign Born (A-1948:C-1942:I-1956:S-1957) and directed to the President of the United States.

A public statement of the American Committee to Save Refugees (C-1942) was signed by H.A.Overstreet, as shown by a leaflet entitled "For the Rescue of Refugees," which was published by the organization.

Prof. Overstreet was named as a member of the Committee of the American Friends of Spanish Democracy (C-1944) on a letterhead dated February 21, 1938; also in testimony of Walter S. Steele in public hearings before the Special Committee on Un-American Activities, August 17, 1938 (Volume I, page 569). He was also a Committee member of the Medical Bureau, American Friends . . . , (letterhead of November 18, 1936; and New Masses, January 5, 1937, page 31).

The Daily Worker of February 13, 1939, page 2, named Harry A Overstreet as a member of the Descendants of the American Revolution (C-1942). A pamphlet "Descendants of the American Revolution," named him as a sponsor of the organization, (SEE back page) cont'd.

We have reproduced an excerpt from this "affidavit" on an earlier page. Ed.

A circular entitled "and tell the folks that I'll be home if . . ." revelas that Harry A. Overstreet endorsed the drive of the Friends of the Abraham Lincoln Brigade (C-1940) to bring the wounded boys home.

H.A.Overstreet was listed as a signer of the January 1943 message of the National Federation for Constitutional Liberties (A-1942:C-1942) addressed to the U.S.House of Representatives. He was identified as Professor Emeritus of Philosophy, College of the City of New York; Lecturer New York School for Social Research, New York, N.Y.

It was reported in the October 9, 1944 issue of the New York Times, page 12, that Prof. Overstreet was a signer of an open letter to Governor Thomas Dewey requesting a pardon for Morris U. Schappes. The letter was sponsored by the Schappes Defense Committee(A-1949:C-1944).

A pamphlet, "Children in Concentration Camps," (Back cover) discloses that Prof. H.A.Overstreet was one of the sponsors of the Spanish Refugee Relief Campaign (C-1940).

In connection with the above report, please note the correspondence and affidavits of Dr. and Mrs. Overstreet reproduced in the attached pages (26-39) which have been taken from a mimeographed report of information from the public records, files and publications of this committee upon another subject.

Ed.

Harry Overstreet has a socialistic-pacifist record going back to the Lusk Committee days of 1920. He belonged to the Communist John Reed Club in 1930 and signed a Fellowship of Reconciliation petition in 1932 advocating recognition of Communist Russia. The American Legion's Preliminary Report on United World Federalists, Inc. (1955) lists no less than ten Communist fronts or activities to which Overstreet lent his name. One, under the auspices of the National Federation for Constitutional Liberties, was an open letter to Congress opposing renewal of the Special House Committee on Un-American Activities in 1943. Overstreet's last pro-Communist gesture seems to have been the signing of an advertisement in the Jan. 17, 1951 N.Y. Times defending the convicted Hollywood Ten (Communists in contempt of Congress) and a general attack on loyalty oaths and the governments refusal to grant passports to Paul Robeson and other suspected subversives.

Some time in 1953 the Overstreets apparently had a profound change of heart over Communism and made contact with the House Committee on Un-American Activities. They appear to have filed an affidavit or made some sort of statement in executive session which the Committee never released. The Overstreets then claimed that they had been "cleared" by the Committee. The Committee does not issue clearances to anyone!

In 1958 the Overstreets published What We Must Know About Communism. It was instantly seised upon and lavishly praised by the entire liberal establishment. It soon became a best seller. Secretary Dulles on his deathbed handed it to President Eisenhower to read. The real authorities on Communism, Louis Budenz, Russell Kirk, Frank Meyers and others thought very poorly of the Overstreet effort to prove that they, too, were now solid and sound anti-Communists. Russell Kirk's analysis of the Overstreets in the May 23, 1959 National Review should be read by everyone interested in the remarkable reformation of this highly articulate couple. Kirk quotes the late Canon Bernard Iddings Bell as having once declared that Overstreet was a "fool and a malign influence." To which Kirk adds, "That hundreds of thousands of people seem to have taken Overstreet seriously is one symptom of the shallowness of American education."

We are proud to reproduce this unsolicited letter from retired Congressman, Kit Clardy, a former fighting member of the House Committee on Un-American Activities. His deep knowledge of the subject makes this additional background information on Harry Overstreet and Russian-born Vera Dean doubly interesting. Ed.

Mr. W.J.Riordan,Chairman
Americanism Committee
Waldo M. Slaton Post.No.140

Dear Sir:

You are to be congratulated on the splendid job you have done in your booklet,"The Foreign Policy Association." You have performed a most worth-while service in making this material available to those who care for the future of this nation.

In support of your position on the Overstreets I can add a bit of personal recollection. As a member of the 83rd. Congress and of the House Committee on Un-American Activities I participated in all committee actions. It was therefore quite surprising to learn of the Overstreet claim that my committee had "cleared" them of all taint of communist front connections and activities.

I can state without qualification that this Overstreet assertion or claim is totally without foundation. In fact we did not even have the matter brought to committee attention for action of any sort. My first knowledge of this claim was long afterwards when a friend sought information about this matter. The Overstreets were due to speak in the town where my friend lived and she had caused some of the Overstreet connections to be publicized. This had brought angry replies and the claim about "clearance".

My friend Tad Walter, now Chairman of the Committee is correct in saying that committee policy does not permit issuance of a "clearance" such as here claimed. But policy aside I can assure you that the Overstreets never obtained any sort of clearance. Why they have chosen to assert a claim they must know is not only false but easily disproved is something for them to explain. It would be interesting indeed to hear their response to a suggestion that they produce the document.

With the knowledge I have of their past affiliations I was also amazed at their publishing their book on communism. As you have undoubtedly discovered the book hardly lives up to its press notices or its title.

I have long been troubled over the subtle inroads the Foreign Policy Association has undoubtedly made in influencing the public mind. My concern first grew out of the fact that Vera Dean(a Russian) was helping mould its policies. I have read much she has written. While expertly done, the slant she takes and the way she undercuts America disturbs me because I know that people generally do not have time to analyse and check published material of this kind.

I was particularly shocked at an article she wrote for the March 1951 issue of a magazine called "Tomorrow". It was entitled,"What does Asia Want." It sums up as support for the communist cause and a denunciation of America.

In another of her writings she says that:

> "I believe that,in spite of setbacks and mistakes, Russia is traveling in a direction that will eventually bring her out on the high road of spiritual and political, as well as material, progress."

She was a delegate to the Oct.1950 Lucknow,India conference of the Institute of Pacific Relations - an organization so thoroughly exposed by the Senate Committee headed by Senator McCarran as an adjunct of the whole communist movement.

I hope you continue to alert the nation to the sort of misleading information being put out by the Foreign Policy Association. They have deluded so many good people into supporting them It is time some organized effort be made to undo the terrible mistakes their efforts have surely contributed to in a large way.

Sincerely

Kit Clardy

FACTS ON "MENTAL HEALTH" MOVEMENT

Do you know that a "Master Scheme" was developed on a national scale to trick Americans into demanding legislation that would ultimately destroy this country via a "Charitable" organization?

Do you know when you ring the door bell of your neighbor in the name of "Charity for the Mentally Ill" you may be performing an act that would incarcerate you and your loved ones in concentration camps for slave laborers?

Do you know that Lenin insisted the proper way to take over any nation was to get control of their medical profession, and that this has very nearly been completed?

Do you know that he also said "America Will Drop Like A Rotten Apple," and that this "drop" is now inevitable and only a great miracle can stop it?

These are not opinions expressed by individuals opposing the "Scheme" but material which has been hidden from you. This will show you beyond a shadow of a doubt that your interests and those of our beloved nation, were meant to be subverted in the name of "Mental Health".

If nothing else, you owe it to your country to assist in rectifying this horrible crime. Only you can prevent this "Take Over" by immediately bringing these facts to the attention of your neighbor, your organizations, your Church, and above all, your legislator.

TRAINING OF LEADERS FOR THE MENTAL HEALTH MOVEMENT

The following are a few excerpts from an address Beria made to TWO HUNDRED AND TWELVE American School teachers who went to Moscow for this training.

This speech was taken from the recent committee reports from the hearings on Tax Exempt Foundations.

"American students at the Lenin University, I welcome your attendance at these classes on psychopolitics. Psychopolitics is an important if less known division of geopolitics. It is less known because it must necessarily deal with highly educated personnel, the very top strata of mental healing.

"By psychopolitics our chief goals are effectively carried forward. To produce a maximum of chaos in the culture of the enemy is our first most important step. Our fruits are grown in chaos, distrust, economic depression, and scientific turmoil. At last a weary populace can seek peace only in our offered Communist state, at last only communism can resolve the problem of the masses.

"A psychopolitician must work hard to produce the maximum chaos in the fields of mental healing. He must recruit and use all the agencies and facilities of mental healing. He must labor to increase the personnel and facilities of mental healing until at last the entire field of mental science is entirely dominated by Communist principles and desires.

"To achieve these goals the psychopolitician must crush every homegrown variety of mental healing in America. Actual teachings of Freud, James, Eddy, and others amongst your misguided peoples must be swept away. They must be swept away. They must be discredited, defamed, arrested, stamped upon by their own government until there is no credit in them and only communist-oriented healing remains. You must work until every teacher of psychology unknowingly or knowingly teaches only Communist doctrine under the guise of 'psychology'. You must labor until every doctor and psychiatrist is either a psychopolitician or an unwitting assistant to our aims.

"You must labor until we have dominion over the minds and bodies of every important person in your nation."

"With the institutions for the insane you have in your country prisons which can hold a million persons and can hold them without civil rights or any hope of freedom. And upon these people can be practiced shock and surgery so that never again will they draw a sane breath. You must make these treatments common and accepted. And you must sweep aside any treatment or any group of persons seeking to treat by effective means.

"You must dominate as respected men the fields of psychiatry and psychology. You must dominate the hospitals and universities. You must carry forward the myth that only a European doctor is competent in the field of insanity and thus excuse amongst you the high incidence of foreign birth and training.

"Phychopolitics is a solemn charge. With it you can erase our enemies as insects. You can cripple the efficiency of leaders by striking instantly into their families through the use of drugs. You can wipe them away with testimony as to their insanity. By our technologies you can even bring about insanity itself when they seem too restive.

"You can change their loyalties by psychopolitics.

"In a capitalist state you are aided on all sides by the corruption of the philosophy of man and the times. You will discover that everything will aid you in your campaign to seize, control, and use all 'mental healing' to spread our doctrine and rid us of our enemies within their own borders.

"Use the courts, use the judges, use the constitution of the country, use its medical societies and its laws to further our ends. Do not stint in your labor in this direction. And when you have succeeded you will discover that you can now effect your own legislation at will and you can, by careful organization of healing societies, by constant campaign against the terrors of society, by a pretense as to your effectiveness make your capitalist himself, by his own appropriations, finance a large portion of the quiet conquest of the nation.

"By psychopolitics create chaos. Leave a nation leaderless. Kill our enemies and bring to earth, through communism, the greatest peace man has ever known. Thank you."

A thorough knowledge of what has taken place in the "scheme" on mental health would prove that most of the speech given by Beria in 1934 has already come to pass beyond their wildest dreams. All communications have been heavy with propaganda concerning this scheme until our people have come to consider it a smart thing to do to consult a psychiatrist on the slightest matter. Children are taken to them practically from baby-hood, and medical testimony as to the treatment prescribed is frightening to read.

COMMIES AND INTEGRATION—

Little Rock's Luster Is Much Dimmer Now...

WASHINGTON — The luster is wearing thin at Little Rock, Ark., where bayonets were used last Fall to enforce integration in a public school. Some of the trail-blazers appear to have washed their hands of the cause of Negro "rights." Others have been seen in roles considerably less flattering than those they played last Fall.

Ernest Green's observation, "I'm glad that's all over," is perhaps not untypical. Ernest, 18, was one of the nine Negro youths admitted to Little Rock's Central High School under the guns of federalized National Guardsmen and U. S. paratroopers.

Last month Ernest was graduated. One of the nine was expelled; the other seven may never return to Central.

If the experiment continues at Central, it will have to do so without the assistance of many persons who were instrumental in launching it.

Mayor Woodrow Wilson Mann of Little Rock, who made the daily telephone calls to the White House that led to Federal intervention, has left town.

He is now a resident of Denver, Colo., working in an investment banking firm.

Max Rabb, the presidential assistant who was at the White House end of the Mayor Mann calls and was a key man in the decision to send Federal troops, has left Washington.

He is now a partner in a big New York law firm.

Despite apparent "success" in its part in obtaining the Little Rock test, the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People has experienced a "sharp drop" in membership.

Federal Judge Ronald Davies, whose ruling that integration must begin "forthwith" in Little Rock was the foundation for what followed, has long since left Little Rock.

He is now back in his court in North Dakota, where there are but 257 Negroes in the entire state. Arkansas has 462,000.

Harry Ashmore, the Little Rock editor whose editorials in behalf of integration stirred the controversy and brought him a Pulitzer prize, has conceded he will not employ a Negro on his newspaper.

The Post-Herald today prints the first of five articles from the New Bedford (Mass.) Standard-Times showing the Communist campaign to promote racial unrest in the South. The first story, concerns the Little Rock school situation. Others will show other angles of the story.

Following is the statement which The Standard-Times printed with its series:

No domestic problem is more important to the people of this country than relations between white and Negro Americans.

An issue in which the extremist views are so widely separated is a natural for exploitation by the Communist Party.

In this series of articles, The Standard-Times documents and reviews the Communist campaign to promote racial unrest in the South and the influence of that campaign in the origin of, and the aftermath to, the impasse at Little Rock.

This series was written by Edward B. Simmons of The Standard-Times staff. Mr. Simmons received the award of Sigma Delta Chi, national professional journalism fraternity, in 1951 for outstanding general reporting.

He gathered material for these articles in trips along the Eastern Seaboard, to the Midwest, in discussions with members of Congress and from study of U. S. Senate and House committee files.

Mrs. Grace Lorch, the Little Rock "housewife" who attracted national attention by "befriending" one of the nine students, has since refused to declare whether she is a Communist.

Herbert Brownell, whose U. S. Justice Dept. gave the orders for dispatch of troops, is no longer attorney general.

He has taken up the more lucrative private practice of law.

The Justice Dept., itself, has had a change of heart. Under its new chief, William P. Rogers, the word is "never again" on the use of Federal troops to enforce integration.

The Little Rock School Board, which had worked out a gradual integration program that Judge Davies' ruling nullified, has thrown in the sponge on any integration in the near future.

Central High School has claimed that the educational program for its 2000 students was so badly dislocated by the one-year experiment the school could not survive another year without complete disintegration of morale.

This was a major consideration in Federal Judge Harry J. Lemley's approval of a 2½-year stay of integration for the Little Rock high school, a decision that may have made the best of a very unfortunate situation.

Judge Lemley, while acknowledging the interest of Negroes in obtaining equal rights, said the "public interest" of the majority rated consideration, too. The burden placed on other Central High students and the "racial tension and unrest" created in Little Rock itself demanded a delay in integration, he said.

The ruling led to another example of apparent change in viewpoint among those who had been insistent on an immediate end of segregation.

When Judge Lemley's decision was taken to the U. S. Supreme Court, whose 1954 "sociological" and subsequent decrees had started the ferment in the South, that body declined to break up its Summer vacation for a special sitting.

The court, in effect, passed the buck to a lower court with an admonition to act fast.

Commies And Integration . . . No. 2—

Inciting Racial Strife Is Basic Communist Goal

This is the second of five articles on the Communist influence on racial strife in the South, reprinted from The Standard-Times of New Bedford, Mass. These articles were prepared after an extensive investigation.

WASHINGTON — To incite racial strife is one of the oldest objectives in the Communist program for getting world domination. "We must realize that our party's most powerful weapon is racial tension," states a Communist Party handbook of 1912, well before a few hundred Bolsheviks seized control of Russia.

"By propounding into the consciousness of the dark races that for centuries they have been oppressed by the whites, we can mold them to the program of the Communist Party," the handbook continues.

"In America, we will aim for subtle victory. While inflaming the Negro minority against the whites, we will endeavor to instill in the whites a guilt complex for their exploitation of the Negroes. Thus will begin a process which will deliver America to our cause."

Is it coincidence or the result of strategy that, some 45 years later, racial unrest in Little Rock, Ark., has increased so sharply that a Federal judge called for a 2½-year delay in any integration?

Again, is it coincidence or the result of Communist strategy that one of the most influential of all Southern Negro leaders, the Rev. Martin Luther King, exhorts his followers with these words:

"It (the Montgomery, Ala., bus boycott) is a part of something that is happening all over the world. The oppressed people are rising up. They are revolting against colonialism and imperialism and all other systems of oppression."

When King draws a parallel between the situation of the American Negro and "oppressed peoples" rising against "colonialism" and "imperialism," he is following exactly the Communist line.

At first, the Communist drive for creation of racial strife called for a direct approach to Negroes, using labor unions and Communist fronts like the American Negro Labor Congress and the League for Struggle for Negro Rights.

This approach was brazenly direct, and it failed. Former Communist Joseph Kornfelder, one of the party founders in the United States and its first director of Southern operations, has described what happened:

"The South to the Communists was always one of the most vexing problems," Kornfelder told a joint legislative committee of the State of Louisiana in March 1957. "Moscow could never understand it . . . According to Marx' theory, the South should be leading the United States in Communist development.

"It just didn't work out that way.

"It was just to the contrary. The South proved to be a hard nut and it didn't conform to the doctrine.

"They decided that the big block against penetration of the South is religion. The Negroes believed in religion; the hillbillies believed in religion; nearly everybody is religious. The South is more religious than the North.

Kornfelder and two Negro former Communist leaders, Manning Johnson and Leonard Patterson, told the Louisiana committee that the new tactics included, besides use of the church, penetration of reputable Negro organizations and the founding, but not obvious control, of others.

World War II, with its migrations and general dislocation of living habits, produced what Kornfelder described as a "sort of honeymoon situation" between the Communist organizers and Negro organizations.

"It seems the intellectuals during that time had shown a remarkable weakness," he testified. "They were bigger suckers for the Communist propaganda than many others were, apparently because they sort of led a life apart from the daily troubles and toil of the population."

The results of this "honeymoon" were vital Communist infiltration of the most important agencies in the South dealing in Negro issues. The Communists infiltrated four of these organizations and actually helped found three of them.

They are the Southern Conference Educational Fund, the Southern Regional Council, the Highlander Folk School in Tennessee and the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People.

The Regional Council and the Educational Fund were both offshoots of the old Southern Conference for Human Welfare, which was dissolved in 1948 after twice being described by the Federal Government as "a Communist front serving the Soviet Union and its subservient Communist Party."

Former directors and officers of the Conference for Human Welfare became directors and officers of the Regional Council and the Educational Fund and of the Highlander School.

Although the Regional Council is not widely known in the North, its influence in the South is attested by its receiving a $497,000 grant from the Ford Foundation's Fund for the Republic.

Likewise, the Highlander School plays an important role in Southern civil rights developments, although it is scarcely known in the North. The school, according to testimony before the Senate Internal Security Subcommittee, was co-founded by a Communist and by a man who refused to testify on his beliefs.

By 1954 and the crucial Supreme Court decision, the Communist Party was so confident it had set the stage for developments in its favor that the party's national convention in the Winter of 1953 declared, "The next period ahead will witness momentous struggles of the Negroes . . . given the vanguard leadership of the Communist Party, we may be confident that the Negro liberation movement will ally itself more fully with the camp of peace and democracy."

The Communist Party was in a position to follow its long-proved doctrine.

To get a "sociological" or pro-Communist book on the reading list of influential persons, like a Supreme Court justice;

To persuade a Negro to violate a civil rights statute, in the cause of "civil disobedience;"

To inject a fellow-traveler in the forefront of a civil rights dispute;

To support the program of the NAACP.

These objectives were attained in the year to come.

Reds Goad NAACP To End Moderation

This is the third of five articles on the part played by Communists in bringing about racial troubles in the South. It is reprinted from The Standard-Times of New Bedford, Mass.

WASHINGTON—The success of Communist efforts to exploit the Southern Negro under the guise of "democratization" became fully evident in 1954 and the three subsequent years. The Supreme Court's historic 1954 ruling on school segregation was in judgement on four cases brought before it by the National Association of Advancement for Colored People, which for years had been a priority objective of Communist infiltration.

The NAACP charged that Negro children in Delaware, Kansas, South Carolina and Virginia were being denied their rights under the 14th Amendment.

The court did not rule on this aspect. Instead, Chief Justice Earl Warren in the written opinion, declared that the court found for the NAACP because segregated schools induced a feeling of inferiority among Negro children.

THIS SOCIOLOGICAL view, the justice stated, is "amply supported by modern authority." He cited six books by such "modern authorities."

Two of the six authorities were Theodore Brameld and E. Franklin Frazier. Between them, they have been members of or identified with 28 organizations listed as Communist, Communist-fronts or Communist dominated.

A third "authority" was K.B. Clark. While arguments were being heard by the court on the four cases, Clark was on the payroll of the NAACP as a "social science expert."

A fourth authority cited by Justice Warren was the book, "An American Dilemma," edited by Gunnar Myrdal, a Swedish socialist. The chief justice emphasized the importance of this book in the court's deliberations by saying it was depended on "generally," that is from cover to cover.

Sixteen of the contributors to Myrdal's book have long records of pro-Communist affiliation and activity. One, W. E. B. Dubois, identified by the Communist Party as the "honorary chairman" of the NAACP, had a hand in 82 parts of the book. Dubois has been identified with 80 Communist fronts, reportedly more than any other American citizen.

Dubois intervened in behalf of executed Communist spies Julius and Ethel Rosenberg and sent the Kremlin a message of condolence on the death of Stalin.

Myrdal, himself, has written that the U. S. Constitution is "impractical and unsuited to modern conditions." Its adoption was "nearly a plot against the common people." said this foreign authority on American Negro problems.

THE COURT'S decision gave new influence to the NAACP. Its officers hailed the decision but indicated that it would not change the organization's plan for calm and orderly progress in race relations.

"We accept the decision quietly, unless there is deliberately-fomented trouble," said the late Walter White, then executive secretary of NAACP.

Thurgood Marshall, chief NAACP counsel, who had argued the school cases before the court, said, "The people will get together and work this thing out."

The Communist Party, however, wanted no part of moderation. It wanted the "big sharp struggles" its leaders had forecast, and racial unrest.

THE RECORD from the Supreme Court decision until the climax at Little Rock makes it plain which philosophy was the dominant one.

Moderation was forgotten.

The next three years brought unprecedented civil disobedience and violence in the South's racial affairs. There were all-out "incidents" of long duration in Tuskegee, Ala., Charleston, S. C., Tallahassee, Fla., Montgomery, Ala., Americus, Ga., and Clinton, Tenn., to name only the major ones.

GAVE RULING—Chief Justice Warren.

The NAACP played a prominent role in each, but the atmosphere was not the moderate one ostensibly espoused by the NAACP.

"IN MY OPINION, every major racial disturbance in the South since 1954 has been incited and directed by the Communist Party," Mrs. Paul Crouch, widow of a former Communist leader, told The Standard-Times. Her husband was a top Communist functionary in the South for 13 years, and she was his aid throughout the period.

Communist exploitation of the Negro through the NAACP is attested by the proceedings of the 1957 national convention of the Communist Party. That convention adopted as its main resolution, "the question of Negro freedom . . . the crucial domestic issue of the day . . . requiring support of the program of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People."

Communist penetration of the NAACP in these important years is conceded by the NAACP itself.

On Feb. 14, 1956, Leroy Watkins, who succeeded White as NAACP executive secretary, warned all chapters to guard against the "intensive efforts" of Communists to infiltrate.

At that very time, however, the NAACP's official publication, "The Crisis," was recommending as MUST background reading for Negroes, books by Claude Lightfoot, chairman of the Illinois Communist Party, and Doxey E. Wilkerson, member of the party's National Committee.

Communist dominance of Negro civil rights developments after the Supreme Court decision is illustrated, also, in the activities of the Highlander School, influential "sociological" workshop in the South.

Highlander, according to testimony before a Congressional committee, was founded by a Communist and by a man who refused to state his beliefs.

Since 1954, Highlander has held a series of "workshops to develop plans for an orderly transition from segregated to intergrated schools."

At the last workshop, held over the Labor Day weekend just before the trouble at Little Rock, the leaders of every important racial strife incident in the South since 1954 were present.

Among those attending the important Highlander workshop was the Rev. Martin Luther King, leader of the Montgomery, Ala., bus boycott.

King was to be at Little Rock, and, in 1958, at the White House, protesting integration delay.

By the time Central High School in Little Rock was to open for its 1957-58 school year, the Communist Party was marching step by step with the NAACP, whether the good element in the NAACP liked it or not.

Commies And Intervention...

Daily Worker Led Intervention Cry

This is the fourth of five articles prepared by the Standard-Times of New Bedford, Mass., on the Communist part in promoting racial troubles in the South.

WASHINGTON — "The honor of our country requires Federal intervention now, to end the organized defiance of decency and justice in the South." These words were not spoken by Mayor Mann of Little Rock. Nor by Maxwell Rabb, White House assistant to whom the mayor talked daily by telephone in the hectic days preceding intervention by the National Guard and Paratroopers.

They were not spoken by an official of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People.

The words were an official pronouncement of the Communist Party of the United States, issued two years before Little Rock, and printed in the party's official political guide, Political Affairs, issue of October 1955.

"The Federal Government has the power and the duty to use troops and whatever other constitutional means are available to enforce the law of the land."

Use of the word "constitutional" in the above might lead someone to think a good American had said those words.

They were uttered 18 months before Little Rock's Federal troop intervention by Benjamin J. Davis, chairman of the Negro Commission of the U. S. Communist Party.

"The Federal Government hasn't hesitated to use the force of jail and seizures in trying to destroy the Communists and other foes of Jim Crow," said Davis, who, like other Communists, has been able to predict the future in civil rights matters.

"It should not hesitate to use whatever force—troops if necessary—to put down violent defiance of the law of the land, and murderous terror against peaceful citizens seeking to exercise their constitutional rights."

From the very beginning of the Little Rock incident, the Communists pressed for "dispatch of Federal troops to keep order in the South."

The Communist Daily Worker shrilled a demand for "action," on Sept. 5, the day after Governor Faubus stationed National Guardsman around Central High School.

"The insurrection in Arkansas" must be put down, stormed the Worker the next day.

"Every prerogative" must be used by the President, as another phrase of the daily demands for use of the military.

"Threats of blood running in the streets" were cited by the Worker, without identifying the source.

"Why wait?" asked one Worker editorial.

"Patience!" scoffed another.

"Nothing is to be gained by handling Faubus with kid gloves," states another diatribe.

"Shilly-shallying" was laid to the President.

And so it came to pass. On Sept. 24, Paratroopers were airborne to Little Rock. Exactly the methods advocated by the Communist ace-agitators—speed and force—were used in a civil rights dispute.

"A tremendous victory for the American people," rejoined the next day's Daily Worker.

Use of armed troops climaxed years of incitement by violence and distortion of truth by the Communists and their sympathizers. Again a helping hand came from the Supreme Court that had "opened the way to Negro freedom," as the Communist Party observed, and from the misled NAACP.

Mrs. Daisy Bates, president of the Arkansas Conference of NAACP branches, had a key role at Little Rock.

In an adulatory interview with Mrs. Bates, the New York Post's reporter Ted Poston stated "both sides in this embattled Southern town agreed on one thing: "If there had been no Daisy Bates, there would have been no 101st Airborne Division patrolling the halls of Central High School.

"And no nine Negro children in the once all-white high school."

Mrs. Bates' husband, Lucious C. Bates, is a director of the Southern Conference Educational Fund, which former Communists have indicted as a "Communist transmission agency, for inculcating and carrying out Communist doctrine.

Bates was a member of the organization known as Negroes for Wallace, a Communist rallying-point. He was a sponsor of the Bill of Rights Congress, a Communist Party front.

Also influential at Little Rock was Mrs. Grace Lorch, white woman who "befriended" one of the Negro students refused admission to Central High.

Widely-published press dispatches described Mrs. Lorch as "a white housewife who protected a Negro girl before a jeering mob," and as "having defied an angry crowd of whites to offer sympathy."

It was not reported, however, that Mrs. Lorch, according to Senate Internal Security Sub-committee records, has a thorough Communist Party background.

She has been identified as a one-time Communist Party organizer in Boston, as having attended a Communist Party convention, as a member of the New England District of the Communist Party, as former vice president of the Teachers Union, and as a director of the Samuel Adams School for Social Studies, both Communist fronts.

At the time Mrs. Lorch was active in Little Rock, her husband, Lee Lorch, was under Federal indictment on eight counts of refusing to answer questions on his alleged Communist background put to him by the House un-American Activities Committee.

Here, too, the Supreme Court rendered an assist. The charges against Lorch later were dismissed by a Federal judge on the basis of the Supreme Court's freeing of John T. Watkins, United Auto Workers official who refused to name Communists he knew while he was one himself.

Little Rock found the U. S. Supreme Court, the NAACP and the Communist Party teammates.

It was a dazzling demonstration of what can happen, to quote former Communist Joseph Kornfelder, when "the ivory tower boys picked up the theories of the Communists, not looking at what is behind the theories."

Senators See South As Target Of Reds

This is the last of five articles, reprinted from The Standard-Times of New Bedford, Mass., and telling of the part played by the Communists in bringing about racial strife in the South.

WASHINGTON — What lies ahead for race relations in the South and, indirectly, for the nation? If the pattern of the last three years is followed in the future, the outlook is not favorabale. Some may want to ignore the record, but they cannot hide it. Racial disturbances since the Supreme Court decision of 1954, culminating in the use of armed force at Little Rock, have made two areas of opinion where there were three.

The middle-ground on Southern civil rights issues, the ground on which progress had been steady if slow, is virtually deserted. Sides have been chosen, of necessity.

Without this conciliatory middle area, there are two extremist camps.

One is headed by the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People. The Communist Party officially has planted its standard in this camp, its purpose to promote racial tension behind the NAACP program.

The other camp includes various white citizen organizations, established authorities of many Southern municipalities and states and, as time passes, more and more of the "moderates."

The no man's land between these two camps is widened in an election year, like the present, and with the 1960 presidential campaign drawing closer. Neither major political party, nor, apparently, the Federal Government, wishes to intervene.

The handsoff attitude in Washington was evident during Senate Judiciary Committee examination of incoming U. S. Attorney General William P. Rogers. The prospective head of the Federal agency that sent troops to Little Rock was not asked about his views on civil rights not even by Southern senators.

Absence of leadership from Washington has increased the importance of the role played by the NAACP. Its leaders apparently plan no change in policy.

Reviewing events through Little Rock, Dr. Channing Tobias, board chairman of the NAACP, declared.

"But this record of advance is only a beginning. Unjust practices are still commonplace in many parts of the nation. The people have a continuing responsibility to take the lead, to assure the winning of equality in all communities, large and small, North and South.

"The pattern is set; it's up to us to fill in the details of the picture. Only then will we have achieved our goal of a democratic America living up to its ideals."

These words from an influential Negro leader describe an objective which the majority of Americans would be happy to work toward.

But there it little reason to suppose that the good intentions of the NAACP will not capitulate, as they have before, to the driving, inflammatory race-tension strategy of the Communist Party.

After the 1954 court decision, the leadership of the NAACP promised moderation, a "quiet" "talking over" of issues among all segments.

Instead what transpired was a series of "big, sharp struggles" in civil disobedience and violence, exactly as forecast by Benjamin J. Davis, chairman of the Negro Commission of the Communist Party.

Today, Davis and his co-worker, James E. Jackson, Communist chief for Southern affairs, are using phraseology much like Dr. Tobias' in predicting the future.

"The people must take the lead," says Davis. "Negro liberation is now the property of the whole American people."

Jackson's view: "The response to Little Rock has signalized that ours is the time ripe with opportunity to secure major victories in the cause of Negro freedom."

These words have a ring like Dr. Tobias', but an utterly different intent.

"You are aware, of course," FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover commented for The Standard-Times, "the Communists have no sincere interest in promoting racial harmony, but are ever alert to exploit any issue to further their nefarious aims."

This observation may be obvious to many Americans.

But is it obvious to Dr. Tobias, who has been associated with 40 Communist fronts, board chairman of NAACP, or to W. E. B. DuBois, "honorary chairman" of NAACP, who has been identified with 82 Communist fronts, more than any other American citizen?

Apparently it is not.

As recently as March 1958, the NAACP leadership brought a court action in Florida seeking to halt an investigation by the Florida Legislature of Communist activity in that state.

Besides the NAACP, leadership in the integrationist camp will come from the Rev. Martin Luther King, leader of the Montgomery, Ala. bus boycott. Mr. King also seems hazy in distinguishing between the Communist way and the American way.

At its 1957 national convention, the U. S. Communist Party selected a man identified by the Communist Daily Worker as Mr. King's "secreary," Bayard Rustin, to be an official "observer." Rustin praised the "democratic" proceedings of the convention in a report later denounced by FBI Director Hoover.

Mr. King was quoted as telling a Chicago assembly last year, "it (the Montgomery boycott, in which there was much violence) is a part of something that is happening all over the world. The oppressed people are rising up. They are revolting against colonialism and imperialism and all other systems of oppression."

This explanation is exactly that of the Communist Party, the depiction of the American Negro as a kicked-around colonial, oppressed by imperialists.

Yet the same Rev. Martin Luther King was one of four Negro "leaders" who called on President Eisenhower in June 1958 to try and set the pattern for racial progress.

A former Negro Communist official, who later worked for the U. S. Department of Justice, sees the future in these words:

"In my opinion, the Negro leadership should realize that they have responsibility," a Louisiana legislative committee was told by Manning Johnson, "a responsiblity to guide and spirit their people along the right paths, help to pull themselves up by their own bootstraps, and to work together as a group for co-operation, mutual co-operation between races, to the end result that they can keep what they have, strengthen their economic and political position and move on to higher things.

"Men of King's type will not give that kind of leadership. The only thing they know is the threat and a sword.

"I know the NAACP can't do that. They have called the leaders of Southern life every conceivable type of name. They have labeled them everything they can, and there is no basis for them to negotiate with them because they have already built up a wall that cannot be gotten over, gotten under, or gone around."

Former Communist Johnson's judgment may be harsh. But the future will make him an accurate prophet unless there is wider understanding of the Communist background to "immediate" integration, to be accomplished by "force" if necessary.

In a little-publicized report of last November, the U. S. Senate Internal Security Subcommittee declared: "There is a present-day pattern of Communist activity in the mid-South area. The Communist participants . . . make up the basic framework of a Communist operation that is directed against all generations of people in the South."

To that could be added, "and in the nation."

The Middle Eastern Volcano

The wholly unexpected, but bloody revolt in Iraq, and the seething situation in Jordan and Lebanon should make us realize that there may be another explosion in the Middle East at almost any time.

Diplomats are trying hard in the United Nations to win approval this week for the Norwegian resolution to seek stabilization of the Middle East, but one wonders whether seriously unsettling upheavals won't break out shortly in one or more countries, thus making such efforts all the more difficult.

Apparently things have calmed down in Iraq, since the coup in which the King and Prime Minister were assassinated, but the fact that this stroke was not anticipated by either United States or British intelligence makes one wonder what to expect next.

We should consider, for example, whether Iraq isn't going to line up definitely with COL. NASSER'S United Arab Republic. That seems to be the strong inclination of vast numbers of Arabs today.

Or is something similar brewing in Saudi Arabia, the huge peninsula between the Red Sea and the Persian Gulf. PRINCE FAISAL, now regarded as the ruler of Saudi Arabia, rather than KING SAUD, just concluded three days of conferences with NASSER. It could mean that the oil of that country ultimately will come under the dominion of the UAR.

On the fringes of Saudi Arabia, at the head of the Persian Gulf, sits little Kuwait, richest in oil of any comparable area in the world, and often claimed in the past by Iraq, which adjoins it. Will Kuwait, heretofore aligned with Britain, be able to resist the pull of Arab nationalism?

Also on the fringe of that peninsula is the British protectorate of Aden, with a vital British naval base. Radio Cairo is concentrating on Aden.

What of Iran (once known as Persia)? This is not an Arab country, and it is a member of the Baghdad defensive pact, aimed at the Soviet Union. Yet Iran is said to be causing worry in Washington and other Western captials. "The coup in Iraq has strengthened the sub-surface demand for land reform", HANSON BALDWIN writes in the New York Times, "and there is some concern both about the Kurdish tribes, who have long been wooed by communism, and about the army."

MR. BALDWIN, no alarmist, but a "cold turkey" commentator on the world scene, also sees signs of danger in Tunisia and Morocco on the Mediterranean and Atlantic coasts of North Africa.

The position of PRES. BOURGUIBA of Tunisia "has been weakened by his agreement to allow the French to build an oil pipe line across the country, and by his endorsement of the U. S. landing in Lebanon", says this observer. In other words, the Arabs don't like his collaboration with the West. Tunisia is not yet a member of the Arab League, much less of NASSER'S UAR.

Disturbing news from Morocco also is set forth by MR. BALDWIN, as follows:

> Pan-Arab and nationalist agitation has become so strong that it has prevented the unloading of U. S. munitions ships with cargoes for the American bases in Morocco. The future of the bases is clouded by doubt.

All of which reinforces our hope that the United Nations will speedily adopt the pending Norwegian resolution, and will send SECRETARY GENERAL HAMMERSKJOLD to the Middle East before serious trouble can break out there. No time is to be lost.

Denies That the U. S. Has Favored Israel

Reading Mr. E. T. Ryland's letter in the VOP August 16, "Says U. S. Has Favored Israel Over the Arab Nations," I would like to ask the writer why he wrote this bristling anti-Israel article basing it, according to his quotes, only on information obtained from Arabian sources.

To inform him and others who are misinformed, Israel did not take this part of Palestine from the present Arabian nations. Every acre of land was purchased from the owner, who at that time were Turkish citizens, and at premium prices.

Running the Carolina Line—II

FOR MORE THAN TWO WEEKS in the spring of 1728 William Byrd of Westover, chief of the Virginia commission to settle the great boundary dispute with North Carolina, had little to do but gaze about him, brood, and write in his journal. He and his fellow commissioners from the two colonies were fretting away the days on a plantation in North Carolina near the edge of the Dismal Swamp.

Their joint surveying party was slogging slowly through the swamp itself, running the line. But the commissioners, none of them eager for slogging, had detoured around the swamp, and now they were waiting for the surveyors to emerge. Byrd—a wit, a power in Virginia, and the same "Father Byrd" who laid out the city of Richmond nine years later—took the opportunity to set down in his journal some of his impressions of North Carolina and its inhabitants.

PUBLISHED IN 1841 under the title "History of the Dividing Line betwixt Virginia and North Carolina," the journal contains the following passage:

"Surely there is no place in the world where the inhabitants live with less labour than in N. Carolina. It approaches nearer to the description of Lubberland than any other, by the great felicity of the climate, the easiness of raising provisions, and the slothfulness of the people.

"Indian corn is of so great increase, that a little pains will subsist a very large family with bread, and then they may have meat without any pains at all, by the help of the low grounds, and the great variety of mast that grows on the highland. The men, for their parts, just like the Indians, impose all the work upon the poor women. They make their wives rise out of their beds early in the morning, at the same time that they lye and snore, till the sun has run one third of its course, and disperst all the unwholesome damps. Then, after stretching and yawning for half an hour, they light their pipes, and, under the protection of a cloud of smoak, venture out into the open air; tho', if it happens to be never so little cold, they quickly return shivering into the chimney corner. When the weather is mild, they stand leaning with both their arms upon the cornfield fence, and gravely consider whether they had best go and take a small heat at the hough: but generally find reasons to put it off till another time.

"Thus they loiter away their lives . . . To speak the truth, tis a thorough aversion to labor that makes people file off to N. Carolina, where plenty and a warm sun confirm them in their disposition to laziness for their whole lives."

BYRD'S NEXT ENTRY in his journal was this: "Since we were like to be confin'd to this place, till the people returned out of the Dismal, twas agreed that our chaplain might safely take a turn to Edenton, to preach the Gospel to the infidels there, and christen their children. He was accompany'd thither by Mr. Little, one of the Carolina commissioners, who, to shew his regard for the church, offer'd to treat him on the road with a fricassee of rum. They fry'd half a dozen rashers of very fat bacon in a pint of rum, both which being disht up together, serv'd the company at once for meat and drink.

"Most of the rum they get in this country comes from New England, and is so bad and unwholesome, that it is not improperly call'd 'Kill-Devil' . . . When they entertain their friends bountifully, they fail not to set before them a capacious bowl of Bombo, so call'd for the admiral of that name. This is a compound of rum and water in equal parts, made palatable with (molasses). As good humor begins to flow, and the bowl to ebb, they take care to replinish it with shear rum, of which there is always a reserve under the table. But such generous doings happen only when that balsam of life is plenty; for they have often such melancholy times, that neither land-graves nor Cassicks can procure one drop for their wives, when they ly in, or are troubled with the colick or vapours. Very few in this country have the industry to plant orchards, which, in a dearth of rum, might supply them with much better liquor."

A Race Agency and the Facts

Inaccurate statements as to its origins of the Southern Regional Council of Atlanta appeared recently in THE TIMES-DISPATCH, and should be corrected. They appeared—inadvertently, we are sure—in one of the series of articles by EDWARD B. SIMMONS of the New Bedford, Mass., Standard-Times concerning Communist efforts to incite racial strife in the United States.

MR. SIMMONS stated in the article appearing in our paper on August 5 that the Southern Regional Council, established in Atlanta in 1944, was an "offshoot of the old Southern Conference for Human Welfare, which was dissolved in 1948 after twice being described by the Federal Government as 'Communist front.'" He also said: "'The Communist Daily Worker openly boasted that JAMES E. JACKSON, chief of the Southern branch of the U. S. Communist party, was a co-founder of the Regional Council."

Taking these two charges in order, the Southern Regional Council was not an offshoot of the Southern Conference for Human Welfare. It was established in response to an appeal from respected Southern Negro leaders, who met at Durham, N. C., in October, 1942, on the call of DR. GORDON B. HANCOCK, of the Virginia Union faculty here, and DR. P. B. YOUNG, of Norfolk, publisher of the Norfolk Journal and Guide. These Negro leaders did not ask for the elimination of segregation in the schools or anywhere else; they asked that "separate but equal" be made a reality.

Responding to their appeal, a group of white leaders met in Atlanta in the spring of 1943, and expressed a desire to cooperate. Out of this grew the Southern Regional Council. The Council was the successor to the Commission on Interracial Cooperation, founded in 1919 by leading churchmen. To repeat, it not only was no "offshoot" of the Southern Conference for Human Welfare; it was criticized in some quarters because it was more conservative than that organization and suspected of being in competition with it.

We must remember, too, that when the Southern Conference for Human Welfare was established in 1938, it was not suspected of having any Communist connections, and many well-intentioned and patriotic Southerners participated in its early meetings. A number of these later joined the Southern Regional Council when they discovered the true purposes of the Conference for Human Welfare.

As to the allegation of the Communist Daily Worker that JAMES E. JACKSON, chief of the Southern branch of the U. S. Communist party, was a "co-founder of the Southern Regional Council," there is nothing to support this.

A JAMES E. JACKSON is listed as having attended the Durham meeting of Negro leaders in October, 1942, but is not mentioned by the Norfolk Journal and Guide as having been on the committee which drew up the statement then issued. JACKSON did not participate in the meetings of white and Negro leaders in 1943 and 1944 which led to the establishment of the Southern Regional Council, and he was not at any time an officer, director, or member of that agency. The Daily Worker's statement that he was a "founder" is as unreliable and inaccurate as nearly everything else in that Communist sheet.

The late DR. HOWARD W. ODUM, noted and respected member of the University of North Carolina faculty, was the first president of the Council. He was succeeded in 1945 by PAUL D. WILLIAMS, prominent Catholic layman of Richmond and co-founder of the Catholic Committee of the South, who served until 1951. MR. WILLIAMS was succeeded in that year by MARION A. WRIGHT, South Carolina attorney, former chairman of the South Carolina Library Board and past president of the University of South Carolina Alumni Association.

It should be emphasized that SRC worked within the framework of "separate but equal" for seven years, and did not announce for integration until 1951.

While we disagree strongly and completely with its present position on this issue, we feel obligated to point out, in fairness, that it was in no sense Communist in its origins. The Southern Regional Council was established because of a sincere desire on the part of white and Negro leaders in the South to eliminate many of the disabilities and discriminations from which Negroes were suffering.

It was hoped that if these could be substantially lessened, the colored South would not look to the colored North for leadership. Insufficient progress was made, unfortunately, and the NAACP moved in and launched its drive for the complete elimination of segregation—sooner than it probably would have done if SRC's accomplishments had been larger.

That is where we stand today.

Re the religious question: I refer the writer and others to the Bible. The Jews certainly have preferred rights even to all Palestine, as none of the former residents or nations exist.

The United States did not favor Israel—in fact, less than the other small Middle Eastern governments. Especially with arms. Israel resisted the Arabian attacks not with arms but by God's help and their love for their homeland. Whatever arms or planes available to them were purchased not from the USA nor on the cuff from France.

Re the refugees: I want to clarify this matter to all uninformed. Israel did not drive them out. They ran out, and on advice from Arabian leaders. They were told to evacuate for they would soon return and enjoy as in ancient times war spoils. Israel has since permitted thousands and thousands to return and rejoin their families. Israel has offered to compensate the refugees for their properties, but Nasser and others not only do not permit them to accept compensation or resettle them in the vast empty spaces. They want the poor people to remain refugees for political reasons, for anti-Israel propaganda sake.

There are many villages consisting of Arabs. I visited some. These Arabs enjoy full rights as Israelites. Their rights are not like in our USA on the statute books for the Negroes. They enjoy equal schooling opportunities, recreation, pay and working rights, and every Israelite Arab is 10 times better off than any Arab in Iraq, Lebanon, Jordan, etc. Their standard of living is as that of the Israelites.

Israel was the saving of all the Jews that the inhuman Germans did not exterminate brutally. If there wasn't an Israel the world would have had a million more dead Jews on their conscience.

Says Lebanon Didn't Face Danger From Communism

When Eisenhower sent troops to Lebanon the chorus of news commentators, correspondents and editorial writers hailed the action as a United States stand against Soviet aggression, etc.

The revolution in Lebanon broke out when Moslem leaders found out that President Chamoun was trying to get the Lebanese Assembly to change the country's constitution (which limits a president to one term) so he could be eligible for another term of office. No matter what excuses the press and the State Department give for the revolution in Lebanon, President Eisenhower knows the real reason for the revolution, and sent Robert D. Murphy to that country to persuade Chamoun not to run for a second term and to get Chamoun, the Christian leaders and the Moslem revolutionists to agree on a non-Communist candidate.

diplomatic and military fields it is little wonder that the present White House administration would like for the American people to think that the Moslem revolutionists of Lebanon are Communists being armed by Moscow and that marines were sent in to stop Moscow's hand from seizing the government.

The Eisenhower administration did not defeat the Communists in Korea, but surrendered to Soviet wishes at Panmunjom. The Eisenhower administration didn't stop Communist aggression in Indochina, and northern Viet Nam was thrown to the Russians at Geneva. In 1955 the Eisenhower administration didn't defeat communism, but surrendered the Tachen Islands to Red China when Peiping announced she would take them. The Eisenhower administration did not come to the defense of the free world when rebels in Indonesia revolted against the "Guided Democracy" plan of Sukarno to lead that country into Moscow's camp. Neither did the Eisenhower administration come to the defense of the brave Hungarian patriots who knocked over that country's Russian stooge army with their bare hands.

After one backdown from communism after another the Eisenhower administration would like for the American people to believe that America has taken a stand against Russia in a country which is under no danger whatever from any kind of Communist aggression, revolution, or infiltration.

Says Israel Not to Blame For the Mid-East 'Mess'

Your excellent editorials, beginning with "How Did We Get Ourselves into This Mid-East Mess?" [July 20] were very timely. Much speculation has been created by the landing of American troops in Lebanon; however, one aspect of the troop landing has been overlooked.

There are some nations in the Middle Eastern area not belonging to the strife-torn Arab bloc—Turkey, Iran, Pakistan, Israel and Ethiopia. These nations have become concerned and alarmed at the steady growth of Communist, subverted Arab nationalism. The landing of troops in Lebanon, and Jordan too, must have been a source of comfort to these allies and proof that the United States and Britain will use force if necessary to prevent aggression and subversion. Too, that our devotion to peace cannot be interpreted as defeatism and weakness.

Our consistent support of Arab nationalism is well established, and there is no reason for any guilt complex we may have assumed regarding the Arabs. Our record in the Middle East is a clean and honest one. Of all people, Nasser is the least entitled to criticize, for it was the United States that saved his skin in 1956.

Our record has been to support the self-determination of all peoples, including Israel.

It is important to see the facts clearly through the heavy haze of propaganda. Israel was created by the United Nations and not the United States. Russia also voted on our side, yet there is no Arab criticism of the Soviet Union. On the other hand, Britain has gone on record many times in opposition to the establishment of Israel, yet this has not endeared her to the Arabs.

While Israel may be a factor in the complex Middle East problem she is not a major one. Nasser, aided by the greatest threat to world peace today, Communist Russia, has made it quite obvious that he is to rule and dominate the entire Middle East, Africa and Asia.

The Arab refugees represent one of the greatest of human tragedies. This problem was created by the Arabs declaring war on tiny Israel 10 years ago, and to this date they have kept it alive as a political pawn.

The 200,000 Arabs who chose to remain in Israel, enjoy the highest standard of living in the Middle East and dispel the "myth" of Israel driving the Arabs out. There have been many refugee problems in the world and they have been solved by resettlement. This one, too, could be settled if the Arabs would sit down with the Israelis and "talk it over."

In the meantime, let us keep the facts clear, and not make Israel the scapegoat for the Middle Eastern mess.

It has the makings of a Broadway drama or a best-seller novel, or at least a television scenario.

Two multimillionaires oppose each other for Governor—Averell Harriman and Nelson Rockefeller—in what Henry A. Wallace said would be "the century of the common man."

Leonard W. Hall, former Republican National Chairman, has bowed out of the race. His father was Theodore Roosevelt's coachman at Oyster Bay. For all his valiant work on behalf of President Eisenhower and the GOP, Hall has not had much help from Washington.

TO EMPHASIZE FURTHER the importance of New York's gubernatorial drama, it is possible that the winner may emerge from the political ice cap as a presidential nominee in 1960.

Should Harriman, who won by only 11,000 four years ago, sweep this electorally influential state by 500,000 or by 750,000, as FDR did in 1930, he will be a strong contender, despite his 68 years.

But should Rockefeller spring a surprise, he might sweep Vice President Richard Milhouse Nixon off the political board. That would be quite possible, if the Democrats carry California against the Knowland-Knight combination.

Although this is supposed to be a Democratic year, despite signs of Republican recovery from last winter's low, Harriman may have a difficult time in a contest against Nelson Rockefeller, who has given good but not spectacular service at Washington under Democratic and Republican regimes.

Harriman has not been an exceptionally fine Governor. He has done merely a routine job, and, according to his critics, he has not starred in the field of finance.

His antagonism toward James A. Farley's bid for the U.S. Senate nomination may hurt him, in view of "Big Jim's" popularity inside and outside New York State. It will cost Harriman many delegates at the 1960 convention, a national political fact he does not seem to appreciate. Harriman is not a smart politico.

OPPOSING FARLEY, Harriman must back a Catholic for the Senate nomination as against the Eleanor Roosevelt-Herbert Lehman favorite, Thomas K. Finletter, who is an Episcopalian and an ardent New-Fair Dealer.

But the two other Catholics in the race have no statewide following or popularity or recognition. They are Thomas E. Murray, former controversial member of the Atomic Energy Commission, and District Attorney Frank S. Hogan, a protege of Thomas E. Dewey, whom Farley dubs as a "Dewey Democrat."

Depending upon a Harriman victory, which seems likely at the moment, ultraliberal Democrats envisage a Harriman-Williams ticket in 1960, Williams being, of course, the Governor of Michigan.

Or, if Williams wins big next November, it might be Williams-Harriman. Such a slate, naturally, would be a defiance of Southern Democrats, and possibly lead to a political revolt below the Mason and Dixon Line.

Senator Soaper Says:

"Running isn't fun any more," says the holder of the world's half-mile record. Which is exactly the reason so many of us decide to wait for the next bus.

Food buried at the South Pole for 50 years is still edible. So why this rush to use up all the leftovers in the refrigerator before Saturday?

About all we can figure that the Paris designers are up to is a desperate attempt to make last year's dresses look good.

We have 35,000,000 fishemen in America. Russia prefers to channel its liars into more important pursuits.

It's getting so major league baseball is about the only occupation where a man over 40 can get a job.

Per capita, Washington has more people in Who's Who than any other city. It is not clear, however, whether this means that people who are who naturally move to Washington, or whether the fact that just being in Washington makes them more who than if they had stayed home.

A Race Agency and the Facts; The Southern Region Council

An Editorial in the Richmond Times-Dispatch

Inaccurate statements as to the origins of the Southern Regional Council of Atlanta appeared recently in The Times-Dispatch, and should be corrected. They appeared —inadvertently, we are sure—in one of the series of articles by Edward B. Simmons of the New Bedford, Mass., Standard-Times, concerning Communist efforts to incite racial strife in the United States.

Mr. Simmons stated in the article appearing in our paper on Aug. 5 that the Southern Regional Council, established in Atlanta in 1944, was an "offshoot of the old Southern Conference for Human Welfare, which was dissolved in 1948 after twice being described by the federal government as 'Communist front.'" He also said: "The Communist Daily Worker openly boasted that James E. Jackson, chief of the southern branch of the U.S. Communist party, was a co-founder of the Regional Council."

Taking these two charges in order, the Southern Regional Council was not an offshoot of the Southern Conference for Human Welfare. It was established in response to an appeal from respected southern Negro leaders, who met at Durham, N.C., in October 1942, on the call of Dr. Gordon B. Hancock, of the Virginia Union faculty here, and Dr. P. B. Young, of Norfolk, publisher of the Norfolk Journal and Guide. These Negro leaders did not ask for the elimination of segregation in the schools or anywhere else; they asked that "separate but equal" be made a reality.

Responding to their appeal, a group of white leaders met in Atlanta in the spring of 1943, and expressed a desire to cooperate. Out of this grew the Southern Regional Council. The Council was the successor to the Commission on Interracial Cooperation, founded in 1919 by leading churchmen. To repeat, it not only was no "offshoot" of the Southern Conference for Human Welfare; it was criticized in some quarters because it was more conservative than that organization and suspected of being in competition with it.

We must remember, too, that when the Southern Conference for Human Welfare was established in 1938, it was not suspected of having any Communist connections, and many well-intentioned and patriotic southerners participated in its early meetings. A number of these later joined the Southern Regional Council when they discovered the true purposes of the Conference for Human Welfare.

As to the allegation of the Communist Daily Worker that James E. Jackson, chief of the southern branch of the U.S. Communist party, was a "co-founder of the Southern Regional Council," there is nothing to support this.

A James E. Jackson is listed as having attended the Durham meeting of Negro leaders in October 1942, but is not mentioned by the Norfolk Journal and Guide as having been on the committee which drew up the statement then issued. Jackson did not participate in the meetings of white and Negro leaders in 1943 and 1944 which led to the establishment of the Southern Regional Council, and he was not at any time an officer, director, or member of that agency. The Daily Worker's statement that he was a "founder" is as unreliable and inaccurate as nearly everything else in that Communist sheet.

The late Dr. Howard W. Odum, noted and respected member of the University of North Carolina faculty, was the first president of the Council. He was succeeded in 1945 by Paul D. Williams, prominent Catholic layman of Richmond and co-founder of the Catholic Committee of the South, who served until 1951. Mr. Williams was succeeded in that year by Marion A. Wright, South Carolina attorney, former chairman of the South Carolina Library Board and past president of the University of South Carolina Alumni Association.

It should be emphasized that SRC worked within the framework of "separate but equal" for seven years, and did not announce for integration until 1951.

While we disagree strongly and completely with its present position on this issue, we feel obligated to point out, in fairness, that it was in no sense Communist in its origins. The Southern Regional Council was established because of a sincere desire on the part of white and Negro leaders in the South to eliminate many of the disabilities and discriminations from which Negroes were suffering.

It was hoped that if these could be substantially lessened, the colored South would not look to the colored North for leadership. Insufficient progress was made, unfortunately, and the NAACP moved in and launched its drive for the complete elimination of segregation — sooner than it probably would have done if SRC's accomplishments had been larger.

That is where we stand today.

State Justices' Historic Blast

One of the most significant documents of our time is published, in part, across the bottom of this page today. We refer to the report containing unprecedented criticism of the United States Supreme Court by a committee of 10 states' chief justices, most of them from the North and West. The report was subsequently approved, 36 to 8, by the Conference of Chief Justices.

In order to appreciate fully what these presiding jurists in the various states have done, it is necessary to realize that they did not have to say anything at all about the Supreme Court. They could have taken the position that it was not for them to publicize the shortcomings of that tribunal, as at present constituted.

But instead of adopting that expedient course, the committee chose to formulate an astonishing 31-page report, bristling with criticism.

The chief justices of the states say that the nation's top tribunal has raised doubt in the minds of many as to whether "we have a government of laws and not of men." It has rendered numerous 5-to-4 rulings on constitutional questions, without even as many as five justices standing behind any single opinion. The court has overturned its own constitutional rulings so often as to raise doubt as to the authenticity of its findings. It has tended too often to "adopt the role of policy maker without proper judicial restraint," and has assumed what are "primarily legislative powers."

Whereas the Supreme Court in 1868 said that "the Constitution, in all its provisions, looks to an indestructible Union of indestructible states," the Conference of Chief Justices feels that the sitting supreme bench has been steadily weakening state and local governments, and concentrating power at Washington.

The court's dismal record includes decisions having to do not only with segregation in the schools, but also with respect to the release of Communists, and criminals, opening the files of the FBI, and denying the right of a citizen to dispose of his own property in his will. No wonder the states' chief justices felt in honor bound to speak out, so that the people of the United States might know what devastating things are happening to them and their institutions.

The above-mentioned findings of respected and experienced jurists in all sections of the country, with no axs to grind and no personal motives to serve, have come at a historic moment in the nation's history. The United States Supreme Court can hardly fail to have been jolted to its toes by this resounding rebuke.

The Skids for Claude Pepper

In a world wherein good news is none too plentiful, we rejoice over the tidings that the HON. CLAUDE PEPPER of Florida is almost certain to take a shellacking next week in his effort to stage a comeback to the United States Senate.

Described as "probably the most liberal liberal who ever came out of the Southland," ex-SENATOR PEPPER is said to be fighting an uphill battle against SEN. SPESSARD L. HOLLAND. PEPPER was separated from the public trough in 1950 by GEORGE SMATHERS, still the junior Senator on his belief that nobody can predict what several hundred thousand new voters in Florida are going to do. They have been in the state only a few years, he points out, and a large percentage of them live in Miami and surrounding Dade county.

Well, despite this line of reasoning, it will be a surprise, and also a shock, if rabble-rousing, demagogic CLAUDE PEPPER somehow wangles his way back into the Senate. The type of campaign he waged eight years ago against REP. SMATHERS is not reassuring. At that time he

Henrico TB Association To Consider Merger

Your editorial of September 1, "The Search for TB Victimes," emphasizes the fact that tuberculosis is still a serious health problem. The full extent of the problem is really not known, since there are many people who have TB without knowing it.

In Henrico county, 36 new cases were found last year and 23 citizens of the county are now in sanatoriums.

We hope to intensify the fight against TB in Henrico and in Charles City and New Kent counties by merging the Tuberculosis Associations of those three counties. A membership meeting of the Henrico TB Association will be held at 12:30 p.m. Thursday, Sept. 4, at 311 South Boulevard to act on the proposed consolidation. Asked about this, Warren Olney III, Assistant U.S. Attorney General, stated: "Manning Johnson is not employed by the Department of Justice as Director of Research or in any other capacity . . . The previous year (8/11/56) the Subversive Activities Control Board had expunged from the record of a hearing concerning the Communist party, testimony given by Manning Johnson. It termed the testimony "tainted."

We are unable to follow Mrs. Osth's reasoning that there is a relationship between our pointing out erroneous statements concerning the origin of the Southern Regional Council in 1944 and our support of Gov. Almond's "massive resistance" in 1958. As far as we can

A Hurricane Warning Ignored

THEY DIDN'T GIVE FLIP NAMES to a hurricane in Columbus' day, nor did they have barometers, to warn of its approach.

The barometer wasn't invented until 1643, by Toricelli. He was the first to measure the weight of the air we breathe (the average at sea level being 14.7 pounds per square inch, equivalent to the weight of a column of mercury not quite 30 inches in height).

During the hurricane season this may be of educational value to the young whose interest in matters scientific we have been trying to arouse ever since the Russkis stole a march with you-know-what.

It may be of historical interest to recall that five-six hundred years ago in Italian port cities, Spain and Portugal men of the Mediterranean breed were far ahead in recognizing the importance of "science," especially in the field of navigation, which opened new doors to gold, gems, rare spices and slaves.

"Hurricane Ella" has been gallivanting through the scene of Columbus' prime discoveries, Hispaniola, Jamaica and Cuba, where the Great Navigator operated largely by dint of dead reckoning, weather-wisdom and a sublime faith in God, as the sponsor of those daring excursions.

In the course of these westward wanderings he encountered three hurricanes, with winds in excess of 100 miles per hour.

THE WONDER IS that Columbus' tiny cockle shells (the largest of 70 tons) were able to ride out these tremendous convulsions of sea-and-air, and return to Spain across 3,000 miles of ocean.

That the art of Latin shipbuilding should have produced such seaworthiness, so long ago, will always be a source of admiration to seafaring men.

During his fourth voyage to the West Indies Columbus was wracked by arthritis, threatened with mutiny by a crew kept at the pumps 24 hours a day, aboard small, leaky vessels honey-combed by sea worms, living on tard-tack swarming with weavils (the men waited until dark to eat it), the water casks foul, and on top of it all the ruthless ferocity of winds seldom if ever encountered off the familiar coasts of the Old World.

On April 3, 1502, he sailed on his fourth and last voyage (to what he then still believed to be islands off the South China coast).

He dropped anchor off Santo Domingo on June 29. Although he still held the title of "viceroy" over his discoveries, it was an empty title. In fact, he had strict orders not to land at Santo Domingo, ruled by Ovando.. Ovando, like most Spaniards in high positions, resented and hated "the Genoese."

Columbus decided to disobey—one reason being that he sensed a hurricane on the way. He sent word ashore warning Ovando not to dispatch his "grand fleet" back to Spain, because of a hurricane due to strike within 48 hours.

AS I NOTED AT THE BEGINNING of these ramblings, the mercury barometer was still to be invented.

Why was Columbus certain a hurricane was coming?

His "barometer" was built-in.

Painful twinges in his arthritis-ridden joints warned him that air pressure was falling alarmingly.

He saw high altitude clouds scudding by at great speed; saw the ominous groundswell's glassy surface shivering now and then as with a fever chill. Saw seals and manatees excitedly breaking and leaping clear of the water. His seaman's memory reminded him that he had seen some or all of these symptoms in 1494 and 1495 a day or two before hurricanes struck. And so he warned Ovando. But this proud Spaniard jeered at the despised Italian's claim to "prophecy." Even as the Trojans ridiculed Cassandra.

The big fleet put out to sea. The ships entered Mona Passage, and ran smack into the full force of the hurricane out of the northeast.

Some of them swamped and sank, others were pounded to splinters on the lee shore. The flagship, under de Porres, sank with more than a million dollars in gold for the Spanish sovereigns. Four managed to return to Santo Domingo before they sank.

Ironically, the only one that escaped destruction and reached Spain was the Aguia, which carried Columbus' personal share of gold.

THERE IS LITTLE TO CHEER in the new ruling of the Eighth Circuit Court of Appeals which orders renewal of the Little Rock integration program.

A poll of 34 newspaper editors in all parts of Florida taken in early August produced the unanimous verdict that "RED PEPPER"—as he has often been known—is going to get licked in the primary on Sept. 9. Those who voted that way included two who favor his candidacy and six others who thought he was gaining.

Apparently the only exception to this—and it appears that he didn't participate in the poll, conducted by the Miami Herald—is EDITOR BILL BAGGS of the Miami News, who says that "no one can tell you today with any measure of confidence if SPESSARD HOLLAND or CLAUDE PEPPER is going to win the Democratic primary." He bases this largely on his belief that nobody can predict what several hundred thousand new voters in Florida are going to do. They have been in the state only a few years, he points out, and a large percentage of them live in Miami and surrounding Dade county.

Well, despite this line of reasoning, it will be a surprise, and also a shock, if rabble-rousing, demagogic CLAUDE PEPPER somehow wangles his way back into the Senate. The type of campaign he waged eight years ago against REP. SMATHERS is not reassuring. At that time he promised $100-a-month pensions to the old folks who swarm over Florida; held out to localities the hope of some 2.5 billions in federal loans and grants, so that every city and town could hope to get a water works, a sewer system, a school or a dock; endorsed socialized medicine and bigger farm subsidies; urged repeal of the TAFT-HARTLEY law as "unfair" to organized labor; posed as the only true advocate of the "little man" as opposed to "the DUPONTS," and, in general, appealed to the "gimme" instincts of nearly every segment of society.

For these and other reasons, CLAUDE PEPPER is one individual whose services in Washington we are more than ordinarily happy to forego.

Southern Regional Council And Manning Johnson

Regarding your editorial of August 21, A Race Agency and the Facts, I rather expect Edward B. Simmons accumulated his information on the Southern Regional Council from the sworn testimony of Manning Johnson which was taken under oath by the Louisiana State Legislature last year, and also from the American Legion's "Firing Line."

The information from these two sources is thoroughly documented even though Senator Paul Douglas tried to disprove it a year ago on the Senate floor by quoting from an article published by the Atlanta Constitution. Naturally the Atlanta Constitution would want to whitewash the Southern Regional Council because of the part played in this organization by Ralph McGill of the Atlanta Constitution.

While the U. S. Department of Justice and the Subversive Activities Control Board may have repudiated testimony of Manning Johnson many Americans still believe Johnson was telling the truth as he spoke under oath and so far as I know, he has not been punished for having lied.

I think that the main point is, though, that we in the South should not argue when respected Northern newspapers print articles trying to awaken Northerners as to some subversive influences behind the racial issue. If we think there are errors in such articles, then let us take it up directly with the newspaper in question rather than writing editorials which allow readers to believe we are not behind our Governor and our General Assembly. After all, our State stands for Constitution Government and States Rights. We are run by laws and not by men or by the NAACP, Southern Regional Council, or any other such organization.

Little Rock Problem Still Acute

An Editorial in the New Haven (Conn.) Register

THERE IS LITTLE TO CHEER in the new ruling of the Eighth Circuit Court of Appeals which orders renewal of the Little Rock integration program.

The ruling simply imposes new judicial burdens upon a situation in which legalistic theory can contribute very little toward a real solution of deeply-felt, emotion-charged human confusions.

We can see little constructive in the majority rejection of the conclusions by which Federal District Judge Harry J. Lemley—a resident of Arkansas—had deferred school integration in Little Rock until 1961.

The Court of Appeals admitted that last year's ructions at Little Rock High School "produced a situation which adversely affected normal educational processes." But it concluded that "such incidents are insufficient to constitute a legal basis for suspension of the plan to integrate the public schools in Little Rock.

THIS VIEW SEEMS TO SACRIFICE the individual educational interests of the thousand-odd students of Little Rock High School, and of many thousands of other Southern schoolchildren—white and black, to the abstract legal theories and the political pressures which have been built up nationally on the segregation issue.

Support for the Supreme Court as the ultimate interpreter of United States law cannot change the fact that this is an issue in which attitudes and emotions have an importance at least equal to that of judicial theory—particularly since what is here being labeled as "law" is a matter of constitutional interpretation and not of direct legislation by Congress.

AND REJECTION of Orval Faubus and his tactics cannot change the fact that he has now been emphatically backed at the polls by most of the people of Arkansas in an election campaign in which all of the pros and cons of desegregation were pretty exhaustively argued.

Courts which interpret the law without regard for the public's own understanding and willingness to accept the law can render grave injustice to both sides in this serious situation.

States' Supreme Court Chief Justices Strongly Criticize U. S. Supreme Court

The following is a portion of the report critical of the United States Supreme Court that was adopted by a vote of 36-8 by state supreme court chief justices meeting in Pasadena, Calif., recently.

THE OUTSTANDING development in federal-state relations since the adoption of the national Constitution has been the expansion of the power of the national government and the consequent contraction of the powers of the state governments. To a large extent this is wholly unavoidable and indeed is a necessity, primarily because of improved transportation and communication of all kinds and because of mass production. On the other hand, our Constitution does envision federalism. The very name of our nation indicates that it is to be composed of states. The Supreme Court of a bygone day said in Texas vs. White (1868): "The Constitution, in all its provisions, looks to an indestructible Union of indestructible states."

Second only to the increasing dominance of the national government has been the development of the immense power of the Supreme Court in both state and national affairs. It is not merely the final arbiter of the law; it is the maker of policy in many major social and economic fields. It is not subject to the restraints to which a legislative body is subject. There are points at which it is difficult to delineate precisely the line which should circumscribe the judicial function and separate it from that of policy-making. Thus, usually within narrow limits, a court may be called upon in the ordinary course of its duties to make what is actually a policy decision by choosing between two rules, either of which might be deemed applicable to the situation presented in a pending case.

BUT IF AND WHEN a court in construing and applying a constitutional provision or a statute becomes a policy maker, it may leave construction behind and exercise functions which are essentially legislative in character, whether they serve in practical effect as a constitutional amendment or as an amendment of a statute. It is here that we feel the greatest concern, and it is here that we think the greatest restraint is called for. There is nothing new in urging judicial self-restraint, though there may be, and we think there is, new need to urge it.

It would be useless to attempt to review all of the decisions of the Supreme Court which have had a profound effect upon the course of our history. It has been said that the Dred Scott decision made the Civil War inevitable. Whether this is really true or not, we need not attempt to determine. Even if it is discounted as a serious overstatement, it remains a dramatic reminder of the great influence which Supreme Court decisions have had and can have.

WE BELIEVE that strong state and local governments are essential to the effective functioning of the American system of federal government; that they should not be sacrificed needlessly to leveling, and sometimes deadening, uniformity; and that in the interest of active citizen participation in self-government—the foundation of our democracy—they should be sustained and strengthened.

We are now concerned specifically with the effect of judicial decisions upon the relations between the federal government and the state governments. Here we think that the over-all tendency of decisions of the Supreme Court over the last 25 years or more has been to press the extension of federal power and to press it rapidly. There have been, of course, and still are, very considerable differences within the court on these matters, and there has been quite recently a growing recognition of the fact that our government is still a federal government and that the historic line which experience seems to justify between matters primarily of national concern should not be hastily or lightly obliterated. A number of justices have repeatedly demonstrated their awareness of problems of federalism and their recognition that federalism is still a living part of our system of government.

THE EXTENT to which the Supreme Court assumes the function of policy-maker is also of concern to us in the conduct of our judicial business. We realize that in the course of American history the Supreme Court has frequently—one might, indeed, say customarily—exercised policy-making powers going far beyond those involved, say, in making a selection between competing rules of law.

We believe that in the fields with which we are concerned, and as to which we feel entitled to speak, the Supreme Court too often has tended to adopt the role of policy-maker without proper judicial restraint. We feel this is particularly the case in both of the great fields we have discussed—namely, the extent and extension of the federal power, and the supervision of state action by the Supreme Court by virtue of the Fourteenth Amendment. In the light of the immense power of the Supreme Court and its practical non-review-ability in most instances, no more important obligation rests upon it, in our view, than that of careful moderation in the exercise of its policy-making role.

WE ARE NOT ALONE in our view that the court, in many cases arising under the Fourteenth Amendment, has assumed what seem to us primarily legislative powers. We do not believe that either the framers of the original Constitution or the possibly somewhat less gifted draftsmen of the Fourteenth Amendment ever contemplated that the Supreme Court would, or should, have the almost unlimited policy-making powers which it now exercises. It is strange, indeed, to reflect that under a Constitution which provides for a system of checks and balances and of distribution of power between national and state governments, one branch of one government—the Supreme Court—should attain the immense, and in many respects, dominant, power which it now wields.

We believe that the great principle of distribution of powers among the various branches of government and between levels of government has vitality today and is the crucial base of our democracy. We further believe that in construing and applying the Constitution and laws made in pursuance thereof, this principle of the division of power based upon whether a matter is primarily of national or of local concern should not be lost sight of or ignored, especially in fields which bear upon the meaning of a constitutional or statutory provision, or the validity of state action presented for review. For, with due allowance for the changed conditions under which it may or must operate, the principle is as worthy of our consideration today as it was of the consideration of the great men who met in 1787 to establish our nation as a nation.

IT HAS LONG BEEN an American boast that we have a government of laws and not of men. We believe that any study of recent decisions of the Supreme Court will raise at least considerable doubt as to the validity of that boast.

We find first that in constitutional cases unanimous decisions are comparative rarities and that multiple opinions, concurring or dissenting, are common occurrences. We find next that divisions in result on a five to four basis are quite frequent. We find further that on some occasions a majority of the court cannot be mustered in support of any one opinion and that the result of a given case may come from the divergent views of individual justices who happen to unite on one outcome or the other of the case before the court.

We further find that the court does not accord finality to its own determinations of constitutional questions, or for that matter of others. We concede that a slavish adherence to stare decisis (the policy of following principles laid down in previous judicial decisions) could at times have unfortunate consequences; but it seems strange that under a constitutional doctrine which requires all others to recognize the Supreme Court's rulings on constitutional questions as binding adjudications of the meaning and application of the Constitution, the court itself has so frequently overturned its own decisions thereon, after the lapse of periods varying from one year to 75, or even 95 years. The Constitution expressly sets up its own procedures for amendment, slow or cumbersome though they may be.

THESE FREQUENT differences and occasional overrulings of prior decisions in constitutional cases cause us grave concern as to whether individual views of the members of the court as from time to time constituted, or of a majority thereof, as to what is wise or desirable do not unconsciously override a more dispassionate consideration of what is or is not constitutionally warranted.

We believe that the latter is the correct approach, and we have no doubt that every member of the Supreme Court intends to adhere to that approach, and believes that he does so. It is our earnest hope, which we respectfully express, that the great court exercise to the full its power of judicial self-restraint by adhering firmly to its tremendous, strictly judicial powers and by eschewing, as far as possible, the exercise of essentially legislative powers when it is called upon to decide questions involving the validity of state action, whether it deems such action wise or unwise. The value of our system of federalism, and of local self-government in local matters which it embodies, should be kept firmly in mind, as we believe it was done by those who framed our Constitution.

At times the Supreme Court manifests, or seems to manifest, an impatience with the slow workings of our federal system. That impatience may extend to an unwillingness to wait for Congress to make clear its intention to exercise the powers conferred upon it under the Constitution, or the extent to which it undertakes to exercise them, and it may extend to the slow processes of amending the Constitution which that instrument provides.

THE WORDS of Elihu Root on the opposite side of the problem asserted at a time when demands were current for recall of judges and judicial decisions bear repeating: "If the people of our country yield to impatience which would destroy the system that alone makes effective these great impersonal rules and preserves our constitutional government, rather than endure the temporary inconvenience of pursuing regulated methods of changing the law, we shall not be reforming. We shall not be making progress, but shall be exhibiting lack of that self-control which enables great bodies of men to abide the slow process of orderly government rather than to break down the barriers of order when they are struck by the impulse of the moment."

We believe that what Mr. Root said is sound doctrine to be followed towards the Constitution, the Supreme Court, and its interpretation of the Constitution. Surely, it is no less incumbent upon the Supreme Court, on its part, to be equally restrained and to be as sure as is humanly possible, that it is adhering to the fundamentals of the Constitution with regard to the distribution of powers and the separation of powers, and with regard to the limitations of judicial power which are implicit in such separation and distribution, and that it is not merely giving effect to what it may deem desirable.

Richmond Times-Dispatch

Southern Regional Counci Is Not a Communist Front

Inaccurate statements as to the origins of the Southern Regional Council of Atlanta appeared recently in the Times-Dispatch and should be corrected.

They appeared — inadvertently we are sure—in one of the series of articles by Edward B. Simmons of the New Bedford, Mass., Standard-Times concerning Communist efforts to incite racial strife in the United States.

Mr. Simmons stated in the article appearing in our paper on Aug. 5 that the Southern Regional Council, established in Atlanta in 1944, was an "offshoot of the old Southern Conference for Human Welfare, which was dissolved in 1948 after twice being described by the federal government as 'Communist front.'" He also said: "The Communist Daily Worker openly boasted that James E. Jackson, chief of the Southern branch of the U.S. Communist Party, was a cofounder of the Regional Council."

Taking these two charges in order, the Southern Regional Council was not an offshoot of the Southern Conference for Human Welfare. It was established in response to an appeal from respected Southern Negro leaders who met at Durham, N.C., in October, 1942, on the call of Dr. Gordon B. Hancock, of the Virginia Union faculty here, and Dr. P. B. Young, of Norfolk, publisher of the Norfolk Journal and Guide. These Negro leaders did not ask for the elimination of segregation in the schools or anywhere else; they asked that "separate but equal" be made a reality.

Responding to their appeal, a group of white leaders met in Atlanta in the spring of 1943 and expressed a desire to cooperate. Out of this grew the Southern Regional Council. The Council was the successor to the Commission on Interracial Cooperation founded in 1919 by leading churchmen. To repeat, it not only was no "offshoot" of the Southern Conference for Human Welfare; it was criticized in some quarters because it was more conservative than that organization and suspected of being in competition with it.

We must remember, too, that when the Southern Conference for Human Welfare was established in 1938 it was not suspected of having any Communist connections and many well-intentioned and patriotic Southerners participated in its early meetings. A number of these later joined the Southern Regional Council when they discovered the true purposes of the Conference for Human Welfare.

As to the allegation of the Communist Daily Worker that James E. Jackson, chief of the Southern branch of the U.S. Communist Party, was a "cofounder of the Southern Regional Council," there is nothing to support this. . . .

It should be emphasized that SRC worked within the framework of "separate but equal" for seven years and did not announce for integration until 1951.

While we disagree strongly and completely with its present position on this issue, we feel obligated to point out, in fairness, that it was in no sense Communist in its origins. The Southern Regional Council was established because of a sincere desire on the part of white and Negro leaders in the South to eliminate many of the disabilities and discriminations from which Negroes were suffering.

It was hoped that if these could be substantially lessened, the colored South would not look to the colored North for leadership. Insufficient progress was made, unfortunately, and the NAACP moved in and launched its drive for the complete elimination of segregation—sooner than it probably would have done if SRC's accomplishments had been larger.

That is where we stand today.

THE ATLANTA CONSTITUTION Sept. 5, 1958

—Letter To The Editor—

Mr. Virginius Dabney, Editor
The Richmond Times Dispatch
Richmond, Virginia

Dear Mr. Dabney:

For convenience, there is attached an editorial from a recent issue of the Times Dispatch, said to be by you, which was reprinted in the Sumter Daily Item September 24th.

The stated purpose of this editorial is to correct two alledged errors with respect to the origin and founders of the Southern Regional Council, which appeared in a recent series of articles reprinted in the Times Dispatch, namely (1) the Southern Regional Council is an off-shoot of the now defunct Southern Conference for Human Welfare and, (2) one of the founders was a James E. Jackson cited as a communist.

I fear that by the omission of some pertinent facts in your commendable effort to be fair to the Southern Regional Council that you have inadvertently attributed to that organization respectability to a degree to which it is not entitled.

The facts, as I understand them to be, are as follows:

The effectiveness of the Southern Conference for Human Welfare was practicaly at an end — due to exposures being made by the House Un-American Activities Committee — when the meeting to which you refer was held in Durham, N. C. during October 1942. The Southern Regional Council was born at that meeting because of what its founders conceived to be the necessity for an organization to continue striving to attain the purposes and goals of the then discredited Southern Conference for Human Welfare but which would avoid its publicly exposed excesses. This problem was solved by the new organization by consolidating with the Commission on Interracial Relations, not then exposed or cited as a Communist front, [illegible] adopting its purposes [illegible]

Anyone who studies the pattern of subversive organizations in this nation over the past three decades will find that our nation is afflicted with more than its fair share of easily duped "do-gooders" whose favorite habitat is radical organizations with noble sounding names and purposes until exposure begins when they begin to flee to the protection of some newly formed organization usually in the same field. This is exactly the pattern followed by the workers in the Southern Conference for Human Welfare when they fled to the newly formed Southern Regional Council. Some are generous enough to credit these easily duped "do-gooders" with a degree of patriotism and good intentions. Frankly, I possess no such generosity.

Today, about the only difference between the now defunct Southern Conference for Human Welfare and the present Southern Regional Conference is that the former was financed by the Robert Marshall Foundation, a principal source of Communist front funds in the nation, while the present Southern Regional Council is financed by the almost equally pinkish Fund for the Republic.

This brief summary, I believe, represents the understanding generally of the people in the South with respect to the origin and connections of the Southern Regional Council. If incorrect, it should be corrected from some authentic and reliable source. We, of course, do not wish to be unfair to the Southern Regional Council or to any other organization. However, we should be very careful, in the present state of our affairs, not to add in any degree respectability to any organization that is a canker in the bowels not only of the South but of the nation as well.

Sincerely yours,
S. L. GENTRY

Dear Mr. Cleghorn:

Our attention has been called to your issue of November 20 featuring an article headed "White Women, Negro Women Hold Meeting at St. Jude's." There are many misstatements in the article which reflect damagingly on the nature and purpose of the meeting and on the character of the thoroughly reputable participants.

I am writing specifically, however, to correct the inaccurate statements made about literature published by the Southern Regional Council. New South is the Council's monthly publication; it was begun in 1946 and has enjoyed a reputation for accuracy and responsibility from the beginning. Not only was Paul Crouch never the editor of SRC's New South, but he never had any connection with it or with the Southern Regional Council. I can only conclude that your reference is to some other publication of the same or a similar name issued by some other group in a different period.

Another statement in the same paragraph might lead your readers to conclude that some of the literature distributed promoted the Southern Conference for Human Welfare. This, of course, was not the case.

Since these inaccuracies cast an unfair reflection on a reputable group of Montgomerians, I trust you will make suitable correction in your columns.

Sincerely yours,

Harold C. Fleming

Mr. Bill Claghorn, Editor
Montgomery Home News
Montgomery, Alabama

Dear Mr. Claghorn:

The November 20th issue of your newspaper carried an account of a recent meeting of the Fellowship of the Concerned that was full of inaccuracies. Since neither you nor your anonymous informer bothered to contact any of the people named in this article, it is no wonder that your story is distorted. Since it contains so many insinuations, I ask you to print this correction in full, and giving the paper containing it the same wide circulation given to your November 20th issue.

Not anytime during that day was "integration" mentioned. It was a day of seeking wisdom and strength "for the living of these days." The entire meeting was on that high spiritual level, and in that spirit I address you.

I wonder if you realized how much you and the two men who sat outside really trampled on the basic rights guaranteed by the Constitution of the United States to all of us, including these church women of Montgomery:

1. Freedom of Worship. These women, Protestants, Jews, and Catholics, met in a building dedicated to the healing of the souls, minds and bodies of men. They met to find God's will and God's way for them. The theme for the day was "Woman's Role In World Affairs." They studied Ruth and Naomi, Deborah, Esther, Hannah of the Apocrypha, Mary, the mother of Jesus, Lydia, weaver of fine purple - and women of today. They sang, "Where Cross the Crowded Ways of Life." I quote one of their affirmations, "I shall take my soul and stand by Him, and will walk and talk with Him forever." (Why didn't your reporter include this in her report?)

Since Thanksgiving Day just passed, perhaps you remember how that our country was founded on the basis of "Freedom to worship." This your paper and the men outside in the car would destroy by means of intimidation and reprisal.

2. Freedom of Assembly is guaranteed to citizens of our country. This, too, you would destroy.

3. Freedom of Speech is guaranteed, and this freedom we grant to visitors from other countries to speak of Nandi if they wish.

If we are ever to solve the problems between races and nations the lines of communication must be kept open. This fact is becoming more and more realized. I quote from action taken by the Southern Baptist Convention held in Houston, Texas, May 22, "Southern Baptists call for restoration of communication and fellowship of every race and nationality."

Paul Crouch has never had any connection whatsoever with the Southern Regional Council and most certainly he has not been editor of the New South, published by the Southern Regional Council.

The Fellowship of the Concerned is not a new venture. Even before World War II South-wide and State Church women leaders of the three faiths and both races have come together almost annually to study and pray together. These women are selected by their own denominational boards. Often times this is followed by state meetings. Publicity is not usually given because it is not an action group and no pronouncements are made and newspapers are not interested in a story of a meeting of this kind.

Your article speaks of "two rather mysterious women." I can assure you the only mysterious woman present was the uninvited guest who was rather "mysterious" in trying to explain her appearance.

Miss Violaine Junod is a well known professor and lecturer visiting in this country. She will lecture sometime soon at Harvard and be the house guest of Dean Griswold of Harvard Law School. She has no connection with the Southern Regional Council, but as a courtesy to her, because she's traveling over the country, the Council allowed her to use its address as an accommodation.

I did not know that you wanted ~~by bibliography~~ biography or I would have sent it to you.

I understand you are a Methodist and so am I. I am a child of the Methodist parsonage. The Methodist Church has given me almost every honor it could bestow on a woman. I have been a delegate to general conference three times - one before Unification, the Uniting Conference, and Atlantic City. I have served on conference, Jurisdiction and General Boards.

I was one of the first three women elected as trustees of Wesleyan College, the oldest woman's college in the world.

In January of this year, the Woman's Division of Christian Service - our National Woman's Society - gave me a citation, the first ever given by this organization.

In October, at its Sixth Assembly, the United Church Women of the United States also presented me with a citation and elected me to the National Board.

In the last few days I have been elected on the Planning Board of the Japan International Christian University Foundation, Inc., New York.

In my home city, the Atlanta Constitution and Junior Chamber of Commerce presented me with a chest of silver for work in social welfare.

Nationally, I have served on the Commission of Children and Youth of the Children's Bureau.

I also served with fourteen others, selected from over the nation, on President Truman's Committee on Civil Rights.

In all justice and fairness to yourself, your paper and the woman you named in your article please publish this in toto.

Sincerely,

Mrs. M. E. Tilly

Dear Mrs. Tilley:

Thank you for your letter. I sent you today one original copy of the Nov. 20th Montgomery Home News. Mrs. McLeod has also sent you two copies of that issue and two of the issue of Nov. 27th. If you do not receive them, please let me know and I will try to locate some more. In spite of the wide distribution, with free copies being sent to almost everyone, they are hard for us to obtain.

I have talked with several people about your proposed letter to the Home News. They all seem to feel that the reply of the Southern Regional Council is enough. You can't answer these people, because they can always have the last word in their own paper, and their thinking is so distorted. We are going to try to make certain that the Southern Regional Council letter is published. It should be in the issue out today, which I have not yet seen.

You asked me to keep you informed of incidents that occur. I have tried to keep a written account and think you might perhaps like a little background and a few highlights, though they are not new.

After McCall's published "The South Nobody Tells You", a group was formed in Montgomery called the Baptist Laymen. Mr. William Mahoney wrote about them in his column in the Alabama Journal, praising their objective, which is to ferret out these hidden groups working for integration and drive them from the community. Their center of activity is the Highland Baptist Church, whose pastor, Henry Lyons, is a rabid segregation leader. The spy at our meeting, a Mrs. Ramsay, is a member of his church. The Baptist Laymen have since changed their name to Christian Laymen. They were recently addressed by Judge Walter B. Jones, the judge who fined the NAACP $100,000. How they tie into the Citizen's Council, and why there are these two groups, I do not know. We do know that the Citizen's Council was interested in our meeting. About a week afterward, George Prentice, a reporter for the Montgomery Advertiser, called both me and Mrs. Weisenburgh. He told each of us that the Citizen's Council had designated him to find out about the meeting, and particularly about Miss Junod. I told him where she could be reached. He called and asked for an interview which she refused on the ground that she intended to publish her research and could not release her findings prior to publication. Mr. Prentice talked again with Mrs. Weisenburgh, and she offered him the notes she had taken of the meeting. He said that he did not think it newsworthy. Mrs. Weisenburgh thinks that the Citizen's Council tried to peddle this story first to the local dailies, but that they were afraid of it. We do not feel that Mr. Cleghorn of the Home News is a person of influence. Until this episode, most of us had not heard of him or of his paper. We think he is a tool of the Citizen's Council, the whole episode is their plot and backed by their money. Thousands of copies of the paper are distributed free each week, and that is expensive for someone!

Another indication of Citizen's Council involvement is that Mrs. L. R. Grimes, wife of one of the three members of the County Board of Revenue, came to Mrs. Weisenburgh as a personal friend and begged her to clear her name of this scandal. She advised her to hire John Kohn as her lawyer. He has a political tie with city and county government, and also with our next governor, Patterson. Mrs. Grimes slipped and said "we" in telling of information that some group had gathered about us, but she refused to identify the "we" when pressed.

I am sure you know that all of our city commissioners are members of the Citizen's Council. We have no police protection. You probably remember that our bombers were acquitted. I have been told that one of them, Jimmy D. York, holds a city job. A day or two after our meeting, he and William C. Horton went to the chairman of the board of stewards of St. Luke's Methodist Church and threatened him for having had an integrated meeting. They had confused "St. Luke" with "St. Jude". Mrs. McLeod is familiar with the details of this episode, as she is in close touch with all of the Methodist officials in the area. She also can tell you about Miss Mary Cameron, worker at Nellie Burge Community Center, and the pressure put on the minister of that church to fire her. Mrs. McLeod talked with the district superintendent, Mr. Carlyle Miller, and eased that situation.

I believe that the most persecuted people in the community have been Mr. and Mrs. Victor Kerns. He is a public school teacher. Just before school opened in September, a man appeared at his door and began to question him on his views on integration. Mrs. Kerns heard a noise in the yard and found a man with a pistol hiding in the bushes. When he saw her, the two men jumped over the fence and drove off. Mrs. Kerns is sure that the one in the bushes was William C. Horton. Since our meeting there has been a concerted effort to have the school board fire Mr. Kerns. On Saturday night, Nov. 22nd, the Kerns had several friends to dinner. As they were leaving, Mr. Kerns noticed four men in a car parked across the street. He went up to them and saw that they were prepared to take flash pictures. He went in to call the police, and the men drove off. When the police came, as Mr. Kerns was describing the car, they drove by again. The police chased and caught them. They then returned to the Kerns home and admitted to Mr. Kerns that the men were all set to take pictures, but they said that they could do nothing because the men had said they were in the neighborhood to visit friends. They also admitted that one of them was William C. Horton and that he had a pistol, but they said he also had a pistol permit. Mr. Andrews knows him and says he drinks heavily and is dangerous.

I am enclosing a thermofax copy of the newspaper account of a resolution passed by the local ministerial association. The Rev. Stanford Persons, Jr., assistant at the Church of the Ascension, was responsible for getting this through, a major feat! The resolution made no reference to the article in the Home News or to the meeting it described, so it is unfortunate that the Advertiser did. The president of the ministerial association, Rev. Merle Patterson, told Mrs. Durr that the statement was made solely because of the concern of the ministers for us as individuals, but not in any way to endorse the organization holding the meeting. I have just been told that the latest Home News is devoted to a denunciation of the ministerial association because of the resolution.

I have gone over very carefully the list of people who attended the meeting and have checked each name with Olive Andrews and several others. Olive says that you have a copy of the list. There is no one on it whose name should be deleted. You might want to add Mrs. Kalman Shwarts, Jr., 3111 Wilmington Road, and Mrs. Ella K. Shwarts, 1507 E. Fairview Avenue. They are connected with Klein and Son, Jewelers, which Mrs. Grimes told Mrs. Weisenburgh would be boycotted. Some of us are suspicious of some of the workers at the post office, particularly the Carolyn Station where Mrs. Andrews mailed her notices. We have absolutely no proof of anything, only a hunch. Still, I am careful where I mail my letters to you, and I think that, since many of us are served by that station, it might be well for you to mail your letter in a plain envelope.

I think your proposed letter is very fine. It contains real positive help. If you could mention one other problem facing us, and suggest positive measures we could take, I think it would be perfect. I am thinking of the silent disapproval of our close associates and friends. We face the danger of becoming pariahs in our own community. Nothing is said to us. There is just a barrier there, and communication has broken down.

I went to see Olive today. Your letter, so full of love and understanding, has cheered her immensely. I have never seen anyone more crushed. She will need our continuing encouragement and prayers during this difficult time.

I hope that my letter doesn't sound completely gloomy. I have tried merely to be factual. Though these weeks have been hard, they have been full of opportunity for Christian growth. We can't be backsliders when such problems confront us. As my mother often says, "Trials are proofs of God's care." We have to pray and live close to God, because we have to face the world with a serenity and a real faith that shows.

Sincerely,

Marjorie Smith

Southern Regional Council Busy With "The Problem"

Wherever there is talk of integration or mixing of the races, you can find traces of an outside organization. Such a group is the Southern Regional Council, Atlanta, Ga., self-styled as "A Council to attain through research and action, the ideals and practices of equal opportunity for all peoples of the South."

An unusual and "much mixed" collection of names is listed on its letterhead, that include persons that have been active "do-gooders" for at least two generations, and some that have been investigated a number of times by U. S. Congressional Committees and state legislative committees.

The Home News has received two letters from persons that state they are asociated with this "outfit". One is from a Harold Fleming, Executive Director, who claims there were many misstatements in the article on the meeting of the "Fellowship of the Concerned" at St. Jude's. He did not list them, so we are still in the dark as to what they were.

He did try to disassociate his organization with the Southern Conference for Human Welfare, although many of the people that were associated with that outfit are still with him and according to testimony given in committee hearings to the Joint Legislative Committee, Louisiana, the Southern Regional Council is a transmission belt, or front for fellow travellers. This testimony was given by Manning Johnson, Negro, self-styled former Communist, who made his remarks March 8, 1957, in Louisiana Hearings.

(This newspaper is now checking all available facts on the Southern Regional Council and the members listed on the letterhead. The State of Georgia has been requested to supply pertinent data.)

One name listed on the letterhead received from the Southern Regional Council lists a John Hope II, chief consultant. According to a report on the Highlander Folk School, termed a Communist Training School, at Monteagle, Tenn., a group of people assembled at the school, over Labor Day Weekend, to "discuss the issues." Among the group were leaders of the Montgomery bus boycott. John Hope II, Industrial Relations Consultant, Fisk University, Nashville, is listed as one of the Highlander Executives. This report may be obtained from the Georgia Commission on Education, 220 Agriculture Building.

We are also in receipt of a letter from a Mrs. M. E. Tilly, which is entirely too long to take up this week. We will present this note from the nation's own "Aunt Tilly" whose record goes back to Harry Truman's infamous Civil Rights Committee of 1946 which was a dilly which included such people as Dr. Channing Tobias (the Negro front man), and others, which will be discussed in length as soon as we can get the Congressional Records. The Committee on Un-American Activities, House of Representatives, can furnish additional information on these.

As Mrs. Tilly's letter was received just at deadline, we will have to hold it for further publication in our next issue.

Mrs. M. E. Tilly of the Southern Regional Council has written the Home News a "severe letter" of admonishment which was received too late to publish this week. We will be glad to consider it next week.

Public Praises Daily Press

The public of Montgomery and surrounding area owe a real debt of appreciation to our daily newspapers, television, radio stations and wire services for the "complete and impartial job of reporting demonstrated during this week's now famous Civil Rights Commission Hearings, here.

Practically everyone this writer has talked to commented on the most fair and interesting record of the hearing reported daily by the news media.

Especially singled out for the painstaking efforts made to cover each and every detail of the hearings were our two daily newspapers, The Montgomery Advertiser and the Alabama Journal.

Definitely and seriously, the staffs of these two newspapers carried out missions of reporting the facts in finest traditions of the journalism profession. We salute you.

Goodwyn High Sets Concert For Sunday

The Goodwyn Junior High School Glee Club, under the direction of Miss Jacqueline Jones, will present a "Christmas Journey" in song, Sunday, Dec. 14, in the school auditorium.

The program will start promptly at 4:00 p. m. All parents and friends of the school are cordially invited to attend. This is the first concert at the school.

Safety Council '58 Conference Set Saturday

Final plans have been completed for the annual conference of the Montgomery Safety Council at the Whitely Hotel, Saturday.

Alex Garrett, executive secretary of the council, said an interesting and most informative program has been lined up. Luncheon will be served the members attending. Annual membership dues are only $1.00.

Several pieces of important business face the members at the meeting. One is the report on the adoption of the new uniform traffic code of the city of Montgomery. This code was adopted by the city Dec. 1.

Other business includes reports on the president's committee on traffic safety; better records system, and the project to place driver training units in the city high schools.

make up this week. We will present this note from the nation's own "Aunt Tilly" whose record goes back to Harry Truman's infamous Civil Rights Committee of 1946 which was a dilly which included such people as Dr. Channing Tobias (the Negro front man), and others, which will be discussed in length as soon as we can get the Congressional Records. The Committee on Un-American Activities, House of Representatives, can furnish additional information on these.

As Mrs. Tilly's letter was received just at deadline, we will have to hold it for further publication in our next issue.

Mrs. M. E. Tilly of the Southern Regional Council has written the Home News a "severe letter" of admonishment which was received too late to publish this week. We will be glad to consider it next week.

Christmas Shopping Rush Now At Full Speed

"Hey Ma, how many more days?

That's right, son, tell her to get busy and finish that Christmas shopping now. With the downtown area in its Christmas decor and with neighborhood merchants having their shelves stocked with items to please the shoppers, Montgomery business-wide is set for the Yule season. Christmas lights and decorations are up.

Stores have added to the holiday atmosphere by their own window and interior decorations.

Many shoppers have commented that stores here have the most complete stocks they have ever had. Some who have looked elsewhere have returned home to shop because of the convenience involved as well as the savings effected.

Now that Thanksgiving is over and shopping days before Christmas so few, increased crowds are in town each day to avoid the last minute rush.

Please Wrap Packages Tight, Post Office Urges Patrons

With the expectation that the Christmas mail load will hit its peak within the next few days, Postmaster Charles D. Moore expressed his appreciation today for your cooperation thus far on his annual "Mail Early For Christmas" Campaign.

The Postmaster said, "It's too late to talk about early mailing of Christmas gifts and cards, because time means everything now—even a few hours delay in getting your cards and gifts mailed may mean disappointment to your friends and loved ones on Christmas Day."

He suggests that last minute mailers use Air Mail for their Christmas cards or gifts that are going out of town. There's still time for local deliveries, but all Christmas cards should be sent by First Class mail. Be sure to include your return address on all Christmas card envelopes and package labels.

Postal employees are digging in for the final drive to get everything delivered by Christmas Eve. The Main Post Office and Classified Civilian Stations will remain open from 7:30 a. m. to 5:00 p. m., beginning Saturday, December 13, 1958.

The Postmaster said that he would like to express his thanks for the fine cooperation from everyone. "The 1958 'Mail Early For Christmas' Campaign will be a rousing success if everyone will just keep up the good work. This year, on Christmas Eve, I'd like to see every mail bag empty and every Post Office employee relaxing at home."

Town Hall Meeting Rally Keynotes South's Crisis

A ringing call for solid South-wide support of public officials who are willing to stand up and be counted in the mounting United States Constitutional crisis was the theme of an address by an outstanding advocate of complete segregation of the races, Wednesday night in the first Town Hall Meeting program of a planned series.

Despite a wet, cold and dreary night, a spirited group of citizens from Montgomery and surrounding counties turned out to hear state Sen. Albert Davis, Aliceville (Pickens County) urge the people of the South to rise and demand their rights of local government as guaranteed by "our founding fathers."

Davis was introduced by T. R. Miller, businessman of Prattville, as a statesman who "was not running for anything or from anything." Jack Shea was master of ceremonies.

Hugh Ashurst, chairman of the meeting, which he said was intended to be the first of many "Town Hall Meetings" to focus the attention of the public on the "dangers from within" and the urgent need for "unity of action and purpose to preserve our Way of Life."

Following Senator Davis's talk, Ashurst made a surprise presentation to William E. Cleghorn, Editor of the Montgomery Home News. Ashurst recognized the weekly newspaper man as one who dared to seek out and print the truth.

Pointing out that when this group of Montgomery citizens "found out what was happening in Montgomery" through a news story printed in a recent issue of the weekly, they decided to make an award, but could not find any award, citation or other form of recognition for editors with a "Southern point-of-view."

So, after consulting with Southern historians they founded the General James H. Clanton Award as an annual award to be made to a "Southern Newspaperman who believes that only an informed people can be a free people."

James H. Clanton was a Confederate Brigadier General in the War Between the States. After a distinguished military career he followed the law practice. He was shot and killed on the streets of Knoxville, Tenn., in 1869 by Col. David Nelson, a former Union Army officer, and reported carpet bagger.

Following the award, Jack Shea asked for comments on any issue or subject from the public.

Admiral John Crommelin, a retired Naval hero, and recent candidate for governor, was recognized from the floor. He asked to make a few remarks on "the invisible empire" that is running our government.

Crommelin placed the blame for most of Montgomery's racial tensions and troubles in the South to this "conspiracy" to eliminate the white race and create a "copper-colored" mongrel group.

"There is no way to win a defensive war," Crommelin said. He urged the South to take the offensive through legal means now available.

He introduced a resolution that called for an impartial body to investigate and report the facts on what is now happening in Montgomery.

GRAND JURY

"When the Civil Rights group returns to Montgomery, let us be ready for them with our own county Grand Jury checking into facts on the subservive elements that can be supplied," the outspoken former regular Naval officer said.

Emphasizing that the ultimate weapon is the truth, Crommelin reminded the group that "Ye shall know the truth and the truth shall make you free."

He urged the members of the Town Hall Meeting to contact their Circuit Solicitors and present a resolution to them calling for an investigation into these people who are "a hidden force" operating within our midst.

The resolution says,

"WHEREAS, We the People of Alabama wish to know the REAL REASON WHY Montogmery, Alabama, was selected by the Federal Civil Rights Commission for their first attempted invasion of States' Rights;

NOW THEREFORE, BE IT RESOLVED, That we the undersigned citizens have reached the limits of our patience with existing procedures, controlled-propaganda, and quasi-legal double-talk, and WE DEMAND that our County Grand Juries, (being investigative bodies closest to the people) in each county of Alabama investigate and take evidence from informed witnesses, and receive and study vital documents which will be made available to them, and report to our citizenry their true findings, AND TRUE PRESENTMENT MAKE, regarding the existence of a secretly "hidden-force" operating within our midst as "a state within the state", yet separate and apart from us, which conspiratorial force has fathered, fostered and fomented communism and racial-strife within this State and throughout our Beloved Christian Nation, and must be exposed to public view, vigorously, relentlessly, "without fear or favor", and in every lawful manner, as provided by our system of Christian Good Government, so ordained and established by the Founding Fathers of America as aforesaid, to the end that the public may be fully informed and awakened as to WHAT THIS "HIDDEN-FORCE" REALLY IS, WHAT ARE ITS CRIMINAL OBJECTIVES, AND WHO DIRECTS IT!

BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED, That copies of these Resolutions be printed, published and circulated, and that our fellow Christian Citizens be encouraged to sign the same, and when signed to forward them to Circuit Solicitors for presentation to the Grand Juries of the County in which the signer resides.

BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED, That a Special Grand Jury for Montgomery County be called into session as soon as possible to carry out these Resolutions, for action is possible until the people believe that no real corrective-ple understand WHAT THE "HIDDEN-FORCE" REALLY IS, WHAT ARE ITS CRIMINAL OBJECTIVES, AND WHO DIRECTS IT!"

"Can't you just picture it, Nick? . . . it's Christmas Eve . . . you land . . . pull the little lever and gently swivel out on the roof."

THE HARVEST IS IN—And the horn of plenty is evidence of that as Blond Martha Dunaway, Gadsden, dons her traditional collar for a harvest observance at Auburn. She is the Sweetheart of Sigma Pi and is a Glomerata beauty.

CHARLES MERIWETHER

Chas. Meriwether Named Director Of State Finance

Charles M. Meriwether of Birmingham has been named by Governor-elect John Patterson to serve on his cabinet as state finance director.

Mr. Meriwether, who managed Mr. Patterson's gubernatorial campaign last spring, pledged "competent and economical management of state finances." He will take over this key cabinet post with the governor's inauguration next January 19.

"Knowing first hand of Mr. Meriwether's ability and his diligence, I am proud to announce his appointment," Mr. Patterson said. "His addition to my cabinet is added assurance that Alabama will enjoy reliable and efficient state government during the next four years."

A 47-year-old businessman with legal training, Mr. Meriwether has long been active in city and state civic affairs For the last 13 years, he has served as executive sales director for Dewberry Drug Co., of Birmingham, engaging in sales promotion and public relations work.

"People all over Alabama are certainly aware of the need for sound direction of state finances," Mr. Meriwether said on the occasion of his appointment.

AN UN-AMERICAN WEAPON

When U. S. Attorney General William P. Rogers assumed office, it was reliably reported that he vowed the Justice Department would "never again" be involved in the use of bayonet-force to bring about integration in the South.

This temperate attitude of the incoming attorney general was well received, and he was confirmed in office without hostile questioning from senators representing the South.

But Mr. Rogers appears to have bent under pressures. He has told a New York audience the Federal Government "will have to give consideration to the availability of public schools and other public conveniences" [illegible] expanding plants and facilities in the South.

"Community tensions resulting from racial prejudice are not without their economic implications," he said.

The attorney general's words amount to plain threat of economic boycott against the South. In view of the South's continued and extensive industrial growth, the only possible "economic implications" he could have in mind are those within the power of the Federal Government.

The implications of this threat are far more than economic. It is a matter of general concern that the Administration should even contemplate setting one part of the country against another, in economic warfare, using powers and spending granted by all the nation.

Once used in such discriminatory fashion, economic boycott would be available to the Federal Government to force compliance and bring about conformity on any matter, involving any number of persons. What Mr. Rogers is saying is, in effect, "Get into line or I'll deny you a job and livelihood."

It is regrettable, too, that this un-American concept of justice should have been voiced by the member of the Executive Branch whose bailiwick is the courts and their formidable and legal avenues for putting their decrees into effect.

Attorney General Rogers did not [illegible] the bayonet. But he has raised another and only slightly less repugnant specter in the threat to use economic blackmail to solve a problem which requires patience and understanding.

Let's Get Down To:

BRASS TACKS

By BILL CLEGHORN

Sam Is The Man To Head State Democratic Executive Committee

Of all the fantastic fog-shapes that have risen off the swamp of confusion since the November general election, the most futile and at the same time most scurrilous is the shallow-pated, long-gaited, hair-trigger newspaper writers and editors, who have surged to the surface of the news scene to snatch at the "let us smear Patterson" bait offered in the contest for State Democratic Executive Committee chairmanship to be filled Jan. 19.

Being a newspaper reader as well as a weekly newsman, I have been reading the "great jourals of the state" trying to pierce the verbose haze of anti-Patterson ramblings of the thunderbolt candidates" who apparently think they can reopen the June runoff and disqualify our man. We challenge their foolish stand and suggest they spend their time helping in the fight against the race mixers at home and the forces that seek to undermine us from within.

Let us consider three factors in the upcoming election of the chairman of the committee: (1) the 72 committeemen, (2) the so-called caucus and the supposed pledge and (3) the election of the chairman.

(1) The committeemen who were elected to the post owe their allegiance only to the people and each himself knows whether he is committed in advance to support any one person on the committee. Apparently, only the loyalty-oath members of the committee would make life-time pledges in advance to support any one person. Let us wait and see how each committeeman votes for chairman. We know they are honorable men and will be fair in their selection.

(2) The caucus was the first in the history of the state, at which time, to have lined up for Frank Mizzell as chairman. Remember the election is Jan. 19. Mr. Mizzell is an able and skillful politican who was a member of the committee even back in the days when Gov. James Folsom demanded that the State Committee give A. W. Todd the Commissioner of Agriculture post following the death of the recently elected candidate. The committee spun their hoops to the tune of the Folsom music, and gave Todd the nod—much to the voter's disgust. We are sure Col. Mizzel had no part in that caucus. (?)

As for the supposed pledge of support to any one committeeman, we are sure that if any pledge was made, it was to support an anti-oath man as the 39 ran on the platform.

Thus ran one political ad in the heat of the May primary campaign: "To the voters of the Second Congressional District. Elect Us and UNSHACKLE Alabama voters from the "pig-in-a-poke pledge." This ad was signed by Frank Mizell and seven others who apparently at that time didn't believe in party pledges.

How could the men who signed that ad turn and pledge themselves to anyone? They ran on a platform attacking these oaths and beforehand pledges. The fight made by both Mr. Mizzell's friends and Mr. Sam Engelhardt's friends has been against the so-called oath, yet the daily newspaper supporters of Mr. Mizzell would gain him support by coercion in that they are arguing that one should not go back on one's oath. This oath business is the same thing the committee has been fighting. We are sure that both candidates for the chairmanship want this race to be fought out on the merits of the respective men and not on any pressure or coercion from either side. All on the committee must be free to vote on their convictions.

Mixed Race Parley Tops '58 Stories

The people of Montgomery showed the most interest in the following 10 "top-rated stories" that had a bearing on their life as reported in the Montgomery Home News in 1958:

1. MIXED MEETING. Naturally, the biggest story was one that went unreported for seven weeks this Fall and was at the end of 1958 still considered "as most significant" to the people. When 30 white women of three faiths and 30 Negro women met at St. Jude's Hospital Sept. 27 to discuss "the issue", the word put out by the "guiding hand" from the Southern Regional Council (a race-mixing outfit from Atlanta) was "no publicity." The Home News was most pleased to have served the reading public of Montgomery their "number one news interest story" in 1958.

2. PATTERSON'S ELECTION AND VICTORY FOR STATES RIGHTS: Montgomery was the only city in the state that had any story that nosed out John Patterson's smashing win at the polls. His "nobody but the people" campaign gave the state a clean new "party-free and politicics clean" administration and helped put the States Rights or Alabama Democrats back in party business. This was the number one story over the state.

3. EMBATTLED SOUTH. The story of the South's fight for State's Right and self-preservation was number three here because the first on-the-gound conflict was staged here. The Civil Rights Commission hearing climaxed a year of harrassment of our way of life by the NAACP, the Southern Regional Council and

COURT ACTION FOR INTEGRATION BRINGS CITY PARKS SHUT-DOWN

It's Later Than You Think!

The above cartoon, reprinted from "THE CITIZENS' COUNCIL," official organ of the Citizens' Councils of America, is a very able ilustration of the constant complaint of those who are trying to rally support for racial integrity and States' Rights.

Montgomery's City Commission ordered all public parks closed effective today, Jan. 1. This action followed on heels of the efforts of eight would be race-mixers to "integrate" the public parks of the state capitol.

A resolution ordering the closing of all white and negro parks was passed unanimously by members of the City Commission, in Tuesday's meeting. It will remain in effect "until further notice." Signs are now being placed at each park.

The action by the city commission was hailed widely throughout the city as "drastic but much needed" and "this should show the rabid race-mixers our city means business." Generally, all comment from Southern white people was favorable.

Most Negroes reserved comment. The eight were unavailable for comment.

WHEREAS, eight negroes, namely, Georgia Theresa Gilmore, Gussie Carlton, Sylvia Johnson, J. C. Smith, Mattie Cargill, Fred Harris, George Stephens, and Elizabeth Brown, have attempted to compel the integration of Oak Park and other public parks in the City of Montgomery hereinafter designated by suit filed in the Federal District Court; and

WHEREAS, this attempt poses grave problems involving the welfare and public safety of all of the citizens of the City of Montgomery; and

WHEREAS, the members of the Commission are of the opinion

GROUP TO SEEK SCHOOL MIXING

A "massive attempt" to integrate Montgomery schools will be made early in the new year, it was announced here Tuesday by Rev. Martin Luther King, radical Montgomery Negro leader. The program will be under the sponsorship of the Montgomery Improvement Asociation, King said.

Preacher King said the matter will first be presented to the Board of Education and, if this fails, "we'll go into the courts."

The integration attempt will undoubtedly attack the validity of Alabama's pupil placement law, which was recently upheld by the U. S. Supreme Court.

Business Outlook Promising During 12 Months Ahead

The outlook for continuing gains in business activity in 1959 is generally promising. The rise may not be as spectacular as in tee. Apparently, only the loyalty-oath members of the committee would make life-time pledges in advance to support any one person. Let us wait and see how each committeeman votes for chairman. We know they are honorable men and will be fair in their selection.

(2) The caucus was the first in the history of the state, at which time, to have lined up for Frank Mizzell as chairman. Remember the election is Jan. 19. Mr. Mizzell is an able and skillful politican who was a member of the committee even back in the days when Gov. James Folsom demanded that the State Committee give A. W. Todd the Commissioner of Agriculture post following the death of the recently elected candidate. The committee spun their hoops to the tune of the Folsom music, and gave Todd the nod—much to the voter's disgust. We are sure Col. Mizzel had no part in that caucus. (?)

As for the supposed pledge of support to any one committeeman, we are sure that if any pledge was made, it was to support an anti-oath man as the 39 ran on the platform.

Thus ran one political ad in the heat of the May primary campaign: "To the voters of the Second Congressional District. Elect Us and UNSHACKLE Alabama voters from the "pig-in-a-poke pledge." This ad was signed by Frank Mizell and seven others who apparently at that time didn't believe in party pledges.

How could the men who signed that ad turn and pledge themselves to anyone? They ran on a platform attacking these oaths and beforehand pledges. The fight made by both Mr. Mizzell's friends and Mr. Sam Engelhardt's friends has been against the so-called oath, yet the daily newspaper supporters of Mr. Mizzell would gain him support by coercion in that they are arguing that one should not go back on one's oath. This oath business is the same thing the committee has been fighting. We are sure that both candidates for the chairmanship want this race to be fought out on the merits of the respective men and not on any pressure or coercion from either side. All on the committee must be free to vote on their convictions.

In line with the above, we believe a statement from Col. Mizzell that he relieves anyone from any pledge in connection with the post would help clear the air. Frankly, Col. Mizzell could not hurt himself by doing this and then whoever wins the committee chairmanship would do so on his merit and with the real, earnest endorsement of the majority. We believe Mr. Mizzell is getting unfair criticism from certain "anti-South" circles because certain people are charging him with bludgeoning his supporters with coercion.

Col. Mizzell did devote some efforts to the Spring campaign even though he had to take considerable time off for military reserve officers duty during the heat of the battle. That is when the champion of the anti-oath brigade, Lawrence "Snag" Andrews, of Bullock County, moved in and stumped the state. "Snag", who has been elected State Senator, should be given principal credit for the election of the anti-oath slate.

As for Sam Engelhardt, a tried and true Southerner who has been unjustly abused by former friends in the daily newspaper world, we believe he or any other committeeman has a right to seek this chairmanship. Afer all the "supposed" nomination was unofficial, represented some of the anti-oath crew only, and since the committee does not take office until Jan. 19 no official chariman can be named until then. Sam told the Home News Tuesday that since the abuse and verbal attack on him he feels even more determined to seek this post.

Thus the chairmanship hinges on the Jan. 19 election. It was decided at the caucus and will be decided by the full 72-man committee. Gov. John Patterson needs to have a friendly chairman, one who he has worked with and sought counsel with in his tough, daily, four-year grind against the NAACP and the real enemies of our land. Sam Engelhardt is such a man. Mizzell is able and capable. We know both men well and sincerely hope this rift will not be a rupture. The state needs such fighters.

In 1959, when the new and highly-intelligent incoming four genuine Southern governors meet to plan the battle in the Democratic convention, we want our governor to hold a full hand. Alabama, South Carolina, Georgia and Virginia are the four states that will be meeting the issue in 1960.

Patterson deserves and needs his chairman on the State Committee.

Outlay Of $80 Billion For Roads Expected In U. S. In Next Decade

An estimated $80 billion will be spent on America's inter-state, primary and secondary roads during the 1959-69 period, Sam Houston of Washington, D. C., president of the American Right-of-Way Association, told The Birmingham News last week.

Houston will participate in a two-day right-of-way conference at the University of Alabama starting Jan. 15 under auspices of the Alabama chapter of the ARWA, the Alabama Highway Department and the University.

He said the proposed federal interstate roadway system will see 41,000 miles of highways constructed under the federal aid bill. These will provide for four east-west routes and nine north-south routes.

"When this system is completed along about 1969," Houston said, "you will be able to travel from the Canadian border to the Gulf of Mexico, and from the Atlantic to the Pacific Coast, without stopping for a traffic light or making a lefthand turn."

He estimated the interstate program would cost $40 billion by 1969, but he predicted it would not halt at that time but would be continued to take care of the transportation needs of the nation's rapidly growing population.

He said this program entails more spending than any construction project ever conceived by Congress.

The discussion led to speculation that cost of the program would result in higher gasoline taxes nationally, and that utilities would see their rates raised to pay costs of the tremendous moving program connected with the new roadways.

Also sitting in on the conference was Harry Lackey, assistant vice president of Southern Bell Telephone Co. here.

this Fall and was at the end of 1958 still considered "as most significant" to the people. When 30 white women of three faiths and 30 Negro women met at St. Jude's Hospital Sept. 27 to discuss "the issue", the word put out by the "guiding hand" from the Southern Regional Council (a race-mixing outfit from Atlanta) was "no publicity." The Civil Rights hearing drew top billing nationally.

4. YOUTH ACHIEVEMENT. In Montgomery as elsewhere over the state the youth set a blistering pace of achievement. Robert E. Lee High School won plaudits with its state football champions, undefeated, and the right to The

Angus Show And Sale To Be Held Here Jan. 5-6

The twenty-first annual Southern Regional Angus Show and Sale will be held in Montgomery at the State Coliseum Jan. 5 and 6. Eighty three bulls and thirty females will be sold at this event. Nineteen breeders from six Southern states have consignments in the sale.

Judging of the animals will be held at 1 p. m. on Jan. 5 with Dr. R. A. Long, head of the Animal Husbandry Department, University of Georgia, as judge. The sale will begin at 10:30 a. m. Jan. 6, with George Kurtz and Scott Wilson as auctioneers.

A record crowd is expected to attend this annual sale as the best group of cattle ever consigned to this event will be offered for sale.

On the evening of Jan. 5 the Alabama Angus Association will entertain with a hospitality hour and banquet at the Whitley Hotel. All Angus breeders and persons interested in Angus cattle are invited to attend these events.

A prize Angus heifer will be presented as a door prize during the meeting by Mr. and Mrs. J. Harry Edwards, Brierfield Angus Farm, Brierfield.

The Show and Sale is sponsored by the Montgomery Chamber of Commerce, the Alabama Angus Association and the American Angus Association and is one of the top Angus sales held each year in the South.

City Politics Feverish

BY BILL CLEGHORN

Get out the tub, get out the pail,
Roll out the votes and sound the wail—

The city election qualifying date draws near. Right after the State Democratic Executive Committee meets in January, the local candidates who believe they are the men for the job will be out after YOUR vote.

Interest in the city election has been keen for more than a year. Curbstone comment indicates all three of the incumbents will be in there making a pitch for re-election. All will be definitely formidable and hard to unseat opponents for the challengers, but the voters will have to make the choice, not me.

The mayor's race glowed red hot this week wth the word, or you might say whirlwind of words, that swept Montgomery.

"Earl James is in the race," is all you hear all over town. So, the one-time city commissioner will be out after his former associate's seat.

Mayor William A. Gayle has not indicated his stand or intentions publicly, but it is a well known fact he is running to return.

James' supporters are cropping up all over. How strong and hard he will run is yet to be seen, but it will be fun to watch. That is for those who are not committed.

Also in the race and already reporting, polling up his snipe gun for some heating on the wing" is Montgomery's veteran close-in political fighter, Dave Birmingham.

Dave says he has the key that will unlock the secrets at City Hall and in his words, "my, oh my, how the gang will scurry for cover when I come after them."

Wilbur Nolen, once rumored as a candidate for mayor, is out. Usually, Earl James and Wilbur Nolen see eye to eye and with Earl in, Wilbur will be out.

Other possibilities are Gordon Meriwether, Jr., real estate man, Bill Brewbaker, the Buick dealer, and Ralph "Shorty" Price.

Gordon is "feeling out" his support. Brewbaker is unreported.

"Shorty" Price, world's champion hitchhiker, who has parlayed a "phonograph mouth" and one-track brain into more miles by thumb than any other candidate, says he wants to run in one place for a while.

Shorty denies that he is in the race to needle "Mr. Birmingham".

"Why, I will be slipping the needle to all of them," Shorty says.

Gayle knows he is off base when he arrests juveniles after midnight—just because they are under 21. The mayor must have been born under 21, himself," Shorty reveals.

"Earl James is one man I could eliminate in a hurry, if I decide to qualify," Price added.

"We could take James to the cleaners," the four-foot-12-inch candidate affirmed.

In the other ace, L. B. Sullivan is already working hard in his race against Clyde Sellers, Police Commissioner.

For Public Works, Frank Parks will probably face George Rivers, who is running on a platform to do away with mixed-race seating on the city buses; Walter Darby, dry cleaner; D. H. "Sarge" Caraker, former caretaker of Crampton Bowl; John Weaver, real estate man, and possibly Joe M. Dawkins, tire recapper and loan company executive.

George Cleere, former commissioner, will not seek a seat. He is setting an outstanding record as executive secretary of the Alabama-Coosa River Development Association.

Officers Elected By Montgomery Exchange Clubs

Two Montgomery Exchange Clubs have released names of newly elected officers for the next six months. The slate from East Montgomery Exchange includes:

Rex McKissick, president; T. W. Dendy, vice president; Clarence Sharits, secretary; Edmond Dowe, treasurer.

Board of Control: Dr. Zack Traywich, Mureal Crump and Billy Parker. Juius Turner will be ex-officio member of the board. Hold-over members are E. T. Enslen, Foster Goodwin and Bill Simpler.

For the downtown Montgomery club, the new officers are Jessee M. Hodges, president; Curtis H. Springer, vice president; Phil Richardson, vice president; Oscar Bentley, secretary-treasurer.

Board of Control members are Frank Chapman, Lehman Ivey, William C. Moore, William Ottis Powell, Zack Azar, L. N. Calhoun, Frank Morrow; Robet Ryne, Gil K. Moody is immediate past president.

A resolution ordering the closing of all white and negro parks was passed unanimously by members of the City Commission, in Tuesday's meeting. It will remain in effect "until further notice." Signs are now being placed at each park.

The action by the city commission was hailed widely throughout the city as "drastic but much needed" and "this should show the rabid race-mixers our city means business." Generally, all comment from Southern white people was favorable.

Most Negroes reserved comment. The eight were unavailable for comment.

WHEREAS, eight negroes, namely, Georgia Theresa Gilmore, Gussie Carlton, Sylvia Johnson, J. C. Smith, Mattie Cargill, Fred Harris, George Stephens, and Elizabeth Brown, have attempted to compel the integration of Oak Park and other public parks in the City of Montgomery hereinafter designated by suit filed in the Federal District Court; and

WHEREAS, this attempt poses grave problems involving the welfare and public safety of all of the citizens of the City of Montgomery; and

WHEREAS, the members of the Commission are of the opinion that it is to the best interest of the citizens of Montgomery that said parks be closed:

NOW, THEREFORE, BE IT RESOLVED by the Board of Commissioners of the City of Montgomery, Alabama, that the folowing public parks in the City of Montgomery, to-wit, Bear park, Bruce park, Civic park, Day Street, Diffly park, Hamner Hall, King's Hill, Kiwanis, Mobile Heights, Oak Park, Perry Street, Ridgecrest, Washington Park be closed beginning Jan. 1, 1959, to all persons, regardless of color, until further action of the Parks and Recreation Board and the Mayor and Commissioners of the City of Montgomery.

Woods Is Named New President Of Guaranty Savings

Ernest H. Woods, Birmingham business executive, becomes president of Guaranty Savings Life Insurance Company on Jan. 1. He succeeds Lee Roy Ussery, who founded the company in 1948 and has served as president since that time.

Woods purchased the stock of Ussery, which is considered "working control" of the company. Consisting of approximately one-third of the outstanding shares, the stock, including estate holdings of other persons involved, amounted to more than $1 million.

The board of directors of Guaranty, meeting in Montgomery on Monday, Dec. 22, elected Woods to fill a vacancy on the board. He

Town Hall Session Scheduled For Jan. 8

Another Town Hall Meeting will be held Jan. 8, Hugh Ashurst chairman of the Town Hall Meetings, told the Home News this week. The open public session is devoted to presenting one current topic on local affairs and inviting discussion from the floor.

"We model our sessions from the old New England town hall, the earliest form of democratic public action in our country," the chairman added.

"No special group, clique or faction sponsors these meetings. They are for white people who wish to preserve our way of life. All are invited." he added.

SCHOOL MIXING

A "massive attempt" to integrate Montgomery schools will be made early in the new year, it was announced here Tuesday by Rev. Martin Luther King, radical Montgomery Negro leader. The program will be under the sponsorship of the Montgomery Improvement Asociation, King said.

Preacher King said the matter will first be presented to the Board of Education and, if this fails, "we'll go into the courts."

The integration attempt will undoubtedly attack the validity of Alabama's pupil placement law, which was recently upheld by the U. S. Supreme Court.

Business Outlook Promising During 12 Months Ahead

The outlook for continuing gains in business activity in 1959 is generally promising. The rise may not be as spectacular as in the 1955 recovery, but this could prove a blessing, since the 1955 superboom produced troublesome distortons. By the end of 1959 Gross National Product (GNP) could easily be running at $475-480 billion, 5 or 6 per cent above the present rate.

As 1958 drew to a close, the recovery movement seemed to be maintaining its momentum very well. High-level automobile production was imparting new stimulous to the economy, and holiday sales seemed to be measuring up to retailers' hopeful anticipations.

Although official figures are not yet available, indications are that gross national product ran at an annual rate of $452-453 billion in the final quarter of the year., $13-14 billion above the rate in

Home News Raises Subscription Rate

With this issue, the MONTGOMERY HOME NEWS, the state capitol's independent weekly newspaper announces a slight increase in the annual subscription rate.

New subscribers will pay $3.00 for a one-year subscription, $5.00 for a two-year subscription and $7.50 for a three-year subscription. A special five-months trial subscription is available for $1.50.

NEWS STAND single copy price is hiked to ten cents.

Old subscribrs who are renewing during December and January can renew at the old rate of $2.50 per year.

The increase in subscription rate results from a three-fold increase cost of producing the Home News. First, news gathering and administrative expenses have increased with the new and increased editorial responsibility of the paper. Secondly, printing, addressing and circulation expenses have soared up. And lastly, the post office has slapped a rate increase on second class postage.

Effective January 1, and for the next three years, the cost of mailing newspapers (Second Class) will go up each year.

This increase puts us in line with other city weeklies in the South.

the third quarter. All major components of GNP, except business investment in fixed assets, appear to have made some significant contribution to the rise.

The outlook for further gains in the new year is good, as is indicated by the following review of conditions of major segments of the economy:

CONSUMER SPENDING: Much of the credit for the brevity of the 1957-58 recession must go to the strength of consumer spending. Except in the hard-goods area consumption was well maintained. This was true even last Winter, when business news was at its worst. And after the first quarter of 1958, rising outlays for both non-durable goods and services

ery. Guaranty operates in seven Southern states, and has approximately $80 million of insurance in force. Assets of the company are in excess of $5 million. Fifty-contributed to the recovery movement.

GOVERNMENT OUTLAYS: Spending by state and local governments in 1958 persisted in the uptrend that has characterized the entire postwar period. This advance was an important counter-recession influence in the early months of the year and helped to speed the recovery. There is every reason to believe that the rise will continue during the coming year, and that by the final quarter of 1959 the annual rate of expenditures could very well be running some $3 billion higher than at present.

RESIDENTIAL CONTRUCTION: Expansion in home building has been an important factor in the recovery movement to date, partly because of government stimulation and partly because conditions in capital markets were more favorable to home financing during much of 1958 than in the preceding year. On the whole, it looks as if 1959 should be a generally active year for the industry in view of the substantial volume of work now in progress and the large amount of forward financing commitments. If general business continues to improve during the year, however, capital—market conditions could very well become less favorable to home financing. The new Congress may conceiveably provide stimulants which would negate this natural tendency, but for the time being, the most reasonable assumption to make is that a leveling out will occur in residential construction rather early in 1959.

CAPITAL SPENDING: Weakness in spending investment accounted for a substantial part of the recent recession, but from all appearances the decline in this area is now over.

Although McGraw-Hill's survey of preliminary investment plans for 1959 conducted during October, does not point to any appreciable rise in capital outlays by business in the coming year, this may not be very significant. Since October there has been further confirmation that the recovery movement is solidly grounded, and this fact—together with the brightening profits situation—has probably already produced some upgrading of investment plans. Moreover, the experience of past years suggests that additional upgrading will take place during the course of 1959 if the general uptrend in business is sustained.

OVER-ALL GNP: It is clear from the foregoing that expansive tendencies predominate in the economy at present. Nothing like a runaway boom seems in early prospect, but the outlook is good for steady progress during the year ahead. A GNP rate of $475-480 billion seems easily possible by the end of 1959. This range actually allows for a considerable slowdown from the rate of gain in the latter half of 1958, and it implies a slower advance than occurred in 1955. It would, however, be sufficient to produce a steady increase in the demand for labor.

served in this capacity until Jan. 1st, when he becomes president. Mr. Ussery tendered his resignation to the board effective Dec. 31.

Mr. Woods is currently president and chairman of the board of Skyland Life Insurance Company, Charlotte, N. C. He indicated that plans would be considered soon to effect a merger between the two insurance companies.

The home office of Guaranty Savings Life is in Montgomery, where it was moved in 1951 from Gadsden. The company occupies three floors of the Guaranty Savings Life Building, an eight-story building in downtown Montgomery. Guaranty operates in seven Southern states, and has approximately $80 million of insurance in force. Assets of the company are in excess of $5 million. Fifty-five persons are employed in the Home Office, and there are 150 agents in the seven state area.

Mr. Ussery, who has also served as president of Mid-South Life Insurance Company, plans to continue in that capacity for an indefinite period. He plans principally to devote his time to pursuing his interest in his extensive real estate holdings. He owns considerable properties in Melbourne, Florida, and expects to develop these in the near future.

Robert E. Igleheart, executive vice president of Guaranty, has also been named general manager, and assumes his new duties on Jan. 1.

In addition to Woods and Igleheart, members of the board of directors are J. D. Baggett, Birmingham; Fuller Kimbrell, Fayette; Bedford F. Seale, Birmingham; Clarence R. Hill, Gadsden; M. E. Ward, Birmingham; Van B. Taunton, Dadeville; James A. Jay, Alexandria; Melvin E. Andrews Bill Would Provide Funds For Removal Of Dissatisfied Negroes

WASHINGTON, D. C. — Rep. George Andrews, of Alabama's Third District, has introduced a bill in Congress which would finance with federal funds the removal from the South of Negroes who are unhappy with conditions here.

His bill would authorize relocation loans to any Negro living in a state which practices racial segregation to enable him and his family to move to any state without such segregation.

It would set up a three-member human resettlement commission appointed by the president and authorize transportation and relocation loans up to $1000, repayable within 10-20 years at 2½ per cent interest.

Sens. John Sparkman and Lister Hill Alabama Democrats, said they like his measure.

"I have supported legislation of this character in the past and I shall continue to support it," Hill said.

Sparkman said he strongly favors Andrews' bill.

"Some have charged that bills of this type would force Negroes now living in the South man said. "This is not true. Rather, assistance would be claimed on a wholly voluntary basis by anyone in need of financial assistance who desires to move to another state and can show that migration would be for his economic betterment.

"If, as is often claimed, Negroes now living in the South could do better in the North and they wish to migrate, such a law would make it possible for them to do so.

"Rep. Andrews' bill makes sense. I hope it will receive the careful consideration which it deserves."

Andrews has introduced the bill in the last two Congresses. It has never reached the House for a vote.

Tempo Speeded In City Politics As Candidates Launch Drive For Votes

One dozen candidates of assorted political backgrounds have tossed hats into the ring for the three commission position in Montgomery's city government.

Wtih the March 16 Democratic primary only six weeks away, intense activity and heavy political salvos are expected to tag this race as one of the hardest fought in Montgomery history.

The deadline for qualifying was last Saturday.

Now qualified with their names on the ballot are:

For Mayor: Dave Birmingham, John G. Crommelin, W. A. (Tackey) Gayle Earl D. James.

For Associate Commissioner No.1: Walter J. Bamberg, Richard H. Burwell, D. H. (Sarge) Caraker, Allan B. Jones, Frank Parks, George Rivers.

For Associate Commissioner No. 2: Clyde Sellers, L. B. Sullivan.

A last-minute qualifier was Crommelin, a retired Navy admiral. He was the object of national attention in 1949 with his running battle with the Pentagon over the importance of sea-air power rather than the Air Force position of big-bomber strength.

There are only two contests in the races for eight seats on the city committee.

Qualified for the City Democratic Executive Committee are: Ward one, Rufus Marvin Taylor and J. J. O'Connor; Ward Two, Stuart May Jr.; Ward Three, Linis J. Moeller; Ward Four, John Dowe; Ward Fiv, C. L. (Cad) Beale; Ward Six, George L. Wise; Ward Seven, B. Theron Bradley and T. A. Hardy, and Ward 23, Herbert R. Nation.

Methodist Paper Asks Donations To Negro Schools

Sunday, Feb. 8, is Race Relations Day, according to a report from the Methodist Christian Advocate. The Advocate says of all the Negroes in private colleges, one out of five is in a Methodist college.

"To keep standards high at a crucial moment in the history of a race, a million dollars is needed in the 1959 Race Relations Day offering.. Each dollar given will bring three to five dollars in matching money." (ed. note—from whom?).

The Methodist Church is asking its members to raise one million dollars for Negroes in Methodist Colleges.

No one knows what the NAACP or the Southern Regional Council nor the Communist Party will give the colleges.

After all, the NAACP has its own creed, "One Million Dollars for Racial Agitation—not one cent for education."

The Advocate story written by a Dr. John O. Gross, of the Commission on Higher Education, says the goal can be realized if every Methodist Church will take an offering for these schools on Race Relations Sunday.

"Through the years these schools have furnished Methodist-ism best known Negro leadership". Martin L. King, nationally-

Dear Harassed:

To you and whoever else is involved in the puzzling and mysterious letter written to the editor of the Advertiser last Sunday concerning the "Women of the Fellowship of the Concerned."

First, which of the women are you—the Negro or the white or some of both?

You race mixers sure do confuse me. You get all steamed up over this social experimentation and are real pioneers and willing to go right down the line—that is except having your name printed or being publicized.

I wish you women would get together. In your letter you condemn the Home News for writing up a church meeting that was public while one of your members writes and says our reprsntative had no business at a "private" meeting.

According to Mrs. M. E. Tilly, well-known Methodist Church apostle of race mixing, who wrote from her church-located headquarters in Atlanta, my representative, who was also a church woman, had no business at your meeting.

Mrs. Tilley says, "I can assure you the only mysterious woman present was the uninvited guest who was rather "mysterious' in trying to explain her appearance."

Answer that, please, and sign it, mystery guest.

No coaching from the audience.

In the letter to the Advertiser signed by "some of the concerned" published Sunday, Feb. 1, you state the meeting was open to all interested persons and not considerd any more newsworthy, by our reputable dailies, than any other meetings of church groups.

If this is so, why did your church ask one "white lady" to leave as she was not properly oriented?

Are you women concerned over the exposure of your "pilot meeting" to plan "the first step toward racial integration" in Montgomery schools or are you just concerned over your husband's and other relatives business.

Well, get this straight, race mixers, we haven's even begun to fight. We know you even though you are too cowardly to sign your names when you write letters to the editor of the Advertiser. That is the place to send them. After all, you women asked their reporter and photographer to leave and "no publicity" and they compiled.

Do you believe as the editor of the Advertises that "integration is inevitable.?"

Is that why you write letters to the Advertiser? You are right on the target there wih old Mr. Askelon, himslf, who says yes, segregation is a sin in the South, but it is a sin in the North, also.

31,000 Veterans Pension Cases In Alabama Are Being Adjusted

Approximately 31,000 compensation and pension cases, added to the rolls of the Veterans Administration in Alabama after World War II, have required adjustment in the claims review now underway, it was reported today.

The actual number of adjustments is 1,908 and is cumulative to September 30, 1958, Neil R. Smart, Acting Manager of the Montgomery, Ala., VA Regional Office announced today. It involves 10.8 per cent of the 17,687 cases reviewed to that date.

Included in the adjustments were 93 instances of increases in monthly payments to reflect a worsening in degree of disability Improvement in the degree of disability with accompanying decresases in monthly payments occurred in 580 cases. There were 1 235 terminations of payment.

Breaking down this last figure of 1,235 terminations, 598 were ended primarily because of an improvement in disability to a level no longer justifying monetary awards. The remaining 637 were terminated after the VA found "clear and unmistakable error" in associating the disability with the period of military service.

Smart said that of the 598 veterans whose payments ceased because of an improvement in disability, service—connection was confirmed in almost all cases and these veterans may be returned to the compensation rolls if their service-connected ailments again become disabling to a compensable degree. Veterans involved in adverse changes have the right of appeal to the Board of Veterans Appeals if they believe that the changes were not justified, Smart pointed out.

Legion Chaplain Speaks At Local Kiwanis Meeting

The Right Reverend Monsignor John J. Twiss national chaplain of The American Legion addressed Montgomery Kiwanis Club Tuesday in observance of "Religious Emphasis Month."

The week of Feb. 1-7 has been proclaimd by Governor John Patterson as "Religious Emphasis Week" in Alabama. During the month of February the American Legion, as one of its major programs, has designated the week of Feb. 1-7 "Back to God Week"; Feb. 8-14, "Go to Church Week"; Feb. 15-21, "Pray For Peace Week", and Feb. 22-28, "Divine Guidance Week."

A nation-wide telecast last Sunday presented the American Legion's religious program, "For God and Country."

Integration Leader Will Be Speaker At Tuskegee "Boycotters" Meeting

Special to Home News

TUSKEGEE, Ala.— One of the leaders in the "public school integration workshops" will be featured speaker at Tuskegee Institute Sunday.

Frederick B. Routh, assistant director, Southern Regional Council, Atlanta. Ga., will be the scheduled speaker at the Tuskegee Civic Association meeting when the group observes "Race Relations Sunday."

The TCA is the sparkplug of the boycott of the merchants in Tuskegee.

Routh is known for his work in community counselling in race relations. He claims the title of race relations consultant.

The Southern Regional Council, one of the "race mixing fat cats" of the Fund for the Republic, has been slammed hard by Eugene Cook, former attorney general of Georgia, as "aiding and abetting in the NAACP fomented racial agitation."

According to Cook, the South-

tions Day, according to a report from the Methodist Christian Advocate. The Advocate says of all the Negroes in private colleges, one out of five is in a Methodist college.

"To keep standards high at a crucial moment in the history of a race, a million dollars is needed in the 1959 Race Relations Day offering.. Each dollar given will bring three to five dollars in matching money." (ed. note—from whom?).

The Methodist Church is asking its members to raise one million dollars for Negroes in Methodist Colleges.

No one knows what the NAACP or the Southern Regional Council nor the Communist Party will give the colleges.

After all, the NAACP has its own creed, "One Million Dollars for Racial Agitation—not one cent for education."

The Advocate story written by a Dr. John O. Gross, of the Commission on Higher Education, says the goal can be realized if every Methodist Church will take an offering for these schools on Race Relations Sunday.

"Through the years these schools have furnished Methodistism best known Negro leadership".

Martin L. King, nationally-known mulatto racial strife stirrer, is one of these leaders. At this moment, King is on his way to India to study Ghandi's philosphy for one month. Someone might ask King, "what is wrong with the teachings of Jesus Christ?"

Lanier Students Raise Hogs For Chapter Project

The vocational agriculture students at Sidney Lanier High School are raising hogs as a chapter project.

At th epresent time the chapter has 51 head of hogs which includes one registered boar and eight brood sows. All the hogs were purchased this past November. The pigs will be grown to market size before they are sold. Plans are to grow into a purebred Landrace program in the near future. The purebred stock will be shown by the Sidney Lanier FFA members in the hog shows this fall.

last Saturday.

Now qualified with their names on the ballot are:

For Mayor: Dave Birmingham, John G. Crommelin, W. A. (Tackey) Gayle Earl D. James.

For Associate Commissioner No.1: Walter J. Bamberg, Richard H. Burwell, D. H. (Sarge) Caraker, Allan B. Jones, Frank Parks, George Rivers.

For Associate Commissioner No. 2: Clyde Sellers, L. B. Sullivan.

A last-minute qualifier was Crommelin, a retired Navy admiral. He was the object of national attention in 1949 with his running battle with the Pentagon over the importance of sea-air power rather than the Air Force position of big-bomber strength.

There are only two contests in the races for eight seats on the city committee.

Qualified for the City Democratic Executive Committee are: Ward one, Rufus Marvin Taylor and J. J. O'Connor; Ward Two, Stuart May Jr.; Ward Three, Linis J. Moeller; Ward Four, John Dowe; Ward Fiv, C. L. (Cad) Beale; Ward Six, George L. Wise; Ward Seven, B. Theron Bradley and T. A. Hardy, and Ward 23, Herbert R. Nation.

NICHOLAS S. HARE

Nicholas S. Hare Joins Attorney General's Staff

A prominent attorney and former member of the House of Representatives of the State of Alabama, has ben addd to the staff of Attorney General MacDonald Gallion.

Nicholas S. Hare, of Monroeville, Monroe County, will be assigned as Chief of the Trials Division in the Attorney General's office Gallion said.

Mr. Hare was born in Monroeville, October 11 1911, son of the late Circuit Judge F. W. Hare, and grandson of Probate Judge N. F. Stallworth. He was educated in public schools in Monroe County and won a scholarship to Northwood School, Lake Placid, N. Y. He studied pre-law courses at Alabama Polytechnic Institute, Auburn, and later graduated in 1935 from the University of Alabama Law School. He was class orator for the graduating class.

Mr. Hare served in the House of Representatives from Monroe County 1954-58. He served on the Judiciary Committee, Military Affairs, and Committee on Constitutions and Elections. He was chairman of the Judiciary Advisory Council, charged with the comprehensive study of our court system. The study resulted in the introductions of bills generally known as the Court Reform Bills.

49th Anniversary Will Be Observed During Boy Scouts Week Feb. 7-13

The 49th anniversary of the founding of the Boy Scouts of America will be observed nationally during Boy Scout Week Feb. 7 to 13.

Since 1910, more than 29,500,000 persons have been identified with the Boy Scouts of America. Currently 4,780 000 boys and adult leaders are enrolled.

Chartered by Congress n 1916, this movement has the responsibility to "promote the ability of boys to do things for themselves and others, to develop skills, self-reliance, initiative, physical strength, endurance, courage, patriotism, and those other qualities which contribute to the very highest type o fcitizenship."

Boy Scout Sunday will be observed in churches of all faiths Sunday Feb. 8, with Scouts attending services in uniform. Theme for the week is "Onward for God and My Country" "A Scout is friendly" will be given emphasis during 1959.

Today there are more than 4,780,000 boys and leaders playing the "game of Scouting" Although one of every four boys eight to sixteen years old is enrolled, leaders of the movement want to serve at least a majority of the boys in America.

The next five years will see a large increase in boys of those ages.

"Looking ahead for the next five years," says Dr. Arthur A. Schuck, chief Scout executive, "we must recognize that never has it been so important or imperative that the youth of our nation be trained to high idealism, acquired through unselfish service, by self-reliance, and cooperative effort."

He says that although Scouting's ideals and objectives have remained constant since 1910, "the program organization methods, and aoperating techniques have changed as the result of study and understanding of changing conditions and as necessary to meet the needs of a rapidly growing organization."

Kimbrough New President Of AEA

Alabama teachers elected W. H. (Zeke) Kimbrough, superintendent of Piedmont schools as president of the Alabama Education Association for 1959-60, effective March 13.

The AEA elections committee announced the results of state and district elections following a total tally of 16,591 votes cast by members for Kimbrough and his opponent, Birmingham classroom teacher Miss Lillian Gatchell. Seven of the eight AEA districts filled their presidency posts uncontested. Dr. John A Scarborough, Greenville High School principal won the executive position in District II over candidates James D. Thomason, Sweet Water, and N. P. Penton, Camden. District II encompasses Perry, Dallas Marengo, Wilcox, Lowndes and Butler Counties.

Miss Annette Loftis, Selma Elementary School principal, was unopposed for AEA vice president.

Kimbrough and other state and district officials will assume office following the adjournment of the annual AEA convention, to be held in Birmingham March 12-13.

A university of Alabama graduate, Kimbrough has been superintendent of Piedmont schools for the past 16 years. During his teaching career he has served as a principal, classroom teachers and coach, and is past president of the Alabama High School Athletic Association.

The president-elect is active in teaching profession organizations on the local, district, and state levels. He has served as president of District VI, as a member of the AEA board of trustees and is currently chairman of the AEA committee on retirement. Kimbrough is also a member of the National Education Association.

Pat Boone continue to receive top billing over the nation for his highly outstanding and most decent book, "Twixt Twelve and Twenty," published by Prentice-Hall, at $2.95. It is one of the most sincere, informal, friendly series of talks on the subjects teen-agers face in growing up, I have ever read.

Pat approaches the whole thing of growing up in the light of his own experiences. It is most helpful and most worthwhile. If you have a young one in your family, or even if you don't, get a copy. One book shop, Capitol News, reports this as definitely a best seller. Vic Levine, the man who reads all his wares, smiles at just the mention of this book. Congratulations Vic and all book sellers for pushing this one.

ern Regional Council is dominated by individuals who, like the officials of the NAACP, have long records of affinity for and participation in Communist, Communist-front, fellow-travelling, left-wing and subversive organizations and activities.

Sworn testimony taken by both House and Senate Committees has placed known Communists in both organizations.

Mrs. M. E. Tilly was the representative of the Southern Regional Council who attended the now well-known interracial meeting at St. Jude's in Montgomery last September. Routh, as a director in the integration workshops at Monteagle, Tenn., in the Highlander Folk School, taught a special course in racial demonstrations.

According to the Georgia Education Commission, Routh's workshop at this controversial school, now under investigation by the Legislature of Tennessee as being subversive, taught a course that emphasized the use of women and children in racial demonstrations.

In at least one of his sessions, the tactics of including women and children in the demonstrations and incidents was propounded on the basis that police are reluctant to shoot women and children.

Rev. K. L. Buford, acting president of the TCA, stated that this meeting is open to all races, and it will be held at the Greenwood Missionary Baptist Church.

Here are authoritative answers from the Veterans Administration to questions of interest from former servicemen and their families:

Q. I told the VA to hold the dividends on my GI insurance to my credit. If I don't pay the quarterly premiums due next month, will the VA deduct it from those dividend credits?

A. No. The VA is not permitted to withdraw a quarterly preemium from your dividend credit without your written consent. The VA will withdraw monthly premiums to keep your insurance from lapsing.

Q. Last year I sold a city lot I owned and bought another, making a small profit. Must I report it, in reporting 1958 income for VA pension purposes?

A. Yes. The law says that your net profit on the transaction must be reported, which would be the profit you realized after deducting all expenses incident to the sale.

Q. When does the new law permitting Korea veterans to convert "RS" term insurance policies go into effect?

A. The law permitting holders of Korean conflict term policies to convert to one of VA's permanent plans goes into effect January 1. 1959.

Q. The VA recently liberalized its regulations affecting veterans whose schooling had been interrupted, and permitted re-entry on training in many cases. Does anything in this liberalization apply to a studnt expelled for misconduct?

A. No. If Korean GI training is interrupted or discontinued for misconduct, and the school refuses to readmit the veteran, the law denies him all further GI training.

BOY SCOUTS OF AMERICA

49th ANNIVERSARY 1959

ONWARD FOR GOD AND MY COUNTRY

OFFICIAL BOY SCOUT WEEK POSTER

The nation's 4,780,000 Cub Scouts, Boy Scouts, Explorers, and adult leaders observe Boy Scout Week, February 7 to 13, by launching the fourth and final year of the "Onward for God and My Country" program.

The 49th anniversary emphasis is "A Scout is friendly."

Through their World Friendship Fund of voluntary contributions the Boy Scouts of America have helped Scouts in 48 other nations.

America will be represented by several hundred Scouts at the Tenth World Scout Jamboree next July 17-26 in Makiling National Park near Manila in the Philippine Islands.

During Boy Scout Week, honors will go to units that successfully carried out projects in traffic, outdoor, and home safety in last year's Safety Good Turn.

Research, Promotion On Cotton Council's Annual Meet Agenda

ATLANTA, Ga.—The spotlight of the cotton world will be focused on Atlanta Feb. 9-10 when the National Cotton Council of America holds its 21st annual meeting.

Attending the meeting will be several hundred industry leaders representing all six of the primary cotton interests which make up the Council; cotton producers, ginners, merchants, warehousemen, cottonseed crushers and cotton manufacturers.

Also present will be hundreds of representatives of private and public organizations which have a special interest in the Council's program to increase consumption of American cotton and cottonseed. Total attendance is expected to be between 1,500 and 2,000 persons.

Program for the Council's annual meetng will center on reports of progress in cotton research and promotion during 1958, plus development and approval of Council activities for the coming year.

OTHER FUTURE PLANS OF MAYOR W. A. GAYLE

I will do all within my power to re-open the City Parks on a segregated basis.
Expanding the City's recreational program and facilities for Youth and adults.
Improvement and enlargement of Cramton Bowl with the cooperation of Public Athletic Board in order to attract college and professional football.
An intensified program to bring new industry and new payrolls to the City.
Continuation of the systematic reduction of the City's indebtedness according to schedule.
Construction of a new Municipal Auditorium for cultural, Civic and Convention meetings.
Continue efforts in cooperation with proper authorities to develop Coosa-Alabama Rivers in order to attract new industry, provide transportation, hydroelectric power and additional recreation.
Radio Active Fallout Shelter Survey. Federal Government appropriated for this survey $25,000 to cover the entire cost. This will mean security and safety for our citizens in the event of enemy attack with nuclear weapons.
Continue to cooperate with the SENIOR CITIZENS COMMITTEE in their plans to provide a Home for the aged in our City.
Continue to cooperate with the Montgomery Community Council and Youth Council in solving Juvenile Delinquency and providing understanding services and counseling for children in trouble.
Continued cooperation with health authorities to assure our people the best health conditions possible.
Continue to work with all groups for the betterment and progressive development of Montgomery.
Continue the cordial relationship that exists between the military personnel of Maxwell and Gunter Air Force Bases and the civilian population of Montgomery.

King Seeking Funds To Aid Drive Here

BY BILL CLEGHORN

(A word to race mixers: Give up. you will not find out where we obtained this information. Sure, he betrayed you and we know who and what white people of Montgomery are supporting King and the Southern Regional Council in this vile scheme.)

The emphasis is on you and your children.

Montgomery's school children have been selected as the next experiment station in the "international mixing conspiracy" of alein masterminds.

The information we now have proves that Martin Luther King, wealthy Negro racial agitator and part time preacher, has established national headquarters in New York City to finance his well-planned, already more-than-adequately financed, "war against the segregated school systems of Montgomery."

According to information received this week, the Home News has been able to obtain copies of the "plan, the fund raising letter and the pamphlets of instruction" that are now in the hands of the local henchmen of the integration conspiracy.

Also we are now in possession of the names of many national, regional, and local conspirators who will attempt to integrate "Montgomery by the numbers." These Quislings will be revealed to you in future issues of this newspaper.

The race-mixing guide book "A First Step Towards School Integration," is now in the hands of "favorable white and negro "community leaders of our city."

This pamphlet, with a foreword by Martin Luther King, written May, 1958, is known as the "Nashville Plan". Nashville's school desegregation represented four years of open pushing preceded by several years of careful plotting. The undercover work was to find out who "is in favor," to remove "segregationists" from key offices, and to elect "moderate" county and city officials.

OUR GOAL . . .

. . happy, well educated children regardless of race or color.

I am enclosing A FIRST STEP TOWARD SCHOOL INTEGRATION. Please read it carefully, for it tells how the challenge facing those who believe in equal rights can be met as school integration moves further south.

A FIRST STEP describes the backing a small interracial group gave to Negro parents who dared -- in the face of mounting community pressures -- to claim the American heritage for their children.

The Congress of Racial Equality (CORE) has faith that in every community there are men of good will who would act as the CORE group did in Nashville. Wide distribution of this pamphlet may help us not only to bring together community workers of both races but also to give them the benefits of Nashville's experience.

To make it possible for CORE to build more interracial community groups to work peacefully but persistently for justice and to secure wide circulation of this pamphlet, we need your substantial financial assistance.

You and I may not be called upon to escort a little child through screaming mobs. But no matter where we live, we can make some sacrifice.

As you write your check, take another look at Linda Gail McKinley's picture on the cover. If a small child can face mobs to advance justice, how can you and I be less than generous in our support? To rush your contribution to CORE, I have attached the envelope above. No stamp or signature is necessary. Simply pull off the envelope, enclose your check, seal and mail today.

The undercover work was to find out who "is in favor," to remove "segregationists" from key offices, and to elect "moderate" county and city officials.

The Nashville plan outlines the step-by-step procedure that has been tested and proven to their satisfaction.

You and your children are next —in the mongrel mixmaster orders for the world.

The "First Step towards School Integration" was written by one Anna Holden, a former staff member of the Southern Regional Council. This Florida-born white girl was chairman of the Nashville CORE group. Core stands for the Congress of Racial Equality.

The Southern Regional Council is the Atlanta-based race mixing, Fund for the Republic financed (almost a million dollars now) outfit of communist fellow travelers, liberals and "do-gooders" with sinister roots in all the racial disburbed areas of the South

Eugene Cook, Attorney General of Georgia said this of the Southern Regional Council: "The NAACP is being aided and abetted in its agitation by three "front" organizations on the Southern scene—the Southern Regional Conference Educational Fund; the Southern Regional Council; and the SRC's affiliate, the Georgia Committee on Interracial Cooperation.

"The Southern Regional Council is dominated by individuals who, like the officials of the NAACP, have long records of affinity for and participation in Communist, Communist-front, fellow-traveling, left-wing and subversive organizations and activities."

"Sworn testimony taken by both House and Senate Committees has placed known Communists in both organizations and the Southern Conference Education Fund may soon be designated a subversive organization."

Mrs. M. E. Tilly, Atlanta, Ga. long time veteran worker for racial integration, represented the Southern Regional Council at Montgomey's now famous St. Jude's meeting of Sept. 27 where white and Negro women of this city met to discuss the "problem."

In the instructional pamphlet on "mixing", the Holden girl outlines the 10 steps, and the need to form a community interracial group.

Can't People Here Decide On Fluoridation Question?

"Let her (truth) and falsehood grapple; who ever knew truth put to the worse in a free and open encounter? (Areopagita, 1644)."

The word is out all over town—fluoride-in-our-water-advocates are visiting civic groups, associations and other agencies and urging endorsement of the so-called blessing on our city fathers.

It has been suggested by several of the speakers in favor of this experiment that little city-wide publicity be given the proposal as who "knows what crank may get up and kill the whole idea by saying fluoride in the water is rat poison."

Put the editor of the Home News down as the first crank—if you are talking about putting Sodium Flouride in Montgomery's pure city water, we say it is "rat poison".

Now, we have many good friends who are on the side that wishes to put fluoride in our water. More power to you.

The Home News will print all arguments, pro and con, that come to us.

In our American way of life, before our country became infiltrated with Socialists and Communistic schemes, it was routine procedure for the judges in courtroom cases to instruct the jury that if any witness had made one false statement, his entire testimony should be ruled out.

When someone asks you to support fluoride for our water, ask these questions.

(1) what kind of fluoride? sodium (look it up in Websters)

Search On For Alabama's Own Miss Universe

The excitement of Alabama's Miss Universe Contest for 1960 got underway this week when Bob Hart, president of the Birmingham Jaycees and Ben McKinnon, general manager of WSGN Radio, announced co-sponsorship of the event .

The search has begun for Alabama's most beautiful girl to represent this state in the celebrated Miss Universe Pageant in Long Beach, California July 16-26th. Alabama's Miss Universe will be crowned in Birmingham at The Club on June 26th, and will compete with entries from other states for the title of "Miss U. S. A.," who will represent the United States in the Miss Universe competition.

Patterson Faces Real Test, Who'll Run Administration?

TROUBLE

Snarled is the Senate business and fireworks abound in the House of Representatives. Relatively few bills have been introduced in either House as Governor Patterson's tax demands have brought on full fledegd filibusters in both houses, although the legislature has just begun. There is no doubt that there is a revolt against the administration on both sides of the legislative hall.

An old time political observer commented that he had never seen the legislature so tied up in such a short period of time. This legislature started off where the Folsom legislature ended.

PATTERSON BLAMED FOR FILIBUSTER

The general impression that the legislative knot is Patterson's responsibility stems from various reasons. John Patterson has held himself aloft from the individual members of the legislature making it most difficult for the legislators to see him to discuss matters with them. From the beginning of his administration, Patterson locked himself up in his "ivory tower" and was unavailable to the legislators except the administration's top leaders. When the legislators felt they could not discuss their views on the various issues with the Governor, there was naturally a general drawing away from the Governor's political camp. This administration has generated the impression, rightly or wrongly, that it was going to dictate the policies to the legislature whether the legislators liked it or not.

JOE ROBERTSON

Joe Robertson, Governor Patterson's executive secretary and captain of the palace guard, stands alertly at guarding the privacy of Patterson's "ivory tower," but his popularity is not high with that of the average legislator. Possibly he needs a lesson in diplomacy.

DIVISION OF THE LEGISLATURE

The political division of the legislature has not been the Black Belters versus the non-Black Belters as some reports would indicate but the division is along the lines either for or against Patterson's sizable tax increase program. The opposition is general throughout the state. The shifting of the political influence from Patterson has

Gallion Plan To Expose Race-Meddling Group Needs Legislative Support

BY BILL CLEGHORN

A plan submitted by Alabama's Attorney General, McDonald Gallion, has won approval from the National Conference of Attorney Generals in New Orleans.

It was a proposal that eight Southeastern states automatically exchange legal information on all racial suits.

It is suggested that the group also send each other complete files on all organizations stirring up racial turmoil in the states.

The legislatures of each state should pass legislation supporting this move, with provisions that make it mandatory for all contributions of money ,legal, or "educational" advice receiveed by any organization in Alabama be reported to the Attorney General and made public.

This would put the spotlight on such outfits as the Southern Regional Council and their devious ways of promoting racial turmoil in the South.

John Patterson ran on a segregation platform. He said he would put the NAACP out of business.

Yes, it is the Southern Regional Council, the outfit that played a leading role in the Montgomery meeting of white and Negro women last September. And the same outfit that poured money and support into Little Rock during the period the Airborne troops were invading the city, Sept. 1957. Some of the same troops that Gov. John Patterson reviewed last month.

N. E. Atlanta, Ga., is the recipient of Ford, Fund for the Republic grants of close to a million dollars. Southern Regional Council is the parent organization of 12 statewide councils on Human Relations operated only in the Southern States.

This very suspect organization has been severaly criticized by the attorney generals of several Southern States for meddling in racial integration.

Southern Regional Council has been able to exploit the facilities of religion and education because of a quasi-religious status afforded by occupancy of a space in a building owned by a huge church (Methodist).

The leadership of a few units of the Communist apparatus have records of Communist affiliations which exceed those of present and past directors of Southern Regional Council.

Red's Friends

Bruce Bennett, attorney general of Arkansas, in background material on the organization stirring up strife in the South, points out the Southern Regional Council has many officers and directors who are also national officers of the NAACP and other organizations, some that have been cited as subversive by the U. S. House Un-American Activities Committee, the Senate Internal Security Committee, and even the Attorney General of the United States.

Mr. Bennett points out that Jim Jackson is the executive secretary of the Council.

Daisy Bates, of the Little Rock, Ark., school agony, is also a director of this organization in Arkansas along with Harry Ashmore, editor of the Little Rock daily.

According to the Georgia Commission on Education, 1958 report, The Daily Worker, official organ of the Communist Party, credits the foundation of Southern Regional Council to Jim Jackson, Negro Communist, presently head of Southern Affairs Commission of the Communist Party. Jackson is also credited with the establishment of Southern Conference Education Fund.; and Southern Conference for Human Welfare, both organizations are recognized parts of the Communist apparatus and have interlocking directorates with Southern Regional Council.

VIEW FROM THE GRASS ROOTS LEVEL

Is Our Credit Good?

It seems unthinkable—even insulting—for a foreign country to question the credit of the United States. Yet President Eisenhower disclosed that 21 foreign governments have questioned "our ability to pay our bills and keep the dollar sound as it needs to be".

What's worse, private American citizens are expressing the same kind of doubts. They are refusing to buy U. S. bonds—the government's promice to pay, with interest.

Why this doubt in the dollar? Because for 24 of the last 28 years the United States has spent more than its income. The government has piled up a debt of 283 billiom dollars, and has helped produce inflation that cut the buying power of the dollar. As a result, people don't want to invest in long-term government bonds because they are afraid the money they get back won't buy as much as the money they put in.

Obviously the government wouldn't need to borrow if Congress didn't spend more money than the treasury takes in. If we didn't need to borrow, there would be no credit problem. So to solve the problem—or at least to keep it from getting worse—it is essenial for us to keep Congress from spending more money than we give it to spend in taxes.

. . . Instead of being on the defensive, would not our strength lie less in constantly dealing with the Soviets than in pleading for the liberty and independence of the submerged population of Eastern Europe? There is nothing that so much distrubs a thief as to be caught with the stolen goods in his own hands, and not all the waters of the seven seas are enough to wash the blood from the Soveit hands that suppressed the freedom fighters of Hungary.

. . . So long as the Soviets can make the United States discuss nuclear warfare, space, summit meetings and the free city of Berlin, it distracts the Western World from the basic problem of taking the stolen goods from their hands.

State Club Women Oppose Pending Civil Rights Bill

The Alabama Federation of Women's Clubs, which represents more than 32;000 state club women in 600 clubs, have unanimously adopted a resolution of opposition to the proposed Civil Rights bills now before Congress.

Meeting in Dothan, the ladies at their spring session, blasted the pending legislation as in direct violation of the Bill of Rights.

Mrs. Melvin Dassinger, who played a leading role in pushing the same resolution through the district meeting, presented the motion. She is a resident of Millbrook.

The resolution condemned all of the so-dalled civil rights bills Copies of the resolution were telegraphed to all Alabama Senators and Representatives.

Gov. Orval Faubus To Speak In Tuscaloosa And At State Capitol

Alabama has officially invited one of the nation's most outstanding young governors, Orval Faubus, Governor of Arkansas to address a joint session of the House and Senate.

The state legislature adopted a resolution Friday extending the invitation.

Faubus is scheduled to be a speaker at a convention in Tuscaloosa next month at which time caravans of citizens from all over the South are expected to appear.

One of the nation's most popular public officials, Gov. Faubus, has the support of not only a vast majority of the citizens of his own state, but a sweeping majority of the citizens of the South.

In addition, Faubus, is very popular all over the United States of America. Recent surveys reveal that he is one of the most popular personalities in public life among the people of such cities as Philadelphia, Cleveland, Detroit, and Chicago.

According to newspaper accounts of Faubus, his popularity is based on his courageous resistance to bayonet tyranny; his intelligent defense of the Constitution provisions for states rights; his refusal to be intimidated; his great respect for the rights of the electorate; his willingness to go the second mile; his fearless attacks on Communism, demagoguery and Supreme Court tyranny.

A vigorous and dynamic personility Faubus attracts thousands wherever he appears. His line of approach is packed with well-wishers.

Dixie needs an honest, sincere champion of States Rights, after years of lip service from phoney politicians.

George Gallup in his report for December 27 announces that Governor Orval Faubus, according to a recent Gallup Poll, is one of the ten most admired men of the world among Americans. Others on this list are President Eisenhower, Sir Winston Churchill, Dr. Albet Schweitzer, Rev. Billy Graham, Former President Truman, General Douglas MacArthur, Vice President Nixon, Dr. Jonas Salk and Bernard Baruch.

DIVISION OF THE LEGISLATURE

The political division of the legislature has not been the Black Belters versus the non-Black Belters as some reports would indicate but the division is along the lines either for or against Patterson's sizable tax increase program. The opposition is general throughout the state. The shifting of the political influence from Patterson has happened so suddenly that those who find themselves in opposition with the tax increase do not consider themselves anti-administration—but the issues are there.

HARD FEELINGS IN THE HOUSE

The anti-tax legislators were willing to forego the reading of the 400-page insurance bill Friday, but when the administration forces finished hurling charges against them, the anti-tax legislators voted to have the Clerks continue reading. Administration spokesman, Bob Gilchrist, among other things accused his anti-tax colleagues of trying to destroy the public schools of Alabama and that they wanted to "rule or ruin." Mr. Gilchrists' statements are the very sentiments of those anti-tax legislators have about Governor Patterson. Gilchrist's belated denial of Patterson's statement that Patterson would "ramrod" the loan measure through the legislature failed to impress his fellow members.

PATTERSON'S INEXPERIENCE

One of the veteran Senators when asked of his opinion as to the cause of the legislature trouble sumned up the situation briefly "Patterson's inexperience." Despite the fact that the administration has lost control of the Senate, good will reigned among the members as no bitter barbs had been exchanged.

NETTLES ATTACK

Represntative Sam Nettles of Arlington attacked the Patterson Administration as trying to pretend to be the sole defender of the faith, segregation. Nettles having a segregation bill which would assist the attorney general in his fight against the examination of the records of the NAACP and other integrated outfits made a determined effort to see Patterson to enlist Patterson's support. He was unable to get past the palace guard but did finally see Meriwether. The administration without showing him the courtesy of discussing this bill introduced his own bill as the administration's bill.

SINCERE MEN IN LEGISLATURE

There are a number of good men in the legislature and despite the fact that all business has come to a stop at the present time, they may be able to straighten the legislature out and accomplish some good before it is over.

Teenage Reading Habits Revealed In New Survey

Who says teenagers don't read? A nation-wide survey just completed finds two out of three American teenagers "currently reading a book" other than a schoolbook. Compared with recent figures on adult reading, this indicates that teenagers out-read the adult population nearly four to one.

They read magazines and newspapers, too—and still find time to watch about two hours of television a day.

These are among recent findings of the nation's largest youth poll—the Institute of Student Opinion, sponsored by Scholastic Magazines, Inc. The ISO survey of teenage reading habits was conducted in connection with National Library Week.

According to the 10,149 teenagers polled, their main source of books is libraries. Asked where they got the last book they had read, nearly two-thrids replied "public library" or "school library."

But they buy books, too—lots of them. 26 per cent reported buying a book—either paperbound or hard-cover—during the preceding thirty days.

In the nation-wide poll just completed, ISO also reports on the number of books in teenagers homes, and to what extent their families read magazines and daily newspapers. Findings are based on a scientifically selected cross-section of students from all parts of the country in public and private high schools of all sizes.

Commenting on the figures just released, ISO officials caution that some exaggeration is inevitable in questions about book buying and ownership. All possible steps, however, were taken to minimize inflated replies.

The Institute of Student Opinion, an independent activity sponsored by Scholastic Magazines, Inc., has been surveying the opinions of American teenagers since 1943. Technical consultant for the ISO polls is Dr. Harry Deane Wolfe, professor of Marketing, University of Wisconsin School of Commerce.

TIME TO TALK FREEDOM

What's happening to patriotism in this country? It's a question every American ought to ask himself. Senator Barry Goldwater of Arizona recently said that there is a sign on the West Point parade grounds: "When the flag passes, gentlemen will remove their hats." Watch the average parade, said the senator and see how many hat you see still on when the flag goes by. "You ought to walk up and knock them off", he said.

The senator's point was that Americans should be more agressive about their patriotism. We should be proud to stand up for our country its institutions and its way of life. The flag is not a partisan matter; it has nothing to do with the Republican party or the Democratic party. It is a smybol of, and businessmen have made America and will keep making it, but not when you are cowards.

"You are in business to make a dollar. Don't be ashamed of it. The free enterprise system is the only vehicle that can provide profit and can provide jobs for millions and millions of American workers."

That's the right spirit! Businessmen must not allow themselves to be pressured by the pro-leftists until they become apologetic about money-making. It was distressing recently to read that a Congressman from the Midwest proudly announced he was selling all his securities. It's not wrong for a Congressman to own shares in American enterprise. This is a capitalist, not a communist country. A man who owns stocks should not be

Alabama Received $145,914 In Cancer Grants During Last Year

BIRMINGHAM, Ala.—Alabama institutions received cancer research grants totaling $145,914 last year from the American Cancer Society, Inc., according to figures received from the national office.

This amount was more than Alabama sent to the national office during the same period.

Figures released by the Alabama division office here showed the following ACS grants for 1958 to: Alabama Polytechnic Institute, Auburn, $17,135; Southern Research Institute, Birmingham, $103,908; Medical College of Alabama, Birmingham, $24,871.

Mrs. Lillian G. Meade, Birmingham, state executive director of ACS, said the Alabama division sends 40 per cent of funds raised ganization for support of its three-point program of education, research and service. The remaining 60 per cent stays in Alabama for local program support.

In 1958 ACS raised $287,636 in Alabama, of which 40 per cent, or $114,800, went to the national organization. This was $31,114 less than the $145,914 allocated to Alabama institutions. ACS continues to support cancer research work in these institutions.

TIME TO TALK FREEDOM

What's happening to patriotism in this country? It's a question every American ought to ask himself. Senator Barry Goldwater of Arizona recently said that there is a sign on the West Point parade grounds: "When the flag passes, gentlemen will remove their hats." Watch the average parade, said the senator and see how many hat you see still on when the flag goes by. "You ought to walk up and knock them off", he said.

The senator's point was that Americans should be more agressive about their patriotism. We should be proud to stand up for our country its institutions and its way of life. The flag is not a partisan matter; it has nothing to do with the Republican party or the Democratic party. It is a smybol of, and a mark of respect for, the philosophy of freedom under which this nation was founded.

How many buildings have flagpoles? How many companies show the flag on national days? How many peeple talk with feeling about this great country of ours and its freedoms? The lack of aggressive patriotism, said Senator Goldwater, may be a sign that we may be further down the road to socialism than we like to think. The pro-leftists and the welfare statists have so derided this republic, the constitution, states rights and other glorious features of the United States that many Americans don't fight back in conversation.

Senator Goldwwater, who is a departmeut store owner in private life, charges that many American businessmen have been subjected to so much "libral" propaganda that they are beaten down. "I watch them come to the halls of Congress," said the senator, "and testify before our committees as whipped dogs." Speaking sternly to businessmen he said: "You businessmen have made America and will keep making it, but not when you are cowards.

"You are in business to make a dollar. Don't be ashamed of it. The free enterprise system is the only vehicle that can provide profit and can provide jobs for millions and millions of American workers."

That's the right spirit! Businessmen must not allow themselves to be pressured by the pro-leftists until they become apologetic about money-making. It was distressing recently to read that a Congressman from the Midwest proudly announced he was selling all his securities. It's not wrong for a Congressman to own shares in American enterprise. This is a capitalist, not a communist country. A man who owns stocks should not be ashamed to tell the world.

Jimmy Hoffa, boss of the Teamsters, thumbs his nose at decent Americans. The "liberals" aren't in the least hesitant about treating the Treasury as a grab bag. They are aggressive in their attacks on the kind of government the founding fathers created and millions of hard-working business-minded Americans have maintained over the years.

No one has to tell the enemies of America and our great free enterprise system to be aggressive. They are fighting tooth-and-nail to get what they want—the corruption and socialization of the United States. They are driving for power with all their energies.

Americans who believe in states rights and private business, in the profit motive and self-reliance, must outdo the "liberals" in aggressiveness. Our capitalist society works magnificiently. It is the greatest engine of productivity the world has ever seen. Americans should never stop talking about it and praising its achievements. Adults who know freedom's worth should preach it to the younger generation that the "liberals" are wooing so hard. Free enterprise is the great story of America. It should be told again and again in the schools and all the institutions of every community.

A very wise man once observed that the world, at any given time, belongs to those who are dedicated and enthusiastic. If we are any less dedicated and enthusiastic about our traditional American way of life than those who oppose it, then we only deserve to lose it. We need a rebirth of patriotism.

Heart Disease To Be Studied By Doctors At Symposium

Doctors from over all of Alabama will convene in Birmingham on Sunday, May 17 to hear and to take part in a discussion on congestive heart failure. The occasion will be a symposium on congestive heart disease which is being sponsored by the Alabama Heart Association in cooperation with the Alabama Academy of General Practice, the Medical Association of the State of Alabama and the Medical College of Alabama.

The meeting will be in session all day as visiting doctors from over the state hear talks on the causes and some forms of treatment for congestive heart failure —probably the largest single disease problem with which the general practitioner has to deal in his daily routine.

Speakers on the Symposium will be Dr. Lloyd Hefner, Assistant Professor of Medicine at the Medical College of Alabama, speaking on "Causes of Congestive Heart Failure," Dr. William E. Lawrence, a practicing physician, will discuss the use of "Oral Diuretics in Congestive Heart Failure" and Dr. Charles Porter, Chief of the Department of Medicine at Lloyd Noland Hospital, will speak on the "Uses and Abuses of Digitalis" All three speakers will take part on a panel discussion in the afternoon, which will round out the day's program.

Dr. W. J. B. Owings, of Brent, Alabama, and Dr. C. W. Neville, Birmingham, president and chairman of the Board of the Alabama Academy of General Practice will preside at the morning and afternoon sessions, respectively.

Dr. D. O. Wright, Chairman of the Board, Alabama Heart Association will extend the official welcome to the physicians at the meeting.

of them. 26 per cent reported buying a book—either paperbound or hard-cover—during the preceding thirty days.

In the nation-wide poll just completed, ISO also reports on the number of books in teenagers homes, and to what extent their families read magazines and daily newspapers. Findings are based on a scientifically selected cross-section of students from all parts of the country in public and private high schools of all sizes.

Commenting on the figures just released, ISO officials caution that some exaggeration is inevitable in questions about book buying and ownership. All possible steps, however, were taken to minimize inflated replies.

The Institute of Student Opinion, an independent activity sponsored by Scholastic Magazines, Inc., has been surveying the opinions of American teenagers since 1943. Technical consultant for the ISO polls is Dr. Harry Deane Wolfe, professor of Marketing, University of Wisconsin School of Commerce.

Make Proof

We, the editor of the Home News, have received letters from officials of this SRC, including a man Harold Fleming, who calls himself the executive director and a Mrs. M. E. Tilly, who represented the Council at Montgomery's Sept. meeting of white and Negro women, reported in the Home News.

Mrs. Tilly's record goes back to Harry Truman's infamous Civil Rights Committee of 1946. The House Un-American Activities Committee and Mr. Eugene Cook of Georgia can give you additional data on Mrs. Tilly and her close, warm, personal friend, Ralph McGill.

At the same time, Alabama's Folsom Legislature was handing this outfit $16,000, the Fund for the Republic was giving them $20,000 for "Program of fact-finding and education concerning interracial problems" (long phrase for race-mixing). See the Jan. 1959 Report of the Fund.

A former director of the Council, George Mitchell, once told an audience in San Francisco, that, "we shall break the corn pone curtain in the South and integrate the South section by section."

Will he do it with our money?

Georgia's Attorney General Eugene Cook in his report, "The Ugly Truth About the NAACP" said the Southern Regional Council is dominated by individuals, who like the officials of the NAACP, have long records of affinity for and participation in Communist-front fellow-travelling, left wing and subversive organizations and activities.

Sworn testimony taken by both House and Senate Committees has placed known Communists in this organization.

The Southern Regional Council was represented at the Highlander Folk School seminar in the person of Mr. Fred Routh. Routh bore the title of assistant director of the Southern Regional Council.

We have photographs of Mr. Routh at this meeting. We also have photographs of the meeting of white and negro women in Montgomery last September. They met to discuss the problem.

Alabama Received $145,914 In Cancer Grants During Last Year

BIRMINGHAM, Ala.—Alabama institutions received cancer research grants totaling $145,914 last year from the American Cancer Society, Inc., according to figures received from the national office.

This amount was more than Alabama sent to the national office during the same period.

Figures released by the Alabama division office here showed the following ACS grants for 1958 to: Alabama Polytechnic Institute, Auburn, $17,135; Southern Research Institute, Birmingham, $103,908; Medical College of Alabama, Birmingham, $24,871.

Mrs. Lillian G. Meade, Birmingham, state executive director of ACS, said the Alabama division sends 40 per cent of funds raised in Alabama to the national organization for support of its three-point program of education, research and service. The remaining 60 per cent stays in Alabama for local program support.

In 1958 ACS raised $287,636 in Alabama, of which 40 per cent, or $114,800, went to the national organization. This was $31,114 less than the $145,914 allocated to Alabama institutions. ACS continues to support cancer research work in these institutions.

April is "Cancer Control" month, and an educational and fund-raising crusade is currently in progress in Alabama and throughout the nation. Funds contributed during this campaign, as well as memorial gifts and bequests made throughout the year, are used to support the work of the Cancer Society.

Dr. Ralph Draughon Appointed Board Of SREB Committee

ATLANTA, Ga.—Dr Ralph B. Draughon, president of Alabama Polytechnic Institute, has been appointed to the Executive Committee of the Southern Regional Education Board by Chairman Cecil H. Underwood governor of West Virginia.

SREB was established in 1949 through legislative action of the Southern states for the purpose of making better use of higher education resources of the states through cooperation across state lines. Its members are the governors of 16 Southern states and four persons appointed by each governor.

Other Alabama members of the Board are: Governor John Patterson; Mr. Fred Folsom of Cullman; Dr. Frank A. Rose, president of the University of Alabama; and Sen. Dave Archer of Huntsville.

Atlanta Churches Plans Private Schools

ATLANTA, Ga. —Churches in Atlanta and other parts of Georgia are planning to operate their own schools in th eevent public schools are shut down to avoid integration. Among the latest taking such a step was Grace Methodist church here, which appointed a committee to plan classes if the need arises.

Dr. Charles L. Allen, pastor of the church, labelling the closing of public schools a "tragedy," said evehyone should do everything he can to prevent a shut down.

Wage Earners Hourly Pay Raise Makes Record For Second Month

General wage rate increase throughout the textile industry, more business and new orders received by blast furnaces and steel works increased the average hourly earnings of factory production workers in Alabama during March to $1.89 to establish an all-time high for the second consecutive month, said Ralph R. Williams, Director of the Alabama Department of Industrial Relations today.

The rate of $1.89 per hour set in March was ten cents above the comparable month in 1958. Weekly earnings averaged $75.03, an increase of $1.37 over February and $7.91 above the weekly pay check in March 1958, Williams said.

Insured unemployment under the regular State and federal programs averaged 28,799 weekly during March, some 3,600 under February and approximately 17,000 less than the March 1958 figure. Williams said increased job opportunities in factories and trade establishments, weather conditions favorable for outdoor work, and exhaustions of benefit rights were factors contributing to the downturn.

In addition to the unemployed insured under the federal employees and State programs, a weekly average of 8,886 jobless workers claimed benefits under the Temporary Unemployment Compensation or the veterans programs. This was a drop of approximately 1,000 from the February total for this group. Williams said that at this time there are no indications of a major change in either direction in insured employment during April.

A Simple and Carefree Dessert

If the warm weather's put your family in an outdoor mood, treat them to dinner on the terrace or in the backyard. Be smart and plan an easy menu so you can be as carefree as the diners. For an excellent dessert selection, try Simple Simon's new improved frozen cream pie. Choose from the variety of flavors: chocolate, lemon, coconut and strawberry. They all feature a brand-new crust made from a recipe developed to guarantee perfect texture and flavor. It's flaky, tender, golden brown every time, with nary a single, soggy crumb.

The eye-appealing, flavor-packed fillings are made with the finest ingredients . . . slices of juicy frozen California strawberries, imported Dutch chocolate, fresh lemon juice and toasted grated coconut are all used in these pies to make them the best cream pies you've ever tasted. Expert bakers are constantly testing and retesting the pies to maintain this quality.

Each pie weighs a pound and measures 8 inches in diameter . . . plenty for 6 generous servings. Keep your freezer well stocked with Simple Simon frozen cream pies. With less than 45 minutes defrosting, you'll have a party-perfect dessert or snack for family or company . . . indoors or out.

The Commies and Integration . . . No. 3

Reds Goad NAACP To End Moderation

This is the third of five articles on the part played by Communists in bringing about racial troubles in the South. It is reprinted from The Standard-Times of New Bedford, Mass.

WASHINGTON—The success of Communist efforts to exploit the Southern Negro under the guise of "democratization" became fully evident in 1954 and the three subsequent years. The Supreme Court's historic 1954 ruling on school segregation was in judgement on four cases brought before it by the National Association of Advancement for Colored People which for years had been a priority objective of Communist infiltration.

The NAACP charged that Negro children in Delaware, Kansas, South Carolina and Virginia were being denied their rights under the 14th Amendment.

The court did not rule on this aspect. Instead, Chief Justice Earl Warren in the written opinion, declared that the court found for the NAACP because segregated schools induced a feeling of inferiority among Negro children.

THIS SOCIOLOGICAL view, the justice stated, is "amply supported by modern authority." He cited six books by such "modern authorities."

Two of the six authorities were Theodore Brameld and E. Franklin Frazier. Between [illegible] they have been members of or identified with 38 organizations listed as Communist, Communist-fronts or Communist-dominated.

A third "authority" was K.B. Clark. While arguments were being heard by the court on the four cases, Clark was on the payroll of the NAACP as a "social science expert."

A fourth authority cited by Justice Warren was the book, "An American Dilemma," edited by Gunnar Myrdal, a Swedish socialist. The chief justice emphasized the importance of this book in the court's decision by saying it was depended on "generally," that is from cover to cover.

Sixteen of the contributors to Myrdal's book have long records of pro-Communist affiliation and activity. One, W. E. B. Dubois, identified by the Communist Party as the "honorary chairman" of the NAACP, had a hand in 82 parts of the book. Dubois has been identified with 80 Communist fronts, reportedly more than any other American citizen.

Dubois intervened in behalf of executed Communist spies Julius and Ethel Rosenberg and sent the Kremlin a message of condolence on the death of Stalin.

Myrdal, himself, has written that the U. S. Constitution is "impractical and unfitted to modern conditions." Its adoption was "nearly a plot against the common people," said this foreign authority on American Negro problems.

THE COURT'S decision gave new influence to the NAACP. Its officers hailed the decision but indicated that it would not change the organization's plan for calm and orderly progress in race relations.

"We accept the decision quietly, unless there is deliberately-fomented trouble," said the late Walter White, then executive secretary of NAACP.

Thurgood Marshall, chief NAACP counsel, who had argued the school cases before the court, said, "The people will get together and work this thing out."

The Communist Party, however, wanted no part of moderation. It wanted the "big sharp struggles" its leaders had forecast, and racial unrest.

THE RECORD from the Supreme Court decision until the climax at Little Rock makes it plain which philosophy was the dominant one.

Moderation was forgotten.

The next three years brought unprecedented civil disobedience and violence in the South's racial affairs. There were all-out "incidents" of long duration in Tuskegee, Ala., Charleston, S. C., Tallahassee, Fla., Montgomery, Ala., Americus, Ga., and Clinton, Tenn., to name only the major ones.

GAVE RULING—Chief Justice Warren.

The NAACP played a prominent role in each, but the atmosphere was not the moderate one ostensibly espoused by the NAACP.

"IN MY OPINION, every major racial disturbance in the South since 1954 has been inspired and directed by the Communist Party," Mrs. Paul Crouch, widow of a former Communist leader, told The Standard-Times. Her husband was a top Communist functionary in the South for 13 years, and she was his aid throughout the period.

Communist exploitation of the Negro through the NAACP is attested by the proceedings of the 1957 national convention of the Communist Party. That convention adopted as its main resolution, "the question of Negro freedom . . . the crucial domestic issue of the day . . . requiring support of the program of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People."

Communist penetration of the NAACP in these important years is conceded by the NAACP itself.

On Feb. 14, 1956, Leroy Watkins, who succeeded White as NAACP executive secretary, warned all chapters to guard against the "intensive efforts" of Communists to infiltrate.

At that very time, however, the NAACP's official publication, "The Crisis," was recommending as MUST background reading for Negroes, books by Claude Lightfoot, chairman of the Illinois Communist Party, and Doxey E. Wilkerson, member of the party's National Committee.

Communist dominance of Negro civil rights developments after the Supreme Court decision is illustrated, also, in the activities of the Highlander School, influential "sociological" workshop in the South.

Highlander, according to testimony before a Congressional committee, was founded by a Communist and by a man who refused to state his beliefs.

Since 1954, Highlander has held a series of "workshops to develop plans for an orderly transition from segregated to intergrated schools."

At the last workshop, held over the Labor Day weekend just before the trouble at Little Rock, the leaders of every important racial strife incident in the South since 1954 were present.

Among those attending the important Highlander workshop was the Rev. Martin Luther King, leader of the Montgomery, Ala., bus boycott.

King was to be at Little Rock and, in 1956, at the White House protesting integration data.

By the time Central High School in Little Rock was open for its 1957-58 school year the Communist Party was marching step by step with the NAACP, whether the good element in the NAACP liked it or not.

White Women, Negro
Hold Meeting At St. J

By BILL CLEGHORN
Editor, the Home News

(Ed. Note—The facts outlined in the story below were supplied to the Home News by eye witnesses who either attended the meeting or were stationed outside the meeting place).

Montgomery, our home town, the Cradle of the Confederacy, long regarded as a stronghold of the Deep South, now holds the distinction as being the site of a recent inter-racial meeting devoted to the general theme of "the problems of integration."

The meeting, called a district meeting of the Fellowship of the Concerned, drew participants from our own white communities and the Negro neighborhoods plus two rather mysterious white women from Atlanta, to a building at St. Jude's Hospital, September 27.

Approximately 30 white women were in attendance along with 30 or 40 Negro women and three Negro men. No white men were noted going or coming to the gathering. The Saturday meeting lasted from approximately 9:30 a. m. until 3:30 p. m.

Reports of the meeting have been circulating around Montgomery for several weeks although the white women who appeared to be in charge gave no indication that they desired publicity on the affair!

The theme of the meeting as outlined to the participants was "Women's Role in the Affairs of the World." The opening prayer was given by Dr. R. D. Crockett (negro) and the devotional by Mrs. Kalman Shmartz, Jr., on "Woman's Role in the Old Testament."

According to a letter received by one white woman (apparently by mistake), the Montgomery Fellowship of the Concerned is "a fellowship of Church women, leaders of both races and the three faiths, concerned about their South. There are no officers and no membership dues."

The letter was signed by a Mrs. Earl P. Andrews.

The meeting was held in the Father Purcell Unit of St. Judes Hospital Doctor's Conference Room.

Broken up into morning and afternoon sessions, a noon day box lunch, delivered by a representative of Furr's Cafe, a white restaurant on Fairview Ave., was served the participants.

On the program was Mrs. H. Victor Kerns, 481 Japonica, serving as sergeant-at-arms. Mr. Kerns is now reported to be a teacher at Cloverdale School.

A Jo Ann Robinson, teacher at Alabama State Teachers College, and a Mrs. Weisenberg, were in charge of taking notes, gathering comments and mailing those present a report.

(This newspaper did not receive a report from this source.)

A Mrs. J. F. McLeod, College Court, was registering attendants.

Mrs. Earl P. Andrews who served as narrator, stressed no publicity. Another very active participant was a Mrs. Bernard Lobman (reported to be in age bracket 40 to 55).

One Negro woman was active. She was a doctor's wife, about 50 years old, with her hair done in a pony tail. She passed out programs.

According to our reports, the white women were sitting together and the Negroes were sitting to themselves. Only a few white women chose to sit with the Negroes.

[illegible] were sitting together and the Negroes were sitting to themselves. Only a few white women chose to sit with the Negroes.

"NEW SOUTH"

Mrs. M. E. Tilly, Atlanta, Ga., brought literature: Sept. 1958 copy of "New South" Magazine. (Paul Crouch, former Communist who turned informer, stated under oath that this was a Communist front magazine when he was editor for about ten years); a reprint of Journal & Guide, Norfolk, Virginia, May 31, 1958 edition on "How Southern Conferene of Race Leaders Became Standing Good Will Group."; a reprint of Richmond Times-Dispatch Aug. 21, 1958 edition on "A Race Agency and the Facts", more about the Southern Regional Council on Interracial Cooperation, not Southern Conference for Human Welfare.

On the morning program were four speakers: Miss Violaine Junod, Atlanta, Ga., whose car tag registration number (Georgia 1-97674), gives the same address as the Southern Regional Council, who spoke on Woman's Role in South Africa; a Mrs. John L. Sanders, who is apparently of Japanese descent, spoke on Japan; Mrs. Frank Anderson spoke on England. (A Mr. Frank Anderson is editor of a Maxwell Field newspaper); and Mrs. J. P. Caple, Negro wife of a Montgomery dentist, spoke on various countries.

The afternoon session included talks by a Mrs. Lois L. Reeves, "Women's Role in the New Testament," and Mrs. H. L. Foster, Mrs. Albert C Winn, and Mrs. M. E. Tilly, all of whom spoke on Women's Role in the New South.

PRAISE ROSA

Rosa Parks, Negro woman whose arrest sparked the Montgomery bus boycott, was highly praised at the meeting.

Women's Role In Integration Theme Of Group

(Notes taken during sessions of the "Fellowship Meeting" of white and negro women and negro men held at St. Jude's Hospital, Sept. 27).

Women should have more interest in world affairs than men, the participants in an interracial "Fellowship of the Cocnerned" were told at district rally held recently, here, in Montgomery, by a visitor from Atlanta who calls the Union of South Africa home.

The speaker, a white woman who identified herself as Miss Violaine Junod, a lecturer at the University of South Africa, gave what was termed the most lengthy, humorous, and perhaps ridiculous talk of the sessions, our reporter said.

Miss Junod, whose background is rather vague, began by stating women are biologically different from men and should recognize that fact instead of trying to be the same as men.

She stated that women are always sure of their child although the man must rely only on faith in this matter.

Referring to Gandhi, the Anti Christ leader, Miss Junod, a woman of approximately 40 years, said that his supporters were mostly women.

She led a brief discusison on the Black Sash Movement in South Africa. This is a group of white women in Africa who sponsors passive resistance to segregation.

Miss Junod closed by urging the women present to keep their feminity and to use it for the cause.

The wife of a Negro dentist, J. P. Caples, mentioned just about every country known to man and some woman in each that was prominent. She referred to Life, Dec. 24, 1956 as her principal source. Heading her list of Americans was Rosa Parks, who, she stated, had the courage to keep her seat when a white man wanted her to give it up to him. Then she praised the Negro women of Montgomery for refu ing to ride the buses during t boycott. She concluded with t current problem "in Montgome with the parks", pointing out th on the petition for integrati presented to the city commission ers were the names of many w men.

James Jackson's 40th Birthday:
Hero Son of the Negro People

By S. D. Rock

This is the 40th birthday of James E. Jackson, Jr. It also marks roughly three-and-a-half years that this stalwart Marxist leader, Southern regional secretary of the Communist Party and member of its national committee, has lived the life of a political refugee, separated from his family, hunted by the vengeful, fascist-minded political police of the FBI.

Both these facts deserve widespread recognition and commemoration in the ranks of Communists, working-class militants and the Negro people.

As the masses gird themselves for more decisive battles against the small handful of ruling class advocates of fascism and genocidal war, their ranks were weakened by the absence of Jim Jackson. For he symbolized and embodies these qualities and skills of leadership most sorely needed now.

Proud son of the Negro people, Jim Jackson's indelible contributions to their struggles began when, as a student in the jimcrow public schools of his native Richmond, Va., he turned his exceptional mind beyond the classroom to find the answers to the very segregation of which he and his fellow pupils were the victims; to the daily indignities and abuses which his people suffered at the hands of the 'white supremacist' lords of the town; to the miserable wages of the factory 'hands' in the tobacco plants, the plodding domestic workers and the servants in the big hotels; to the insufferable hovels and firetraps which the Negro workers of Richmond inhabited--and still inhabit.

Since those early days, there are few basic struggles of the Negro nation and people in the South, or of the Southern workers and poor farmers, Negro and white which have not borne to some degree the imprint of his direct participation or his guidance of the class-conscious forces within them.

As the drive to break the Wall Street-Dixiecrat stranglehold on the political life of the South (and consequently the nation) takes shape in an ever more energetic and demanding movement for the full franchise, for Negro and popular representation, it is appropriate to recall that Jim Jackson and a small band of young Southerners launched the first anti-polltax week in Birmingham, Ala., in 1940. This observance soon flowered into a national campaign which reduced the number of polltax states from eight to five and stimulated voter registration movements among the Negro masses in every Southern state.

And when, in 1946, the first concerted effort of this generation was made to register Negroes to vote in Mississippi (paradise of the Ku Klux Klans); bitter-end defender of feudal oligarchy; current spawner of the misnamed 'Citizens Councils' aimed at terrorizing Negro children and parents into forfeiting their constitutional right to equal and integrated education,

Jim Jackson was there as an officer of the Southern Negro Youth Congress, spearheading the movement, rallying his fellow-Negro veterans to take advantage of their poll-tax exemption and vote.

In the eyes of the big-planter clique that rules Mississippi on behalf of finance capital, the advocacy of Negro voting in 'their' state was strictly 'illegal' in 1946. Jim Jackson had to find ingenious methods to get his message over to the Negro veterans. Regular-sized leaflets would be too bulky; but thousands of vets found in their hands little slips of paper, slightly bigger than a calling card and inscribed with the legend:

Negro Veterans
You who laid old Hitler low,
Don't be scared of old Bilbo;
Just like Hitler's friend Tojo,
Bilbo, too, has got to go!
Register and Vote!
Join the S. N. Y. C.!

There was at least as much truth as poetry in Jim Jackson's 'calling card.' The exposure of the corrupt practices, fraud and intimidation which Bilbo used to keep Negroes from voting against him in 1946 led to a movement to deny him the seat he had held in the Senate by identical methods term after term. The movement developed mass proportions and was stopped only by Bilbo's belated death early in 1947.

It was said in Mississippi that 'The Man,' as he was called, died of natural causes, aggravated by an overdose of Negro militancy stimulated by Jim Jackson.

As an inspirer and organizer of countless struggles of the Negro youth and people against lynching, against the murderous brutality of the police agents of the trusts and planters; for jobs and upgrading, for schools, recreational facilities and cultural development, Jim Jackson maintains today a preferred place in the hearts of the Negro masses all over the South.

Further, for a period of 15 years he took part in every important general movement for advancement which involved Negro and white labor and progressive forces of the South.

In addition to serving as a founder, vice president and principal organizer of the Southern Negro Youth Congress, he participated in the formation and building of the Southern Conference for Human Welfare, the Southern Regional Council, and many other movements which in any important way challenged the states ~~que~~ (sic) quo of Negro oppression and Southern social backwardness.

Jim Jackson's constructive role in these movements stands as an effective refutation of the imperialist lie that the Communists join popular mass organizations to 'use' them for some ulterior motives. Throughout the South there are numerous ± leaders who could testify--and some day they will--that Jim Jackson's contributions to the organizations in which they shared with him the labor 'in the heat of the day' were always positive, helpful, and principled, whatever their differences on the fundamental questions of class struggle and the basic organization of society.

For Communists, Jim Jackson's mastery--though practice (sic) --of the united front tactic provides a model of great importance in carrying into life the objectives of the Party program. A primary characteristic of his style of work has been his persistent skill in developing mass struggles around the issues and through the organizational forms and methods closest and most congenial to the massess--all the while striving to raise a given campaign, project, or movement to higher levels of social consciousness and fighting capacity, all the while furthering the unity and initiative of Negro and white workers and the leadership of the Negro workers in the Negro liberation movement.

Jackson, a Leader in Labor, Negro Struggle

Following is the concluding article on the occasion of the 40th birthday of James E. Jackson, Jr., Southern regional secretary of the Communist Party and member of its national committee, who has lived the life of a political refugee:

By S. D. Rock

Jim Jackson combines with a deep involvement in the crucial struggles of the Negro people during his entire mature life, a rich experience as an organizer of labor and builder of the trade union meovement.

When the leaders of the Southern Negro Youth Congress undertook to organize the desperately exploited Negro tobacco stemmers and laborers of the Larus Brothers and E xport Leaf plants in Richmond in 1937-38, Jackson was the principal leader of the organizing drive and historic strike (first in the history of the tobacco industry) which followed.

The success which he and other youthful organizers had in rallying the workers to organized resistance to $5-a-week pay envolopes, the spiteful abuse and lustful advances of 'straw boss' foremen, 'dressing rooms' in which women changed clothes behind barrel staves involoped by foul tobacco-leaf fumes; their success in mobilizing the support of all groups and classes in the Negro community in the form of money and food to maintain the strikers' kitchen; their success in organizing a supporting parade of white workers down Main Street through the heart of town--all this threw fear and panic into the bosses and resulted in Jim Jackson's being jailed on a trumped-up charge.

But eventually the strike was won and the victory of the Richmond tobacco workers, who joined the new CIO movement, led to the further organization of tobacco workers in Virginia and North Carolina and provided an important exmaple and stimulus for the entire Southern organizing drive of the late Thirties.

Not only the tobacco workers, but the longshoremen of Louisiana and Texas, textile workers of the Carolinas, shipbuilders in Mobile, steel workers and miners in Birmingham and Bessemer, can testify to Jim Jackson's contributions to their struggles for better wages and working conditions and for trade union democracy.

And in Detroit literally thousands of Communist and progressive auto workers recall his inexhaustible energy, great tactical skill and his fight for principle when, as leader of the Communist workers at the huge auto plants, he helped guide the building and development of a left and progressive workers' coalition against speedup wage-cuts, layoffs, and discrimination in 1947-48 and 1949.

Thus, the merging of experiences in the main stream of the Negro liberation movement and in various crucial struggles of the labor movement over a period of 20-odd years have molded a leader of rare qualities. The people must recall him to their service in the strenuous days ahead.

Most important, the two main ingredients that go to make up the revolutionary 'charge' in Jim Jackson--the fight for Negro freedom and for labor's rights--have been tempered to an unusually fine degree in the fire of Marxist-Leninist-Stalinist science.

At the time of the Smith Act indictments against the 17 leaders of the Communist Party, Jackson had begun to arrest our attention with his important contributions to our theory. His articles in Political A ffairs, his speeches at Party conventions and conferences bear the marks of a major and seasoned theoretical talent.

All the features are there which characterize the work of an outstanding Marxist scholar: (1) a concrete and thorough examination of economic and social reality and the experience of the masses as the basis for political and theoretical conclusions and generalizations; (2) the abhorrence of dogma and the shunning of cliches, however hallowed by time and extravagent(sic) usage; (3) a bold, creative, 'pioneering' approach to new and unsolved problems; (4) a confident but not mechanical recourse to the accumulated experience of the world proletariat as summarized in the classical work of Marx, Engles, Lenin and Stalin.

Jackson's theoretical contributions have been along two major lines. First, he has heightened the Party's understanding of the nature of the popular struggle in the South. He has constantly reminded us, as in his report to the 15th Party conventions, that '...in our trade union work and in our Negro work we cannot win the battle against opportunism, white chauvinism and reformism so long as work in these fields is characterized by a neglect and underestimation of the South.'

He proceeded in the same report to show that: 'The development of higher levels of the Negro national revolutionary struggle in the Balck Belt, and the broad mass movement for democratic rights in the South as a whole, is an indispensable prerequisite for insuring the victory of the working class and the American people over the menacing challenge of the ruling class forces of fascism and war presently, and for working class victory over capitalism ultimately...This is a basic fundamental in the strategy for working class victory, and a special feature of the path to the triumph of Socialism in our country.'

Placing before the Party the challenge of 'the too poorly appreciated fact that the South is that region of the U. S. where the most powerful revolutionary pressures may develop,' Jackson has graphically described and analyzed the three main components of the people's struggles in the South, namely: '(1) the special struggles of the workers, Negro and white; ~~and~~ (2) the special struggles of the poor farmers, Negro and white; and (3) the struggle of the Negro nation for liberation and of the Negro people everywhere for equal rights.'

And he points out that, 'Above all, up from the backward South, there is growing in consciousness a potentially powerful democratic and revolutionary force, the oppressed and imprisoned Negro nation, which is fighting and will fight, on a scale as yet unimagined for its liberation from the imperialist bondage of Wall Street-Dixiecrat slavemasters.'

In applying the tools of Marxism-Leninism to that force (the struggle for freedom of the imprisoned Negro nation)--in outlining its present status and perspectives for the future, its relations with the labor movement, the agrarian masses and the Negro national minorities South and North, the relation- (Continued on Page 8) ships and struggles of the classes within it, its alliance with the liberatory (sic) struggles in colonial lands and with the world peace movement headed by the socialist USSR--it is in this field of investigation that we find Jackson's second major area of contribution to our theoretical work.

Clearly the need and the possibility of returning Jim Jackson and other imprisoned and missing working class leaders to the front line of struggle is greater than ever before.

The Negro liberation movement is at a new height and, as the object of the increasingly ferocious attacks of the Dixiecrats and their bourgeois masters, it faces a rapidly sharpening crisis. Which road to take toward extended reformist collaboration with the Big Business would-be enslavers of the colonial world and the consequent short circuiting of the mass currents which led to the Supreme Court decision of last May 17. Or toward more determined and effective collaboration with an awakening labor movement and with the anti-imperialist, pro-peace forces of the world--the only sure road to 'Freedom by '63' and to complete liberation in our time.

Jim Jackson's experience, wisdom and energy are needed at the center of the Negro people's movement as this fateful decision takes shape before us.

Ben Davis' great political leadership is needed, the organizing genius of Henry Winston, the full, unhampered contributions of Pettis Perry, Claudia Jones and all the Negro victims of Smith Act persecution are needed as never before in the maturing, centuries-old struggle for freedom.

And at their side in this great battle, as in the battle for true working class policies in the labor movement, and for a powerful people's coalition for peace and democracy, must stand their comrades and colleagues in leadership of the Communist Party--Wm. Z. Foster, Gene Dennis, Gus Hall, John Gates, Bob Thompson, and all the others.

The rich ties of Jim Jackson with the popular and labor movements of our land are shaped in one degree or another by all the leaders of the Communist Party. It is precisely these ties, developed over years of participation in the American class struggle which is the warrant of their leadership of our Party. And precisely these ties, however they manifest themselves, are our warrant to go to the American people with unprecedented vigor with the deman for amnesty for political prisoners.

The possibilities for success in this struggle are growing. The repugnance of the masses for McCarthyism deepens from day to day. It must embrace the fascist menace in all its manifestations, and primarily its anti-Communist core.

We must use the occasion of Jim Jackson's 40th birthday to remind ourselves and the democratic masses that the popular movement will not achieve its goals in the fight for peace, the battle for constitutional liberty, working class advance or Negro freedom unless Communists--and in the first instance the leaders of the Communist Party--exercise the full rights of citizenship in that movement and in the nation. //

A NEW POLITICAL CLIMATE FOR THE SOUTH

Broad progressive movements in the South show that forces are at work toward that unity of all patriotic Southerners who see racial harmony as the key to progress and effectiveness in the war.

By Rob F. Hall
Birmingham, Ala.

In his 'Brothers Under the Skin,' Carey McWilliams does not soft-pedal the seriousness of the attacks on the Negro people, the increasing bitterness of anti-Negro discrimination, and the danger to national unity resulting from the intolerable conditions under which the Negro people live, work and fight. But Mr. McWilliams emphasizes that in the course of this war for survival against Hitlerism, there has developed a climate favorable for far-reaching improvements in racial relations.

Even the South has been affected by this climate and out of it has come the recently organized Southern Regional Council, Inc., with headquarters in Atlanta, consisting of some hundred leading Southern white and Negro citizens. The council is dedicated to the proposition that 'the Negro in the United States and in every region is entitled to and should have every guarantee of equal opportunity that every other citizen of the United States has within the framework of the American democratic system of government.' The founders established the council so that there will be 'actual realistic accomplishments rather than mere words.'

Dr. Charles S. Johnson of Fiske University and Dr. Howard W. Odum of the University of North Carolina are co-chairman, and Dr. Guy B. Johnson, also of North Carolina has been made full-time executive director. Dr. Ira Reid, a well-known Negro leader of Atlanta University is associate director. Despite the prominence of academic names in the roster of officers, the movement is not confined to the Southern campus. The initiators and supporters of the Southern Regional Council include white industrialists, Negro business men (sic) and outstanding men and women of both races from the fields of church, labor, social work, government agencies and civic organizations.

The council has (sic) its beginning in a meeting of some 80 Southern Negro leaders in Durham, N. C., in October, 1942. The 'Durham Statement' issued as a result of the deliberations of that conference was notable both in the primacy it gave to the war effort and its demands on the 'first loyalty' of the Negro people, and for its frank and forthright posing of the demands of the Negro people in the South.

The Durham conference demands included.

1. Political and civil rights. This emphasized the right of suffrage and the right of 'personal security against abuses of police power by white officers of the law.' The touchy question of treatment of Negroes in public carriers was met with the demand that 'where segregation is mandatory by law...that these provisions be equal in kind and quality.'

2. Industry and labor. This pointed up the demand for the enforcement of the Fair Employment Practices Committee policies.
3. Service occupations. In this plank the degraded position of the domestic and other service workers was treated as an important question affecting hundreds of thousands of Negroes.
4. Education. The conference urged equalization of educational opportunities, including equalization of salaries. Where states cannot afford the requirements of this program, federal aid was called for.
5. Agriculture. Safeguards for the tenant and aids to the promotion of home and land ownership were emphasized.
6. Military service. The conference insisted upon the opportunity of full participation in all branches of military service and of advancement according to ability.
7. Social welfare and health. A drastic expansion of health facilities for the Negro people was advocated, including slum clearance and low-cost housing.

Following the publication of the Durham program there was widespread comment in the columns of the more responsible section of the Southern press. The Atlanta Constitution, whose editor is Ralph McGill said, 'It will be unfortunate if the South does not discuss calmly and intelligently the basis for interracial cooperation advanced recently by a group of Southern Negroes.' And partly due to the initiative of Mr. McGill, about 300 influential white Southerners gathered at Atlanta in April, 1943.

In their public document, now known as the Atlanta Statement, the white Southerners opened with an acknowledgement to the Durham group. 'Their statement,' said the whites, 'is so frank and courageous, so free from any suggestion of threat and ultimatum, and at the same time shows such good will, that we gladly agree to cooperate.'

The Atlanta conference did not draw up a detailed program. It implied agreement with the Durham planks but addressed itself primarily to 'the widespread and inexcusable discrimination in the administration of these laws.'

Continuing, the Atlanta conference said, 'The white Southerner has an obligation to interest himself in the legitimate aspirations of the Negro.

'This means correcting the discrimination between the races in the allocation of school funds; in the number and quality of schools; and in the salaries of teachers...It is recognized that there is often practical discrimination by some peace officers and in some courts in the treatment of Negro prisoners and in the abrogation of their civil rights...False arrests, brutal beatings and other evils must be stopped.'

In the economic sphere, the Negro must have equal pay for equal work. 'If we cannot plan for a well-trained, well-employed and prosperous Negro population, the economic future of the South is hopeless,' the atlanta Statement declared.

The statement then emphasized the necessity of eliminating 'the poison of racial antagonism' which unless checked 'will ultimately disturb and threaten the stability of the nation.'

The story then moves more rapidly. The Atlanta Conference designated a committee of whites, including Dr. Odum, Virginius Dabney, editor of The Richmond Times-Dispatch, and Josephine Wilkins of the Georgia League of Women Voters, to meet with a committee of Negroes, to work out plans for collaboration.

The collaboration committee met in Richmond two months later. Their document was not as explicit as either the Durham or the Atlanta statements, but indicated a genuine desire to work together on the basis of an 'adaptation' of the Durham and Atlanta platforms. The collaboration committee itemized the most important of the Durham planks, including the franchise, personal security, employment, and equalized opportunity for education and professional training.

The thinking of Dr. Odum and certain other leaders seems to be in the negative. By training and background, Dr. Odum is inclined to rely on a small and select group and to distrust the average citizen, at least in the mass. The fact that foundations have underwritten the budget of the council for the coming year is in this sense both a strength and a weakness--a weakness in that the council will not need the financial support of the average citizen and may tend to ignore him, thus depriving itself of that strength, inspiration and effectiveness which comes from the participation of the rank and file.

The hesitancy of Dr. Odum and some of the other leaders has an explanation. It lies in their conviction that the Southern Regional Council may fight for improved race relation (sic) and improved conditions for the Negro people but must not under any circumstances raise a finger against segregation in the South.

When leaders of the Southern Conference for Human Welfare approached Dr. Odum and proposed a merger of their organization with the SRC, they were told politely but firmly that they were not wanted. The SCHW had opposed segregation, they were told, and their participation in SRC would perhaps commit the latter organization in the minds of the public to this position.

It would be easy to dismiss the Southern Regional Council as lagging behind the times, or as some think, hopelessly conservative. But actually, the issue is not so simple.

Those who really understand the character of this war of national survival recognize that the war crisis has made it possible to achieve complete equality for the Negro people in this period. Further, that the complete integration of the Negro people into American life, eliminating the cancerous institution of white supremacy from our social body, is vital to victory in the war and to the national unity of the post-war period. Thus the goal of abolishing segregation is a realistic and practical goal and all moves toward improving race relations will be most successful if they acknowledge this goal.

Unfortunately, this fact is not understood or accepted by a large and--at the present--dominant section of Southern liberal opinion. Even the Negro conferees at Durham, while expressing opposition to compulsory segregation, deliberately limited their program to demands which did not trespass on the hallowed precincts of Jim Crow. They declared.

'We are fundamentally opposed to the principle and practice of compulsory segregation...however we regard it as both sensible and timely to address ourselves now ~~in~~ to the current problems of racial discrimination and neglect.'

A New Political Climate in ~~the~~ South

The use of the word 'however' is most unfortunate, because it poses the fight on current problems as something in opposition to the fight against segregation. It was on the basis of this paragraph that Roscoe Dunjee, fighting editor of The Black Dispatch of Oklahoma City, jade his scathing criticism of the Durham conference.

Actually the Durham conferees should have said 'We are fundamentally opposed to compulsory segregation...and precisely because of that we are addressing ourselves to the current problems.'

The logic of this formulation is demonstrated when one considers that the fight for complete equality and for the abolition of segregation requires at this stage a militant unrelenting fight for the very platform of the Durham-Atlanta conference, for the franchise, for the elimination of police brutality, and for jobs for Negroes. It is in the course of such struggles that larger and larger sections of Southern whites will learn to know their Negro fellow citizens better and to see the utter unreasonableness of segregation and Jim Crow. They will learn how Jim Crow laws are degrading and humiliating to whites as well as Negroes. The educational process will be advanced.

No one at the Atlanta conference opposed tinkering with the basic Jim Crow structure of the South more vigorously than did Editor Virginius Dabney of The Richmond Times-Dispatch. But a few weeks ago, Mr. Dabney published a two column editorial urging the elimination of segregation in busses, street cars and railway trains in the state of Virginia. The response to this proposal by the people of Virginia was overwhelmingly favoralbe, Mr. Dabney reported subsequently. The fight for Negro rights in the South will unquestionably follow this pattern.

This assumes, of course, sincerity and good faith on the part of the leaders of the movement. Perhaps certain members of the Southern Regional Council do not at this time desire to eliminate segregation. There is room in the South for an organization with the limited program of merely achieving the unprejudiced administration of law to the Negro people. But the minimum essential is that the organization and its members shall energetically pursue this program.

In a recent issue of The Black Dispatch, M. S. Stuart, a columnist refrains from criticizing the SRC. But he issues a polite warning:

'Southern white friends of the race have been counselling patience and promising gradual improvement. Practical level-headed Negro leaders, North and South, have been inclined to subscribe to that theory. But many now are beginning to question whether or not the policy of these white friends is too darn gradual...They want concrete evidence of improvement, however small, to offset the contention that these Southern programs are only sugar-coated opiates to keep the Negro contented during the war. They would like grounds for hoping that at least some of the Negro babies born this year will not be too old to enjoy any of the fruits of this gradualness when, if ever, it ripens.'

The SRC, even if it does not adopt as a part of its program the elimination of segregation, can still make a tremendous contribution to Southern unity and thus to the Southern role in the war effort. But it does have an obligation to speak out without delay for the cardinal points of its program, for the abolition of the poll tax, against the white primary and for the right to vote for the Negro people; for the support of FEPC and for jobs for Negroes; for expansion now of educational health and housing facilities for Negroes.

If it will do this, and at the same time, organize the great mass of Southern white opinion behind this program, we can rest assured that the time of complete integration of the Negro people into Southern and American life will not be far off.

There is, we repeat, room in the South for a movement which does not include the elimination of segregation. But there ought to be room in the Southern Regional Council for men and women, Negro and white, who take the position that only the complete elimination of segregation will achieve genuine racial harmony, if they cooperate in the immediate program of the council.

Southerners can be confident that despite the error of Dr. Odum is (sic) rejecting the overtures of the Southern Conference for Human Welfare, the SRC is headed in the direction of that broader unity of all patriotic Southerners who know that racial harmony is the keystone of Southern progress and Southern effectiveness in the war. The Southern Regional Council therefore deserves the unremitting co-operation and support of all Southern people."

Dear Mr. Fleming:

I enclose a clipping from a newspaper serial that is being widely published in the South. It appeared in the Brimingham Post- Herald this morning, and will be in the Tuscaloosa News this afternoon.

This is evidently propaganda of a vicious and biased kind. The fact that it is quoted from a New England paper will give it a certain authority for people who want to believe it.

I am president of the local Human Relations Council. Our members and those whom we are trying to interest in membership will read this. Do you have a statement concerning the alleged connections of the S. R. C. with the Communist Party? I think it would be well for you to send one to the two newspapers I have mentioned. I would like a copy myself.

When your statement comes I want to carry it to Buford Boone. He and I are good friends and I am disappointed that his paper would carry material which incriminates by association and innuendo.

Sincerely yours,

Dear Mr. Winn:

Enclosed are our answers to the New Bedford (Mass.) Standard-Times, the Birmingham Post-Herald and Buford Boone. Also enclosed is a reprint from the Congressional Record which may be of some use to you.

As I mentioned over the phone, your prompt action in this matter was most helpful to us and we are deeply grateful. We will appreciate any further information that comes to light.

If we can supply you with additional material please let us know.

Dear Mr. Boone:

A friend has sent me the series entitled "Commies and Integration," prepared by the New Bedford (Mass.) Standard-Times and reprinted in the Birmingham Post-Herald.

I was shocked and dismayed to learn that your newspaper also reprinted the series. Enclosed is a copy of my letter to the editor of the New Bedford paper. In its slur on the Southern Regional Council and in most other respects, the series is as dishonest and irresponsible a piece of reporting as I have seen.

Having deeply admired the integrity and constructiveness displayed by you and your newspaper, I am especially disheartened to find that the News published this material.

I sincerely hope that you will undertake to correct the false and damaging statements made in the series.

Dear Hodding:

Have you seen the enclosed series called "Commies and Integration" prepared by the New Bedford (Mass.) Standard-Times and reprinted by the Birmingham Post-Herald and no doubt other Southern papers?

After reading the slur on SRC in Article No. 2, I was moved to write the New Bedford paper as enclosed.

I'm long since hardened to this kind of smearing by extremists in the South. But I can't swallow it so well when it bears the label of New England "journalism," even though I understand the paper is of the rabid McCarthyite variety.

Since I used your name, among others in my reply (as one that would be recognized that far North), I thought I should inform you of the business.

I'm sorry always to be writing you about the seamy side of our concerns and will try to remedy that in the furure. Meanwhile, warm regards.

Dear Sir:

I have today written as enclosed to the editor of the New Bedford (Mass.) Standard-Times.

We were shocked to find that the Post-Herald would lend its columns to the dissemination of this kind of false and defamatory material -- all the more so, since the originating newspaper is far removed from the scene and there is no evidence that its reporter even made any first-hand inquiries in the South. Certainly he did not approach this organization.

The Southern Regional Council has no use for Communism or Communists. Newspapers like the Post-Herald would render a service if they would reduce, rather than increase, the public confusion between the cynical activities of Communists and the honest efforts of responsible citizens.

Editor
The Standard-Times

Dear Sir:

Our attention has been called to an article in the Birmingham Post-Herald of August 1. 1958, described as the second in a series of five articles reprinted from your newspaper. The series is characterized as dealing with "the Communist influence on racial strife in the South," "prepared after an extensive investigation."

The article contains the following paragraphs:

> The results of this "honeymoon" were vital Communist infiltration of the most important agencies in the South dealing in Negro issues. The Communists infiltrated four of these organizations and actually helped found three of them.
> They are the Southern Conference Educational Fund, the Southern Regional Council, the Highlander Folk School in Tennessee, and the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People.
> The Regional Council and the Educational Fund were both offshoots of the old Southern Conference for Human Welfare, which was dissolved in 1948 after twice being described by the Federal Government as "a Communist front serving the Soviet Union and its subservient Communist Party."

It is not my province to speak for the other organizations mentioned. But as far as the Southern Regional Council is concerned, the above statements are demonstrably false and injurious. This is to request a prpmpt and unequivocal retraction in your newspaper and in those which reprinted the series. The "extensive investigation" on which this article is allegedly based clearly did not extend to reputable and reliable sources. If it had, your investigator would, without difficulty, have learned the following facts:

1. The Southern Regional Council was neither founded nor infiltrated by Communists. It is, and has always been, unalterably opposed to the Communist movement. It is not to be found on any official list of Communist or Communist-front organizations.

2. The Southern Regional Council is in no wise an "offshoot" of the Southern Conference for Human Welfare. The Council was founded as the successor to the Commission on Interracial Cooperation in 1944 - five years before the Southern Conference became defunct. The two groups were entirely separate and distinct, both in organization and in approach.

3. The honorable origins of the Southern Regional Council are a matter of record, having been fully documented in contemporary newspaper accounts. The incorporators were Bishop Arthur J. Moore of the Methodist Church, Ralph McGill, editor of the Atlanta Constitution, the late Dr. Charles S. Johnson, president of Fisk University, Dr. Rufus E. Clement, president of Atlanta University, and the late Dr. Howard W. Odum of the University of North Carolina. There was no suggestion of Communist influence then or at any other time.

4. The Southern Regional Council's officers and board members are Southerners of unimpeachable reputation and patriotism. Among them are such well-known newspapermen as Hodding Carter of Mississippi, Benjamin Muse of Virginia, and Herbert Davidson of Florida; such churchmen as Catholic Bishop Joseph B. Brunini of Mississippi, Episcopal Bishop E. A. Penick of North Carolina, and Dr. Merrimon Cuninggim, dean of the SMU Theology School; and others of equal stature.

I trust that we may look forward to an early reply from you indicating that an appropriate correction will be made in the newspapers which used this series.

3. The honorable origins of the Southern Regional Council are a matter of record, having been fully documented in contemporary newspaper accounts. The incorporators were Bishop Arthur J. Moore of the Methodist Church, Ralph McGill, editor of the Atlanta Constitution, the late Dr. Charles S. Johnson, president of Fisk University, Dr. Rufus E. Clement, president of Atlanta University, and the late Dr. Howard W. Odum of the University of North Carolina. There was no suggestion of Communist influence then or at any other time.

4. The Southern Regional Council's officers and board members are Southerners of unimpeachable reputation and patriotism. Among them are such well-known newspapermen as Hodding Carter of Mississippi, Benjamin Muse of Virginia, and Herbert Davidson of Florida; such churchmen as Catholic Bishop Joseph B. Brunini of Mississippi, Episcopal Bishop E. A. Penick of North Carolina, and Dr. Marrimon Cuninggim, deal of the SMU Theology School; and others of equal stature.

I trust that we may look forward to an early reply from you indicating that an appropriate correction will be made in the newspapers which used this series.

Very truly yours,

Harold C. Fleming

Dear Fred:

I am enclosing a clipping from the Richmond Times-Dispatch of August 5, 1958. This is the second installment of a daily series by Edward B. Simmons.

The whole series, so far, is absolutely sickening for being a cleverly contrived combination of half-truths, which add up to total lies, insofar as the Southern Regional Council is concerned.

It is all the more distressing for this to appear in a paper of which Virginius Dabney is editor when I believe he was on of the early directors of the Southern Regional Council.

I am sending this to you because you will know what, if anything, to do about it - and how to do it.

My best wishes to you.

Sincerely yours,

PART OF HANDBOOK

Red Propaganda Spurs Race Strife

This is the second in a series of five artcles, reprinted from the New Bedford (Mass.) Standard-Times, on Communist efforts to incite racial strife in the United States. The author is a member of the Standard-Times staff.

By Edward B. Simmons

WASHINGTON — To incite racial strife is one of the oldest objectives in the Communist program for getting world domination. "We must realize that our party's most powerful weapon is racial tension," states a Communist party handbook of 1912, well before a few hundred Bolsheviks seized control of Russia.

"By propounding into the consciousness of the dark races that for centuries they have been oppressed by the whites, we can mold them to the program of the Communist Party," the handbook continues.

"In America, we will aim for subtle victory. While inflaming the Negro minority against the whites, we will endeavor to instill in the whites a guilt complex for their exploitation of the Negroes. Thus will begin a process which will "deliver America to our cause."

Coincidence or Strategy?

Is it coincidence or the result of strategy that, some 45 years later, racial unrest in an outstanding Southern city, Little Rock, Ark., has increased so sharply that a Federal judge called for a 2½-year delay in any integration?

Again, is it coincidence or the result of Communist strategy that one of the most influtial of all Southern Negro leaders, the Rev. Martin Luther King, exhorts his followers with these words:

"It (the Montgomery, Ala., bus boycott) is a part of something that is happening all over the world. The oppressed people are rising up. They are revolting against colonialism and imperialism and all other systems of oppression."

When Mr. King draws a parallel between the situatian of the American Negro and "oppressed peoples" rising against "colonialism" and "imperialism," he is following exactly, to the word, the Communist line.

Direct Approach Failed

At first, the Communist drive for creation of racial strife called for a direct approach to Negroes, using labor unions and Communist fronts like the American Negro Labor Congress and the League for Struggle for Negro Rights.

This approach was brazenly direct, and it failed. Former Communist Joseph Kornfelder, one of the party founders in the United States and its first director of Southern operations, has described what happened:

"The South to the Communists was always one of the most vexing problems," Kornfelder told a joint legislative committee of the State of Louisiana in March 1957. "Moscow could never understand it . . . According to Marx' theory, the South should be leading the United States in Communist development.

"It just didn't work out that way.

"It was just to the contrary. The South proved to be a hard nut and it didn't conform to the doctrine.

Blocked by Religion

"They decided that the big block against penetration of the South is religion. The Negroes believed in religion; the hillbillies believed in religion; nearly everybody is religious. The South is more religious than the North.

"Therefore, they decided ing in Negro issues. The Communists infiltrated four of these organizations and actually helped found three of them.

They are the Southern Conference Educational Fund, the Southern Regional Council, the Highlander Folk School in Tennessee and the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People.

An almost incredible maze of interlocking officials, ideas and publications linked the three first-named agencies with the Communist Party.

Council Got Ford Grant

The Regional Council and the Educational Fund were both off-shoots of the old Southern Conference for Human Welfare, which was dissolved in 1948 after twice being described by the Federal Government as "a Communist front serving the Soviet Union and its subservient Communist Party."

Former directors and officers of the Conference for Human Welfare became directors and officers of the Regional Council and the Educational Fund and of the Highlander School. The Communist Daily Worker openly boasted that James E. Jackson, chief of the Southern branch of the U. S. Communist Party, was a co-founder of the Regional Council.

Although the Regional Council is not widely known in the North, its influence in the South is attested by its receiving a $497,000 grant from the Ford Foundation's Fund for the Republic.

Likewise, the Highlander School plays an important role in Southern civil rights developments, although it is scarcely known in the North. The school, according to testimony before the Senate Internal Security Subcommittee, was co-founded by a Communist and by a man who refused to testify on his beliefs.

NAACP Infiltrated

During these "organizing" years by the Communist Party, the NAACP was extensively infiltrated, although not dominated by Communist sympathizers. Many of its leading officials were members of the Communist fronts.

In fact, by 1954 and the crucial Supreme Court decision, the Communist Party was so confident it had set the stage for developments in its favor that the party's national convention in the Winter of 1953 declared, "The next period ahead will witness momentous struggles of the Negroes . . . given the vanguard leadership of the Communist party, we may be confident that the Negro liberation movement will ally itself more fully with the camp of peace and democracy."

The Communist Party was in a position to follow its long-proved doctrine:

To get a "sociological" or pro-Communist book on the reading list of influential persons, like a Supreme Court justice;

To persuade a Negro to violate a civil rights statute, in the cause of "civil disobedience;"

To inject a fellow-traveler in the forefront of a civil rights dispute;

To support the program of the NAACP.

These objectives were attained in the year to come.

the handbook continues.

"In America, we will aim for subtle victory. While inflaming the Negro minority against the whites, we will endeavor to instill in the whites a guilt complex for their exploitation of the Negroes. Thus will begin a process which will "deliver America to our cause."

Blocked by Religion

"They decided that the big block against penetration of the South is religion. The Negroes believed in religion; the hillbillies believed in religion; nearly everybody is religious. The South is more religious than the North.

"Therefore, they decided maybe they should get at them under the auspices of the Cross."

Kornfelder and two Negro former Communist leaders, Manning Johnson and Leonard Patterson, told the Louisiana committee that the new tactics included, besides use of the church, penetration of reputable Negro organizations and the founding, but not obvious control, of others.

World War II, with its migrations and general dislocation of living habits, produced what Kornfelder described as a "sort of honeymoon situation" between the Communist organizers and Negro organizations.

4 Agencies Infiltrated

"It seems the intellectuals during that time had shown a remarkable weakness," he testified. "They were bigger suckers for the Communist propaganda than many others were, apparently because they sort of led a life apart from the daily troubles and toil of the population.

"They were the ivory tower boys who picked up the theories of the Communists, not looking at what is behind the theories."

The results of this "honeymoon" were vital Communist infiltration of the most important agencies in the South deal-

Dear Harold:

That New Bedford sheet is pretty rank and I am surprised that the Post Herald reprinted it. Anything to please the subscribers, I suppose.

Do you think an icy letter from my attorney to the Standard Times, demanding a retraction, would do any good? They are too far away for an editorial to bother them, even though that was effective with our red-headed pal in Charleston.

All the best.

Dear Mr. Boone:

Thank you for your courteous and informative reply to my letter concerning the Standard-Times series.

I do understand, of course, the common newspaper practice of presenting diverse views which may or may not coincide with the paper's policy. What troubled us was not the airing of opinions with which we disagree, but allegations that are both untrue and damaging being presented as statements of fact.

Be that as it may, your allocation of space for our reply gives us a full and fair hearing.

I shall look forward to seeing whatever you publish including any editorial comment, and I shall see that you receive copies of any comment or correction published elsewhere.

Dear Mr. Fleming:

Thank you for letting me have your reaction to our printing of the Standard-Times series.

Newspapers frequently reprint editorials, series of articles, letters, etc. containing statements with which the newspapers disagree. In such instances, sources are given for the readers' information.

You may not have been informed that we printed the first article on Page 1, so as to call attention to the series, and stated with this publication that the remaining releases would be on the editorial page. Our purpose in using this material on the editorial page was to put it in a place where our readers expect to find opinion expressed. They, and we, may agree or disagree. Our publication should not indicate agreement, although it may to some people.

I am sure I need not go further to make a point which I know you fully understand.

We have, since the great problem of integration arose, printed many discussions, editorials, etc. relating to the problem. On one occasion, we even reprinted as much as we could get of the text of an inflammatory speech made by a rabble-rouser who appeared on the platform here at the same time I did.

I shall mail you a clipping for your files in a day or two. If we make any comment on the matter, that, too, will be covered.

Thank you , again, for your letter.

Personal

Dear Mr. Dabney:

This is in reference to the five-part series on Communism and race prepared by the New Bedford Standard-Times and recently reprinted by the Times-Dispatch. The series as a whole is journalism at its shabbiest. But article number two is of direct and serious concern to the Southern Regional Council.

As you may have observed, this article states flatly that the Council from the start was "infiltrated" by and -- through its officials, ideas, and publications -- "linked" to the Communist Party. The article also flatly states that the Council was an "off-shoot" of the Southern Conference for Human Welfare, described as a Communist front. And, as a fitting climax, the article gives credence to an alleged boast in the Daily Worker that the chief of the Communist Party's Southern branch was "a co-founder" of the Council.

It is understating it to say that we were astounded to find these statements reprinted in the Times-Dispatch. As one of those most intimately and influentially involved in the birth of the Council, and as a director during its early years of life, you are uniquely equipped to recognize how false and malicious these allegations are. When this matter was discussed at our executive committee meeting yesterday, several of the members recalled their association with you in the sessions out of which the Council developed.

Of course, we realize that you may not have seen the series prior to its publication in your paper. But we should like assurance from you that these injurious falsehoods will be exposed for what they are and that a true account of the Council's origins will be fully and clearly presented in the Times-Dispatch.

In the event that such a correction is not to be published, I should appreciate prompt word to that effect so that we may submit for publication an appropriate statement of rebuttal.

Sincerely yours,

Dear Mr. Dabney:

Following up our telephone conversation of today, I send you the enclosed materials concerning the origins of the Southern Regional Council. I am including a few editorials in which these charges were refutted by Ralph McGill and Hodding Carter.

The published account of a dinner for Justice Black, sponsored by the Southern Conference for Human Welfare, is of special interest since it shows the kind of respectable and even conservative leaders the Southern Conference was able to involve in its affairs as late as 1945.

As indicated in our own reply to the charges aired in the Firing Line, we believe that the Southern Regional Council is completely defensible as a responsible and patriotic organization that has never reflected the slightest sympathy for Communist doctrine. To leave unchallenged statements to the contrary in respectable newspapers would be to acquiesce in the injury of many fine reputations, as well as in damage to the Council as an organization.

I strongly hope that we may look forward to some appropriate statement of correction in the Times-Dispatch.

With appreciation for your prompt and thorough attention to the problem, I am

August 20, 1958

I have had several memos from our fellows around the country indicating that the series of articles published in July by the New Bedford, Mass. Standard Times on "Communist efforts to incite racial strife in the U.S." are being reprinted in southern newspapers. I also note that Holmes Alexander, the syndicated Washington columnist, praised the efforts of the Standard Times and reporter Simmons for "pinpointing" the defeat of the Communists at Little Rock in his special column published by the Boston, Mass. Sunday Herald on August 10, 1958. In this column, he urged that a monument be erected at Little Rock to mark the defeat of the Communist invaders and their mercenaries.

The Alexander column which appeared as a feature on the Sunday Herald editorial page, brought a flood of letters to the editor of the Herald attacking the Alexander piece. On August 15, the Boston Herald came out with an editorial entitled "The Holmes Alexander 'Line'." In this editorial the Herald pointed out that since they published the Alexander column on Little Rock "a number of readers have cried out in anguish. We have suffered some anguish, too, but for a different reason, and maybe we ought to attempt to clarify the Alexander "line" since he is one of our columnists."

The Herald editorial then points out that nowhere in his column did Alexander defend the principle of public school segregation. The Herald said "his was not a racist view. What he did defend was the right of the Southern states to choose or reject segregation without federal military compulsion."

Then the Herald slapped Alexander by saying that he was guilty of a dastardly debating device when he equated his own position with anti-Communism. The Herald said "in fighting for the freedom of self-determination by the Southern states, he (Alexander) accused the other side of surrendering to the communist line, the insitement of racial tensions and unrest. The re-election of Governor Faubus he interpreted as a monument-worthy defeat of communist".

At this point the Herald said "That's where we gritted our teeth. Surely it must be possible for this country to decide matters of internal policy without having to consult Moscow so as to be sure to avoid the Communist line."

The Herald editorial then pointed out that Alexander had approved of the New Bedford Standard Times' series on Little Rock (reference here is to the Edward B. Simmons series). At this point the Herald suggests that the Standard Times ought to check over its own arguments and strategies. And points out that the Standard Times has violently attacked Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge, a strategy which is quite the Communist line. (note: Although both the Herald and Standard Times are considered Republican newspapers, the Standard Times is anti-Eisenhower and the Herald is pro-Eisenhower. The Standard Times is anti-Lodge and the Herald is pro-Lodge).

The Herald closed its editorial with:

"And just to keep the record straight, we should like to make it plain that we do not share Mr. Alexander's views on Little Rock. Mr. Alexander writes over his own signature and speaks strictly for himself. The Herald's views appear in this column.

We consider Mr. Faubus not a national hero but a national menace who, for political gain, created one of the ugliest episodes in our history."

The Holmes Alexander column is published by the New Bedford Standard Times as well as the Manchester, New Hampshire Union Leader. Both of these newspapers have taken the strong position against desegregation. While the Standard Times published the Simmons series, the Unions Leader editorially attacked the award of a Pulitzer prize to Harold Ashmore of the Arkansas Gazette because the latter kept his own staff segregated.

Edward B. Simmons who wrote the series for the New Bedford Standard Times is a 40 year old graduate of Harvard, a local bluebood, who is married to the daughter of Tank Hardwick of Harvard football fame and they reside in the Yankee stronghold at Marion, a socialite stronghold near New Bedford.

Simmons is considered the star reporter in the employ of Basil Brewer, publisher of the Standard Times and his salary is estimated between $15,000.00 to $20,000.00 a year. Simmons has been described to me by people who are in daily contact with him, as "a stiff necked, right wing Yankee", and others identified him as "very reactionary and closely tied in to Brewer and Charles J. Lewin, editor and general manager of the Standard Times (note: Lewin, a strong McCarthyite, was chairman of the big rally sponsored in Boston by the Friends of Senator McCarthy, Inc. when the late Senator from Wisconsin made a Boston appearance at the height of the Fort Monmouth inquiry).

A source very close to this situation at New Bedford advises that no one on the Standard Times has any independence at all. A series such as the Simmons "expose" can be charged to Basil Brewer, who no doubt gave Simmons the idea and told him what he wanted to show. He said that Brewer is always looking for national recognition and would do anything to disturb Eisenhower. Brewer is described as "vindictive, arbitrary and tyrannical." Brewer hates Eisenhower, Lodge, the U.N., FEPC, but he loved Taft and he supported the campaign of Senator John Kennedy against Lodge. And strangely enough at this time, he strongly supports the campaign of George Fingold, a Jew, for the governorship of Massachusetts. But most of all Brewer hates Communism. The Simmons series which attempts to show the Communists efforts to incite racial strife in the U.S. is a natural for the Standard Times, but made very little impact in the New Bedford community.

I should point out that there has been absolutely no reply to any of the articles by Simmons in the Standard Times letter column. This is explained to me by on the spot observers as resulting from unwillingness of any organization or individual to tangle with the Standard Times on the subject of Communism. The average Standard Times reader and New Bedford citizen finds that he has nowhere to turn for rebuttal. The Standard Times has no opposition newspaper. They print daily and Sunday and also publish a Cape Cod edition out of Hyannis, Mass. Hundreds of thousands of residents of Southeastern Massachusetts have only this newspaper to read. When they turn to their local radio station they again run into the Standard Times controlled outlets at New Bedford (WNBH) and on the Cape (WCOD) Hyannis and Yarmouth. Now to really look in this segment of Massachusetts, Brewer is building up for a fight to get control of the television rights for channel 6 which will be centered in New Bedford.

I have indicated to our ADL people in New Bedford the importance of reaching Simmons and pointing out to him that his articles contain numerous halftruths, mistruths and smears, and that in my opinion he used the printed literature of hate mongers for resource material for the articles in question.

There is no Negro leadership in New Bedford despite strong enough to make any impact on the Standard Times despite the fact that there is a large Negro population in New Bedford and on Cape Cod. Meanwhile, I certainly hope that Mr. Harold Fleming of the Southern regional council at Atlanta and take Alex Miller's suggestion (letter of August 12) and answer the charges set out in the Simmons series. I am sure that they will be published.

As far as Simmons' use of material taken from the Israel Cohen book is concerned, I have located a reliable source who is a fellow member with Simmons of the New Bedford Harvard Club and who has promised to bring this matter to Simmons attention.

Attached to this memo and marked Exhibit A is the Holmes Alexander column published in the Boston Sunday Herald on August 10, 1958. Exhibit B is in the Boston Herald editorial of August 15, 1958 entitled "The Holmes Alexander 'Line'." Exhibit C is a sample letter of those received by the Boston Herald attacking the Holmes Alexander column and signed by John L. Saltonstall, Jr., Boston, active in local and civil liberties affairs.

A Victory-To-Be 8/10/58 Boston Herald

Little Rock Monument Urged To Mark Communist Defeat

By HOLMES ALEXANDER

WASHINGTON, D. C.—We have monuments at Gettysburg and Valley Forge, although neither represented a clear-cut American victory at the time. It's my opinion that the stonecutters and bronze-workers can start any time now to raise a monument at Little Rock, Arkansas. At this place an unsung but significant victory was taken from the Communist invaders and their mercenaries.

Years may pass before there is popular recognition of how American forces of law and good sense threw back the Red assault at Little Rock. All sorts of maledictions will be hurled at those who anticipate the ultimate judgment and who say today what everybody will say tomorrow.

The Communists, by turning our flank at Little Rock, would have made a deep and maybe a disastrous penetration of the American defense. But the collapse of the enemy thrust, as seen in Governor Faubus' re-election and the end of the Administration's experiment in forced integration, has been the surest sign in recent years that we have ramparts at the home front and men to mount them.

Interestingly but not strangely, New England and the South have combined to make this fight, much as they made the first fight for American liberty in the Revolutionary War. It took a newspaper in New Hampshire, the Manchester Union Leader, to reduce to absurdity the posturizings of a Pulitzer Prize Arkansas editor who came out for bayonet-point integration at Central High School but who kept his own office segregated.

And my choice for the coolest and best "war" correspondent on the Little Rock battle comes from the New Bedford (Mass.) Standard-Times and their star reporter, Edward B. Simmons. In a five-part series of articles, Mr. Simmons wraps up the Little Rock campaign with these points:

Headline Personalities Fade Away

1. The Fallen Leaders: Practically all the headline personalities who led the wild charge on the Little Rock bastion are down in the dust of defeat or oblivion. Atty. Gen. Brownell and White House Aide Max Rabb are out of their Federal posts. Mayor Woodrow Wilson Mann of Little Rock has moved to Denver, Judge Ronald Davies, who ordered integration "forthwith," is replaced in the news by Judge Harry Lemley, who has suspended integration to ease "racial tension and unrest."

2. The Communist Line: Virtually every argument and strategy of the Little Rock attackers has been documented as a Communist tactic. For over 40 years the Communist platforms have called incessantly for "inflaming the Negro minority against the white" (1912) and for "the Negro liberation movement" behind the "vanguard leadership of the Communist party" (1953). In 1954 came the Supreme Court decision to integrate schools, and in 1957 came the military occupation which always accompanies a Communist coup.

3. Sociology Above Law: Chief Justice Earl Warren in his written decision on school segregation left the legal precedents and reached for "modern authority" to show that segregation gave Negro children a hurtful sense of inferiority. He cited six books to prove his point, books saturated with provable Communist sympathy and propaganda.

4. The Police State: Communism exists nowhere except where forced upon the people. "The honor of our country requires Federal intervention . . ." said the Communist political guide, Political Affairs. "A tremendous victory for the American people," said the Communist Daily Worker. This is how the Reds saw the use of troops in Little Rock.

SAYS COMMUNISM, EQUALITY CONFUSED

To the Editor of The Herald:

I was appalled by the Holmes Alexander piece August 10, the main point of which was that the victory of Governor Orval Faubus in Arkansas and the delay of integration in Little Rock will be remembered primarily as a monumental defeat for the forces of communism.

If we are to judge the events in Arkansas in terms of the struggle between the communists and the free world, it seems clear that these events have strengthened the Kremlin and weakened the position of the United States in international councils. Any objective observer would tell Mr. Alexander that the Faubus story has been used as a basis for highly effective anti-American propaganda all over the world, the communists having cited it as an example of the failure of our democratic system. Even the State Department of Mr. John Foster Dulles, which has shown little concern for the forces of democracy in the past, has been visibly distressed by the effects of this propaganda and has, we are informed, sought to strengthen pro-integration sentiments within the Eisenhower administration.

But despite the current tendency to weigh everything in terms of how it will affect the cold war, I think it just as important to assess events in terms of their likelihood of advancing American ideals. Here Mr. Alexander's views are equally appalling. He appears to believe that the idea of equality of opportunity for all Americans regardless of race, color or creed is communist - inspired. (Presumably Karl Marx was standing at the elbow of Abraham Lincoln when the Emancipation Proclamation was signed.) He says that the Supreme Court decision holding it unconstitutional to require children to attend separate schools in accordance with the shade of their respective skins was a "communist coup" (apparently because six books cited by Chief Justice Warren's opinion written for a unanimous Court are "saturated with provable communist sympathy and propaganda" — whatever that means), and he opines that President Eisenhower should not have enforced the United States District Court desegregation order by sending Federal troops to Little Rock since, as it turned out, his decision was supported by the Daily Worker.

Most Americans, even in the South, agree, I believe, with the fundamental democratic premise that our society be an open one in which ability and character, rather than ethnic or religious background, must be the primary factors in determining individual advancement. And most Americans are not so simple that they subscribe to the sort of specious reasoning by which Mr. Alexander twists a defeat in the long campaign against inequality of opportunity into a signal triumph against international communism.

The Holmes Alexander 'Line'

Boston Herald - August 15, 1958

Holmes Alexander last Sunday called for a monument to mark the Communist defeat in Little Rock, and a number of readers have cried out in anguish. We have suffered some anguish, too, but for a different reason, and maybe we ought to attempt to clarify the Alexander "line" since he is one of our columnists.

Nowhere in his column did Mr. Alexander defend the principle of public school segregation. His was not a racist view. What he did defend was the right of the Southern states to choose or reject segregation without federal military compulsion.

Whether at this time it is wiser for the nation to sustain the principle of states' rights or the principle of school integration, or whether the authority of the Supreme Court can be questioned by some higher state authority, or whether racial equality in the South can be better advanced by moral suasion than by federal absolutes—these are matters on which there can be proper differences of opinion. They are matters that should be debatable without excessive heat.

But Holmes Alexander was guilty of a dastardly debating device. He equated his own position with anti-communism. In fighting for the freedom of self-determination by the Southern states, he accused the other side of surrendering to the communist line, the incitement of racial tension and unrest. The re-election of Governor Faubus he interpreted as a monument-worthy defeat of communism.

That's where we gritted our teeth. Surely it must be possible for this country to decide matters of internal policy without having to consult Moscow so as to be sure to avoid the Communist line.

Mr. Alexander quoted approvingly the New Bedford Standard-Times, which saw the communist line in virtually every argument and strategy of the Little Rock attackers. Well, the Standard-Times ought to check over its own arguments and strategies. It has violently attacked Ambassador Cabot Lodge, a strategy which is quite the Communist line.

No, it proves nothing, this ascription of communism to your opponent, nothing except that your own argument may need some artificial bolstering. We wish Mr. Alexander hadn't!

And just to keep the record straight, we should like to make it plain that we do not share Mr. Alexander's views on Little Rock. Mr. Alexander writes over his own signature and speaks strictly for himself. The Herald's views appear in this column.

We consider Mr. Faubus not a national hero but a national menace who, for political gain, created one of the ugliest episodes in our history.

Editor
The Standard-Times

Dear Sir:

Our attention has been called to an article in the Birmingham Post-Herald of August 1, 1958, described as the second in a series of five articles reprinted from your newspaper. The series is characterized as dealing with "the Communist influence on racial strife in the South," "prepared after an extensive investigation."

The article contains the following paragraphs:

> The results of this "honeymoon" were vital Communist infiltration of the most important agencies in the South dealing in Negro issues. The Communists infiltrated four of these organizations and actually helped found three of them.
> They are the Southern Conference Educational Fund, the Southern Regional Council, the Highlander Folk School in Tennessee, and the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People.
> The Regional Council and the Educational Fund were both offshoots of the old Southern Conference for Human Welfare, which was dissolved in 1948 after twice being described by the Federal Government as "a Communist front serving the Soviet Union and its subservient Communist Party."

It is not my province to speak for the other organizations mentioned, But as far as the Southern Regional Council is concerned, the above statements are demonstrably false and injurious. This is to request a prompt and unequivocal retraction in your newspaper and in those which reprinted the series. The "extensive investigation" on which this article is allegedly based clearly did not extend to reputable and reliable sources. If it had, your investigator would, without difficulty, have learned the following facts:

1. The Southern Regional Council was neither founded nor infiltrated by Communists. It is, and has always been, unalterably opposed to the Communist movement. It is not to be found on any official list of Communist or Communist-front organizations.

2. The Southern Regional Council is in no wise an "offshoot" of the Southern Conference for Human Welfare. The Council was founded as the successor to the Commission on Interracial Cooperation in 1944 - five years before the Southern Conference became defunct. The two groups were entirely separate and distinct, both in organization and in approach.

3. The honorable origins of the Southern Regional Council are a matter of record, having been fully documented in contemporary newspaper accounts. The incorporators were Bishop Arthur J. Moore of the Methodist Church, Ralph McGill, editor of the Atlanta Constitution, the late Dr. Charles S. Johnson, president of Fisk University, Dr. Rufus E. Clement, president of Atlanta University, and the late Dr. Howard W. Odum of the University of North Carolina. There was no suggestion of Communist influence then or at any other time.

4. The Southern Regional Council's officers and board members are Southerners of unimpeachable reputation and patriotism. Among them are such well-known newspapermen as Hodding Carter of Mississippi, Benjamin Muse of Virginia, and Herbert Davidson of Florida; such churchmen as Catholic Bishop Joseph B. Brunini of Mississippi, Episcopal Bishop E.A. Penick of North Carolina, and Dr. Merrimon Cuninggim, dean of the SMU Theology School; and others of equal stature.

I trust that we may look forward to an early reply from you indicating that an appropriate correction will be made in the newspapers which used this series.

Very truly yours,

Harold C. Fleming

MEMORANDUM

August 26, 1958

TO: Nathaniel H. Goodrich

FROM: Edwin J. Lukas

Recently, a series of articles appeared in a few Southern newspapers, attacking the NAACP, the Southern Regional Council and other groups identified with the desegregation movement - as Communist groups, or Communist-dominated, or peddling the Communist line.

The articles, without a "by-line", seem to have originated in the New Bedford Standard Times. We have been asked to ascertain, through that newspaper, the authorship of the articles, which were quite vicious. Word just came to us from our New Bedford constituent that they were written by one, Edward B. Simmons of Washington, D. C.

I would appreciate your gathering for us as much information as possible on Simmons.

Dear Mr. Dabney:

This is to acknowledge with appreciation your editorial of August 21. It was an impressively full and fair correction of the misstatements about SRC in the Standard-Times series.

I am grateful for your scrupulous attention to this problem, and I am sure the Executive Committee will share my admiration for your courage and frankness in dealing with it.

A Race Agency and the Facts

Inaccurate statements as to its origins of the Southern Regional Council of Atlanta appeared recently in THE TIMES-DISPATCH, and should be corrected. They appeared — inadvertently, we are sure—in one of the series of articles by EDWARD B. SIMMONS of the New Bedford, Mass., Standard-Times concerning Communist efforts to incite racial strife in the United States.

MR. SIMMONS stated in the article appearing in our paper on August 5 that the Southern Regional Council, established in Atlanta in 1944, was an "offshoot of the old Southern Conference for Human Welfare, which was dissolved in 1948 after twice being described by the Federal Government as 'Communist front.'" He also said: "'The Communist Daily Worker openly boasted that JAMES E. JACKSON, chief of the Southern branch of the U. S. Communist party, was a co-founder of the Regional Council."

Taking these two charges in order, the Southern Regional Council was not an offshoot of the Southern Conference for Human Welfare. It was established in response to an appeal from respected Southern Negro leaders, who met at Durham, N. C., in October, 1942, on the call of DR. GORDON B. HANCOCK, of the Virginia Union faculty here, and DR. P. B. YOUNG, of Norfolk, publisher of the Norfolk Journal and Guide. These Negro leaders did not ask for the elimination of segregation in the schools or anywhere else; they asked that "separate but equal" be made a reality.

Responding to their appeal, a group of white leaders met in Atlanta in the spring of 1943, and expressed a desire to cooperate. Out of this grew the Southern Regional Council. The Council was the successor to the Commission on Interracial Cooperation, founded in 1919 by leading churchmen. To repeat, it not only was no "offshoot" of the Southern Conference for Human Welfare; it was criticized in some quarters because it was more conservative than that organization and suspected of being in competition with it.

We must remember, too, that when the Southern Conference for Human Welfare was established in 1938, it was not suspected of having any Communist connections, and many well-intentioned and patriotic Southerners participated in its early meetings. A number of these later joined the Southern Regional Council when they discovered the true purposes of the Conference for Human Welfare.

As to the allegation of the Communist Daily Worker that JAMES E. JACKSON, chief of the Southern branch of the U. S. Communist party, was a "co-founder of the Southern Regional Council," there is nothing to support this.

A JAMES E. JACKSON is listed as having attended the Durham meeting of Negro leaders in October, 1942, but is not mentioned by the Norfolk Journal and Guide as having been on the committee which drew up the statement then issued. JACKSON did not participate in the meetings of white and Negro leaders in 1943 and 1944 which led to the establishment of the Southern Regional Council, and he was not at any time an officer, director, or member of that agency. The Daily Worker's statement that he was a "founder" is as unreliable and inaccurate as nearly everything else in that Communist sheet.

The late DR. HOWARD W. ODUM, noted and respected member of the University of North Carolina faculty, was the first president of the Council. He was succeeded in 1945 by PAUL D. WILLIAMS, prominent Catholic layman of Richmond and co-founder of the Catholic Committee of the South, who served until 1951. MR. WILLIAMS was succeeded in that year by MARION A. WRIGHT, South Carolina attorney, former chairman of the South Carolina Library Board and past president of the University of South Carolina Alumni Association.

It should be emphasized that SRC worked within the framework of "separate but equal" for seven years, and did not announce for integration until 1951.

While we disagree strongly and completely with its present position on this issue, we feel obligated to point out, in fairness, that it was in no sense Communist in its origins. The Southern Regional Council was established because of a sincere desire on the part of white and Negro leaders in the South to eliminate many of the disabilities and discriminations from which Negroes were suffering.

It was hoped that if these could be substantially lessened, the colored South would not look to the colored North for leadership. Insufficient progress was made, unfortunately, and the NAACP moved in and launched its drive for the complete elimination of segregation — sooner than it probably would have done if SRC's accomplishments had been larger.

That is where we stand today.

Dear Alex:

I'm about to head for New York for a brief rat-race. In case I miss you while there, here are copies of my slightly stale letter to the New Bedford hate sheet and an editorial by Virginius Dabney in the Times-Dispatch.

Dabney himself was to send a copy of his editorial to the editor of the Standard-Times, and I am sending it to those Southern papers that I know reprinted the series. If I get no response soon from the Standard-Times, I plan to write them again. Maybe your folks can use the Dabney editorial as ammunition in further approaches.

We didn't feel we could take on the broader job of answering the whole series. It would be an impossible job. And, in any case, separate refutations from the various groups and interests attacked would, I should think, be more effective.

All the best.

Sincerely,

Harold C. Fleming

Dear Harold:

Just in case you have not seen it, I am sending you a series of articles which appeared in the New Bedford, Massachusetts, Standard Times and which makes the point that the entire effort for integration is part of a Communist plot. I think these articles need a complete answer, preferably by an organization like yours which has a direct reason to respond because you are named in the articles. I think the series is an evil one not only because of half truths, mistruths and smears in it but, more basically, because here is a rock-ribbed Republican New England paper feeding grist to the mills of the Southern segregationists. I can see Southern papers picking up these articles and reprinting them to indicate that they have strong allies in the North. I can also see a number of naive and not-so-naive Northern papers reprinting the series or, at least, accepting its thesis and philosophy.

I would appreciate hearing from you as to what you decide. If you do send a letter, please send me a copy as I would like to have some of our contacts in New England use it to blast away.

Cordially,

LITTLE ROCK — ORIGIN AND AFTERMATH — V

Senate Committee Says South Is Target of Reds

(This is the last of five articles on the Communist Party campaign to foment racial tension in the South and the party's important role in recent racial troubles, including Little Rock. Material for this series was gathered in trips along the Eastern Seaboard and to the Midwest, in discussions with members of Congress and from review of U. S. Senate and House committee files.)

By EDWARD B. SIMMONS
Standard-Times Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, July 25—What lies ahead for race relations in the South and, indirectly, for the nation? If the pattern of the last three years is followed in the future, the outlook is not favorable. Some may want to ignore the record, but they cannot hide it. Racial disturbances since the Supreme Court decision of 1954, culminating in the use of armed force at Little Rock, have made two areas of opinion where there were three.

The middle-ground on Southern civil rights issues, the ground on which progress had been steady if slow, is virtually deserted. Sides have been chosen, of necessity.

Two Extremist Camps

Without this conciliatory middle area, there are two extremist camps.

One is headed by the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People. The Communist Party officially has planted its standard in this camp, its purpose to promote racial tension behind the NAACP program.

The other camp includes various white citizen organizations, established authorities of many Southern municipalities and States and, as time passes, more and more of the "moderates."

The no man's land between these two camps is widened in an election year, like the present, and with the 1960 presidential campaign drawing closer. Neither major political party, nor, apparently, the Federal Government, wishes to intervene.

A Handsoff Attitude

The handsoff attitude in Washington was evident during Senate Judiciary Committee examination of incoming U. S. Attorney General William P. Rogers. The prospective head of the Federal agency that sent troops to Little Rock was not asked about his views on civil rights, not even by Southern senators.

Absence of leadership from Washington has increased the importance of the role played by the NAACP. Its leaders apparently plan no change in policy.

Reviewing events through Little Rock, Dr. Channing Tobias, board chairman of the NAACP, declared,

"But this record of advance is only a beginning. Unjust practices are still commonplace in many parts of the nation. The people have a continuing responsibility to take the lead, to assure the winning of equality in all communities, large and small, North and South.

Good Objective

"The pattern is set; it's up to us to fill in the details of the picture. Only then will we have achieved our goal of a democratic America living up to its ideals."

These words from an influential racial harmony, but are ever alert to exploit any issue to further their nefarious aims."

This observation may be obvious to many Americans.

But is it obvious to Dr. Tobias, who has been associated with 40 Communist fronts, board chairman of NAACP, or to W. E. B. DuBois, "honorary chairman" of NAACP, who has been identified with 82 Communist fronts, more than any other American citizen?

Apparently it is not.

As recently as March 1958, the NAACP leadership brought a court action in Florida seeking to halt an investigation by the Florida Legislature of Communist activity in that State.

Besides the NAACP, leadership in the integrationist camp will come from the Rev. Martin Luther King, leader of the Montgomery, Ala., bus boycott. Mr. King also seems hazy in distinguishing between the Communist way and the American way.

A Communist Explanation

At its 1957 national convention, the U. S. Communist Party selected a man identified by the Communist Daily Worker as Mr. King's "secretary," Bayard Rustin, to be an official "observer." Rustin praised the "democratic" proceedings of the convention in a report later denounced by FBI Director Hoover.

Mr. King was quoted as telling a Chicago assembly last year, "It (the Montgomery boycott, in which there was much violence) is a part of something that is happening all over the world. The oppressed people are rising up. They are revolting against colonialism and imperialism and all other systems of oppression."

This explanation is exactly that of the Communist Party, the depiction of the American Negro as a kicked-around colonial, oppressed by imperialists.

Yet the same Rev. Martin Luther King was one of four Negro "leaders" who called upon President Eisenhower in June 1958 to try and set the pattern for racial progress.

A Look to Future

A former Negro Communist official, who later worked for the U. S. Department of Justice, sees the future in these words:

"In my opinion, the Negro leadership should realize that they have responsibility," a Louisiana legislative committee was told by Manning Johnson. "a responsilabeled them everything they can, and there is no basis for them to negotiate with them because they have already built up a wall that cannot be gotten over, gotten under, or gone around."

Former Communist Johnson's judgment may be harsh. But the future will make him an accurate prophet unless there is wider understanding of the Communist background to "immediate" integration, to be accomplished by "force" if necessary.

In a little-publicized report of last November, the U. S. Senate Internal Security Subcommittee declared: "There is a present-day pattern of Communist activity in the mid-South area. The Communist participants . . . make up the basic framework of a Communist operation that is directed against all generations of people in the South."

To that could be added, "and in the nation."

Good Objective

"The pattern is set; it's up to us to fill in the details of the picture. Only then will we have achieved our goal of a democratic America living up to its ideals."

These words from an influential Negro leader describe an objective which the majority of Americans would be happy to work toward.

But there is little reason to suppose that the good intentions of the NAACP will not capitulate, as they have before, to the driving, inflammatory race-tension strategy of the Communist Party.

After the 1954 court decision, the leadership of the NAACP promised moderation, a "quiet" "talking over" of issues among all segments.

Exactly as Forecast

Instead what transpired was a series of "big, sharp struggles" in civil disobedience and violence, exactly as forecast by Benjamin J. Davis, chairman of the Negro Commission of the Communist Party.

Today, Davis and his co-worker, James E. Jackson, Communist chief for Southern affairs, are using phraseology much like Dr. Tobias' in predicting the future.

"The people must take the lead," says Davis. "Negro liberation is now the property of the whole American people."

Jackson's view: "The response to Little Rock has signalized that ours is the time ripe with opportunity to secure major victories in the cause of Negro freedom."

These words have a ring like Dr. Tobias', but an utterly different intent.

Aims Nefarious

"You are aware, of course," FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover commented for The Standard-Times, "the Communists have no sincere interest in promoting racial harmony, but are ever alert to exploit any issue to further their nefarious aims."

This observation may be obvious to many Americans.

But is it obvious to Dr. Tobias, who has been associated with 40 Communist fronts, board chairman of NAACP, or to W. E. B. DuBois, "honorary chairman" of NAACP, who has been identified with 82 Communist fronts, more than any other American citizen?

"Men of King's type will not give that kind of leadership. The only thing they know is the threat and a sword.

"I know the NAACP can't do that. They have called the leaders of Southern life every conceivable type of name. They have labeled them everything they can, and there is no basis for them to negotiate with them because they have already built up a wall that cannot be gotten over, gotten under, or gone around."

Former Communist Johnson's judgment may be harsh. But the future will make him an accurate prophet unless there is wider understanding of the Communist background to "immediate" integration, to be accomplished by "force" if necessary.

LITTLE ROCK — ORIGIN AND AFTERMATH — IV

Daily Worker Led the Cry For Federal Intervention

(This is the fourth of five articles on the Communist Party campaign to foment racial tension in the South and the party's important role in racial troubles, including Little Rock. Material for this series was gathered in trips along the Eastern Seaboard and to the Midwest, in discussions with members of Congress and from review of U. S. Senate and House committee files.)

By EDWARD B. SIMMONS
Standard-Times Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, July 24—"The honor of our country requires Federal intervention now, to end the organized defiance of decency and justice in the South." These words were not spoken by Mayor Mann of Little Rock. Nor by Maxwell Rabb, White House assistant to whom the mayor talked daily by telephone in the hectic days preceding intervention by the National Guard and Paratroopers.

They were not spoken by an official of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, the dominant U. S. Negro organization.

The words were an official pronouncement of the Communist Party of the United States, issued two years before Little Rock, and printed in the party's official political guide, Political Affairs, issue of October 1955.

Uttered by Communist

"The Federal Government has the power and the duty to use troops and whatever other constitutional means are available to enforce the law of the land."

Use of the word "constitutional" in the above might lead someone to think a good American had said those words.

They were uttered 18 months before Little Rock's Federal troop intervention by Benjamin J. Davis, chairman of the Negro Commission of the U. S. Communist Party.

"The Federal Government hasn't hesitated to use the force of jail and seizures in trying to destroy the Communists and other foes of Jim Crow," said Davis, who, like other Communists, has been able to predict the future in civil rights matters.

Pressed for Troops

"It should not hesitate to use whatever force—troops if necessary—to put down violent defiance of the law of the land, and murderous terror against peaceful citizens seeking to exercise their constitutional rights."

From the very beginning of the Little Rock incident, the Communists pressed for "dispatch of Federal troops to keep order in the South."

The Communist Daily Worker shrilled a demand for "action," on Sept. 5, the day after Governor Faubus stationed National Guardsmen around Central High School.

"The insurrection in Arkansas" must be put down, strummed the Worker the next day.

"G-men must be sent," said another edition, blasting FBI director Hoover for refusing to do so.

Other Phrases

"Every prerogative" must be used by the President, was another phrase in the daily demands for use of the military.

"Threats of blood running in the streets" were cited by the Worker, without identifying the source.

Southern whites were charged with being "immune to education, cajolery and pleas of moderation," so that troops were the only recourse.

"Why wait?" asked one Worker editorial.

"Patience!" scoffed another.

"Nothing is to be gained by handling Faubus with kid gloves," stated another diatribe.

"Shilly-shallying" was laid to the President.

Came to Pass

And so it came to pass. On Sept. 24, Paratroopers were airborne to Little Rock. Exactly the methods advocated by the Communist ace-agitators—speed and force—were used in a civil rights dispute.

"A tremendous victory for the American people," rejoined the next day's Daily Worker.

Use of armed troops climaxed years of incitement by violence and distortion of truth by the Communists and their sympathizers. Again a helping hand came from the Supreme Court that had "opened the way to Negro freedom," as the Communist Party observed, and from the misled NAACP.

Mrs. Daisy Bates, president of the Arkansas Conference of NAACP branches, had a key role at Little Rock.

Mrs. Bates Lauded

In an adulatory interview with Mrs. Bates, the New York Post's reporter Ted Poston stated, "both sides in this embattled Southern town agreed on one thing: "If there had been no Daisy Bates, there would have been no 101st Airborne Division patrolling the halls of Central High School.

"And no nine Negro children in the once all-white high school."

Mrs. Bates' husband, Lucius C. Bates, is a director of the Southern Conference Educational Fund, which former Communists have indicted as a "Communist transmission" agency, for inculcating and carrying out Communist doctrine.

The Southern Conference Educational Fund took over many of the officers and all of the publications of the old Southern Conference for Human Welfare, twice listed as a Communist front, "doing the work of the Communist Party," by the U. S. Government.

Mrs. Bates is listed as a "sponsor" of the Southern Conference Educational Fund.

Another Woman Influential

Mr. Bates was a member of the organization known as Negroes for Wallace, a Communist rallying-point. He was a sponsor of the Bill of Rights Congress, a Communist Party front.

Also influential at Little Rock was Mrs. Grace Lorch, white woman who "befriended" one of the Negro students refused admission to Central High.

Widely-published press dispatches described Mrs. Lorch as "a white housewife who protected a Negro girl before a jeering mob," and as "having defied an angry crowd of whites to offer sympathy."

It was not reported, however, that Mrs. Lorch, according to Senate Internal Security Subcommittee records, has a thorough Communist Party background.

Husband Indicted

She has been identified as a one-time Communist Party organizer in Boston, as having attended a Communist Party convention, as a member of the New England District of the Communist Party, as former vice-president of the Teachers Union, and as a director of the Samuel Adams School for Social Studies, both Communist fronts.

At the time Mrs. Lorch was active in Little Rock, her husband, Lee Lorch, was under Federal indictment on eight counts of refusing to answer questions on his alleged Communist background put to him by the House Un-American Activities Committee.

Here, too, the Supreme Court rendered an assist. The charges against Lorch later were dismissed by a Federal judge on the basis of the Supreme Court's freeing of John T. Watkins, United Auto Workers official who refused to name Communists he knew while he was one himself.

Little Rock found the U. S. Supreme Court, the NAACP and the Communist Party teammates.

It was a dazzling demonstration of what can happen, to quote former Communist Joseph Kornfelder, when "the ivory tower boys picked up the theories of the Communists, not looking at what is behind the theories."

Goaded by Communists, NAACP Ends Moderation

(This is the third of five articles on the Communist Party campaign to foment racial tension in the South and the party's important role in racial troubles, including Little Rock. Standard-Times Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, July 23—The success of Communist efforts to exploit the Southern Negro under the guise of "democratization" became fully evident in 1954 and the three subsequent years. The Supreme Court's historic 1954 ruling on school segregation was in judgment on four cases brought before it by the National Association of Advancement for Colored People, which for years had been a priority objective of Communist infiltration.

The NAACP charged that Negro children in Delaware, Kansas, South Carolina and Virginia were being denied their rights under the 14th Amendement.

The court did not rule on this aspect. Instead, Chief Justice Earl Warren in the written opinion, declared that the court found for the NAACP because segregated schools induced a feeling of inferiority among Negro children.

Six Books Cited

This sociological view, the justice stated, is "amply supported by modern authority." He cited six books by such "modern authority."

Two of the six authorities were Theodore Brameld and E. Franklin Frazier. Between them, they have been members of or identified with 28 organizations listed as Communist, Communist-fronts or Communist-dominated.

A third "authority" was K. B. Clark. While arguments were being heard by the court on the four cases, Clark was on the payroll of the NAACP as a "social science expert."

A fourth authority cited by Justice Warren was the book, "An American Dilemma," edited by Gunnar Myrdal, a Swedish Socialist. The chief justice emphasized the importance of this book in the court's deliberations by saying it was depended on "generally," that is from cover to cover.

Records Noted

Sixteen of the contributors to Myrdal's book have long records of pro-Communist affiliation and activity. One, W. E. B. Dubois, identified by the Communist Party as the "honorary chairman" of the NAACP, had a hand in 82 parts of the book. Dubois has been identified with 80 Communist fronts, reportedly more than any other American citizen.

Dubois intervened in behalf of executed Communist spies Julius and Ethel Rosenberg and sent the Kremlin a message of condolence on the death of Stalin.

Myrdal, himself, has written that the U. S. Constitution is "impractical and unsuited to modern conditions." Its adoption was "nearly a plot against the common people," said this foreign authority on American Negro problems.

The court's decision gave new influence to the NAACP. Its officers hailed the decision but indicated that it would not change the organization's plan for calm and orderly progress in race relations.

"We accept the decision quietly, unless there is deliberately-fomented trouble," said the late Walter White, then executive secretary of NAACP.

Wanted Struggles

Thurgood Marshall, chief NAACP counsel, who had argued the school cases before the court, said, "The people will get together and work this thing out."

The Communist Party, however, wanted no part of moderation. It wanted the "big sharp struggles" its leaders had forecast, and racial unrest. Communist publications and officials shrilled for "immediate implementation of the Supreme Court decision, immediate abolition of segregation and discrimination from every facet of American life, immediate enforcement" . . . etc.

The record from the Supreme Court decision until the climax at Little Rock makes it plain which philosophy was the dominant one.

Moderation was forgotten.

The next three years brought unprecedented civil disobedience and violence in the South's racial affairs. There were all-out "incidents" of long duration in Tuskegee, Ala., Charleston, S. C., Tallahassee, Fla., Montgomery, Ala., Americus, Ga., and Clinton, Tenn., to name only the major ones.

Communists Blamed

The NAACP played a prominent role in each, but the atmosphere was not the moderate one ostensibly espoused by the NAACP.

"In my opinion, every major racial disturbance in the South since 1954 has been incited and directed by the Communist Party," Mrs. Paul Crouch, widow of a former Communist leader, told The Standard-Times. Her husband was a top Communist functionary in the South for 13 years, and she was his aid throughout the period.

Communist exploitation of the Negro through the NAACP is attested by the proceedings of the 1957 national convention of the Communist Party. That convention adopted as its main resolution, "the question of Negro freedom . . . the crucial domestic issue of the day . . . requiring support of the program of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People."

Communist penetration of the NAACP in these important years is conceded by the NAACP itself.

All Chapters Warned

On Feb. 14, 1956, Leroy Watkins, who succeded White as NAACP executive secretary, warned all chapters to guard against the "intensive efforts" of Communist to infiltrate.

At that very time, however, the NAACP's official publication, "The Crisis," was recommending as MUST background reading for Negroes, books by Claude Lightfoot, chairman of the Illinois Communist Party, and Doxey E. Wilkerson, member of the party's National Committee. Both have writen extensively in behalf of racial unrest.

Communist dominance of Negro civil rights developments after the Supreme Court decision is illustrated, also, in the activities of the Highlander School, influential "sociological" workshop in the South. Highlander, according to testimony before a congressional committee, was founded by a Communist and by a man who refused to state his beliefs.

Is Program Sincere?

Since 1954, Highlander has held a series of "workshops to develop plans for an orderly transition from segregated to integrated schools. "At the last workshop, held over the Labor Day weekend just before the trouble at Little Rock, the leaders of every important racial strife incident in the South since 1954 were present.

How sincere is the Highlander program for "orderly transition" in desegregation?

The actual curriculum at Highlander, its pamphlet statement in behalf of "orderly transition" notwithstanding, preached that "desegregation is more effectively accomplished in a single step than in a series of steps with delays in between."

This is fellow-traveler vernacular for the straight-out Communist program of "immediate desegregation."

Among those attending the important Highlander workshop was the Rev. Martin Luther King, leader of the Montgomery, Ala., bus boycott. King was to be at Little Rock, and, in 1958, at the White House, protesting integration delay.

By the time Central High School in Little Rock was to open for its 1957-58 school year, the Communist Party was marching step by step with the NAACP, whether the good element in the NAACP liked it or not.

(Tomorow: Troops move into Little Rock.)

Berry of New York, a member of the National Committee of the Communist Party; second from right, the Rev. Martin Luther King, leader of the Montgomery, Ala., bus boycott; third from right, Aubrey W. Communists' Basic Goal: To Incite Racial Strife

(This is the second of five articles on the Communist Party campaign to foment racial tension in the South and the party's important role in racial troubles, including Little Rock. Material for this series was gathered in trips along the Eastern Seaboard and to the Midwest, in discussions with members of Congress and from review of U. S. Senate and House committee files.)

By EDWARD B. SIMMONS
Standard-Times Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, July 22—To incite racial strife is one of the oldest objectives in the Communist program for getting world domination. "We must realize that our party's most powerful weapon is racial tension," states a Communist Party handbook of 1912, well before a few hundred Bolsheviks seized control of Russia.

"By propounding into the consciousness of the dark races that for centuries they have been oppressed by the whites, we can mold them to the program of the Communist Party," the handbook continues.

"In America, we will aim for subtle victory. While inflaming the Negro minority against the whites, we will endeavor to instill in the whites a guilt complex for their exploitation of the Negroes. Thus will begin a process which will deliver America to our cause."

Coincidence or Strategy?

Is it coincidence or the result of strategy that, some 45 years later, racial unrest in an outstanding Southern city, Little Rock, Ark., has increased so sharply that a Federal judge called for a 2½-year delay in any integration?

Again, is it coincidence or the result of Communist strategy that one of the most influential of all Southern Negro leaders, the Rev. Martin Luther King, exhorts his followers with these words:

"It (the Montgomery, Ala., bus boycott) is a part of something that is happening all over the world. The oppressed people are rising up. They are revolting against colonialism and imperialism and all other systems of oppression."

When Mr. King draws a parallel between the situation of the American Negro and "oppressed peoples" rising against "colonialism" and "imperialism," he is following exactly, to the word, the Communist line.

Direct Approach Failed

At first, the Communist drive for creation of racial strife called for a direct approach to Negroes, using labor unions and Communist fronts like the American Negro Labor Congress and the League for Struggle for Negro Rights.

This approach was brazenly direct and it failed. Former Communist Joseph Kornfelder, one of the party founders in the United States and its first director of Southern operations, has described what happened:

"The South to the Communists was always one of the most vexing problems," Kornfelder told a joint legislative committee of the State of Louisiana in March 1957. "Moscow could never understand it . . . According to Marx' theory, the South should be leading the United States in Communist development.

"It just didn't work out that way.

"It was just to the contrary. The South proved to be a hard nut and it didn't conform to the doctrine.

Blocked by Religion

"They decided that the big block against penetration of the South is religion. The Negroes believed in religion; the hillbillies believed in religion; nearly everybody is religious. The South is more religious than the North.

"Therefore, they decided maybe they should get at them under the auspices of the Cross."

Kornfelder and two Negro former Communist leaders, Manning Johnson and Leonard Patterson, told the Louisiana committee that the new tactics included, besides use of the church, penetration of reputable Negro organizations and the founding, but not obvious control, of others.

World War II, with its migrations and general dislocation of living habits, produced what Kornfelder described as a "sort of honeymoon situation" between the Communist organizers and Negro organizations.

4 Agencies Infiltrated

"It seems the intellectuals during that time had shown a remarkable weakness," he testified. "They were bigger suckers for the Communist propaganda than many others were, apparently because they sort of led a life apart from the daily troubles and toil of the population.

"They were the ivory tower boys who picked up the theories of the Communists, not looking at what is behind the theories."

The results of this "honeymoon" were vital Communist infiltration of the most important agencies in the South dealing in Negro issues. The Communists infiltrated four of these organizations and actually helped found three of them.

They are the Southern Conference Educational Fund, the Southern Regional Council, the Highlander Folk School in Tennessee and the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People.

An almost incredible maze of interlocking officials, ideas and publications linked the three first-named agencies with the Communist Party.

Council Got Ford Grant

The Regional Council and the Educational Fund were both offshoots of the old Southern Conference for Human Welfare, which was dissolved in 1948 after twice being described by the Federal Government as "a Communist front serving the Soviet Union and its subservient Communist Party."

Former directors and officers of the Conference for Human Welfare became directors and officers of the Regional Council and the Educational Fund and of the Highlander School. The Communist Daily Worker openly boasted that James E. Jackson, chief of the Southern branch of the U. S. Communist Party, was a co-founder of the Regional Council.

Although the Regional Council is not widely known in the North, its influence in the South is attested by its receiving a $497,000 grant from the Ford Foundation's Fund for the Republic.

Likewise, the Highlander School plays an important role in Southern civil rights developments, although it is scarcely known in the North. The school, according to testimony before the Senate Internal Security Subcommittee, was co-founded by a Communist and by a man who refused to testify on his beliefs.

NAACP Infiltrated

During these "organizing" years by the Communist Party, the NAACP was extensively infiltrated, although not dominated by Communist sympathizers. Many of its leading officials were members of Communist fronts.

In fact, by 1954 and the crucial Supreme Court decision, the Communist Party was so confident it had set the stage for developments in its favor that the party's national convention in the Winter of 1953 declared, "The next period ahead will witness momentous struggles of the Negroes . . . given the vanguard leadership of the Communist Party, we may be confident that the Negro liberation movement will ally itself more fully with the camp of peace and democracy."

The Communist Party was in a position to follow its long-proved doctrine:

To get a "sociological" or pro-Communist book on the reading list of influential persons, like a Supreme Court justice;

To persuade a Negro to violate a civil rights statute, in the cause of "civil disobedience;"

To inject a fellow-traveler in the forefront of a civil rights dispute;

To support the program of the NAACP.

These objectives were attained in the year to come.

(Tomorrow: The Supreme Court Decision.)

LEADING A DISCUSSION at the Highlander Folk School seminar on integration was the Rev. Martin Luther King who directed the Montgomery, Ala., bus boycott. The school advocates "immediate," "one-step" integration, without intermediate steps, exactly the program advocated by the Communist Party. Highlander was founded, according to congressional records, by a Communist and a Communist sympathizer. In June 1958 Mr. King called on President Eisenhower to urge more drastic Federal action.

Forced Public School Integration Fails to Promote Racial Harmony

(This is the first of five articles on the Communist Party campaign to foment racial tension in the South and the party's important role in racial troubles, including Little Rock. By EDWARD B. SIMMONS
Standard-Times Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, July 21—The luster is wearing thin at Little Rock, Ark., where bayonets were used last Fall to enforce integration in a public school. Some of the trail-blazers appear to have washed their hands of the cause of Negro "rights." Others have been seen in roles considerably less flattering than those they played last Fall.

Ernest Green's observation, "I'm glad that's all over," is perhaps not untypical. Ernest, 18, was one of the nine Negro youths admitted to Little Rock's Central High School under the guns of federalized National Guardsmen and U. S. paratroopers.

Last month Ernest was graduated. One of the nine was expelled; the other seven may never return to Central.

If the experiment continues at Central, it will have to do so without the assistance of many persons who were instrumental in launching it.

Mayor Woodrow Wilson Mann of Little Rock, who made the daily telephone calls to the White House that led to Federal intervention, has left town.

He is now a resident of Denver, Colo., working in an investment banking firm.

Max Rabb, the presidential assistant who was at the White House end of the Mayor Mann calls and was a key man in the decision to send Federal troops, has left Washington.

He is now a partner in a big New York law firm.

Despite apparent "success" in its part in obtaining the Little Rock test, the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People has experienced a "sharp drop" in membership.

Federal Judge Ronald Davies, whose ruling that integration must begin "forthwith" in Little Rock was the foundation for what followed, has long since left Little Rock.

He is now back in his court in North Dakota, where there are but 257 Negroes in the entire State. Arkansas has 462,000.

Harry Ashmore, the Little Rock editor whose editorials in behalf of integration stirred the controversy and brought him a Pulitzer prize, has conceded he will not employ a Negro on his newspaper.

Mrs. Grace Lorch, the Little Rock "housewife" who attracted national attention by "befriending" one of the nine students, has since refused to declare whether she is a Communist.

Herbert Brownell, whose U. S. Justice Department gave the orders for dispatch of troops, is no longer attorney general.

He has taken up the more lucrative private practice of law.

The Justice Department, itself,

Forcing Racial Harmony Fails

has had a change of heart. Under its new chief, William P. Rogers, the word is "never again" on the use of Federal troops to enforce integration.

Education Hurt Badly

The Little Rock School Board, which had worked out a gradual integration program that Judge Davies' ruling nullified, has thrown in the sponge on any integration in the near future.

Central High School has claimed that the educational program for its 2,000 students was so badly dislocated by the one-year experiment the school could not survive another year without complete disintegration of morale.

This was a major consideration in Federal Judge Harry J. Lumley' approval of a 2½-year stay of integration for the Little Rock high school, a decision that may have made the best of a very unfortunate situation.

Majority Needs Consideration

Judge Lumley, while acknowledging the interest of Negroes in obtaining equal rights, said the "public interest" of the majority rated consideration, too. The burden placed on other Central High students and the "racial tension and unrest" created in Little Rock itself demanded a delay in integration, he said.

The ruling led to another example of apparent change in viewpoint among those who had been insistent on an immediate end of segregation.

When Judge Lumley's decision was taken to the U. S. Supreme Court, whose 1954 "sociological" and subsequent decrees had started the ferment in the South, that body declined to break up its Summer vacation for a special sitting.

The court, in effect, passed the buck to a lower court with an admotion to act fast.

Little Rock, the morning after, appears to have been a venture that has not served racial harmony or promoted integration. As such, its origin, its leaders and its original objectives invited inquiry.

Dear Harold:

I just returned to my desk from summer vacation, and I hasten to respond to your note concerning the series in the New Bedford Standard-Times by Edward B. Simmons. I also have before me Alex Miller's letter to you in which he indicates that he has made Iz Zack's report on the character of the newspaper and its star reporter available to you.

We have watched the New Bedford Standard-Times, and up to today your request for a correction has not been honored. In view of the editorial policy of the newspaper and the political position of its owner, I doubt that a retraction will be forthcoming. I would urge you, however, to make another attempt by re-submitting your letter, asking that it be published in the letters-to-the-editor column. Also, I wonder if your letter might be expanded along the lines of Alex Miller's suggestion. The attempt to inject the phony issue of communist infiltration into the legitimate strivings of the Negro community for equality in education is in itself a communist tactic, destructive of the American way which the Standard-Times purports to uphold. The very fact that your letter does not deal with the substance of the Simmons charges might give credence to these themes in the minds of the publisher and editors of the newspaper.

We will continue to watch the New Bedford Standard-Times for a reaction to your letter. With warmest regards,

Cordially,

Sol

Letters From Our Readers

Eleanor Roosevelt Criticizes Series on Little Rock

To the Editor of The Standard-Times:

I have read the articles on the Little Rock situation by Edward B. Simmons, which were done for The Standard-Times, and they seem to me to be playing into the hands of the Communists. If all the people who have the courage to work for integration in the South are to be branded as Communists, this is what the Communists want.

This is just a pattern to hold back integration in the South and you nothing can win to us, in the struggle of democracy versus Communism, more of the nations that have not yet attached themselves to either side, than a forthright policy on our part to enforce the Supreme Court decision.

Your writer overlooks the fact that two-thirds of the world's people are colored and this is no longer a national issue. It is an international question and one of the most important in the struggle for our leadership of the non-Communist world.

Every uncommitted nation that we lose to the Communists makes it less likely that we will win the struggle, and articles such as these are a great help to the Communists.

A Race Agency and the Facts

Inaccurate statements as to its origins of the Southern Regional Council of Atlanta appeared recently in THE TIMES-DISPATCH, and should be corrected. They appeared — inadvertently, we are sure—in one of the series of articles by EDWARD B. SIMMONS of the New Bedford, Mass., Standard-Times concerning Communist efforts to incite racial strife in the United States.

MR. SIMMONS stated in the article appearing in our paper on August 5 that the Southern Regional Council, established in Atlanta in 1944, was an "offshoot of the old Southern Conference for Human Welfare, which was dissolved in 1948 after twice being described by the Federal Government as 'Communist front.'" He also said: "'The Communist Daily Worker openly boasted that JAMES E. JACKSON, chief of the Southern branch of the U. S. Communist party, was a co-founder of the Regional Council."

Taking these two charges in order, the Southern Regional Council was not an offshoot of the Southern Conference for Human Welfare. It was established in response to an appeal from respected Southern Negro leaders, who met at Durham, N. C., in October, 1942, on the call of DR. GORDON B. HANCOCK, of the Virginia Union faculty here, and DR. P. B. YOUNG, of Norfolk, publisher of the Norfolk Journal and Guide. These Negro leaders did not ask for the elimination of segregation in the schools or anywhere else; they asked that "separate but equal" be made a reality.

Responding to their appeal, a group of white leaders met in Atlanta in the spring of 1943, and expressed a desire to cooperate. Out of this grew the Southern Regional Council. The Council was the successor to the Commission on Interracial Cooperation, founded in 1919 by leading churchmen. To repeat, it not only was no "offshoot" of the Southern Conference for Human Welfare; it was criticized in some quarters because it was more conservative than that organization and suspected of being in competition with it.

We must remember, too, that when the Southern Conference for Human Welfare was established in 1938, it was not suspected of having any Communist connections, and many well-intentioned and patriotic Southerners participated in its early meetings. A number of these later joined the Southern Regional Council when they discovered the true purposes of the Conference for Human Welfare.

As to the allegation of the Communist Daily Worker that JAMES E. JACKSON, chief of the Southern branch of the U. S. Communist party, was a "co-founder of the Southern Regional Council," there is nothing to support this.

A JAMES E. JACKSON is listed as having attended the Durham meeting of Negro leaders in October, 1942, but is not mentioned by the Norfolk Journal and Guide as having been on the committee which drew up the statement then issued. JACKSON did not participate in the meetings of white and Negro leaders in 1943 and 1944 which led to the establishment of the Southern Regional Council, and he was not at any time an officer, director, or member of that agency. The Daily Worker's statement that he was a "founder" is as unreliable and inaccurate as nearly everything else in that Communist sheet.

The late DR. HOWARD W. ODUM, noted and respected member of the University of North Carolina faculty, was the first president of the Council. He was succeeded in 1945 by PAUL D. WILLIAMS, prominent Catholic layman of Richmond and co-founder of the Catholic Committee of the South, who served until 1951. MR. WILLIAMS was succeeded in that year by MARION A. WRIGHT, South Carolina attorney, former chairman of the South Carolina Library Board and past president of the University of South Carolina Alumni Association.

It should be emphasized that SRC worked within the framework of "separate but equal" for seven years, and did not announce for integration until 1951.

While we disagree strongly and completely with its present position on this issue, we feel obligated to point out, in fairness, that it was in no sense Communist in its origins. The Southern Regional Council was established because of a sincere desire on the part of white and Negro leaders in the South to eliminate many of the disabilities and discriminations from which Negroes were suffering.

It was hoped that if these could be substantially lessened, the colored South would not look to the colored North for leadership. Insufficient progress was made, unfortunately, and the NAACP moved in and launched its drive for the complete elimination of segregation — sooner than it probably would have done if SRC's accomplishments had been larger.

That is where we stand today.

AIR MAIL SPECIAL DELIVERY

Mr. Virginius Dabney, Editor
The Times-Dispatch
Richmond, Virginia

Dear Mr. Dabney:

Enclosed is a photostatic copy of a letter from an official of the Department of Justice to Roy Wilkins of the NAACP. The letter, which was made public at the time, dissociates the Department from Johnson and his testimony before the Rainach Committee.

The passage quoted below is from Facts on File. I should think its contents could be further verified, if necessary, by checking newspaper accounts of the SACB's action of August 11, 1956.

"On 8/11/56 the Subversive Activities Control Board reaffirmed its view that the U. S. Communist Party was Moscow controlled after reviewing its finding that the Communist Party must register with the Attorney General under the 1950 Internal Security Act. The SACB expunged from the record of hearings on the case what it called 'tainted' testimony given by Harvey Matusow, Manning Johnson and the late Paul Crouch."

I hope this is adequate. If you should need further documentation on these or other points, don't hesitate to call on me.

With kindest regards,

Sincerely,

Harold C. Fleming

The Editor
The News and Courier
Charleston, South Carolina

Dear Sir:

In a recent issue you publish another in Mr. Stanley F. Morse's long series of diatribes. This one, characteristically, seeks to sully the reputation of Mr. James M. Dabbs by feverish charges against the Southern Regional Council, of which Mr. Dabbs is president.

Mr. Morse is the evidently willing collaborator in a myth originated by the Communists themselves, in their Daily Worker.

Rather than answer once again these tired and absurd charges ourselves, we refer to the enclosed editorial from the conservative Richmond Times-Dispatch, from which we cite the following passages:

"(The Southern Regional Council) not only was no 'offshoot' of the Southern Conference for Human Welfare; it was criticized in some quarters because it was more conservative than that organization and suspected of being in competition with it...

"As to the allegation of the Communist Daily Worker that James E. Jackson, chief of the Southern branch of the U. S. Communist party, was a 'co-founder of the Southern Regional Council,' there is nothing to support this.... The Daily worker's statement that he was a 'founder' is as unreliable and inaccurate as nearly everything else in that Communist sheet....

"While we disagree strongly and completely with (the Council's) present position on (integration), we feel obligated to point out, in fairness, that it was in no sense Communist in its origins. The Southern Regional Council was established because of a sincere desire on the part of white and Negro leaders in the South to eliminate many of the disabilities and discriminations from which Negroes were suffering."

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Sale Of Book

To The News and Courier:

With reference to the book "South Carolinians Speak," which you have previously commended to your readers (Nov. 3 ,1957), your editorial on July 27 entitled "Grist For The Mill" makes much ado over the purchase of copies of this work by the Southern Regional Council through the assistance of a grant from the Fund for the Republic.

It should be observed that the publishers of this book offered it at public sale and that copies were sold to such diverse organizations and their representatives as the Southern Regional Council and the Citizens Councils.

The large order placed with us by this former group was only filled this past June when it was apparent that the publication had been thoroughly distributed in South Carolina. Distribution within South Carolina has exceeded 15,000 copies, while about 3,900 copies have been distributed outside the state. Southern Regional Council paid the face price of 50 cents per copy and obtained 2,500 copies which are a part of the number sold outside South Carolina.

The Fund for the Republic made it possible for the Southern Regional Council to purchase our book just as it provided the Southern Assn. of Nieman Fellows with the money to underwrite travel fellowships such as the one enjoyed by the editor of The News and Courier.

About Prof. Dabbs

To The News and Courier:

With reference to his letter in The News and Courier July 23, does Prof. Dabbs know what he is dabbling in? "Let's look at the record," as Al Smith used to say.

James M. Dabbs is president of the Southern Regional Council which was formed by a Negro leader, James E. Jackson Jr., member of the national committee of the Communist Party USA and director of Communist activities in the Southern States. Three of the five incorporators of the Southern Regional Council had Communist-front affiliations, and over 30 of its officers and directors have had red records. The SRC is organizing and propagandizing for racial integration.

The Southern Regional Council has been financed mainly by grants totaling over $500,000 from the Fund for the Republic, a beneficiary of the Ford Foundation.

The Council has been exposed by the American Legion Firing Line in its issues of May 15 and July 15, 1957. Moreover, the American Legion has opposed the activities of the Fund for the Republic as leading to ". . . the destruction of the internal security of the United States." (Firing Line, Sept. 15, 1955, and March 1, 1957).

James M. Dabbs also has been listed as a member of the advisory committee of the Southern Conference Educational Fund. Inc., which is reported by the Senate Internal Security Subcommittee to be an offshoot of the Communist-front Southern Conference for Human Welfare with a number of the same officers (including a South Carolina Negro, Modjeska M. Simkins. See also the exposes of the SCEF in the Firing Line of July 1, 1955, and May 15, 1957.)

Dr. J. M. Dabbs advocates racial integration. Any intellectually honest professor acquainted with the facts of biology and history should know that racial integration, whether gradual or forced by Supreme Court edict and federal troops, will destroy America's great white civilization and the USA — just as Soviet bully Khrushchev plans.

Dear Sir:

This is in reference to a series on Communists and integration originally published in the New Bedford Standard-Times and recently reprinted by your newspaper. Article number two of this series made false and damaging statements about the origins of the Southern Regional Council.

The enclosed editorial from the Richmond Times-Dispatch answers these charges far more effectively and objectively than we could. I trust that you will also want to correct these untrue statements. Accordingly, this is to ask that you reprint the Times-Dispatch editorial or such appropriate excerpts from it as you see fit.

Dear Sir:

This is in further reference to my letter of August 6, 1958 which has so far been neither acknowledged nor published, according to my latest information.

I am enclosing a copy of an editorial from the Richmond Times-Dispatch which corrects the misstatements about the Southern Regional Council appearing in your recent series by Mr. Simmons. I am sure you will agree that the Times-Dispatch is an informed and objective source.

This is to request that, in the interest of fairness and accuracy, you reprint the enclosed editorial.

I trust we may anticipate an early reply.

Southern Regional Council And Manning Johnson

Regarding your editorial of August 21, A Race Agency and the Facts, I rather expect Edward B. Simmons accumulated his information on the Southern Regional Council from the sworn testimony of Manning Johnson which was taken under oath by the Louisiana State Legislature last year, and also from the American Legion's "Firing Line."

The information from these two sources is thoroughly documented even though Senator Paul Douglas tried to disprove it a year ago on the Senate floor by quoting from an article published by the Atlanta Constitution. Naturally the Atlanta Constitution would want to whitewash the Southern Regional Council because of the part played in this organization by Ralph McGill of the Atlanta Constitution.

While the U. S. Department of Justice and the Subversive Activities Control Board may have repudiated testimony of Manning Johnson many Americans still believe Johnson was telling the truth as he spoke under oath and so far as I know, he has not been punished for having lied.

I think that the main point is, though, that we in the South should not argue when respected Northern newspapers print articles trying to awaken Northerners as to some subversive influences behind the racial issue. If we think there are errors in such articles, then let us take it up directly with the newspaper in question rather than writing editorials which allow readers to believe we are not behind our Governor and our General Assembly. After all, our State stands for Constitution Government and States Rights. We are run by laws and not by men or by the N A A C P, Southern Regional Council, or any other such organization.

(Mrs.) ELIZABETH H. OSTH

Berryville.

[Editor's Note: Manning Johnson was quoted in newspaper accounts on March 9, 1957, as having testified before a legislative committee of the State of Louisiana that he is "now employed as Director of Research for the Department of Justice in Washington." Asked about this, Warren Olney III, Assistant U.S. Attorney General, stated: "Manning Johnson is not employed by the Department of Justice as Director of Research or in any other capacity . . . He has no authority to speak for or on behalf of the Department of Justice."

The previous year (8/11/56) the Subversive Activities Control Board had expunged from the record of a hearing concerning the Communist party, testimony given by Manning Johnson. It termed the testimony "tainted."

We are unable to follow Mrs. Osth's reasoning that there is a relationship between our pointing out erroneous statements concerning the origin of the Southern Regional Council in 1944 and our support of Gov. Almond's "massive resistance" in 1958. As far as we can see, there is no connection whatever. We are, of course, supporting Gov. Almond.]

Edward B. Simmons who wrote the series for the New Bedford Standard Times is a 40 year old graduate of Harvard, a local blueblood, who is married to the daughter of Tack Hardwick of Harvard football fame and they reside in the Yankee stronghold of Marion, a socialite stronghold near New Bedford.

Simmons is considered the star reporter in the employ of Basil Brewer, publisher of the Standard Times and his salary is estimated between $15,000.00 to $20,000.00 a year. Simmons has been described to me by people who are in daily contact with him, as "a stiff necked, right wing Yankee", and others identified him as "very reactionary and closely tied in to Brewer and Charles J. Lewin, editor and general manager of the Standard Times (note: Lewin, a strong McCarthyite, was chairman of the big rally sponsored in Boston by the Friends of Senator McCarthy, Inc. when the late Senator from Wisconsin made a Boston appearance at the height of the Fort Monmouth inquiry).

Dear Ed:

Thanks so much for pursuing the question of the New Bedford Standard-Times series.

I have written the editor of the Standard-Times a second letter, copy enclosed. Also I was assured by Virginius Dabney that he would, himself, send a copy of his editorial to the Standard-Times with a suggestion that they make appropriate corrections. So far, I have had no response at all from the Standard-Times.

It would be most helpful indeed if your New Bedford constituent could use his influence with the editor in support of our request for a retraction.

My dear Senator Russell:

This is in reference to a series on Communism and integration written by Edward B. Simmons for the New Bedford (Mass.) Standard-Times and reprinted in certain Southern newspapers. I understand that you had this newspaper series inserted into the Congressional Record on August 12th.

My reason for writing you is that these articles contain a number of serious misstatements, several of them pertaining to the Southern Regional Council. The enclosed copy of an editorial from the Richmond Times-Dispatch, which undertakes to correct these misstatements, is self explanatory.

I am sure you will want to correct the false and injurious misimpression of the Southern Regional Council and the reputable Southerners who comprise it. Therefore, I am forwarding the enclosed editorial from the conservative and influential Times-Dispatch with a request that you cause it to be entered into the Congressional Record in further extension of your remarks of August 12th.

With appreciation to your attention to this matter, I am

Dear Mr. Lewin:

In reading the articles published in the "Standard-Times" of July 21-25 and written by Mr. Edward E. Simmons about Little Rock and the struggle of the colored people in the south for integration, one wonders why we must give the communists credit for initiating every movement for human progress in the world, and in this country in particular.

There is no doubt that the negro in America should possess the same right as the white man. The white man obtained possession of this land by conquest. The negro was brought here by force, against his wish and will, and Americans, white and colored, fought a bloody war almost a hundred years ago to free him from slavery and allow him to enjoy his constitutional as well as his God given right to justice and equality. In the general Afro-Asiatic awakening of nations and races of this century, the negro found that, mentally and physically he possessed the same facilities as the white man. Culturally, he was prevented by some white men (until recently) from obtaining a decent and equal education with his white neighbor. In spite of this handicap, the negro race produced some great men in every line of endeavor. Numerically, he surpasses the white race by hundreds of millions. He is a power to be reckoned with in this world. In our struggle with communism on the world arena, we need his friendship and help as well as the help of all colored races. Why push them forcibly into the communist orbit by constantly drumming into their ears that the communist is the foremost champion in the fight for his rights?

We know that the communists try to hang on the coat tails of every popular movement for justice and progress. Is the justice of the movement for integration to suffer because a few communists sneaked in by the back door? All indications point to the fact that, sooner or later, the negro question will have to be settled and the negro will win his right to life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness, plus his right to integrated education. Whether it will be accomplished by another Abraham Lincoln method (God forbid) or across a conference table, God only knows! Why put the communists in a position to claim the credit for fighting the negroes' battle when we know that, long before communism appeared on the world scene in its present form, there were millions of decent Americans who sacrificed their lives to free the negro from slavery and there are millions of white Americans today who are fighting for the negro's right to human dignity, equality and integration.

PROTECTING A BASIC RIGHT

Much-needed support of a basic principle—the right of the people to know—is contained in the open-meeting bill approved by the Legislature and awaiting Governor Furcolo's signature.

The bill provides that, except in certain circumstances, meetings of State, county and local governmental bodies shall be open to the public and the press. Excluded from the act are meetings of quasi-judicial bodies and authorities.

More timely or generally useful legislation is difficult to imagine. The absence of any statutory guarantee of the public's right has led to wide variance in practice; agencies in most communities have always been open to inspection, but in others the decision has been, often on personal caprice, to deny admittance to press and public.

Provision is made in the open-meeting bill, for private deliberations, where called for. Meetings of School Committees and other governmental functions may be held in executive session—private—if the agency considers that matters before it would adversely affect the public interest, the financial interest of a community or a personal reputation, if made known publicly.

The bill is a long one, with many provisions. But essentially it declares that no one is more entitled to know what public officials are doing than Mr. John Q. Public, himself, who pays the bills and does the voting.

This is a simple premise, a reaffirmation that good government depends on a well-informed electorate. The Legislature has given its solid endorsement, and it is to be hoped that Governor Furcolo, who has indicated his support, will approve the bill promptly.

ADVICE TO AVOID

A press association dispatch reported that "three Harvard professors have criticized the John Foster Dulles policy in the Far East," and demanded that the United States pull out of the Formosa Strait.

The three all hold impressive titles. Edwin O. Reischauer is director of the Harvard Center of Far East Studies; John K. Fairbank is associate director of the center, and Rupert Emerson is professor of history.

The trio have something else in common. They were associated in the Institute of Pacific Relations when the IPR, according to the U. S. Senate Committee on the Judiciary, "was a vehicle used by the Communists to orientate American Far Eastern policies toward Communist objectives."

When documented charges of pro-Communism in the IPR were officially laid before that organization, both Fairbank and Emerson were members of the board. Fairbank signed a petition denying bias; Emerson did nothing.

Fairbank and Reischauer participated ploited fully and continuously by Communists on a national scale. Current programs include intensified attempts to infiltrate mass Negro organizations. The party's objectives are not to aid the Negroes—but are designed to take advantage of all controversial issues on the racial question so as to create unrest, dissension and confusion in the minds of the American people."

The Communist campaign of confusion has intensified integration problems in the South. Knowledge of the Communist conspiracy is essential to a full understanding of the crises in Little Rock and elsewhere.

LAST NIGHT TO REGISTER

Prospective voters in the Nov. 4 election are reminded that the registration deadline is tonight. The office of the New Bedford Board of Registrars of Voters in City Hall will be open until 10 p. m. for the convenience of persons still unregistered.

Every citizen should take part in the important decisions that are to be made at the polls on the next election day. Voters will elect State officials and legislators who will administer affairs of the Commonwealth during the next two years, a U. S. senator and congressmen who will represent the Bay State in Washington, and a number of important officials who will serve at the county and district levels.

The right to vote should be cherished by every American as one of the most important privileges and responsibilities of citizenship. Be sure you are registered to vote Nov. 4.

Provision is made in the open meeting bill, for private deliberations where called for. Meetings of School Committees and other governmental functions may be held in executive session—private—if the agency considers that matters before it would adversely affect the public interest, the financial interest of a community or a personal reputation, if made known publicly.

The bill is a long one, with many provisions. But essentially it declares that no one is more entitled to know what public officials are doing than Mr. John Q. Public, himself, who pays the bills and does the voting.

This is a simple premise, a reaffirmation that good government depends on a well-informed electorate. The Legislature has given its solid endorsement, and it is to be hoped that Governor Furcolo, who has indicated his support, will approve the bill promptly.

Fairbank and Reischauer participated in a 1949 meeting of an advisory committee of the U. S. State Department, on Far Eastern policy. Others who attended that meeting testified under oath that Fairbank and Reischauer were members of a small group at that meeting led by Lawrence K. Rosinger, who has refused to state whether he is a Communist, and Owen Lattimore.

Members of this small group, the Senate Judiciary Committee was told, were "very sympathetic toward the Chinese Communists," were strong advocates of aid for Communist China and of recognition of the Peiping government, were opposed to any Western pact in the Pacific and urged that Chiang and Formosa be abandoned.

Aggression instigated by Communist China in Korea has brought tragedy to many American homes since Fairbank wrote that the Communist government was "the best government that modern China has had."

Neither he nor colleagues Reischauer and Emerson have changed their views, however. They advocated appeasement of Communism then, and they do so now. The terrible cost of appeasement has taught these professors nothing.

A BETTER UNDERSTANDING

In a Letter to the Editor published yesterday, Hyman Krivoff took exception to a series of articles published in The Standard-Times during July, entitled "Little Rock—Its Origin and Aftermath."

"One wonders," wrote Mr. Krivoff, "why we must give the Communists credit for initiating every movement for human progress in the world, and in this country in particular."

The articles did not give the Communists "credit" for starting any movement for human progress. They did give the U. S. Communist Party "credit" for being influential in the drive for speed and force in Southern integration to help attain the Communist objective of racial unrest.

The purpose of the series was to document a situation that FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover has described as follows, in testimony made public after the articles were published:

"The Negro situation is also being ex-

A few weeks ago I sent you a tear-sheet from the New Bedford Standard-Times containing information about Justice Frankfurter's past affiliation with the NAACP as brought out in an exchange of letters between Frankfurter and Edward Simmons of the Standard-Times. (You will recall that Simmons was also the author of the five articles on Little Rock which have been reprinted in southern newspapers). This week David Lawrence, the national columnist, credited the Standard-Times of New Bedford in his column "Frankfurter Vs. Frankfurter" for bringing to light the fact that Justice Frankfurter had been Legal Counsel for the NAACP for about 10 years prior to his appointment to the High Court. I might point out that the Lawrence column is carried by the Standard-Times.

The earlier Simmons articles on Little Rock were picked up by another national columnist, Holmes Alexander, and used for the basis of his column in which he called for a national monument at Little Rock commemorating a major defeat for Communism. Alexander's column is also carried by the Standard-Times.

Frankfurter Vs. Frankfurter

WASHINGTON — This is the story of a case that might be called "Frankfurter vs. Frankfurter." It concerns a struggle of conscience which justices of the Supreme Court undergo when they are faced with the question of whether or not they should disqualify themselves from judging any case in which they previously have had a personal interest or connection.

This very problem has arisen with respect to Justice Frankfurter before it came up a few days ago when The Standard Times of New Bedford, Mass., published an exchange of letters with him about his 10-year affiliation with the legal committee of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People. Justice Frankfurter wrote that it was true he had for a long time, while a professor at Harvard Law School, given advice on "policy" matters to the legal committee of this organization. He wrote that the connection was terminated when he became a Supreme Court justice and added that he never had accepted any monetary compensation for such service.

Perhaps the best single statement of a judge's problem in meeting a "conflict of interest" where there has been no commercial or financial connection previously, but where emotions and personal feelings may be involved, was made by Justice Frankfurter himself. He gave a public explanation on May 26, 1952, of why he had declined to participate in the decision of a case before the Supreme Court about the broadcasting of music that annoyed the passengers on a Capital Transit Company bus in Washington. It had caused some of them to bring suit to declare such broadcasting a violation of both the First and Fifth Amendments of the Constitution. Here is what Justice Frankfurter in "recusing" himself—which is the legal expression for self-disqualification—wrote at that time:

"The judicial process demands that a judge move within the framework of revelant legal rules and the covenanted modes of thought for ascertaining them. He must think dispassionately and submerge private feeling on every aspect of a case. There is a good deal of shallow talk that the judicial robe does not change the man within it. It does. The fact is that on the whole judges do lay aside private views in discharging their judicial functions. This is achieved through training, professional habits, self-discipline and that fortunate alchemy by which men are loyal to the obligation with which they are entrusted. But it is also true that reason cannot control the subconscious influence of feelings of which it is unaware. When there is ground for believing that such unconscious feelings may operate in the ultimate judgment, or may not unfairly lead others to believe they are operating, judges recuse themselves. They do not sit in judgment. They do this for a variety of reasons. The guiding consideration is that the administration of justice should reasonably appear to be disinterested as well as be so in fact.

"This case for me presents such a situation. My feelings are so strongly engaged as a victim of the practice in controversy that I had better not participate in judicial judgment upon it. I am explicit as to the reason for my non-participation in this case because I have for some time been of the view that it is desirable to state why one takes himself out of a case."

Many lawyers now are pointing out that Justice Frankfurter apparently felt so deeply about a case in which the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People was a party that he was not content to stand on the written opinion which he and the eight other justices issued on Sept. 29 last. He felt impelled to give out a few days later a separate opinion of his own in addition. This lengthy document was replete with emotional phrases and oratorical exclamations, thus causing many lawyers to comment that Justice Frankfurter may have been revealing the same type of "subconscious feelings" which prompted him to disqualify himself in the bus case.

This is not the first time Justice Frankfurter has been criticized for sitting in a case in which he had a part prior to coming on the Supreme Court bench. In 1917 he was chief counsel for a three-man commission appointed by the President to investigate labor troubles in the principal mines of the Phelps-Dodge company in Arizona. The report aroused bitter comment from former President Theodore Roosevelt. Then, in April 1941, Justice Frankfurter wrote the opinion in a Supreme Court case on labor questions which was decided against the Phelps-Dodge company, and many lawyers said at the time that he should have disqualified himself.

Justices often disqualify themselves from sitting in cases in which they have had some previous connection with either party to the litigation. The non-receipt of a fee isn't always the controlling factor. Thus, a Supreme Court justice who has served as attorney general or solicitor general usually disqualifies himself from sitting in any case in which he has had some part personally, and, of course, there are no fees paid the attorney general or solicitor general for particular cases in the work of the Department of Justice.

There are no written rules of the Supreme Court requiring a justice to disqualify himself when he has had a previous connection with either party to a suit that comes before the court. The problem is left to the conscience of each justice.

FROM: Iz Zack

DATE: November 5, 1958

Since receiving your memo of October 9th requesting further background information on the New Bedford, Mass. Standard-Times, I have been in contact with several qualified sources of information at New Bedford and in the newspaper field, and have also made a further study of our files on the subject of the Standard-Times.

The pro-segregation editorial position of the Standard-Times continues. In reply to your specific inquiries I have the following:

McCarthyism:

The New Bedford's Standard-Times was second only to the Manchester, New Hampshire Union Leader in support of the late Senator McCarthy. The Standard-Times still runs favorable editorials on McCarthy and its letters to the editor column has always been and continues to be wide open to the pro-McCarthy element. The Standard-Times went one step further than the Union Leader in support of McCarthy by actively cooperating with the Friends of Senator McCarthy, Inc., which was active here in Massachusetts. (There were several anti-Semites involved in leadership capacity). The group ran several public meetings in Boston and other communities in the state at which thousands of reprints of the Standard-Times editorial page were distributed. There was other evidence that the Standard-Times had gone to some expense to support this movement. I have already reported to you the fact that Charles J. Lewin, Editor and General Manager of the paper, was Master of Ceremonies for the big McCarthy Rally staged at the Boston Arena.

One of the leaders in the Friends of Senator McCarthy organization was James T. Dunn of Fairhaven, Mass. who is one of the owners of the Standard-Times.

Eliminating Foreign Aid:

The New Bedford Standard-Times has been generally against foreign aid but it is not a major issue with Brewer.

Eliminating Income Tax:

There has been little or no editorial comment on this in the Standard-Times, but the newspaper has given considerable space in support of former Governor Brakka Lee of Utah and T. Coleman Andrews.

T V A:

No special interest noted in Standard-Times.

I am adding a few categories that you did not list:

Brewer was a strong supporter of Taft; promoted the For America organization in his newspaper columns and strongly attacked the United Nations. The Standard-Times was one of two New England newspapers which editorialized for the celebration of U. S. Day instead of U. N. on October 23rd.

The Standard-Times editorial page publishes the daily efforts of Pegler, Holmes Alexander, David Lawrence and Sokolsky. Every now and then there appears a column by Walter Lippman. I am told that Lippman is carried when his column coincides with the thinking of Brewer.

On the positive side:

Brewer gives considerable space in the Standard-Times to reporting Jewish social events, backing the United Jewish Appeal and in support of Israel. For some time the Jews in New Bedford were not too sure of Brewer when it came to the subject of Israel, but the moment that Nasser came under the domination of the Soviet, Brewer moved way over onto the side of Israel. He is a mortal enemy of Communism and Soviet Russia and thus became the natural ally of Israel.

His support of the UJA and other Jewish charities has been called to my attention. He also makes an annual gift of $1000 to the New Bedford UJA drive.

In recent weeks he has editorialized favorably on the promotion of Hyman Rickover, the UJA and the naming of Louis L. Strauss to a top cabinet post by Eisenhower.

I have attached a photostatic copy of a recent Standard-Times editorial that will give you a pretty good picture of the extremist and ultra-reactionary viewpoint of Mr. Brewer. It is entitled "America First -- Why Not?" and supports the American Legion platform adopted at their ~~annual~~ national convention this year and attacks the Providence Journal for needling the Legion and its endeavors.

AMERICA FIRST—WHY NOT?

The American Legion, assembled in national convention at Chicago, approved a number of pro-American resolutions that reflect the patriotism and anti-Communism for which the Legion is well known.

It is nothing short of amazing that the Providence Journal gave the Legionnaires a verbal spanking for their resolutions, in an editorial entitled, "The Legion Convention Again Proves a Sorry Show."

The Journal noted that "the Communists took a fearful drubbing at this Legion convention, as they usually do." After telling what some of the resolutions were, the Journal concluded: "All in all, it was a mixed bag—an assortment of resolutions stretching from questionable or pointless positions on high policy down to ridiculous positions on matters of little consequence."

What stands did the Legion take to evoke such a stern editorial indictment in the Providence Journal? Here they are:

The Legion urged "a halt to any cutbacks in the defense program" and called on Congress "to again give the United States the greatest military strength of any nation in the world."

It proposed curbs on the Supreme Court to prevent the court from "assuming the role of legislative policy maker."

The Legion suggested that Congress investigate "help and assistance" reportedly given to Communists and subversive organizations by the American Civil Liberties Union.

It opposed Federal aid to public education;

Opposed efforts to "weaken, destroy or repeal" the McCarran-Walter Immigration Act;

Praised J. Edgar Hoover and asked Congress for new laws to protect confidential information in FBI files;

Cited the late Senator McCarthy as "a real American whose vindication is brought about by the events of our own era;"

Condemned the Board of Education of Bristol Township in Pennsylvania for naming a proposed high school after J. Robert Oppenheimer, the nuclear scientist who was declared a "security risk" by the Atomic Energy Commission in 1954 and denied further access to classified Government information.

The Legion supported the Bricker Amendment to prevent an international treaty or agreement from becoming law in the United States without the passage of legislation by Congress;

Condemned Egyptian President Nasser as "a Soviet tool;"

Opposed "peaceful co-existence" with any Communist nation;

Supported the landing of U. S. troops in Lebanon;

Urged continued U. S. support of Chiang Kai-shek's Chinese Nationalist Government;

Opposed U. S. recognition or a UN seat for Communist China;

Called for an end of U. S. foreign aid to India's Nehru, who consistently sides with the Communists against the West.

It is difficult to understand how the Providence Journal considers these resolutions "questionable," "pointless" or "ridiculous."

The American Legion deserves public applause for taking forthright stands in the national interest on important issues at home and abroad.

The country needs more individuals and organizations—like the Legion—that stand firmly for America first and are proud of it.

Poor Ike!

(An Editorial)

The seeds which ripened in the Democratic landslide of Tuesday were sowed at Chicago in July 1952, when the principles of the Republican Party, which had guided it for 100 years, were abandoned—when Taft was crucified and Eisenhower was nominated by a series of devices and deals—only now beginning to be understood.

Henry Cabot Lodge boasted that he and Herbert Brownell had schemed out the plan to charge Taft with thievery and fraud, in connection with securing the support of the Southern delegates. This was told gleefully by Lodge in a front-page story in the Boston Herald, by publisher Robert Choate, the Sunday morning following the '52 Republican convention.

The overtones were the masked hoodlums in front of the Convention hall bearing banners "stop thief," finally suppressed by police.

What Cabot Lodge did not boast of, or tell of, were the secret trades by which Nixon was named Vice-President, as part-pay for support by the California delegation and by which Warren was promised "the next Supreme Court vacancy" as payment for his voting the California delegation for the "rule" as proposed by Republican National Committeewoman Katherine Howard of Massachusetts.

This was the "rule" by which all delegates whose credentials were challenged, for whatever reason, were disfranchised, a rule unprecedented in the history of the Republican Party.

So headlong was this conspiracy that the entire Taft delegation of 30 from Texas was unseated, when only 18 had been challenged.

Of course Ike was a mere pawn in this cynical and fraudulent conspiracy. Innocent in his knowledge of the schemes of his supporters, he was equally innocent of any convictions as to party.

This was showed when, in his whole campaign of '52, he seldom if ever mentioned the name of the Republican Party of which he was standard-bearer.

In fact, not once in his 1953 inaugural address did he mention the name of the Republican Party.

It was, of course, no hardship to Ike when the American people presented him with a Democratic Congress in 1954 and again in 1956, though re-electing Eisenhower in 1956 by a tremendous majority.

So scant was Ike's knowledge of Republican principles, that he early fell for the idea it was his duty to "reform the Republican Party," giving it a new name, after 100 years, the "Modern Republican" party.

It was the political child who had not learned arithmetic, determining to rewrite the rules to indicate that 2-plus-2 no longer made 4.

Then something happened, which was unmistakable.

"Modern Republicanism" wasn't going over.

Moreover, there were sinister rumblings over the country—following the '52 Republican convention.

It was the political child who had not learned arithmetic, determining to rewrite the rules to indicate that 2-plus-2 no longer made 4.

Then something happened, which was unmistakable.

"Modern Republicanism" wasn't going over.

Moreover, there were sinister rumblings over the country—something about a Democratic landslide. Not only was "Modern Republicanism" not working, but ALL Republicans, especially candidates, were becoming gravely concerned.

The Supreme Court, led by Chief Justice Warren, was freeing Communists right and left. Only patriotic Americans, who wanted the Communists controlled, were suspect.

The Supreme Court became legislative rather than judicial.

The "deal", by which Warren became Supreme Court justice, had spawned a completely "new deal" in Supreme Court jurisprudence.

This could be best described as the presumption that the Government as prosecutor in law-enforcement—was wrong until proved right—which almost never took place in Communist cases.

The rumblings became louder; they even attracted the attention of the White House cabinet, which Ike had described as made up largely of "those who first thought I might be qualified to be President."

Whether it was coincident with Malcolm Moos being selected to help the President in speech-making, or otherwise, the name Republican commenced to appear frequently in the President's speeches.

Democrats commenced to be charged as "radicals" (as if Ike recently had discovered this phenomenon!) Great crowds greeted the President and party workers, and Republican candidates commenced to be cheered.

But something was, of course, wrong with this picture.

The Republican Party couldn't suddenly have become so important in the Fall of '58, when it was not worth even mentioning in the Inaugural of 1953.

Increasingly the President insisted "his" party was the party of "moderation," the Democratic Party was the party of radicalism.

But whoever heard of any large segment of the public voting for anything so sexless as moderation—and whoever heard of "radicalism" being cured by calling it radicalism?

Besides, the President's heart was not in it.

He knew the Democrat leaders in Congress too well. He liked them almost as well, perhaps better than Republicans. These Democrat leaders openly twitted the President THEY had supported his program "even better than the Republicans." In truth, many of the Eisenhower policies, such as staggering foreign aid and reciprocal trade, were more nearly Democratic than Republican.

Just about Halloween time the President's "Republican" anti-Democratic campaign came to a crescendo. Great crowds greeted Ike wherever he spoke. Stricken candidates took more hope.

But it was Ike's personal popularity which was being smiled upon. Also the people saw through the Halloween masque which he and Moos had manufactured.

It amused them, and they gave Ike "E" for effort as they wended their way to the polls to pile up the biggest Democratic landslide in the history of the Republic.

* * * *

And, as if to call quits to the comedy, Ike was asked Wednesday "if he expected to have additional trouble during the next two years dealing with (Democratic) Congress?"

He answered "not at all," adding he always has managed to get along pretty well with Congress, which has been Democratic, except for the first two years of the Eisenhower administration.

Well, why shouldn't Ike get along with a Democratic Congress?

It took him a long time to decide whether he was a Democrat or a Republican.

Knowing little of the principles of either party, he very well may still be undecided as to whether he is a Republican or a Democrat.

And with it all, Ike is so innocent.

Poor Ike!

I had an opportunity this past week to speak to some of the Negro leaders in New Bedford, Mass. regarding their inaction on the matter of the Simmons series on Little Rock as published in the New Bedford Standard-Times. Everyone I spoke to blamed the local NAACP leadership which has now been replaced.

I established the fact that the Colored population in New Bedford was very disturbed by the Simmons articles, although no letters of protest were sent to the Standard-Times and there was no organized protest by the Colored community.

One Negro attorney told me that his people had failed miserably in handling this situation in the Standard-Times which is known to the Colored population of New Bedford as "The South Carolina Gazette". With the change in NAACP leadership, there will be organized protests against the Standard-Times' pro-segregation policy.

sovereign. That structure imposed standards which I like to think are just a bit higher, go a bit further, in protecting the individual from the possibility of arbitrary or capricious acts.

On a more practical note, it is interesting to look back on the action taken by the Commissioner of Immigration and Naturalization following the decision of the Supreme Court in Jay v. Boyd. That happened to be a case argued by me for the Government and by our friend Will Maslow as amicus curiae for the petitioner. In a 5 to 4 decision the Court sustained the use of confidential information in connection with the Attorney General's discretionary power to suspend deportation, under certain circumstances, of aliens otherwise deportable. The funny thing was that after the hullabaloo was all over the Commissioner of Immigration, a man of courage and fair instincts, met the still lingering problem head on and took steps to abolish, for all practical purposes, the use of the device in this area. A recent check with the Commissioner's office reveals that no case presently exists in which resort to the use of such information was found necessary to a decision. My point is that not only may the damage that can be done to individual liberties under such procedures be all out of proportion to the needs of the security that we seek to safeguard, but the corollary is also true, namely, that the advances we make in the safeguarding of individual liberties, however small, do much to strengthen the foundation of our liberties and, often to our surprise, do not result in any shocking impairment of our safety and security.

There will always be disagreement with the work of the Supreme Court. The Court does not labor in a vacuum. We may support the Court's conclusions, or we may oppose them. We are of course secure in our right to approve decisions of the Court only insofar as others are secure in their right to criticize them. But there is a difference between criticism and ignoble attack. The Supreme Court is a naked institution. The Constitution has provided it with no means of enforcing its decisions; its effectiveness as an institution and as a constituent element of our system of government rests entirely upon the voluntary acceptance of its decrees by other elements of government and by the people. Disagreement with the Court's decrees will not enfeeble its institutional strength. But disagreement coupled with broadside attacks upon the institution itself or upon the character or purpose of the justices will surely erode the institution at its base.

We, who by reason of training or office are in positions of public responsibility, have a duty to expose the destructiveness of any attempt to weaken the Judiciary as an institution. Particularly in times of stress we cannot risk the loosening of our strongest bulwark against any tyranny, namely, our Constitution and the fundamental liberties embodied in it. Without a strong and independent Judiciary the weakening of both our individual liberties and our national security will surely result.

THE STANDARD-TIMES,
New Bedford, Mass., April 1, 1959.

Congressman JOHN BELL WILLIAMS, House Office Building,
Washington, D.C.

DEAR CONGRESSMAN WILLIAMS: On March 2, 1959, an editorial which had been published in the Richmond Times-Dispatch was introduced into the CONGRESSIONAL RECORD, page A1647.

The Times-Dispatch editorial challenged the accuracy of certain statements in a 1958 series of articles written by Mr. Edward B. Simmons of the New Bedford Standard-Times and republished in the Times-Dispatch.

We would appreciate it if you would publish in the CONGRESSIONAL RECORD this substantiation of the accuracy of the statements made in the Standard-Times articles.

The Times-Dispatch described as inaccurate a statement that the Southern Regional Council was an "offshoot" of the Southern Conference for Human Welfare. It also challenged the accuracy of the statement that "the Communist Daily Worker openly boasted that James E. Jackson, chief of the southern branch of the Communist Party, was a cofounder of the regional council."

These statements in the Standard-Times articles were in no way inaccurate.

Papers of incorporation of the regional council and the latest listing of officers and directors of the organization (April 1957 listing was latest at time articles were written) show the following:

"Three of the five persons listed as incorporators of the Southern Regional Council had been active in the Southern Conference for Human Welfare. One had been a member of the Southern Conference for Human Welfare's executive board, and a second incorporator was a member of its southern council.

Three top officers of the Southern Regional Council, as of April 1957, had been affiliated with the Southern Conference for Human Welfare: the president, a vice president, and the chairman of the executive committee.

Fourteen members of the Southern Regional Council's board of directors, as listed in April 1957, had been affiliated with the Southern Conference for Human Welfare.

Thirteen members of the Southern Regional Council's board of directors, as listed in April 1957, were or are affiliated with the Southern Conference Educational Fund. This latter organization was identified by the U.S. Senate Internal Security Subcommittee as "operating with substantially the same leadership and purposes as its predecessor, the Southern Conference for Human Welfare."

Twelve former directors of the Southern Regional Council had been affiliated with the Southern Conference for Human Welfare.

In summary, then, three incorporators of record, three of the top officers and a total of 39 interlocking directorships link the Southern Regional Council with the Southern Conference for Human Welfare and its lineal descendant, the Southern Conference Educational Fund.

As to the statement about James E. Jackson, the Communist Daily Worker of December 1, 1954, stated on page 6, that Jackson "participated in the formation and building of * * * the Southern Regional Council and many other movements which in any important way challenged the status quo of Negro oppression and southern social backwardness."

The Times-Dispatch editorial conceded that "a James E. Jackson" attended the meeting of "leaders" that led to formation of the Southern Regional Council. Both James E. Jacksons are one and the same.

We would emphasize that the purpose of the Standard-Times articles was not to expose a particular individual or organization. However, we feel that the cause of racial harmony and justice is best served when the qualifications and background of all who are active in racial matters are open to public inspection.

If it is desired, we can substantiate all of the above information by photostated documentation.

Yours sincerely,

CHARLES J. LEWIN,
Editor and General Manager.

EXTENSION OF REMARKS

OF

HON. BARRATT O'HARA

OF ILLINOIS

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, April 16, 1959

Mr. O'HARA of Illinois. Mr. Speaker, I am extending my remarks to include an article by Mitsuru Uchida that I recommend to the reading of my colleagues who may not have been alerted to the intense campaign the Soviet is making to capture the minds of the younger generation in Japan by the printed word.

Recently I spoke at length on the classics of democracy program, which is meeting the Soivet challenge by translating into many languages. The classics of democracy that inspired our forefathers and making them available in inexpensive editions. I have spoken also in support of the information media program that enables American publishers to distribute American books in foreign countries by furnishing a means of converting local currencies into American dollars.

Nothing could more convincingly picture the necessity of these programs than Mr. Uchida's factual presentment of what the Soviet is doing in his native Japan. Mr. Uchida has a master's degree from Waseda University in Japan. He is preparing for his doctor's degree, and is now in the United States as a congressional intern in the program sponsored by the American Political Service Association. Up to the Easter recess he was a member of my congressional staff, I might add a most valuable member, who did the little chores and performed the important assignments with equal willingness and grace. He is serving the remainder of his congressional internship in the other body. His article follows:

COMMUNIST PUBLICATION ACTIVITIES IN JAPAN

(By Mitsuru Uchida)

Before the end of the war, Communist activities were strictly outlawed in Japan. In those days, therefore, its propaganda activities were carried inevitably in a clandestine, underground fashion, mostly through the printed word. Communist and leftist books, magazines, pamphlets, etc., were then surreptitiously distributed by secret party members and sympathizers.

It was partly due to the high rate of literacy among the Japanese people that the Communist Party could rely so much upon these kinds of communication channels for its propaganda. But it was also due to the fact that the party, under such difficult con-

September 4, 1959

On September 3 I was in New Bedford, Mass., for a luncheon meeting with the editor of the New Bedford Standard-Times, Mr. Charles Lewin. The meeting had been arranged by two members of the New Bedford Lodge of B'nai B'rith ADL Committee, Mr. Hyman Krivoff and Mr. George Levenson.

One of the matters that was taken up at this meeting was the Simmons series published last year in the Standard-Times on the subject of "The Aftermath of Little Rock". You will recall that this series was later reprinted in half a dozen newspapers in the South.

When I pointed out to Mr. Lewin that at least the Richmond Times Dispatch had come out with a retraction after using the series, Mr. Lewin stated that the Standard-Times had seen no reason to retract and they are still of the opinion that there are "Communists in the leadership" of the Southern Regional Council.

I pointed out that the second article in the series had used in its lead a direct quote from the Israel Cohen hoax. Lewin admitted that they had determined the origin of this material too late to do anything about it and they saw no reason for printing a retraction where only three paragraphs of the entire five article series were in question.

I am giving you this item so that it can be included in the files as a matter of record indicating that the Standard-Times now admits the use of the Israel Cohen material in the Simmons series but refuses to acknowledge this fact in a retraction.

During our further conversations, Lewin stated that the New Bedford Standard-Times is a states rights newspaper; that the publisher is against laws which "force a man to sell his property to a Negro even though he may not desire to do so," and "we are a fighting anti-Communist newspaper".

During the course of my conversation with Lewin he indicated to me that he has a reporter in his employ on the Standard-Times named Jacob Epstein who has been with him for quite a few years. He states that this man is related to "one of the big people in your New York office" and this reporter told him that the national office of the ADL has a file on the New Bedford Standard-Times about a foot thick. (Lewin, who has resisted my attempt to place ADL Bulletin materials in the columns of the Standard-Times, must now be trying to win friends among the Jews in the New Bedford community. In the Sunday edition of the Standard-Times on August 30, he gave almost a half a page of space for the reprint of the Arnold Forster ADL Bulletin article "The Ultimate Cruelty".)

LAWLER'S YEAR

A principal yardstick for measuring a community's progress in any 12-month period, forward or backward, must necessarily be found in the program of its government. This is because there can be no program of any kind without governmental leadership.

It is appropriate, therefore, to measure what New Bedford has accomplished in 1959 in terms of what the administration of Mayor Lawler—with the cooperation of a majority of the citizenry—has produced. Major among these achievements are:

1. A $2 reduction of the city's tax rate, in a period during which most municipalities increased their tax rates.

2. Creation of two additional off-street parking sites, one in the Center, the other in the North End, as partial remedies for a critically-important traffic problem.

3. Acquisition of a second industry for the Industrial Park, a firm which now is constructing a $200,000 building to house its operations here.

4. Construction of a new branch library in Buttonwood Park.

5. Establishment of a Wage Reclassification Board to study the compensation of municipal employes.

6. Hiring of a permanent city planner, one of the purposes being to institute a much-needed urban renewal program.

Most of a community's projects, as with these various steps forward, involve continuing demands. To stop with the initial action is to nullify its positive effect in large measure.

Thus, there still are major tasks ahead for the next year, several closely related to what already has been done.

These include:

1. Continuing effort toward industrial development. The mayor has set a goal by commenting, "By 1961, I hope to see at least six industries housed in the Industrial Park."

2. Measurable progress in waterfront improvement, which has lagged, with particularly emphasis on creating expanded facilities for the port's crowded fishing industry.

psychology as interpreted by a non-American Socialist.

It is worth noting that the law which the Warren majority overturned did not authorize segregation, but merely established the principle that if segregation existed, there must be an equality of service and facilities provided, in every respect.

Political, rather than legal dicta, apparently influenced the Warren-court decision, for no new facts were presented to justify overturning a ruling that had been accepted as law for more than a half-century.

The decision of the court was legislative, not judicial. It was weighted with politics, so much so that one of America's leading newspapers, the Los Angeles Times, referred to the ruling editorially as "doctrinaire, based, not on law, but on sociological precepts."

With regard to integration, The Standard-Times believes that integration can work in the United States as a nation, just as it has worked in New Bedford for many, many years.

If there is any serious question as to whether it has worked here, one has only to compare the political, economic, professional and social status of the non-white in this community today with that of a half-century ago, or even much less.

But such integration is not the result of politics or a court edict. As Dr. A. Whitney Griswold, president of Yale University, said, "This problem (racial integration) will be solved only through education, which, in the long run, will produce peace, quiet and justice."

The Standard-Times is not "anti-integration"; it is "anti-politics" in integration, for politics has no place in charting the course of the relations of one American with another.

THE FROST CHAIRS

Long ago, it was predictable that Robert Frost would be remembered as a gentle and wonderful poet. Now, one is happy to note that he will be remembered for something else, too, something that must be dear to his heart, for, like all poets, he is a lover of the intelligent mind.

Not that a "new" or changed Frost has emerged. It was he who wrote, "Most of the change we think we see in life is due to truths being in and out of favor."

What has happened is that three Robert Frost chairs of teaching at the Amherst Regional High School are to be endowed by a private group of citizens. The program, designed to recognize and reward outstanding high school teachers (and honor the poet), already has obtained pledges of $75,000 for the endowment of the three chairs.

To be considered, a teacher must be selected from the fields of ancient and modern languages, mathematics, English, history, biology, chemistry or physics, and must have been a teacher at the high school for more than three years.

This development is particularly heart

To the Editor of The Standard-Times:

Now that 1960 has made its entrance into a world that strains impatiently to conquer space, millions have taken their pencils in hand. Resolutions have been made that can be erased easily.

I wish that:

Newspapers would publish more stories like that of Peter Robitaille in The Standard-Times on their front pages because so very often God's gift of sight is taken so lightly.

Criticism of Nixon Evokes NAACP Response

Resolutions for Congress

Alexander Suggests Serious Debate on Finance, Appointment for John L. Lewis

B HOLMES ALEXANDER

WASHINGTON, Jan. 1—America, they say, is "vincible" in 1960. It would help us if we made some stick-to-it resolutions, such as:

1. That the 86th Congress, second session, rise up and strike a blow for the reputation of representative government. Every Congress in an election year (and more so in a presidential election year) is under temptation to politicate instead of legislate. The present lawmakers are probably under more pressures than most.

Madly Running

The Senate has agreed to take up a compulsory civil rights bill in February. This means that Northerners and Southerners will feel a political urge to make speeches over the heads of their colleagues to the folks back home. Both House and Senate will be asked to take up labor legislation, which is almost as controversial as civil rights. It will be a session in which you can hardly go through a door on Capitol Hill without colliding with somebody madly running for President or Vice-President.

With all this emotional and political distraction, the 85th Congress will have its character tested. Serious hearings and debates are needed on dull subjects like finance and on deep subjects like defense spending. There is skepticism among the intellectuals as to the continuance of self-government in our complicated age. This Congress has a great chance to show how it's done.

2. That the Senate strike off a medal for political derring-do. An early recipient might be Senator Steve Young (D.-Ohio) who lately exhibited utter disregard for his political safety. He didn't do it, if I may say so about a good friend, in the best of causes. He blasted the American Legion, the Chamber of Commerce and the National Association of Manufacturers—mainly because they disagreed with him. The Hamilton County (Ohio) Council of the Legion objected to Young's being a guest speaker before the Emergency Civil Liberties Committee. This group has a bad reputation for consorting with Communist causes.

The senator's argument, as told to me, was that President Eisenhower had consorted with Khrushchev, so why shouldn't a U. S. senator speak wherever he liked? Sure, why not? But lots of Americans exercised their right to disapprove of Ike's fraternizing with Mr. K. Anybody who doesn't like the company that a public man keeps has a right to say so.

But individualism is one thing which we need to overcome this "vincibility." It's refreshing to find a professional politician like Young saying, "Listen, Buster [illegible]

the Left Wing, as well as the Right.

3. That the proper authorities reserve a niche for a statue to John L. Lewis, the grand old man of the labor movement, who is soon to retire as president of the United Mine Workers. Labor columnist Victor Riesel, who knows Lewis far better than I, has called him "the last giant." Everybody around Washington must recognize that Lewis has been a towering leader and personality. He showed how—if you've got the genius—it's possible to drive a four-in-hand team of natural resources, capitalism, mechanization and collective bargaining down the highway of the 20th Century.

But there's no need to wait for a statue to honor "Big John" and to commemorate his greatness. When he leaves the UMW, President Eisenhower ought to make a special adviser out of Mr. Lewis—not necessarily in the limited field of labor affairs, but in the broad area of national economics. And not mainly as a tribute to Mr. Lewis, but as a means of aiding the country.

They Agree On Duty

4. That the other 49 States find out what's special about the senators from Pennsylvania. The two incumbents, Senators Clark (D.) and Scott (R.), don't necessarily agree on anything except their duty to serve the commonwealth and its people. During the congressional session these two senators, who conceivably could some day be rivals on the national tickets, hold regular television debates, thrashing out public subjects for their constituents. During the congressional recess they toured Japan to study Japanese manufacture and trade, with particular emphasis on goods that might affect Pennsylvania's troubled economy The senators have issued a joint statement on Japan for general use. And by their teamwork they have become well-informed advisers to Pennsylvania importers, exporters and producers. The Keystone State is getting its money's worth from these two men.

Meanwhile, former Senator Edward Martin (D.), whom Scott replaced in the 86th Congress, has written his autobiography, "Always Be on Time." It is the record of a life lived by old-fashioned ideals of public service in war and peace. Senator Martin, who is nearing 80, fought as a private soldier and non-com against the Spanish and later against Filipino insurrectionists at the beginning of the century. He was a regimental commander in the remedies for a critically-important traffic problem.

3. Acquisition of a second industry for the Industrial Park, a firm which now is constructing a $200,000 building to house its operations here.

4. Construction of a new branch library in Buttonwood Park.

5. Establishment of a Wage Reclassification Board to study the compensation of municipal employes.

6. Hiring of a permanent city planner, one of the purposes being to institute a much-needed urban renewal program.

Most of a community's projects, as with these various steps forward, involve continuing demands. To stop with the initial action is to nullify its positive effect in large measure.

Thus, there still are major tasks ahead for the next year, several closely related to what already has been done.

These include:

1. Continuing effort toward industrial development. The mayor has set a goal by commenting, "By 1961, I hope to see at least six industries housed in the Industrial Park."

2. Measurable progress in waterfront improvement, which has lagged, with particularly emphasis on creating expanded facilities for the port's crowded fishing industry.

3. Undiminishing scrutiny and control of governmental expenditures, with the aim of maintaining businesslike procedure, providing for public needs adequately, preparing for economic growth, and retaining a tax structure that will encourage industries, businesses and individuals.

4. Creation of additional off-street parking facilities, since they are essential to the community's economy.

Goals such as these may not necessarily be achieved in any single year, but a course toward them can be, and should be set, each year, as long as they remain unattained.

New Bedford has made commendable progress in this last year; its people obviously have benefited by such progress and will continue to do so. This fact alone should stimulate efforts of the community and the Lawler administration to make 1960 the outstanding year it deserves to be in terms of New Bedford's advance toward better living.

POLITICS IN INTEGRATION

In the Letters From Our Readers Column on today's editorial page, Duncan A. Dottin, president of the New Bedford Branch of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, takes exception to criticism of Vice-President Nixon and Chief Justice Earl Warren of the Supreme Court.

What Mr. Dottin really is criticizing is made clear in Paragraph 5 of his letter, when he writes, "It is clear to us that The Standard-Times, as reflected by its editorial page, is anti-integration."

This is not "clear," because it is not so.

The criticism of Nixon was made, not because he is "the most prominent, if not the most distinguished" member of the NAACP, but rather because the motive for his membership obviously is political.

If his motive is other than political, why has Nixon not assumed equally prominent membership in any number of other organizations dedicated to the rights of minority groups? There are several, for example, concerned with the advancement of the American Indian. In the Indian groups, there might not be many votes involved, but their efforts are worthwhile and their needs are great.

Politics also was involved when the Supreme Court rendered its desegregation decision, upsetting a previous ruling of 60 years standing by declaring it unconstitutional. The high-court reversal was led by Chief Justice Earl Warren, who obtained his appointment to the Supreme Court as the result of a political "deal," the terms of which may well have included an understanding on the integration question.

In writing the decision, Warren went so far as to quote a Swedish liberal, Gunnar Myrdal, as an excuse for changing the law, indicating that Warren was not dealing with justice or the gradual development of equality, but rather with tion, for politics has no place in charting the course of the relations of one American with another.

THE FROST CHAIRS

Long ago, it was predictable that Robert Frost would be remembered as a gentle and wonderful poet. Now, one is happy to note that he will be remembered for something else, too, something that must be dear to his heart, for, like all poets, he is a lover of the intelligent mind.

Not that a "new" or changed Frost has emerged. It was he who wrote, "Most of the change we think we see in life is due to truths being in and out of favor."

The program, designed to recognize and reward outstanding high school teachers (and honor the poet), already has obtained pledges of $75,000 for the endowment of the three chairs.

To be considered, a teacher must be selected from the fields of ancient and modern languages, mathematics, English, history, biology, chemistry or physics, and must have been a teacher at the high school for more than three years.

This development is particularly heart-warming, for it was hardly more than a year ago that Frost deplored the fact that America did not cloak its vitally-necessary high school teachers with sufficient dignity. He said, in effect, "They have chairs at the college level; why not the same prestige, security and incentive for high schools?"

Now it has come to pass, and Southeastern Massachusetts would do well to consider a similar step.

THESE DAYS

Larry Richey

Death of Hoover's Secretary Brings Back Memories

By GEORGE E. SOKOLSKY

The longer one lives, the more often he goes to funerals, but I did not expect to know on a Monday morning that Larry Richey, with whom I spent some hours in Herbert Hoover's apartment on Christmas Day, died gently in an airplane on his way home to Washington on Sunday. The transition was too swift; the surprise too shocking.

Unusual Character

Larry Richey was an unusual character. He was of Italian origin who as a boy was employed by the Secret Service to help track down counterfeiters and smugglers. He was small and could be put in places where his size and quickness were of value. I shall always treasure the many tales he told me of the Black Hand and of the efforts of the New York police to put down this criminal group of kidnapers and murderers. Larry undoubtedly had already learned how to keep his mouth shut when he worked for the Secret Service, but his sense of dog-like loyalty, his profound devotion to Herbert Hoover could not be taught or learned. It was as innate as the nose on his face.

Herbert Hoover has often been accused of not being a keen psychologist in the selection of his associates. But this can be said that those who came close to Herbert Hoover have remained everlastingly loyal to him and that they have remained loyal to each other as well.

Larry Richey came into Hoover's service in 1917 when Hoover was food administrator and remained with him until his death. An intimate friendship developed between these two men, a decade apart in years. Both found their recreation in the outdoors, Hoover being a devotee of fishing and Larry generally going along with him. The association grew increasingly intimate as the years moved on, changing from secretary to close friend and confidant.

He Was With Friends

On Christmas Day, this year, Herbert Hoover invited a number of old friends to call on him. Larry had come up from Washington where he lived. He was gay and full of stories. He saw many of his own old friends. He talked about fishing and hunting and he was as cheerful as anyone there. I had perhaps 20 years ago planned to grow horseradish on my farm in the Berkshires and Larry recalled that and he had all sorts of quips and jests about horseradish. He and the chief, as Herbert Hoover is generally referred to, were planning some fishing trip together.

He had spent his last Christmas with those whom he loved most. Can any man ask for more?

Criticism of Nixon Evokes NAACP Response

To the Editor of The Standard-Times:

Last year, a series of articles was printed in The Standard-Times linking the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People with the Communist activities in this country. Then on Feb. 17, 1959, an editorial with the same theme was again published.

On Nov. 23, 1959, Basil Brewer, publisher of The Standard-Times, speaking before a "Know Your America Week" audience sponsored by the American Heritage Committee, attacked the Supreme Court for its momentous May 17, 1954 decision on the segregated school. He also attacked Vice-President Nixon for supporting this decision.

Why did Mr. Brewer pick the Vice-President and Supreme Court Chief Justice Warren? He had a multitude of names from which he could have chosen. Maybe there is a clue. In the Nov. 21, 1959 Standard-Times we learned that Mr. Brewer criticized William Loeb, publisher of the Manchester Union Leader, for endorsing Vice-President Nixon for the Republican nomination for President in 1960. Was this because Mr. Nixon "is perhaps the most prominent, if not the most distinguished, member of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People?" Or was it because "Nixon was one of the most important factors in defeating your and my efforts for Taft's nomination in the 1952 Republican convention?" According to Mr. Brewer, Chief Justice Warren was linked with this "conspiracy."

Now we learn from Taft's memorandum that his defeat was due to New York financial interests and a majority of the press.

Does this mean that Mr. Brewer and The Standard-Times will be factual in regards to the NAACP et al? Not likely. It is clear to us that The Standard-Times, as reflected by its editorial page, is anti-integration.

While the New Bedford Branch of the NAACP is non-partisan and goes on record as not supporting Vice-President Nixon or any other candidate, it seems to us that Mr. Brewer intends to attack any public figure who is in accord with the principles of the NAACP. If this is so, Mr. Brewer has many targets. We offer him the names of Richard Cardinal Cushing, FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover, and former Senator Herbert Lehman, among others.

The 'Burden' of Extra Pay

By INEZ ROBB

Before me, on my desk, huddles tangible evidence of the complications of modern civilization. It is an apologetic letter from my employer, a patient gentleman who does his best to keep me happy and producing in the vineyard. He is terribly upset because he is forced to pay me, in the calendar year 1959 for 54 weeks of "merl and terl" instead of the conventional 52. What distresses him so deeply is not any distaste for parting with money. Not at all.

2 Extra Weeks

What worries him is the fear that I am going to be furious on receipt of this extra swag. He anticipates that I shall be sore as a boil, not because it will boost my income, but because it will kite my income tax returns!

And yet there is no way out of this dread predicament, as he points out in his letter.

"Before the close of the year, we plan to issue you another biweekly check," the letter timidly states. "This check will be dated Dec. 31, 1959, and will be for the two weeks ending Jan. 2, 1960.

"With this check of Dec. 31, you will have received 27 checks during the year 1959, for a total of 54 weeks of compensation, which will increase your income and, naturally, your income tax.

"Since the normal 26 checks per year for 52 weeks totals 364 days and a calendar year is 365 days or sometimes 366 days, it is evident that once during a certain number of years there is no escape from the fact that 27 checks will be issued, as will be the case in 1959.

"If the other alternative had been followed, that is, of issuing your next check on Jan. 4, 1960, the result would have been merely to defer the 27 payroll disbursements into 1960 instead of 1959." So ends the letter on a final note of despair.

Well, sir, I want to hasten to assure my employer that I ain't mad at nobody. Truth to tell, I can hardly wait to get my greedy hands on that 27th check. Let Uncle Sam take his chance with the regular Christmas creditors, is my motto. First come, first served.

As that great American philosopher, Joe E. Lewis, keeps saying, "Money is good for the nerves." Certainly, there is no other season of the year when the nerves are more sorely in need of such soothing syrup than during the holidays. Despite credit cards, money is a very essential item. Far from being angry over a 27th check in 1959, I am practically delirious with joy.

There is only one item in my employer's letter that leaves me with a question. He writes: "It is evident that once during a certain number of years, there is no escape from the fact that 27 checks will be issued." What I want to know is this: When is the very next time I can't hope to escape?

A Little More Pay

The only sad situation that this predicament exposes is the indubitable fact that the present Federal tax structure so penalizes workers for added income that a little more pay in the envelope or a windfall is a matter of dread to the individual and of apology on the part of the employer.

It is the same stupid situation that penalizes the man or woman, on Social Security and under 72 years of age, who dares earn more than $1,200 annually. Or the young widow with children, on Social Security, who cannot supplement it with more than $1,200 of earned income every year.

It's crazy.

Even so, Uncle Sam is welcome to his share of that 27th check in 1959. As for my darling employer, all I can say, in poker parlance, is, "Hit me again!"

Just Folks

By EDGAR A. GUEST

A PRAYER

Dear Lord, look down on us today,
Where little children romp and play
And let their hearts be glad.
Let no one feel that life is grim;
Let no one's eyes with tears be dim,
Let no one's life be sad.

With those in sorrow, Lord, we pray,
Be constantly this Winter day,
And give them strength to bear
The aching heart, the bitter grief;
Support them now in the belief
That justice is their share.

And O, dear Lord, watch o'er the weak,
Restore the bloom to every cheek
And guard them from above.
Let age be spared from loneliness;
We ask no more, we ask no less,
Crown every home with love.

in our complicated age. This Congress has a great chance to show how it's done.

2. That the Senate strike off a medal for political derring-do. An early recipient might be Senator Steve Young (D.-Ohio) who lately exhibited utter disregard for his political safety. He didn't do it, if I may say so about a good friend, in the best of causes. He blasted the American Legion, the Chamber of Commerce and the National Association of Manufacturers—mainly because they disagreed with him. The Hamilton County (Ohio) Council of the Legion objected to Young's being a guest speaker before the Emergency Civil Liberties Committee. This group has a bad reputation for consorting with Communist causes.

The senator's argument, as told to me, was that President Eisenhower had consorted with Khrushchev, so why shouldn't a U. S. senator speak wherever he liked? Sure, why not? But lots of Americans exercised their right to disapprove of Ike's fraternizing with Mr. K. Anybody who doesn't like the company that a public man keeps has a right to say so.

But individualism is one thing which we need to overcome this "vincibility." It's refreshing to find a professional politician like Young saying, "Listen, Buster . . ." to a powerful organization like the Legion. Commendation is due the politico who knows no fear of the pressure groups. Only next time, maybe Steve Young will prove he's a two-fisted puncher. The Senate should offer to add an oak leaf cluster on the medal for senators who dare blast ators Clark (D.) and Scott (R.), don't necessarily agree on anything except their duty to serve the commonwealth and its people. During the congressional session these two senators, who conceivably could some day be rivals on the national tickets, hold regular television debates, thrashing out public subjects for their constituents. During the congressional recess they toured Japan to study Japanese manufacture and trade, with particular emphasis on goods that might affect Pennsylvania's troubled economy The senators have issued a joint statement on Japan for general use. And by their teamwork they have become well-informed advisers to Pennsylvania importers, exporters and producers. The Keystone State is getting its money's worth from these two men.

Meanwhile, former Senator Edward Martin (D.), whom Scott replaced in the 86th Congress, has written his autobiography, "Always Be on Time." It is the record of a life lived by old-fashioned ideals of public service in war and peace. Senator Martin, who is nearing 80, fought as a private soldier and non-com against the Spanish and later against Filipino insurrectionists at the beginning of the century. He was a regimental commander in the toughest combat of World War I. He trained the 28th Division as its commanding general in early World War II. In civilian life he was elected 18 times without defeat to public office, serving both as governor and senator. What's Pennsylvania got that the other States don't have?

Biggest Oil Rush Since '30s

Boom Is Predicted for Libya as 15 Companies Prepare to Spend $200,000,000

By EDWARD WAKIN

(Edward Wakin, a New York newspaperman and lecturer whose specialty is the Middle East and the United Nations, has covered first-hand most of the major stories in those areas during recent years. His articles have been widely syndicated and have appeared in various national magazines.)

Worldwide repercussions in oil diplomacy and in Middle Eastern power politics are in the making in the makeshift North African country of Libya. United Nations sources reveal that the timetable governing oil concessions in Libya will force the hand of foreign companies prospecting for oil during the coming year. As a result, 10 U. S. and five European companies will gamble up to $200,000,000 in 1960 on what is expected to be the biggest rush since the Middle East struck oil in the 1930s.

A Big Rush

According to diplomatic sources, here are the ingredients of trouble on which oil is about to be poured:

The U. S. Air Force's 12,000-man Wheelus Field in western Libya is the object of strong anti-Western feelings.

Libya's eastern neighbor, Egypt, is agitating the nationalists and has designs on Libyan oil resources.

King Idris I, who has managed to hold together an unnatural merger of the three Libyan provinces, is 70, and his potential successor looks too weak to carry on the strong-willed king's regime.

A serious threat to the position of Middle Eastern oil on the world market and to the strategic importance of the Suez Canal is an inevitable consequence of oil discoveries in North Africa.

In addition to oil and Wheelus Field, which is the largest U. S. air base outside the United States, the heavy American involvement stems from the subsidy necessary to keep Libya going in the eight years since the former Italian colony became independent. As the result of $100,000,000 from the United States and $70,000,000 from Britain, Libya's 1,100,000 inhabitants have received the highest per capita foreign aid in the world.

While an army of U. S. technicians has come to aid Libyan development, Egypt has followed its familiar pattern of sending schoolteachers, backed up by the propaganda of Radio Cairo, to influence nationalist attitudes. Gamal Abdel Nasser is by all odds the darling of the young nationalists who are campaigning against foreigners in Libya.

How long the aging king can keep the lid down is problematical. He is having trouble holding together his unwieldy provinces and even alternates his capital between Benghazi in the province of Cyrenaica and Tripoli in Tripolitania. Along with sparsely-settled Fezzan, the three provinces make Libya twice the size of Texas.

Despite the accompanying dangers of inflation, intervention and upheaval, oil is the only solution for a country whose main products are olive oil, peanuts, esparto grass (for high-grade paper) and camels.

The terms of oil concessions require the foreign companies to surrender one-fourth of their concessions by the end of 1960, which explains the rush to explore every square foot. Understandably, the Government is applying pressure for fast production of oil.

Suez Is Not Needed

Although Europe now obtains 75 to 80 percent of its oil from the Middle East, North African production in Algeria and Libya has a considerable geographic advantage. It is not dependent on the Nasser-controlled Suez Canal and has a major edge in its closeness to the European market.

With a surplus in the world oil market, Libyan oil offers the West greater bargaining power in coping with the rising demand for higher oil royalties in the Middle East and Venezuela.

As the U. S. stake soars in Libya, feeling its nationalism and itching to count oil royalties, the only safe prediction is that the backward, impoverished nation of shepherds and camel drivers is about to land in the middle of international politics.

standard Times

There has been a change in NAACP leadership at New Bedford, Mass., and at long last we have them delivering a blast at the New Bedford Standard-Times. This is the newspaper that ran the series on the aftermath of Little Rock in August of 1958, which was reprinted in several southern newspapers and which branded the Southern Regional Council as a communist front group.

When this series appeared, the NAACP leadership in New Bedford was very weak. Recently, Duncan A. Dottin took over as the President of the New Bedford Chapter. One of the first things he did was direct a letter to the Standard-Times (copy attached) attacking the Standard-Times for linking the NAACP with communist activities in this country. The Standard-Times printed the letter in its issue of January 2, 1960 and then tried to answer it on the same page with an editorial (copy attached).

Does Chiropractic Hurt

While talking with a patient recently, he remarked that if we Chiropractors could just let the people know that our adjustments were painless that many of the sick who need care would come in. He said "Many people wish to go to a Chiropractor but do not because they are afraid it will hurt."

After hearing this I realized for the first time that perhaps he was right. If there are any of you who are hesitating from visiting a Chiropractor for fear that the adjustment will be painful, please be assured that this is not the case. With modern technique, a chiropractic adjustment is no more painful than a good firm hand shake. Children and grown ups alike realize immediately after an adjustment that their fears were completely unfounded.

Do not deprive yourself of health. See a Chiropractor today. For information regarding the Chiropractic approach to your condition, call or write this office.

You Are Being Betrayed Into Communist Hands!

Who Declare You Have No Soul — And That There Is No God.

Fred Routh, a headquarters official of Southern Regional Council, 63 Auburn Ave., N. E., Atlanta, Georgia, is leading a workshop. In at least one of these sessions, the tactics of including women and children in racial demonstrations and incidents was propounded on the basis that police are reluctant to shoot women and children.

Southern Regional Council is the recipient of Ford, Fund for the Republic grants of $497,000.00. Fund for the Republic grants originated with the Ford Motor Company. Southern Regional Council is the parent organization of 12 statewide Councils on Human Relations operated only in the Southern States.

Southern Regional Council has been able to exploit the facilities of religion and education because of a quasi-religious status afforded by occupancy of space in a building owned by a huge church. The leadership of few units of the Communist apparatus have records of Communist affiliations which exceed those of present and past directors of Southern Regional Council.

The Daily Worker, official organ of the Communist Party, credits the foundation of Southern Regional Council to Jim Jackson, Negro Communist, presently head of Southern Affairs Commission of the Communist Party. Jackson is also credited with the establishment of Southern Conference Education Fund; and Southern Conference for Human Welfare, both organizations are recognized parts of the Communist apparatus and have interlocking directorates with Southern Regional Council.

The American Legion Firing Line, May 15, 1957, referring to the incorporating papers says "This document, filed in the Superior Court of Fulton County, State of Georgia, listed the names of five incorporators of the Council as follows: Dr. Rufus E. Clement, president of Atlanta University; Ralph McGill, Atlanta newspaper editor; and Bis. Arthur J. Moore, Bishop of Methodist Churches of Georgia; Dr. Charles S. Johnson, of Nashville, Tennessee (now deceased); and Dr. Howard W. Odum, Chapel Hill, North Carolina. File with the McCoy Criticisms - and North DeKalb Record + Norcross News.

McCoy's Furniture and Appliance Center,
Chamblee, Georgia.

Dear Sir:

As Counsel for the Southern Regional Council, I am writing to you in connection with the paid advertisement of your business in the North DeKalb Record and Norcross News of Thursday, May 22nd.

My client is convinced that the statements you have made, and the context in which you have put them, indicate that you are under a real misapprehension concerning the organization and the nature of the Southern Regional Council.

Referring to the first paragraph, the Southern Regional Council does not promote, sponsor, or encourage racial demonstrations and incidents of any kind. On the contrary, it is interested in averting racial demonstrations and incidents of all kinds.

The Southern Regional Council does not now and never has undertaken to exploit any religion, religious affiliation, or educational facilities by any reference to the location of its offices, nor by reference to such facilities on its stationery, or other printed matter, despite the fact that it is supported by both religious and educational organizations. The Southern Regional Council believes that its aims are entirely consistent with the aims of religion.

The charge of affiliation with communistic "apparatus" is categorically denied, and in this connection you would be interested to know that Congressman Walters of the House Un-American Activities Committee has expressly stated that the Southern Regional Council has never been cited by his Committee as being connected with any communistic activity.

McCoy's Furniture and Appliance Center

The Southern Regional Council categorically denies that the Jim Jackson referred to by you is or ever has been connected with the Southern Regional Council. The names of the incorporators, which you have included, should refute this charge in part, and the fact that the source of the charge is the Daily Worker would hardly lend credibility to the charge.

The origin of the Council is fully documented in the public press as of the date of its founding, and is, therefore, a matter of record. There is no interlocking directorate between Southern Regional Council and either the Southern Conference Education Fund or the Southern Conference for Human Welfare, which latter organization is understood to have been defunct since 1949.

The Southern Regional Council has received funds from the Fund for the Republic as have hundreds of other reputable organizations. Except for the context within which the paragraph of your advertisement making this statement is found, there would appear to be no reason for discussing this, but certainly the Southern Regional Council does not consider the Fund for the Republic as a part of the communist "apparatus" or disreputable in any way, shape, or form.

We think that as a fair person with knowledge of these facts which we have now given you, you will want to retract the statements contained in your advertisement, which certainly do not present a fair and accurate representation of the position of the Southern Regional Council, and my client looks forward to your doing so.

We assume that the views set forth are those of yourself, although your identification in the same ad as an RCA Dealer might lead to the assumption that this represents the views of that organization as well. Perhaps you would want to clarify this.

Should you care to have any documentation of the statements which have been made herein, we shall be glad to furnish it to you.

Very truly yours,

Re: Attacks on S.R.C.

Unfounded charges against the Southern Regional Council are a recurring nuisance. The source is an inflammatory political paper published by Roy V. Harris, whom you may remember as an intemperate and now largely discredited politician of Augusta, Georgia. His attacks on the SRC have been ignored by the reputable newspapers and other media.

In refuting such allegations, it is always difficult to know how much detail to supply, I hope this letter and the attached material aren't too burdensomely complete for your purposes. On the other hand, if more elaboration would be helpful, I will be glad to supply it.

As to the charges commonly made:

(1) The SRC is not the successor -- de facto, or otherwise-- of the Southern Conference for Human Welfare, The SCHW was organized in 1938 and survived until about 1949; the SRC was organized in 1944. As one might expect from this timing, and from their differing approaches to the problems of the South, the two organizations were widely regarded as rival agencies. That some members of the SRC's staff and board at one time participated in the Southern Conference is true. At its inception, the Conference attracted the cream of the South's liberal leadership; it was after these persons had become disillusioned and withdrew from the Conference that it acquired its dubious reputation. The attached copy of an editorial from the Atlanta Constitution helps clarify this history; the editorial was written by Ralph McGill, who was one of the incorporators of the SRC and is a continuing supporter of its work. Also attached are copies of letters from three of the founders of the SRC, written at a time when the same baseless charges were being clandestinely used against Morris Abram, an SRC board member who was then seeking office.

(2) In view of the facts cited above, the history of the SCHW is irrelevant; however, it might be noted in passing that the evidence of communist penetration of the Southern Conference, even its latter stages, was not sufficient to warrant its inclusion on the U.S. Attorney General's list of subversive organizations.

(3) The organizers of theSouthern Regional Council were Southerners of considerable distinction whose patriotism has never been seriously questioned. A mere listing of their manes and identifications should be sufficient to expose this charge for what it is. The organizing meeting of the SRC was held in response to a call issued by the following persons:

C.H. Gillman, Georgia Director, C.I.O
George L. Googe, Southern Director, A.F.L.
M. Ashby Jones, Baptist minister
Ryland Knight, Baptist minister
Rabbi David Marx, The Temple, Atlanta
Bishop Arthur J. Moore, The Methodist Church
Ralph McGill, Editor, the Atlanta Constitution
Stuart R. Oglesby, Presbyterian minister
Rt. Rev. Gerald P. O'Hara, Catholic Bishop of Savannah-Atlanta
Dean S. Paden, President, King Hardware Company
J. McDowell Richards, President, Columbia Theological Seminary
Bishop John Moore Walker, The Protestant Episcopal Church
Goodrich C. White, President , Emory University.

Following the deliberations of this group and a subsequent conference with Negro leaders, the SRC war chartered, the incorporators being Bishop J. Moore, Ralph McGill, President Rufus E. Clement of Atlanta University, President Charles S. Johnson of Fisk University, and the late Dr. Howard W. Odum, professor of sociology at the University of North Carolina. Dr. Odum served as the first president of the organization, 1944-1946.

(4) Our detractors do not name the "two top members" who are alleged to be communists, but Roy Harris's paper provides the basis for this allegation. Two persons who were once members of SRC's board were recently accused of communist sympathies by Paul Crouch in testimony before a Senate Internal Security Committee subcommittee. We have no way of evaluating this testimony against two out of the more than 100/former members of the SRC board. However, no such charges were against these persons during their terms of servece on our board--1945-1949, Nor by any stretch of theimagination could they be described as "top members"; neither held office or played any significant part in the formulation of SRC policy. (Ironically, one of them resigned from the board because he felt that SRC's position on segregation was not unequivocal enough).

(5) Dr. Mitchell did hold membership for several years on the board of the Southern Conference for Human Welfare, resigning when he found himself in disagreement with its policies. Harris's charges of other "red front" associations are based on a series of falsehoods and distortions which would require a great deal of space to review and refute. The high esteem in which Dr. Mitchell is held by all who know him and his work is typified by the award which he received in 1953 from the Catholic Committee of the South for his "significant contribution to the welfare of the South".

(6) The Southern Regional Council has been scrupulously non-political in all of its activities and has never been specifically charged otherwise. It operates under an official grant of tax-exemption from the United States Treasury Department. Anyone who will take the trouble to examine the Council's publications, statements, and activities will see that, from the beginning, it has stood for the exact opposite of communism. It is a body of responsible Southerners of both races working for orderly, constructive progress in race relations. Nothing could damage the cause of international communism more than the success of this effort.

Over the years, the Southern Regional Council has received both financial and moral support from many of the major religious denominations in the South, including Methodist, Protestant Episcopal, Presbyterian, Congregational , Society of Friends, Catholic and Jewish groups. Its work has had the endorsement of many prominent persons; the following characterizations of the Council by three widely known Southern editors--all of them intimately acquainted with its activities--are representative:

> "An able and worthwhile organization working in the field of racial relations. It has no radical tinge, but is, nevertheless, an aggressively energetic coordinating agency."
> Ralph McGill
> Atlanta Constitution

> "The sanest and best-informed Southwide organization dealing with race relation."
> Virginius Dabney
> Saturday Evening Post

> "The SRC is unique in a number of heartening directions. It is biracial, non-denominational and non-political. It does not engage in tom-tom beating, parades, or lengthy 'pronunciamentos' slanted for non-Southern consumption and approval. But it is not an isolationist effort to separate the South's problems from the nation's--or from the nation's concern."

To staff

Phone call this day at 4.20 pm from Mr. Robert Jackson, who identified himself as a charter member of Gate City Post #72 American Legion.

Wanted know what we were going to say to the Governor on Oct 31st I referred him to Guy Wells - whom he recognized as the man with whom he had fought over a text book in 1937-8!

Had a long conversation with him - out-quoted him on US Constitution which seemed to impress him. He promised to reread it - particularly Article 6 Sec. 2 which I commended to him.

He remained rational throughout conversation. Said we obviously had a difference of opinion -

I agreed.

MEMORANDUM

TO: GSM

FROM: GSM

At approximately 4:00 p.m., George Mitchell, on October 24th, telephoned U. S. District Attorney James Dorsey and asked for an appointment when Mitchell and one or two friends might come over and expound to him the truth of the charges erroneously made by Georgia's Attorney General Eugene Cook. Mr. Dorsey said that he would be willing to receive a social visit, but such a visit would have no official quarter as a record, would establish nothing, and more to that effect.

Finding him thus unreceptive to the purpose of the visit, I did not persist to make one.

. . . . HAROLD C. FLEMING . . . .

October 28, 1955

For the files

At 1:20 PM I received a call from the man identifying himself as Robert H. Jackson. He inquired if I knew one W. A. Washburn, who, Jackson said, is a member of the "American Crusade for Peace." When I replied that I had never heard of Washburn, Jackson said he wanted to "put you on guard." Remainder of conversation:

HF: I see where you boys got your charter.

RJ: What boys? Oh, I'm not mixed up with that group (meaning the KKK).

HF: Oh, have you left them?

RJ: I never have been. Like I told you, I'm just making some investigations. They know everything that crowd is doing.

HF: I'm sure of that.

This makes the third telephone call I have received from Jackson in the last three weeks. He represents himself as "making investigations for a group in Washington" about which he is not free to divulge any information. He is obviously fishing for information about us; asks questions about our operations and personnel, obviously based on no real understanding of who and what SRC is. Fred Routh and Mrs. Tilly have also had calls from him.

ADL has documentary evidence, as of August 1955, identifying Robert H. Jackson Sr. with KKK Klavern 213 in Atlanta.

Telephone Conversation
November 10, 1955
3:45 - 3:53 p.m.

Man called up and said his name was Bill Hendley. Asked what he represented? Said he represented the Georgia League Against Communism and the Georgia Anti-Communist Society. Where did he have his office? Buford, Georgia. Inquired whether SRC was a communist organization or not? I said it was not.

Had we been described by Senator Eastland, a month or so ago, as a communist group? Said I had no knowledge of what Eastland said, but said Eastland had been riding pretty hard the Southern Conference Educational Fund. Man said he knew of that matter.

Asked if he might have a list of members of the Board of SRC, and I told him that if he would write us and ask for a list he could have one.

Had we ever been cited as subversive? No, except that the Attorney General of Georgia said that a number of people who had been associated with us had been cited by the House Committee on Un-American Activities.

Long disposition against Gunnar Myrdal, and said he (Myrdal) knew nothing of American conditions. Had some notion that Myrdal had said that the American Constitution was a plot against the American people. Asked if I knew that the Carnegie University had put up the money for Myrdal's book? I said it was my understanding that it was the Carnegie Foundation.

Did we have any Jews on our Board? I said I daresay we had some. Was I aware that virtually all the communists were Jews? Was I aware that all the atomic spies were Jews? No, I was not. Did I know that the Anti-Defamation League of B'nai B'rith was really an arm of the communist movement in this country? No, I did not. I went on to say that I was not at all interested in the conversation, and that I thought it was an ill service to our country to spread hatred and malicious charges against people and groups.

Hendley said at the end that he was satisfied that the Attorney General of Georgia would move against the Southern Regional Council, and that we would not long be in business.

Elsewhere in the conversation asked my opinion of the NAACP, which I defended. Was I aware that Channing Tobias of the NAACP had a long communist record, and had been cited by the House Committee on Un-American Activities? Said I knew Channing Tobias for many years, and that he had been cleared of the many charges of communist affiliations or sympathies. Asked again what I thought of the NAACP? Said I thought it was doing a pretty good job. End of conversation.

GSM

Note: One of the last things the man said was: "I think you are a communist group, and I think you won't be in business long.

Also asked my opinion of "the NAACP," which I defended.

Dear Chief Jenkins:

This is to report a threatening telephone call which I received approximately 3:00 p. m. on this date.

A man who gave his name as John J. Wood called and began questioning the receptionist about the nature and work of the Southern Regional Council, where upon the call was switched to me. After questioning me at some length, "Mr. Wood" began, quite irrevelantly to express his views about communism--namely that it is a movement conceived, inspired, and let by Jews. When I told him that I had no interest in his views and was about to hang up, he said:

"You dirty Communist! We are going to drag you and your kind out and hang you to the trees."

"Who are 'we'?" I asked.

He replied "You'll find out. We'll get you, you dirty _____."

Aside from a good deal of profanity, which I have ommitted, these are the exact words, written down by me during the conversation. I thought it proper to inform you of a threat of this nature, and I will be happy, of course, to assist in any investigation of this or subsequent threats.

Council In State Linked To Commies

Jackson Daily News 3/9/57

BY PHIL STROUPE
Daily News Staff Writer

BATON ROUGE, La.—Bishop Joseph B. Brunini and 15 other Mississippians are listed as directors of an organization described by a former Negro Communist as a "transmission belt of Communist infiltration in the South."

Manning Johnson of New York City, consultant to various government agencies and a Moscow trained former Communist, told a Louisiana legislative committee under oath here Friday, the Mississippi Council on Human Relations is a subsidiary of a Communist-created organization, the Southern Regional Council.

The Southern Regional Council received $443,000 from the Fund for the Republic, an agency already under investigation by Congress, Johnson told the committee. In answer to a direct question by chief counsel Bill Shaw, Johnson said the Mississippi Council on Human Relations was one of 12 created with the money received from the Fund for the Republic.

A spokesman for the Mississippi Council on Human Relations said Saturday that Johnson's statement is just "another crazy accusation that pops up in hearings such as this."

The spokesman flatly denied the organization has any link whatsoever with the Communist Party.

The Council was first organized approximately 30 years ago under the leadership of Bishop Bratton of the Episcopal Church as an inter-racial group to improve race relations in Mississippi.

It is an organization of Mississippi citizens with no connection with the Communist Party, the spokesman said.

Johnson introduced as documentary evidence into the bulky record of the three-day hearing into segregation problems, a letter from Ruby Lyells of 1104 Lynch St., Jackson, Miss., inviting "members and friends" to the annual meeting of the council at the Jackson YWCA Nov. 5, 1955.

Johnson's documentary evidence followed the name-calling of at least 21 Mississippians who are members of the board of directors of the Council on Human Relations or who participated in its annual meeting.

The council's parent organization, the Southern Regional Council, was founded by one James E. Jackson of Atlanta, and others identified by Johnson as Communists.

Jackson later was arrested by the FBI and convicted under the Smith Act for subversive activity. He is free on bail pending appeal to the U. S. Supreme Court.

Directors of the Mississippi Council on Human Relations, according to Jachnson's testiomy, and a letter-head he used as documentary evidence, are:

Mrs. W. H. Ratliff of Sherard, Miss., president; Mrs. C. E. Dishman, Piney Woods, vice president; Bishop Brunini, secretary-treasurer; Charles T. Morgan of Mathiston; Alexander FitzHugh of Vicksburg; Miss Alma Hickman, Mrs. E. E. Dean, Rabbi Charles Mantinband, all of Hattiesburg;

Rev. Duncan M. Hobart, Meridian; F. W. Miller, Jackson; Mrs. D. S. Wheatley, Greenwood; Dr. H. G. Williamson, Grenada; and Dr. Thomas L. Zuber, West Point.

Associate directors listed are Mrs. J. A. Burt Jr., and Mrs. C. A. Williams, whose addresses were not listed on the letterhead.

A printed program announcing the annual meeting of the council at the Jackson YWCA and introduced as evidence in the hearing, identified 13 persons as "Who's Who" in the council.

There are Mrs. C. C. Clark of Jackson, supervisor of group services Mississippi State Library Commission; Miss Jamie Turnage, executive director of the Jackson YWCA; Ernest Borinski, NAACP member and head of the sociology department, Tougaloo College; Sam Barefield, director of the Wesley Foundation, Mississippi Southern College; J. J. Bolden, principal of Campbell College High School, Jackson;

Harold Fleming, associate director Southern Regional Council, Atlanta; Mrs. A. Charles Hunter, Columbus; Ruby Lyells, executive director of the Missisippi Council on Human Relations; Rev. John Mangum, chaplain, Tougaloo College; Rabbi Mantinband, Hattiesburg; Rev. M. G. Prueitt, district superintendent, Upper Mississippi Conference Methodist Church; Mrs. Ratliff and Bishop Brunini.

EX-RED BLASTS NEGRO PASTORS

Times-Picayune 3-9-57

Probe Witness Accuses Segregation Leaders

By JAY HALL
(Times-Picayune Staff Correspondent)

BATON ROUGE, March 8—A Negro ex-Communist said Friday that Rev. Martin Luther King is "leading the Negroes in the South down the road to bloodshed, violence and revolution."

Manning Johnson, Washington, D. C., a former Communist, also said that the intelligent Negroes should "stop" Rev. T. J. Jemison, Negro Baptist minister of Baton Rouge, and Rev. A. L. Davis Jr., who seeks to start a similar movement in New Orleans.

He said the anti-segregation movement led by Rev. King, Montgomery, Ala., minister, "could lead to Communism in the South."

King, he said, is handing out explanations for his actions that are "the same as that of the Communist party . . . I think Rev. King should stand a thorough investigation."

Mortgage Loans

Already in Montgomery, Johnson said, Negroes going to banks for loans when the mortgage comes due are being asked, "why don't you go to Rev. King and let him finance your mortgage?"

"If the homes of 5000 Negroes are wiped out through violence, is Rev. King going to replace these homes?" he asked.

Where are the "victims of colonialism and oppression in this country that Rev. King talks about?" Johnson asked. "That is Communist talk. That is their language."

Rev. Jemison was in the audience when Johnson made his reference to him.

Johnson also declared that "the only thing the NAACP knows is the threat and the sword. They will turn white against black and black against white."

Earlier he described the NACP as ripe for becoming a Communist stronghold and said one of its top names recently was elected to a top post in the Communist party.

'Reds of Note'

Johnson said he was a Communist of high national note from 1930 to 1940 and quit when he saw he was only a tool for Communists who practice deceit and never had the interest of the Negro at heart any more than they have ever had the interest of the working class at heart.

He was one of two witnesses heard by the Louisiana joint legislative committee, undertaking what Chairman W. M. Rainach, state senator from Summerfield, described as the first official investigation in the nation into Communist influences behind racial disturbances.

He accused Congress of being afraid to tackle the issue and said congressional committees are advised against bringing it up in fear of "the voting blocks of the North."

Preceding Johnson on the witness stand was another Negro ex-Communist, Leonard Patterson of New York.

Rainach said the committee will reconvene at 8:30 a. m. Saturday and hopes to wind up the probe with witnesses by noon "who will bring the Communist picture even closer to Louisiana."

A development as Friday's

testimony neared an end was Johnson's disclosure that a Mississippi organization known as the Mississippi Council of Human Relations is an "affiliate of the Southern Regional Council." He previously had identified the Southern Regional Council as having been formed by Communists.

Johnson named about 20 persons from what he said was the official letterhead of the Mississippi organization.

Names Dubois

Johnson said W. E. Dubois, an honorary national chairman of the NAACP and the first Negro to become a member, was recently elected to the national committee of the Communist party at a convention of the party in New York.

He called Dubois "an evil, frustrated, wicked old man sucking at the teats of the Red bear and looking to the devils of the Kremlin for vindication and salvation."

From a publication, Johnson read the names of some members of the Southern Regional Council which he said was organized by a Communist named James E. Jackson, convicted under the antisubversive Smith act but currently awaiting appeal.

Among names read as members was that of Dr. Albert W. Dent, president of Dillard university in New Orleans.

Johnson stated, "I'm not saying all these people are Communists even though it was formed by the Communists."

He said the council has its headquarters in a building occupied by "Bishop Arthur Moore of the Methodist church," a Negro.

Communism in the religion of Negroes was developed extensively by W. M. Shaw, of Homer, special counsel for the investigating committee.

Both Johnson and Patterson declared that religion is a principal tool of the Communists in proselyting Negro members.

Hotbed of Reds

Asked if there are any Negro ministers who are Communists, Patterson said, "I know some in New York who were."

Johnson described the church as "the best place for hiding" by Communists and added, "The fact that they are using the church as a cover does not faze the Communists" as long as they feel in the long run they come a step nearer to their dream of world conquest.

Johnson, whose testimony consumed most of the day, branded Howard university in Washington, D. C., as "a hotbed of communism, and its Negro president, Mordecai Johnson, an expounder of Communist doctrine.

"It is unfortunate," the witness said, "that he is that type of man. It does not speak so good for the race."

Shaw asked, "Is it a fact that Howard university is the only institution of higher learning that is supported by the US government?" Johnson replied that it was.

The extent of the Communist influence in the NAACP next claimed attention.

Johnson said, "The Communist party has been very successful in infiltrating into the foremost Negro organization in the country—the NAACP.

"They have infiltrated and working through the NAACP to become one of the most influential mixed-breed organizations in the country."

Rebellion Seen

The ex-Communist, declaring that most NAACP units are in the South, continued, "They see the possibility of developing a 'national liberation movement.' As I see it, that means a national Negro rebellion in the South . . . extending from Maryland to Texas, where they speak of setting up a black republic."

Johnson warned, "Step by step, they are raising issues to the level of political conflict, involving city mayors and councilmen and state representatives and other local or higher level officials in these conflicts to the point that they reach a mass psychosis of hate the Communists would mould into the national rebellion."

Later, Johnson said, he would like to "clear up whether the NAACP is for communism or against communism or what have you."

He said it is an organization of both white and Negro members comprised of "liberals, philanthropists, Communists, fellow travelers, eggheads, idealists, socialists, Trotskyites and more."

In the final analysis, however, "they all have one thing in common. That is their teachings are all the teachings of Marx."

He ascribed most statements of denouncement of communism by NAACP members to a constant factional fight within the NAACP for control of the top command.

Johnson said, "At any time they could come together and cease their recriminations" and unite toward the ultimate Communist goal, "the overthrow of the US government."

Names read by Johnson as members of the Mississippi Council on Human Relations were:

Mrs. W. H. Ratliff, Sherard, president; Mrs. C. E. Dishman, Piney Woods, vice-president; Charles T. Morgan, Mathiston, secretary-treasurer, and directors Msgr. Joseph B. Brunini, Jackson; Mrs. E. E. Deen, Hattiesburg; Alexander Fitz-hugh, Vicksburg; Miss Alma Hickman, Hattiesburg; Rev. Duncan M. Hobart, Meridian; Rabbi Charles Mantinband, Hattiesburg; S. W. Miller, Jackson; Mrs. D. S. Wheatley, Greenwood; Dr. H. G. Williamson, Grenada, and Dr. Thomas L. Zuber, West Point.

He also named Mrs. R. S. Lyells, Jackson, as executive director and Mrs. J. A. Burt Jr. and Mrs. C. A. Williams, addresses not given, as staff members.

LEONARD PATTERSON, of Jamaica, N. Y., a former Communist, testifies Friday in Baton Rouge at the legislative committee hearing on racial unrest.

Says Reds Stirred Up 'Incidents'

N.O. Item 3/9/57

BATON ROUGE, (UP)—Another ex-Communist Party member told a Louisiana legislative committee Saturday that the Reds have deliberately stirred up race incidents to gain new party members.

Mrs. Martha Edmiston, a reporter for the Waynesville, Ohio, Journal, said she and her husband were instructed in 1940 to take two Negro girls into Ohio restaurants while on a trip to Chicago and to raise a "fuss" if they were not served.

MRS. EDMISTON, who said she and her husband joined the party in 1940 for the FBI, was the fourth witness to tell the committee that the Communists have worked on the Negroes in their drive to take over the government.

But, she commented, only a small percentage of the Negroes in Ohio fell for the line.

Mrs. Edmiston said she and her husband ceased being party members when they testified before a House un-American activities committee in 1950.

Friday an ex-Communist testifying before the hearing claimed that the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People is "nothing more than a vehicle for the Communist Party."

Manning Johnson, a Negro who quit the Communist Party in 1940 and now works for the government in Washington, also told the committee that the Rev. Martin Luther King is leading the Southern Negro "on a road to bloodshed and violence."

King, Montgomery, Ala., Negro, is a leader of the integration movement in the Deep South.

"I AM NOT saying King is a Communist, but I am saying he is doing the Negro considerable harm," Johnson said under questioning.

The 49-year-old Negro ex-Communist told 70 spectators and the investigating committee that King does not have the age and experience to lead the Southern Negro.

In his testimony during the proceedings, Johnson said Communists are working through Negro organizations in the South, principally the churches, to incite Negroes into open rebellion.

The witness said he had been a member of the Communist Party from 1930 to 1940 and had been a member of the party's Negro Commission.

He named several members of the NAACP board of directors who he said had been working "hand-in-glove" with the Communists.

JOHNSON DECLARED that the Reds have always infiltrated the NAACP. And he charged NAACP was "never even founded by Negroes. They were all whites — do-gooders, philanthropists, and so on."

Some of the top NAACP leaders have made certain pronouncements against Communism, Johnson continued. "But it is a family fight." He said the Socialists, social Democrats and Trotskyites have attacked the Reds, but they all want the same thing—overthrow of the U. S. government."

Johnson said there are other organizations than the NAACP which work on the Negroes. He named specifically the Southern Conference on Human Welfare and the Southern Regional Council, which he said was inspired by the Communists and used for transmission of the party line.

ANOTHER NEGRO ex-Communist, Leon Patterson, New York City, gave similar testimony, alleging that Communist front organizations had infiltrated the NAACP.

Tells of Negro Exploitation by Communists

N.O. States 3-9-57

BATON ROUGE (AP)—An attractive, brown-haired, former Communist for the FBI today told of the "pitiless exploitation of the Negro people" by the Communist party.

Mrs. Martha Edmiston, a reporter for the Middletown, Ohio, Journal, testified as legislative hearings designed to show Communist influences behind racial disturbances began the third and final day.

A New York Negro ex-Communist yesterday termed Rev. Martin Luther King of Montgomery, Ala., "a megalomaniac seeking power."

Manning Johnson, husky former Red, testified the Negro minister heading an antisegregation movement, was a "dastardly misleader, leading the Negroes of the South down to destruction."

Reprimanded for Aid

Mrs. Edmiston told the legislators how she and her husband entered the Communist party in 1940, at the request of the FBI, remaining in for about 10 years.

"I saw with the party the pitiless exploitation of the Negro people," she said. "But actually it was only a small percentage of the Negroes, surprisingly small, who fell for the Communist party line."

She said she was reprimanded severely once for "slipping some money to an old Negro couple.

"You do not give money to the poor, you give them pamphlets so you can incite them," she was told by the party secretary.

King is president of the Southern Leadership Conference and has been emphasizing nonviolence after leading the Montgomery bus bocycott.

Only to Violence

"Civil disobedience," the witness said, "will lead only to bloodshed and violence. It will lead to the Negroes losing their homes and jobs and create a psychosis of hate."

Johnson was a star witness for the joint legislative committee on segregation, probing influences behind racial strife. The group closes its three-day hearings in the state capitol today.

Sen. W. M. Rainach, chairman, called the Louisiana probe because he said the civil rights hearings now being held in Washington were painting "only half the picture."

"The true picture of the Communist penetration and utilization of Negroes in this country has been carefully skirted by investigating committees in Congress," Rainach said. "The two national parties advised them to do so because they were afraid of the bloc voting in Northern cities dominated by the National Assn. for the Advancement of Colored People."

Johnson said "the Communists have infiltrated and are working through the NAACP. The reason is because the NAACP has become one of the most influential, mixed breed organizations in the country. It's not a Negro group but a sort of mixed breed group, organized originally by Whites."

Cook Orders Transcript of Red Inquiry

Atlanta Constitution 3/12/57

Atty. Gen. Eugene Cook said Monday he has ordered a transcript of hearings by a Louisiana legislative committee investigating subversive activities because "some Georgia names were mentioned."

Cook, who attended the hearings in Baton Rouge, La., last Thursday and Friday, said the committee heard sworn testimony that certain organizations had been infiltrated by Communists.

One of these organizations, he said, was the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People.

"These hearings brought out positive subversive infiltration in fronts existing in Georgia," Cook said. "I feel it is my duty to get this information and transmit it to the governor, the Georgia Education Commission and the General Assembly for their study."

Cook said he is not proposing at this time a similar investigation in Georgia. He said he would merely report "without recommendation" on what he had heard "for the purpose of study."

The past General Assembly authorized the Georgia Education Commission to conduct investigations similar to the Louisiana probe. The commission was armed with subpoena powers.

Educator Labels Ex-Red Witnesses 'Lamn Diars'

University Head Raps Probe Testimony

By JAY HALL
(Times-Picayune Staff Correspondent)

BATON ROUGE, La., March 9—A Negro educator Saturday called two ex-Communists testifying at a legislative investigation into racial discord a pair of "lamn diars."

Dr. Rufus E. Clement, president of Atlanta university, pinned the label on Negro ex-Communists Manning Johnson and Leonard Patterson after reciting a humorous anecdote about dyeing lambs.

Clement was principal speaker at Southern university in a program climaxing a week-long tribute to Dr. J. S. Clark and others who helped found the school 43 years ago.

He made only brief reference at the conclusion of his address to the open hearing of the Louisiana joint legislative committee which Saturday wound up a three-day look into influences behind racial disturbances.

Both Johnson and Patterson were trained in Communist techniques in the Lenin school in Moscow and were practicing Communists and leaders of Communists in this country for the decade of 1930 to 1940.

Friday Johnson told the committee the Southern Regional Council was organized by a Communist named James E. Jackson, currently appealing a conviction under the antisubversive Smith act.

Clement proclaimed himself "one of the four incorporators" of the council and said the name of Jackson has never been connected with it.

Johnson had also cloaked Dr. Ralph Bunche, Negro secretary to the president of the United Nations General Assembly, and Dr. Mordecai Johnson, Negro president of Howard university, in Communist tendencies. He also had spoken out against Rev. Martin Luther King of Montgomery, Ala., Negro minister who has been a Southern leader in the racial integration vast new fields of opportunity for the Negro.

He said leading national industrialists have made it clear to him they want to hire men of ability "regardless of race or creed."

Already some great industries are employing Negroes in highly technical jobs and such new industries as television have laid open new opportunities for Negroes, opportunities that already are being utilized.

At the time of Southern's founding, Clement said, the South had just gone through the "first reconstruction period and Negroes were set back in the realm of second class citizens." Now, Clement s aid, "we find ourselves in the period of the second reconstruction."

He recalled that in the "first period," which he defined as 1865 to about 1900, Negro and white passengers had separate seating sections on public transportation vehicles.

In this "second period of reconstruction," he predicted that Negroes would find themselves well-placed in all walks of life.

However, he warned them, they must prepare themselves for the opportunities that lie ahead and must earn their way into higher positions by a display of genuine ability, experience and character.

He urged them not to "worry" about wealth or fame. "Achievement comes when you are most interested in making a contribution. If you make a contribution, you will have something priceless — you will have inner satisfaction."

Dr. Felton G. Clark, Southern president and son of the founder, introduced Clement and paid tribute to other founders.

These included Mrs. Octavia Head Clark, wife of the founder, who was the first registrar and the first director of music; J. S. Jones, the first dean; Mrs. E. N. Maberry, first director of home economics; and J. B. Moore, former faculty member for 30 years with Southern.

He also had spoken out against Rev. Martin Luther King of Montgomery, Ala., Negro minister who has been a Southern leader in the racial integration movement.

Clement said, "Any person who misrepresents and smears people like Dr. Ralph Bunche and Rev. Martin Luther King and Dr. Mordecai Johnson is really a lamn diar.

"There are other things I could say," he added, "but I won't."

In the capacity-filled new gymnasium of Southern, largest all-Negro institution of higher learning in the country, Clement delivered some pointers on "motivation and achievement."

Of national prominence in the education field, the 57-year-old university president is an elected member of the city school board of Atlanta.

"Who will credit the word of a pair of ex-Communists," he asked, "against such decent, upstanding leaders as Rev. Martin Luther King, Dr. Ralph Bunche, and Dr. Mordecai Johnson?"

He told the student body and visitors, after urging them to become the best citizens that is within their power, "there is enough potential in this student body to change the history of this nation and the world."

Then followed a warning that "unless we in the United States can finally make good in our practice of democracy as much as we make good in the preaching of it, we are doomed to have the greatest war the world has ever had—World War III."

That war will come, he said, unless the races in America are reconciled in harmony to the conviction of the rest of the world.

To emphasize the brink of annihilation inherent in World War III, Clement recalled having seen a picture sketched in which a weapon was shown over the caption, "the weapon of World War IV." The weapon, he said, was a bow and arrow.

The educator said his close touch with the national education picture has left him confident of vast new fields of opportunity for the Negro.

He said leading national industrialists have made it clear to him they want to hire men of ability "regardless of race or creed."

Already some great industries are employing Negroes in highly technical jobs and such new industries as television have laid open new opportunities for Negroes, opportunities that already are being utilized.

REDS INFILTRATE NAACP, HEARING TOLD BY POLICE

Rainach Suggests Red Team After Hearing

(Times-Picayune Capital Bureau)

BATON ROUGE, La., March 9—Sen. W. M. Rainach said Saturday that he will consider possible legislation for setting up a state "Red squad" in Louisiana.

Chairman of the Louisiana joint legislative committee, Rainach made the statement after adjournment of the group's three-day look into influences behind racial unrest.

If such a squad of Communist-flushes materializes, it will be the first state police squad of its type in the nation, according to New Orleans Police Sgt. Hubert Badeaux, a witness in the hearing.

Rainach said a Red squad is only one of a large number of possibilities his committee will consider after a thorough study of testimony taken in the probe.

Cites Alleged Objectives

Adjourning the session, the senator from Summerfield summed up preliminary conclusions as follows:

1. Communism is a worldwide conspiracy, with overthrow of all non-Communist governments its object.

2. Creating racial uprisings against the existing order is a principal Communist method of aiming at overthrow.

3. Red activities through organizations, "such organizations as the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People," is a principal cause of racial unrest in this country.

Says Reds Active in State

4. Such Communists and Communist fronts are now active in Louisiana and are serious threats to this state's normal peace and tranquility.

5. Louisiana and its cities should re-examine their laws governing this problem and the setup by which these laws are enforced, with a view to strengthening the laws.

6. Louisiana should make its experience in this field available to the other states, to the South, and to the nation.

Badeaux, head of the intelligence division of the New Orleans police department, in earlier testimony said he had "thousands of documents to support the charge of penetration of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People by the Communist party."

"Enough to convince even the most skeptical," added Badeaux.

Badeaux was the second witness in the final day of legislative hearings designed to show Communist influences behind racial disturbances.

Earlier, an attractive, brown-haired former Communist for the FBI told of the "pitiless exploitation of the Negro people" by the Reds.

Says Few Fell for Line

But Mrs. Martha Edmiston, a reporter for the Middletown, Ohio, Journal, added, "actually it was only a small percentage of the Negroes, surprisingly small, who fell for the Communist party line."

Badeaux told of a raid on a New Orleans Communist organizer which netted a large haul of Red literature.

He quoted from a booklet which described the NAACP as "the most influential organization in the Negro national liberation movement," which was controlled by "bourgeois reformists.

"A reformist is a dirty bird to the Communists who believe in reform for reform's sake," said Badeaux. "This was to alert the party that the NAACP was important and now controlled by reformist groups."

Reds Pledge NAACP Defense

And he read other Communist literature in which the party pledged "to resolutely defend the NAACP. They wouldn't do that if they couldn't use it for their own interests."

Mrs. Edmiston, the only white woman witness called in the hearing told of her early party work, when she and others were assigned to take two Negro girls around Chicago creating racial incidents by seating them in white cafes.

"Those girls", she said, "only wanted to have a good time in Chicago, they didn't want to make any trouble."

The former FBI undercover agent also told of what she said were Communist efforts directed at Negro colleges, charging Lee Lorch, white mathematics professor at Fisk University, Nashville, Tenn., was "a known Communist courier."

She said Lorch refused to recognize her or questions about party connections in a 1950 investigation by the House un-American activities committee.

Saw Pitiless Exploitation

Mrs. Edminston told the legislators how she and her husband entered the Communist party in 1940, at the request of the FBI, remaining in for about 10 years.

"I saw with the party the pitiless exploitation of the Negro people," she said. "But actually it was only a small percentage of the Negroes, surprisingly small, who fell for the Communist party line."

She said she was reprimanded severely once for "slipping some money to an old Negro couple."

"You do not give money to the poor, you give them pamphlets so you can incite them," she was told by the party secretary.

'Could Lead to Communism'

King is president of the Southern Leadership Conference and has been emphasizing nonviolence after leading the Montgomery bus boycott.

Johnson, before television cameras and radio mikes yesterday testified the minister's efforts "could lead to communism in the South."

"Civil disobedience," the witness said, "will lead only to bloodshed and violence. It will lead to the Negroes losing their homes and jobs and create a psychosis of hate."

Johnson was a star witness for the joint legislative committee on segregation, probing influences behind racial strife.

Ends Three-Day Hearing

The group closes its three-day hearings in the state capitol Saturday with testimony by police Sgt. Hubert Badeaux of New Orleans, an intelligence agent who works with the FBI. Committee members said Badeaux will tell of Communist penetration in New Orleans and Louisiana.

Sen. W. M. Rainach, chairman, called the Louisiana probe because he said the civil rights hearings now being held in Washington were painting "only half the picture."

"The true picture of the Communist penetration and utilization of Negroes in this country has been carefully skirted by investigating committees in Congress," Rainach said. "The two national parties advised them to do so because they were afraid of the bloc voting in Northern cities dominated by the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People."

'In Deep Water, Can't Swim'

Johnson and Leonard Patterson of Jamaica, N. Y., another Negro ex-Red, testified about Communist penetration in the South through Negro fronts and Negro churches and party at-

'In Deep Water, Can't Swim'

Johnson and Leonard Patterson of Jamaica, N. Y., another Negro ex-Red, testified about Communist penetration in the South through Negro fronts and Negro churches and party attempts to capture the NAACP.

"The Rev. King is in deep water and can't swim," Johnson said.

"He wants President Eisenhower to come down and bail him out, but Ike is not going to bail him out. He would be a fool to come down and do it."

King had talked of a Negro mass movement in connection with the supreme court decision against bus segregation, Johnson continued. "This explanation is the same as that of the Communist party. I wonder who is giving him the party line?"

Johnson said he is not calling the Alabama Negro a Communist, "but I am saying he is doing the Negroes harm."

Southern Negroes Reject Line

Johnson said "the Communists have infiltrated and are working through the NAACP. The reason is because the NAACP has become one of the most influential, mixed breed organizaitons in the country. It's not a Negro group but a sort of mixed breed group, organized originally by whites."

Johnson said W. E. B. Dubois, Negro writer and an NAACP founder, had long-time links with the Communist party.

"Dubois is an evil, frustrated, wicked old man . . . looking to the devils in the Kremlin for vindication and salvation," Johnson said.

Patterson testified that Negroes in the South "never accepted the Communist party program." He said Negroes rejected the efforts of party workers, despite their spending as much as six months at a time in Southern towns and cities.

cient producer to stay on the job and adjust to present-day needs.

To make the soil bank most effective we think it should not be used as an emergency-relief program or crop insurance. If it is necessary to provide funds for relief let that be done with funds specifically for that purpose. Also, land put into the soil bank should not be grazed or used for hay crops.

Since an important part of the soil bank is to reduce Government held stocks of commodities, every effort should be employed to use these stocks as "payment in kind" to farmers putting acreage in the bank. We understand there are provisions for that now, but most farmers want cash payments. Those who can use grains for feed should have special inducement as this would be attacking the problem two ways at little cost to the public.

Since support prices have some responsibility for our surplus stocks the Government should require a farmer who expects to use price supports to put from 10 to 20 percent of the acreage going into the price supported crop into the soil bank.

In Mifflin County as a further example of how much or little we use some Government action programs we had only one person apply for supports last year; this was a warehouse loan on wheat.

The confusion that some of these action programs cause among some of our conservative people remind me of the difficulty that Pat and Mike were having in getting to their destination after imbiding too freely. After an hour or so of weaving in and out of streets and alleys and often finding themselves where they started the search, Pat said, "Mike, there just ain't no way to get there from here."

We think there is a way to get there from here but it will take time and patience and working at the problem and doing what we know must be done.

It looks as though it is a mistake to tie separate crop programs to the soil bank such as was done with corn, much to our sorrow. Since the ill-fated corn referendum last December 12 it appears that the minority won out (38½ percent). We need the compromise corn program as proposed in H. R. 4589 and H. R. 4555. This bill would allow farmers to use either acreage allotments with high supports or to use base acreage with soil bank and moderate supports. In other words everyone will get just what he wants if the Congress will pass this legislation to permit it. But, I can't stress too strongly that this legislation to be of any value this year should pass this month. Farmers must do considerable planning ahead of planting. It will take some time for the agencies of the United States Department of Agriculture to set up their procedure until it is definite what kind of corn program we will have. If we should be forced to operate under an allotment program, as we will without a compromise or a change, some livestock farmers would not have enough acres in their allotment to fill their silos without harvesting any for grain.

Another problem which faces some livestock farmers is restricted acreage in planting grain crops under allotments which would all be used for feed on their own farm. Allotments should not be enforced where crop is all fed on the farm producing the crop.

To summarize, here is how we see the present and pending farm legislation:

We support the soil bank to reduce surpluses. We want to encourage use of CCC stocks as payment in kind to farmers. Keep away from the use of soil bank as "crop insurance."

We need the corn compromise bill. The farmer vote last December leaves no doubt about it. The bill should be passed now to be effective this year. We believe that you Congressmen in this room should have the influence to get this accomplished. We hope we can count on all of you to get the job done while there is still time.

Negro Ex-Red Says NAACP Is Vehicle of Communism

EXTENSION OF REMARKS

OF

HON. JOHN L. McMILLAN

OF SOUTH CAROLINA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Tuesday, March 12, 1957

Mr. McMILLAN. Mr. Speaker, under leave to extend my remarks in the Appendix of the CONGRESSIONAL RECORD, I include a news item appearing in the News and Courier which is one of our leading newspapers in the South.

I hope that everyone in the House will take time to read this article:

NEGRO EX-RED SAYS NAACP IS VEHICLE OF COMMUNISM

(By Phil Stroupe)

BATON ROUGE, LA., March 8.—A New York Negro and former Communist for 10 years today testified under oath that the NAACP has "outlived its usefulness and has become a vehicle of the Communist Party designed to overthrow the Government of the United States."

Manning Johnson, 49, who left the Communist Party in 1940, told the Louisiana Legislature investigating committee the Communist Party has infiltrated dozens of Communist-front organizations including the NAACP.

He said the Reverend Martin Luther King, Negro preacher of Montgomery, Ala., "is a dastardly misleader who is creating a psychosis of hate, leading southern Negroes down the road to bloodshed and destruction.

NEGRO PROGRESS

"Any policy that advocates the destruction of 100 years' progress of the American Negro, such as King is supporting, cannot be anything but wrong. If he is not stopped soon the good Negroes will suffer."

Johnson is the fourth witness to testify before the Louisiana group investigating the cause of racial unrest in the South.

W. M. (Bill) Shaw, chief counsel for the committee, has probed into Communist activities through testimony given by W. Guy Banister, assistant chief of police of New Orleans, Joseph Z. Kornfedder of Detroit, former member of the central executive committee of the Communist Party of the United States, and Leonard Patterson, New York Negro, who spent 10 years in the Communist Party before leaving it in 1937.

Johnson, a highly educated man now employed as director of research for the Department of Justice in Washington, electrified the audience, composed of Negroes and whites, who heard his firsthand revelations of Communist activities in the southland.

"A big family quarrel is going on in the upper echelon of the NAACP," Johnson said, "between the white liberals, eggheads, Socialists, and Communists for the control of the Negroes of the United States."

Johnson said whatever the brand of party label the NAACP may adopt is not important, "but they are all anti-American, against capitalism, and are based on the doctrines of Marxism."

HAND IN HAND

He said the Communist Party and the NAACP "stand hand in hand" aimed at wrecking the security of the United States.

Johnson said Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt is among the strongest leaders of Communist-front organizations.

"Somebody ought to muzzle her and put her in a cage," he said. Testimony Thursday established that she is a member of 33 such front organizations.

He said "somebody told this Reverend King he is a modern Moses, chosen to lead his people across the river to safety. I don't say King is a Communist, but I say he is wrong. He has not the ability to lead his race."

Johnson introduced literally dozens of pieces of documentary evidence to show the Communists are infiltrating southern organizations and seeking to disturb the racial transquility of the South.

"The Communist sees the NAACP as a national liberation movement from Maryland to Texas, through the Nation's black belt," Johnson testified. "They have pounced upon the NAACP because it is one of the most influential mixed-breed organizations in the country."

He called Howard University for Negroes in Washington, D. C., "a hotbed for Communists."

He said the Southern Regional Council and the Southern Conference of Human Welfare "are transmission belts" for communism in the Southland.

"They are trying to get at the southern Negro, but the average Negro knows a red light when he sees one," Johnson said.

"It reminds me of the man who killed a fly on his baby's head by using a sledge hammer," Johnson said.

Johnson testified that the Southern Regional Council was given office space in Atlanta by Methodist Bishop Arthur Moore. Members of the council include the Very Rev. Maurice V. Shean, dean of the Roman Catholic Oratory at Rock Hill, S. C.; Marion S. Wright, of Linville, N. C.; Dr. Gordon B. Hancock, professor emeritus, Virginia Union University.

Dr. W. E. B. DuBois, first Negro in the NAACP, was described by Johnson as an "evil, frustrated old man, sucking at the teats of the Old Red Bear, looking to the devils in the Kremlin for vindication and salvation as he nears the end."

Both Johnson and Patterson, a New York hack driver and longshoreman, told of Communist infiltration into southern Negro churches.

"They are working specifically in the Negro churches to give a cloak of respectability to communism behind the door of the church," Johnson said. "That puts them in a position to pressure the pastor."

He told the committee that the Mississippi Council on Human Relations is a Communist-front organization that received $445,000 in 1954 from the Fund for the Republic, an agency already under investigation by Congress.

Among members of the Human Relations Council in Mississippi is Bishop Joseph Brunini, just recently elevated to the status of bishop of the Jackson-Natchez diocese.

A letter from Mrs. R. S. Lyells, of Jackson, executive director, inviting persons to attend an annual meeting in Jackson last November was introduced as evidence.

It said, "the Mississippi Council on Human Relations, affiliated with the Southern Regional Council, needs members and friends, friends among those who agree with us but prefer not to become members of the organization at this time."

Attending the 3-day hearings is the Mississippi general legislative investigating committee, headed by Senator Stanton Hall, of Hattiesburg.

Attorney General Eugene Cook, of Georgia, spent Thursday and Friday as a close observer and interested visiting official.

SOUTHERN EDITOR REPORTS REACTION TO TALK IN NORTH

In Sunday's paper Thomas R. Waring, editor of the News and Courier, reports on the reception given his recent address at Williams College, Williamstown, Mass.

Waring appeared as a guest of the Williams lecture committee and spoke on southern race relations. He called for a better understanding in the North of the southern point of view.

Last spring Thurgood Marshall, counsel for the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, was a guest of the same committee.

Waring reports a cold, even hostile, reaction on the part of his audience, a reception he had been advised to expect. He points out that these people are not well informed about the position of the South and do not have a true picture of conditions.

Scrambled Phony Vision Rears Its Ugly Head

EXTENSION OF REMARKS

OF

HON. EDMUND P. RADWAN

OF NEW YORK

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Tuesday, March 12, 1957

Mr. RADWAN. Mr. Speaker, a recent newspaper item datelined Washington, February 27, announced that a majority of the Senate Commerce Committee is expected to recommend a full-scale trial run of pay-as-you-see television. Experimentation with this vicious proposal sounds like a first step toward total approval by the Federal Communications Commission.

Since 1955, when the greedy promoters of pay television first reared their ugly heads, I have been strongly opposed to the substitution of pay TV for the present free TV. These promoters suggest that television stations which are now broadcasting free programs—free after you pay for your set, of course—should scramble the image on the picture tube and the sound into a sort of unassembled jig saw puzzle. Such scrambled programs could be unscrambled only when a costly gadget, attached to your set at your expense, was fed a coin, a key, or a card for which you, the viewer, would pay, either in cash or as part of your phone bill.

It is no answer that you would not have to watch these pay programs if you did not want to. Since a station cannot televise two programs at once, any station broadcasting a scrambled pay-television program would necessarily have to eliminate its free program during that time period. In other words, pay television would black out the best of free television. It would render the television owner blind, and then rent him a seeing-eye dog at so much a program, to partially restore the sight he had previously enjoyed free as a natural right.

The amusing part of it all is the excuse offered for the change. They say it is needed to improve the quality of the programs. But if current programs need improvement, the answer is not in

Dear Mr. Wright:

Enclosed is a draft of the proposed letter to Louisiana State Senator Rainach, which we just discussed by telephone. It comes to you just as I have dictated it, without reworking. Therefore, feel free to call and indicate any and all changes that you think are desirable.

Also enclosed is a copy of the Times Picayune article reporting the offending testimony.

As you will recall, we propose to send this letter in its final form to Senator Rainach, to the Times Picayune, to Representative Francis E. Walter of the House Committee on Un-American Activities with a covering letter, and to each Board member and our affiliated state organizations.

Sincerely,

State Human Relations Group Linked To Reds

Well-Known Persons Named As Directors

By PHIL STROUPE
Daily News Staff Writer

BATON ROUGE, La.—Bishop Joseph B. Brunini and 15 other Mississippians are listed as directors of an organization described by a former Negro Communist as a "transmission belt of Communist infiltration in the South."

Manning Johnson of New York City, consultant to various government agencies and a Moscow trained former Communist, told a Louisiana legislative committee under oath here Friday, the Mississippi Council on Human Relations is a subsidiary of a Communist-created organization, the Southern Regional Council.

The Southern Regional Council received $443,000 from the Fund for the Republic, an agency already under investigation by Congress, Johnson told the committee In answer to a direct question by chief counsel Bill Shaw, Johnson said the Mississippi Council on Human Relations was one of 12 created with the money received from the Fund for the Republic.

A spokesman for the Mississippi Council on Human Relations said Saturday that Johnson's statement is just "another crazy accusation that pops up in hearings such as this."

The spokesman flatly denied the organization has any link whatsoever with the Communist Party.

The Council was first organized approximately 30 years ago under the leadership of Bishop Bratton of the Episcopal Church as an inter-racial group to improve race relations in Mississippi.

It is an organization of Mississippi citizens with no connection with the Communist Party, the spokesman said.

Johnson said headquarters for the Southern Regional Council "has its offices in the little church building Atlanta occupied by Bishop Arthur Moore of the Methodist Church."

Johnson and Leonard Patterson of Jamaica, N. Y., another Negro who said he was an ex-Red, testified at length about what they described as Communist penetration in the South through Negro fronts and Negro churches and party attempts to capture the NAACP.

Johnson branded the Rev. Martin Luther King of Montgomery, Ala., "a megalomaniac seeking power." The witness testified the Alabama Negro minister heading an anti-segregation move was "a dastardly mis-leader, leading the Negroes of the South down to destruction and bloodshed."

Johnson introduced as documentary evidence into the bulky record of the three-day hearing into segregation problems, a letter from Ruby Lyells of 1104 Lynch St., Jackson, Miss., inviting "members and friends" to the annual meeting of the council at the Jackson YWCA Nov. 5, 1955.

Johnson's documentary evidence followed the name-calling of at least 21 Mississippians who are members of the board of directors of the Council on Human Relations or who participated in its annual meeting.

The council's parent organization, the Southern Regional Council, was founded by one James E. Jackson of Atlanta, and others identified by Johnson as Communists.

Jackson later was arrested by the FBI and convicted under the Smith Act for subversive activity. He is free on bail pending appeal to the U. S. Supreme Court.

Directors of the Mississippi Council on Human Relations, according to Jachnson's testiomy, and a letter-head he used as documentary evidence, are:

Mrs. W. H. Ratliff of Sherard, Miss., president; Mrs. C. E. Dishman, Piney Woods, vice president; Bishop Brunini, secretary-treasurer; Charles T. Morgan of Mathiston; Alexander FitzHugh of Vicksburg; Miss Alma Hickman, Mrs. E. E. Dean, Rabbi Charles Mantinband, all of Hattiesburg;

Rev. Duncan M. Hobart, Meridian; F. W. Miller, Jackson; Mrs. D. S. Wheatley, Greenwood; Dr. H. G. Williamson, Grenada; and Dr. Thomas L. Zuber, West Point.

Associate directors listed are Mrs. J. A. Burt Jr., and Mrs. C. A. Williams, whose addresses were not listed on the letterhead.

A printed program announcing the annual meeting of the council at the Jackson YWCA and introduced as evidence in the hearing, identified 13 persons as "Who's Who" in the council.

There are Mrs. C. C. Clark of Jackson, supervisor of group services Mississippi State Library Commission; Miss Jamie Turnage, executive director of the Jackson YWCA; Ernest Borinski, NAACP member and head of the sociology department, Tougaloo College; Sam Barefield, director of the Wesley Foundation, Mississippi Southern College; J. J. Bolden, principal of Campbell College High School, Jackson;

Harold Fleming, associate director Southern Regional Council, Atlanta; Mrs. A. Charles Hunter, Columbus; Ruby Lyells, executive director of the Missisippi Council on Human Relations; Rev. John Mangum, chaplain, Tougaloo College; Rabbi Mantinband, Hattiesburg; Rev. M. G. Prueitt, district superintendent, Upper Mississippi Conference Methodist Church; Mrs. Ratliff and Bishop Brunini.

Immediately upon hearing Johnson's testimony, and seeing the six-member legislative investigating committee, who is attending the hearing, rushed to the secretary of the Louisiana committee to inspect personally the list of names and to check evidence introduced. Members of the Mississippi committee headed by Sen. Stanton Hall of Hattiesburg requested photostatic copies of the letter, declaring "we want this to take home with us."

Human Relations Group Closes Office In Jackson

JACKSON DAILY NEWS 3/12/57

The Mississippi Council on Human Relations has mysteriously closed its offices at 1104 Lynch St

The organization ceased doing business at its location last Tuesday night, March 5, on the eve of the explosive three-day hearings held in Baton Rouge, La., to "determine the cause of racial unrest in the South."

During the hearings seven witnesses who had been subpoened by a Louisiana legislative committee testified to Communist infiltration into Southern states.

Documentary evidence at the hearing listed the Mississippi Council on Human Relations as an affiliate with the Southern Regional Council of Atlanta, claimed to be a Communist-created organization.

Ruby Lyells, a Jackson Negro woman, was listed as executive director of the Mississippi Council on Human Relations in documentary evidence introduced into the record at the Louisiana hearing.

She was among 16 Mississippians listed as directors or assistant director of the organization. She told the Jackon Daily News Monday she has "no authority to speak for the Council."

Tuesday, however, she released a statement regarding the Council which she said was founded 30 years ago under the leadership of Bishop Theodore D. Bratton of the Episcopal Church in Mississippi.

"From the beginning the policies and program have been determined by its members—all Mississippians—who represent all religious faiths," her statement said.

"Though not currently affiliated with the Southern Regional Council, the Mississippi State Council has a statement dated Aug. 30, 1956, of Francis E. Walter, chairman of the House Un-American Activities Committee that 'the Southern Regional Council has not been cited as subversive or un-American by this committee nor by the attorney general'."

She said the Council has attempted a year-round program with a paid stfaf, whose major function was to promote good human relations at the community level.

"At a called meeting March 1, the board of directors did not elect officers and voted to operate temporarily on a very limited basis with a secretary-treasurer and consultant committee."

She said she was elected secretary-treasurer and the consultant committee consists of Bishop Joseph B. Brunini and S. W. Miller, both of Jackson.

J. Hall Bolden, head of the high school division of Campbell College for Negroes in Jackson, a former classmate at Alcorn A&M College with Ruby Lyells, was listed as a program consultant for the Council's meeting at the YWCA in Jackson on Nov. 5, 1955.

Bolden called the Jackson Daily News Monday to make this statement:

"I was invited as a guest to the Council on Human Relations meeting. I did go there and attend, out I did not participate in the program. I am not now nor have I ever been a member of the Council on Human Relations. I have not contributed financially in any way to the council's operations."

YWCA Denies Participation In Human Relations Council

Miss Jamie Turnage, executive director of the Jackson YWCA, told the Daily News today she is "not a member of the Mississippi Council on Human Relations, and have never attended one of its meetings."

Miss Turnage was listed among 13 names shown as "Who's Who" on a program of the annual meeting of the Council held at the YWCA on Nov. 5, 1955.

"I did not attend the meeting even as a guest, and did not participate in the program," she said.

The program of the meeting, including Miss Turnage's name, was introduced as documentary evidence in a Louisiana legislative committee hearing at Baton Rouge last week looking into the cause of racial unrest in the South.

Ruby Lyells of Jackson, executive director of the Council, invited Miss Turnage to appear on the program, but Miss Turnage said she declined the invitation to lead the singing of the group.

Miss Turnage said she rejected the invitation, explaining that the YWCA "had a meeting of its own that I had to attend."

The council meeting was held in the downstairs section of the YWCA where it has met on many occasions, but the YWCA has not permitted any meetings of the Council in its building since the Nov. 5, 1955 session.

Mrs. Ernest Spivey of 3738 Crane Blvd., president of the board of directors of the YWCA, said she "concurs in and agrees with" Miss Turnage that she did not "in any way" participate in the program of the Council on Human Welfare even though Ruby Lyells listed her on the program.

Says Shot Was Result Of Hearing

Greenwood Woman Reported Member Of Human Council

GREENWOOD — (AP) — A prominent Greenwood woman Wednesday blamed a shot fired into her home Tuesday night on the fact she has been publicly identified as a member of the Mississippi Council on Human Relations.

Mrs. Elizabeth Wheatley said she has been a member of the council 20 years and "its purpose through the years has been to work for better human relations."

At a Louisiana legislative committee hearing in Baton Rouge last Friday, a witness called the council a "transmission belt of Communist infiltration into the South."

Neither Mrs. Wheatley nor her husband, Greenwood cotton buyer D. S. Wheatley Sr., was hurt by the bullet which Police Chief R. R. Shurden said pierced two walls before its power was spent. Shurden said newspaper publicity about the Baton Rouge hearing "was what caused it."

BELONGED 20 YEARS

Mrs. Wheatley said in a formal statement that both she and her husband have been council members 20 years or more, that the group was known as the Mississippi Inter-Racial Commission when they joined, and that the council "is entirely a Mississippi group and has no communist connections whatever."

"Bishop Theodore Bratton of the Episcopal Church was president when we joined," she said. "The organization never engaged in any political activity whatever."

Mrs. Wheatley said the council was for some time affiliated with the Southern Regional Council and said that on Aug. 30, 1956, chairman Frances E. Walter of the Un-American Activities Committee formally notified the council it "has not been cited as subversive or un-American by this committee nor by the attorney general."

GOT FORD MONEY

Manning Johnson of New York City told the Louisiana legislative committee that Mrs. Wheatley was a director of the council, which he called a subsidiary of the Southern Regional Council, which in turn he testified received funds from the Fund for the Republic Johnson said Congress is investigating the Fund for the Republic.

Other council spokesmen already had denied it has any subversive or Communist affiliation.

Johnson is an admitted former Communist who says he has split with the Reds and served several government agencies as a consultant.

Police Chief Shurden said the bullet went through two walls before its power was spent. He said his investigation is underway and that he expects to seek help from George Everett, resident FBI agent.

The bullet did not strike anyone.

Meanwhile it was disclosed that the Mississippi Attorney General's Office two years ago denied a charter of incorporation to the council. Asst. Atty. Gen. Dugas Shands said the council made its application April 23, 1955 when Gov. J. P. Coleman was attorney general. Shands said the application was not approved and on Nov. 15, 1956, was withdrawn.

Shands, who acted on the application, said it was not approved because "I was not satisfied that it complied with the Mississippi law."

Bullet Fired Into Wheatly Home; Communist Affiliation Is Denied

A shot was fired into the home of Mr. and Mrs. D. S. Wheatley Sr., 112 West Adams about 10:20 p.m. Tuesday and police are investigating. Chief R. R. Shurden said yesterday he believes the shooting was the result of publication of articles in Jackson newspapers regarding Mrs. Wheatley's connection with the Mississippi Council on Human Relations a biracial organization which was under investigation at Baton Rouge last week.

The shot, evidently fired from a .44 or .45 calibre pistol, passed through the upper part of a rear window passed through a partitian and hit the front wall and fell to the floor. Mrs. Wheatley was reading in another portion of the house at the time and Mr. Wheatley was in bed. Evidently the shot was fired from their back yard.

The Wheatley's first thought it was a firecracker but police and neighbors gathered quickly and no trace of the gun toter was found.

The Wheatleys are long time residents of Greenwood. Mr. Wheatley is in the cotton business and Mrs. Wheatley has taken an active part in church and women's affairs.

Statement

Mrs. Wheatley made the following statement:

"On Tuesday night, March 12 at about 10:20 p.m. a shot was fired into our home. No one was hurt and Police are investigating. As far as we know there is no reason for the shooting unless it could have been inspired by recent news articles in which I was named as one of the directors of the Mississippi Council on Hunman Relations

"I an a member of the Mississippi Council on Human Relations and have been for 20 years or more. My husband has also been a member for the same length of time.

"The organization was originally known as the Mississippi Interracial Commission. Bishop Theodore D. Bratton of the Episcopal Church was president when we joined.

"The organization was for some time affiliated with the Southern Regional Council whose parent body was the Commission on Interracial Cooperation, founded in 1919 by a group of the South's leading church men and women.

"Under the dateline of August 30, 1956, Dr. George S. Mitchell, then executive director of the Southern Regional Council received the following statement from the Hon. Frances E. Walter, chairman of the U.S. House Committee on UnAmerican Activities. For your information the Southern Regional Council has not been cited as subversive or unAmerican by this committee nor by the Attorney General."

FBI Arrests Union Leader For Bribery

By John A. Goldsmith
United Press Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON, March 13 UP FBI agents tonight arrested James R. Hoffa, vice president of the Teamsters union, on charges of bribery in connection with securing data from files of the special Senate Committee on Racketeering.

The FBI said the complaint was filed before U.S. District Judge Richmond B. Keech here.

The complaint charges that Hoffa bribed John Cye Cheasty, a New York attorney, to secure data from the files of the committee.

When Hoffa was arrested, the FBI said, he had in his possession documents from the committee files.

Hoffa is accused of having hired Cheasty on Feb. 13 in Detroit to secure a Job with the committee, the FBI said. At that time it said, Hoffa paid Cheasty $1,000 and offered to pay him a total of $18,000 to report to him during the committee's investigation.

Hoffa Arraigned

Hoffa was to be arraigned here tonight before U. S. Commisioner James Splain.

FBI agents said they had recovered possession of the documents.

Atty. Gen. Herbert Brownell Jr. stated that from the beginning of the committee's investigation the committee and the Justice Department have worked in close cooperation.

In this instance, Brownell said Sen. John L. McClellan committee chairman, notified the department as soon as the information about Hoffa's activities came to his attention. Cheasty cooperated fully with the FBI from the beginning the FBI said.

Dear Mr. Fleming:

For your information and use there are enclosed three copies of an article in one of our local papers in Greenwood in which the name of the Southern Regional Council is mentioned.

You will no doubt have received press clippings from the Louisiana Human Relations Council on the subject of the legislative hearings. In one of these the Southern Regional Council and the Missippi Council on Human Relations were accused of being communist infiltrated.

The happening told in the papers enclosed is, we think a result since the Jackson Miss papers have carried several articles on the above subject.

My statement was given to the press here to the Jackson Daily News and to Mr. Parker of the Associated Press. I have asked in each case that it be used exactly as given and in the "Morning Star" it is quoted exactly.

Very sincerely yours

The Honorable W. M. Rainach
State Senate
Baton Rouge, Louisiana

My dear Senator Rainach:

I have just read an account of hearings conducted by the Joint Legislative Committee under your chairmanship, as reported by the Times-Picayune of March 9, 1957. According to this account, a witness named Manning Johnson made numerous allegations of communist influence in organizations active in the South, among them the Southern Regional Council. It is not my province here to evaluate Mr. Johnson's charges against other groups, but I can say unequivocally that the statements which he is quoted as making about the Southern Regional Council are utterly false. If this witness made the statements attributed to him under oath, he is guilty of the grossest kind of perjury.

Mr. Johnson is quoted as saying that the Southern Regional Council was "formed by the communists," and he is further quoted as naming specifically one James E. Jackson as "having founded the organization." These allegations are fantastic, as even a casual inquiry into the facts would establish at once. The Southern Regional Council was founded in 1944 by some of the South's most distinguished leaders, white and Negro. The details of its founding were public knowledge, having been reported fully in reputable newspapers throughout the nation. The incorporators were Bishop Arthur J. Moore of the Methodist Church, the late Dr. Charles S. Johnson of Fisk University, the late Dr. Howard W. Odum of the University of North Carolina, Dr. Rufus E. Clement of Atlanta University, and Mr. Ralph McGill of the Atlanta Constitution. Neither the James E. Jackson in question nor anyone else bearing that name was involved in this organization at its founding or at any other time. The Council has never been influenced by communists or had the slightest sympathy for communist doctrine. Any sober scrutiny of its record will confirm this fact.

The uninformed and generally irresponsible nature of Mr. Johnson's testimony is illustrated by his reference, in connection with the Southern Regional Council, to Bishop Arthur J. Moore. According to the Times-Picayune story, Mr. Johnson inaccurately identified Bishop Moore, one of the leading and most widely known bishops of the Methodist Church, as a Negro. This inaccuracy characterizes his testimony on the larger and more important matters mentioned above.

It is distressing to see a legislative body of the State of Louisiana used as a forum for false and abusive charges against responsible and patriotic citizens, made by an ex-communist who apparently puts little value on the truth.

If, as one might hope, you should wish to rectify this abuse of your Committee, I am sure that you will find the true facts readily ascertainable.

Sincerely yours,

Dear Arnold:

Enclosed are a clipping from the Times-Picayune and a copy of our letter of protest to Louisiana Senator W. M. Rainach. As you will see, one Manning Johnson testified wildly about the NAACP and other groups, including the Southern Regional Council.

In and of itself, this circus in New Orleans is of little importance and wouldn't warrant much attention. However, Georgia's Attorney General Gene Cook has been quoted in the Atlanta paper as saying that he is going to circulate transcripts of the testimony given in New Orleans since "several Georgia groups" were "exposed."

I have some recollection, which I can't pin down, that Manning Johnson got pretty thoroughly discredited for some of his earlier professional witnessing. Do you have background on Johnson in your files or readily available to you? If so, I would greatly appreciate your sharing it with me.

Dear Al:

Enclosed are copies of two letters -- one to State Senator Rainach and one to U. S. Representative Francis E. Walter. I conferred with Marion Wright and Rufus Clement about Manning Johnson's wild charges and we concluded that it would be well to set the record straight in this fashion. A copy of the letter to Rainach is being sent to the Times-Picayune.

One reason we are giving the matter this much attention is that Georgia's Attorney General Eugene Cook, who was present for some of the hearings in New Orleans, has announced that he will distribute the transcripts to state officials and legislators of Georgia. Fantastic as the charges are, we want to be prepared to deal with them vigorously.

We won't give our letter any wider publicity than the Times-Picayune unless Johnson's charges against SRC receive more general publicity.

I trust that this handling of the matter will meet with your approval.

WRIGHT DEFENDS REGIONAL GROUP

Hits Johnson Statement as Fantastic

Testimony of a witness who told the Louisiana joint legislative committee investigating Communist influence behind racial disturbances that an organization known as the Southern Regional Council was formed by Communists was termed "fantastic" Monday by M. A. Wright, president of the organization.

The witness was Manning Johnson, Washington, D. C., who described himself as a former Communist. He testified at the joint committee hearing March 8 in Baton Rouge that the Southern Regional Council was formed by a Communist named James E. Jackson.

In a letter to Sen. W. M. Rainach, chairman of the joint committee, Wright stated, "It is not my province here to evaluate Mr. Johnson's charges against other groups, but I can say unequivocally that the statements which he is quoted as making about the Southern Regional Council are utterly false. If this witness made the statements attributed to him under oath, he is guilty of the grossest kind of perjury."

Lists Incorporators

Referring to the testimony concerning Jackson, the letter says, "These allegations are fantastic, as even a casual inquiry into the facts would establish at once. The Southern Regional Council was founded in 1944 by some of the South's most distinguished leaders, white and Negro. The details of its founding were public knowledge, having been reported fully in reputable newspapers throughout the nation.

Wright wrote that neither the James E. Jackson in question "nor anyone else bearing that name was involved in this organization at its founding or at any other time. The council has never been influenced by Communists or had the slightest sympathy for Communist doctrine. Any sober scrutiny of its record will confirm this fact."

The letter called Johnson's testimony "uninformed" and "irresponsible" in nature. In connection with the witness' reference to Bishop Arthur J. Moore, Wright said, "According to The Times-Picayune story, Mr. Johnson inaccurately identified Bishop Moore, one of the leading and most widely known bishops of the Methodist church, as a Negro. This inaccuracy characterizes his testimony on the larger and more important matters mentioned above.

"It is distressing to see a legislative body of the state of Louisiana used as a forum for false and abusive charges against responsible and patriotic citizens, made by an ex-Communist who apparently puts little value on the truth," Wright wrote to Rainach.

Calls Accusations Fantastic and False

NEW ORLEANS, LA. (AP)—M. A. Wright, president of the Southern Regional Council, says that a charge that his organization was formed by Communists was "fantastic."

"If this witness made the statements attributed to him under oath, he is guilty of the grossest kind of perjury."

Wright said the Southern Regional Council was founded in 1944 by "some of the South's most distinguished leaders, white and Negro."

The details of its founding, he said, "were public knowledge, having been reported fully in reputable newspapers throughout the nation."

He listed the incorporators as Bishop Arthur J. Moore of the Methodist Church, the late Dr. Charles S. Johnson of Fisk University, the late Dr. Howard W. Odum of the University of North Carolina, Dr. Rufus E. Clement of Atlanta University, and Ralph McGill of the Atlanta Constitution.

Wright said neither the James E. Jackon named by Johnson "nor anyone else bearing that name was involved in this organization at its founding or at any other time.

"The council has never been influenced by Communists or had the slightet sympathy for Communist doctrine. Any sober scrutiny of its record will confirm this fact," he wrote Rainach.

Red Cry 'Fantastic,' Says Dixie Council

NEW ORLEANS, March 19 (AP)—M. A. Wright, president of the Southern Regional Council, said yesterday that a charge his organization was formed by Communists was "fantastic."

Wright was referring to testimony by Manning Johnson of Washington before a Louisiana joint legislative committee investigating Communist influence behind racial disturbances.

In a letter to State Sen. W. M. Rainach, chairman of the joint committee, Wright said:

"It is not my province here to evaluate Mr. Johnson's charges against other groups, but I can say unequivocally that the statements which he is quoted as making about the Southern Regional Council are utterly false.

"If this witness made the statements attributed to him under oath, he is guilty of the grossest kind of perjury."

Wright, who said the Southern Regional Council was founded in 1944, listed the incorporators as Bishop Arthur J. Moore of the Methodist Church, the late Dr. Charles S. Johnson of Fisk University, the late Dr. Howard W. Odum of the University of North Carolina, Dr. Rufus E. Clement of Atlanta University, and Ralph McGill of The Atlanta Constitution.

"The council has never been influenced by Communists or had the slightest sympathy for Communist doctrine. Any sober scrutiny of its record will confirm this fact," Wright wrote Rainach.

In Atlanta Ralph McGill said Johnson obviously confused the Southern Regional Council with the old Southern Conference for Human Welfare. He said it was an error "commonly made by uninformed persons."

Dear Mr. Fleming:

Mr. Wheatley and I both thank you for your recent letter on our shooting affair, and we are very glad indeed to get two copies of your statement on the Louisiana investigation.

Since you have sent a copy to the Jackson Daily News, I mention that there are two other papers in Jackson which might use it: The Clarion Ledger, and the Jackson State Times.

Your statement together with two brief histories of SRC I will keep carefully by me.

We have had no further disturbance at our house, and we have discovered a great number of friends who have been most kind to us.

I will let you know of further developments.

With repeated thanks,

Sincerely yours

Dear Harold:

I presume that the Times-Picayune received the copy of Marion Wright's letter to Senator Rainach yesterday when I also received the copy from you.

This morning the Picayune published parts of the letter in the clipping in which I am enclosing with this letter.

I will let you know about any further developments.

Dear Mr. Haas:

Since Attorney General Cook has announced that he is requesting a transcript of the Louisiana hearings dealt with in the attached material, I thought I should send you a fairly complete set of the newspaper clippings and letters which we have written.

The copy of Mr. Wright's letter to Louisiana Senator Rainach was sent for publication to the Times-Picayune.

This is the grossest example yet of false charges against the SRC. It may well be that Mr. Cook would not wish to use testimony that can be shown so clearly to be perjured and irresponsible. But I thought it best to keep you fully informed of these developments.

You should have received by now a copy of our President's letter to Louisiana State Senator Rainach. A story based on this was published in the Times-Picayune and also sent out by the Associated Press.

I am enclosing the account of the Council's origin and aims. Do let me know if more detailed information along these lines would be helpful to you.

This attack upon the Southern Regional Council and the Mississippi Council is the most shameful and unprincipled one to date. We stand ready to assist you and the other fine people there who have had to bear the brunt in Mississippi.

Dear Neil:

I have just returned from Mississippi where an incident came to my attention of which I felt you should be informed.

Mrs. D. S. Wheatley, daughter of a deceased Episcopal clergyman and sister of Dr. Philip Davidson, President of the University of Louisville, is chairman of the Mississippi State Council on Human Relations. Her husband is a cotton broker in Greenwood and has also been active with her in interracial activities. They are leaders in the local Episcopal church and well known in the diocese. About a week ago, their home was fired into by what police described as being 44 caliber pistol bullets. No one was injured and their friends in the town have been quite cordial. Although their spirits are high, I believe that a letter from you would be helpful and meaningful. They appreciated letters and calls which they have received already and perhaps this has come to your attention.

Dear Mr. Wright:

In reply to your letter of March 14, 1957, a sound and stenographic record was made of the testimony and documentary evidence submitted to our Committee during the recently concluded hearings on subversion in racial unrest.

Following is a verbatim excerpt from Manning Johnson's testimony relative to the Southern Regional Council, which is taken from the transcript of the entire testimony prepared and certified to by Mrs. Janet L. Parker, Court Reporter, Parish of East Baton Rouge, Baton Rouge, Louisiana:

> In the Daily Worker of Wednesday, December 1, 1954, in an article written by S. D. Rock, entitled "J. Jackson's Fortieth Birthday" he wrote some of the Negro people.. The writer states, and I quote, "Jim Jackson was there as an officer of the Southern Negro Youth Congress, spearheading the movement, rallying his fellow Negro veterans to take advantage of their poll tax exemption and vote." Then, the article goes on to say--and this is very significant--to show who organized and who inspired these movements but here that are causing all of this chaos and confusion. It says up here that "For a period of 15 years he took part in every important general movement for advancement which involved Negro and white labor and progressive forces in the south. In addition to serving as a founder, vice-president and principal organizer of the Southern Negro Youth Congress, he participated in the formation and building of the Southern Conference for Human Welfare, The Southern Regional Council, and many other movements which in any important way challenged the status quo of Negro oppression and southern social backwardness." This is clear and convincing evidence. I am not saying it. This is the official organ of the Daily Workers, which tells you who was the architect and who was the founder of these organizations that are so-called--to help the Negro.

MR. SHAW: Mr. Chairman, I would like to offer this photostatic copy of the Daily Worker in evidence and ask that it be marked WJ-2 for identification.

SENATOR RAINACH: The Chair orders that the exhibit WJ-2 be made a part of the records of this committee.

The statements that I can find in the transcript concerning Bishop Arthur Moore do not contain any reference at all as to his race.

Very truly yours,

W. M. Rainach

1830 Jefferson Place, N. W.
Washington 6, D. C.

Dear Mr. Birkhead:

This will acknowledge your letter of March 13, 1957, addressed to the Attorney General. In your letter you make reference to a news item which reported the testimony of Manning Johnson before the Louisiana State Legislature Investigating Committee and which identified Mr. Johnson as "director of research for the Department of Justice" in Washington. Since Mr. Johnson was identified in this news item as an official of the Department of Justice, you inquire as to whether he was speaking for this Department in his testimony before the Louisiana Committee.

I am enclosing herewith a copy of the pertinent portion of Johnson's testimony before the Louisiana State Legislature Investigating Committee on March 8, 1957, which is self-emplanatory with reference to the newspaper statement that Johnson was a director of research for the Department of Justice.

As Mr. Johnson testified, he was at one time a consultant with the Immigration and Naturalization Service of this Department. This contractual relationship ceased in September 1954. Mr. Johnson was not, and apparently did not testify that he was, an official, an employee or a spokesman for the Department of Justice at the time he appeared as a witness before the Louisiana State Legislature Investigating Committee.

Sincerely,

WILLIAM F. TOMPKINS
Assistant Attorney General

Question: What is your present occupation?

Answer: At the present time I am working as an Assistant Research Director. At every opportunity I cooperate with various agencies of the Federal Government in investigating andprosecuting Communists.

Question: Since you have left the party have you worked with any of the Federal Agencies combating Communism?

Answer: Yes, I worked with the FBI in its investigation of Communists. In fact, except for the short period when I was in the U.S. Navy during the war, I have continuously cooperated with the FBI and with the Criminal Division of the Justice Department and with the Immigration and Naturalization Service in the investigation and prosecution of aliens.

Question: What specific type of work did you do for th Department of Justice or the Immigration and Naturalization Service of that Department?

Anser: I was an analyst and consultant in the Immigration Service, and that concerned itself primarily with investigation and denaturization and deportation of subversive reds (correction subversive aliens).

Dear Miss Hickman:

Many thanks for your recent letter and for the enclosed copy of your letter to State Senator Hall. I admire the way in which you have presented your views to him. Certainly you have given him a great deal to think about.

I needn't tell you how distressed we are here by the unfair and dishonest methods that have been used to cause embarrassment and difficulty to the people in Mississippi who have been trying against such odds to improve race relations. Similar pressure has been brought to bear on people in South Carolina and are expected soon in Georgia, as a result of the Louisiana hearing. It is good to know that your outstanding reputation and many friendships in Mississippi have placed you above these petty attacks.

If at any time you see ways in which the Council can assist people who are confronted by scurrilous charges of this sort, please let me know. Meanwhile, best regards and good wishes.

Atlanta, Georgia

My dear Dr. Fleming

Thank you for the letter from President Wright to Senator Rainach, a copy of which I am sending to Senator Hall of Hattiesburg and in turn am sending you a copy of my letter to Senator Hall. I hope later to make the letter a little stronger by revision and may send it to Governor Coleman and several other legislators, but will wait till I get Senator Hall's reply.

It, perhaps, serves us of the M.S.H.R. right that the publicity which we feared has come upon us with a vengeance. I am enclosing two clippings from the Jackson Daily News. This paper published the names of Mrs. C.C. Clark and others connected with the program of the meeting at Jackson. The H'bg paper carried only the names as published in the Times Picayune. I am especially sorry about Mrs. Clark as she is an employee of a state agency. You may have read that Mrs. D.S. Wheatley of Greenwood has been the victim of an attack, her home being shot into after her name came out as a member of the M.C.H.R. However, neither she nor her husband was hurt.

I remember very pleasantly meeting you at Jackson and Mrs. Tilly at Hattiesburg. Please give her my kindest regards. Do not worry about me. My friends at the Mississippi Education Association last week in Jackson were never more cordial. I think good may come out of all this publicity and that we should have had publicity all the time.

212 Fifteenth Avenue
Hattiesburg, Miss.

Dear Stanton,

Since, as chairman of the Mississippi Legislative Committee, you were present in Baton Rouge Louisiana and expressed an interest in the "Mississippi-tie-in" part of the testimoney of the witness, Manning Johnson, before the Louisiana Committee, and since you may have missed the statement of the Southern Regional Council, a part of which appeared in the March 19 issue of the Hattiesburg American, I am enclosing a copy of the complete defense which the Council sent me as one of the Mississippians mentioned in that testimony.

I hope you have known me too long and too well for me to make any defense to you of my membership in the M.C. H.R. but since you are chairman of the investigating committe, I think you will be interested in what I know of that organization. As I said in my letter of resignation as a member of the Board of Directors, my chief reason for resigning was fear of public opinion. I had learned too that the attorney generals office had refused to grant the group a charter. I felt uneasy belonging to a group that could not secure a charter from the state of Mississippi. I also stated frankly that that same fear had made me an abject failure as a member of the board of directors; that I had not attended a single meeting of the board and had not recruited a single member. I sensed too that the other women on the Board, especially the lady whose name was listed in the report as the president of the Board. Representatives of the Regional Council had complained of the lack of publicity of the Mississippi group, a lack I said was due to that same fear. This complaint along with others, ceused the Regional Council to withdraw its support from the M.C.H.R. and it was this lack of financial support chiefly which closed the office in Jackson several weeks before the testimony in Baton Rouge became public.

were afraid

While the Southern Regional Council was still giving financial aid to the M.C.H.R. I was asked to let my name go before the Board of Directors for a position with the M.C.H.R. with a salary of $4,000 guaranteed for fifteen months. For many reasons I declined to do so, but I recommended a young man, whom I knew, a young man who had been secretary of the Truman-Barkley Committee in 1948, but who broke with the group shortly after Truman's victory and was in no way connected with the scandals of the Truman Committee. I was not surprised when the Board of Directors failed to give him the position. He had been too prominently connected with politics. It was stressed in the group that it was strictly non-legislative, and non-political, its main purpose being to get the better class of intelligent, educated white and negro leaders together to discuss their mutual problems. At the two meetings I attended everything was kept on this high plane. I did begin to feel, however, that the Southern Regional Council was more integrati minded than I was at that time or now. However, I do not agree with Fred Sullens that the New South is a "nasty magazine." Nevertheless, as I also stated in my letter of resignation, I was not too sure about the ultimate objective of the Southern Regional Council.

If to belong to a bi-racial group is to be a traitor to Mississippi, then I have been a traitor. A recent letter to the editor of the Jackson State Times stated that the negroes of Mississippi had no place to go except to the N.A.A.C.P. The editor in the same issue took the position that Professor King of Alcorn should take the lead in organinzing a group of negroes who agree with Professor King's views. Ib my opinion the Mississippi Council of Human Relations was just such a group except that it was composed oB both races instead of one. A good old colored woman, who once served me occasionally as a maid and cook, said to me the other day that folks from other places were certainly working among the colored people of Hattiesburg and that they were making the colored poeple here feel that they were fools for not taking up for themselves when peole elsewhere were trying so hard to help them. She added that she knew the white and colored children could not go to school together because there were too many mean children of both colors. Of course, I agree that the average Mississippi negro is not interested in integration in the schools and elsewhere, but there are a considerable number who feel otherwise or at least are halting between two opinions. Are they to be forced to go to the N.A.A.C.P?

Of course, politics, national and international, have had a great part in bringing about the pressure on the South. This pressure seems likely to continue and even to grow greater as Southern negores continue to go north and add to the negro voting blocks. The late Joe Cook in his memoirs tells of an experience his father, a slave plantation over-seerer had with a run-a-way slave, a strong young negro. The father, being a strong man himself, was able to overcome the resistance of the slave, but it occurred to him that he must overcome the slave also spiritually. This evidently meant that he must make the colored man agree in his mind to remain as he was. I do not believe it would be hard to get the Mississippi negroes to agree to remain socially as they are, but educationally and economically they want to be different.

Several weeks ago the Clarion Ledger carried a news item concerning the amount of money Mississippi was spending to equaliz e education. One of the counties cited was Sunflower. I remember a study by the research department of the University Of Mississippi's College of Education in 1939,40. This study was of Schools in Sunflower County and showed that while 75% of the school enrollment of that county was negro, the negro schools received only 35% of the total school income of that county and that the Sunflower County School Board at that time did not own a single school building, the teaching being done in churches, lodges, or any building that could be used for negro schools. Is it any wonder that negroes in Mississippi doubted the good faith of the Mississippi white people some fifteen years later when Governor White called on them to agree to voluntary segregation? I think Mississippi is doing a good job proving that Governor White and the legislature were sincere, but such a voluntary change, all so sudden, is, you must admit, hard to believe.

Last week a high state official, to whose office I had gone on purely personal business, told me that this whole integration problem was a communist plot and that, unless it was stopped, around the turn of the century Mississippi and the nation would be so mongrelized and weakened that we would be easy prey for our communist enemies. I refuse to believe that members of the Supreme Court, prominent Congressmen of the East and North, some leaders of both political parties are communists. That idea simply does not square with my faith in America or with any exercise of common sense. I do believe that communists are taking every possible advantage of the racial situation as they are of the Suez-Israeli conflict. It is my honest opinion that we should have had this race problem in the latter half of the nineteenth century had there never been any communism to threaten a free world. I believe any one who gives serous and honest thought to this problem will come to the same conclusion.

As to the second proposition concerning the dange of integration causing the downfall of America at the turh of the century,now not quite fifty years away, that also seems to me an unreal proposition. As a student at the University of Chicago and at Colunbia University,New York City though I had negroes in my classes,I saw very little fraternization betwe en the races. So far as I myself was concerned,there was none what soever. At Columbia there was a graduate club supper every Sunday night,students from the various states taking turns in providing supper and the program. Though I attended most of these suppers as I found them enjoyable and educational, I never saw a colored person attending. Now,I do not believe even if we had full integration in the South,we would have much interracial intermingling socially.

Certainly, I do not believe in integration in the public schools or the undergraduate college. Our schools,especially in small towns and rural areas,are the social centers. Educationally and socially both white and colored children will be better off in their own schools with teachers of their own race. I think Governor Coleman is doing a grand job in keeping things as they are, but,from time to time,problems,such as arose recently at Alcorn, wukk arise again and we must have the whole-hearted support of our negro leaders in order to meet them. We must also have a racial philosophy based upon good feeling and truth rather than hate and misinformation.

These two I have loved: people and truth. I was told that in your Saturday night broadcast of the week you so effectively helped to pass the bill creating a new board of control for the training schools at Columbia and Oakley,you praised me for the unselfish work I had done in also helping to pass the bill. Mrs. Sarah Ricks Caldwell, head of the child welfare division of the Public Welfare Department, the woman legal consultant for the department, and I wrote the bill. The legal consultant had maneuvered its passage through the house, but had been put to bed with a heart attack,of which she later died, when the bill was up in the Senate. I was reluctant to lobby being then a member of the faculty of Mississippi Southern College,but I was tremendously interested in that bill. As a trustee of Columbia Training School,I had seen things that almost broke my heart, things that could not have been corrected under the old Board set up. In spite of what has happened there recently I still believe the system set up is all right. As you so truthfully said the other day in M.M. Robert's office,the trouble with Columbia is the state of Mississippi. I would add that conditions have not yet let the Board act free from political interference. Maybe the unfortunate incident will bring the change needed a little closer. I loved those poor,unfortunate children at Columbia so well that I was willing to do anything I could to help them achieve a better life.

When I say I have loved people and truth above all else,my life is my warrant that I am speaking the truth. I remember my country home when I was about twelve years old, a visiting preacher,my uncle,a large homely man with less than a fourth-grade education; my younger brother about twenty,better educated but by no means well educated, an eager reader of every book he could possibly find. He was showing off his knowledge found in some book. "The negro"he said ,"has no soul. He is nothing more than a high-grade ape; his head formation is more like that of a Chimpanzee than that of a white man." My uncle sat quietly seeming to think of what my brother had propounded,"Well,Lonzo,I want to ask you a question,if the white man has a soul and the nigger aint,how about the mulatto?" My brother has not yet answered that question.

We no longer argue that the negro has no soul, but we make many other statements about him just as unscientific and just as foolish as that of my brother more than fifty years ago. True, I have heard of evils in Washington and elsewhere between the whites and blacks that make one sick at heart. I know too of the irregular lives lived by many negroes here in Mississippi but I know too of colored peeople who are morally as good as any white person. Many y ears ago, we had some race trouble here in Hattiesburg. A humble maid at that time said to me that if all the white people would do just as they ought to and if all the colored people would do just the way they ought to, then we would not have noarrce trouble. I never heard a better solution to the race question, only it is difficult to say just what each race should do in certain cases.

Once long years ago, some young negroes brushed past me and a man companion on the streets of Columbus, Mississippi. His face turned red at their discourtesy in almost knocking us off the sidewalk and he sputtered his disapproval, probably being unable to say in the presence of a young lady just what he wanted to say. Then an old darkey passed, tipped his hat and got off the side walk to give us plenty of room. " That," said my friend emphatically, "is the kind of nigger I like to see." I reminded him that the young negroes were the children of the old negroes, to which he agreed, though reluctantly and said he supposed they were creatures of circumstance. When I asked who made the circumstances, he could not or did not answer.

Do we have to discuss this problem always on the basis of the lowest estimate of both white and black? This problem now confronting us is the greatest since the Emancipation Proclamation. I do not know the road ahead. I have no doctrinaire statements to make as to what should be done. Like every one else in the South, I am sorry that this has been thrust upon us now. I do know, however, that settlement will not finally come until it is settled on the basis of truth and good will to all mankind. That does not mean that we must change our segregated way of life to any appreciable extent if at all. There are types of segregation between whites and whites. I certainly, do not have any social contacts with thepoor, illiterate old white man who helps with my yard work any more than I do with the colored man who mows my lawn. To eat with the white man, crude as he is, would be almost as distatsteful as to eat with the colored man. Yet for both men I have the highest regard since they are both honest, sincere, humble, and hard-working. I do not, of course, have the same kind of regard for them as I do for my men friends on the faculty at Southern and men of the same social and cultural rank elsewhere.

A miracle may happen, but otherwise this pressure of politics, national and international, will get stronger. I thought at first when the Interposition Resolution was introduced in Crongress that the South at last had something to fight with, but when the legislature of Georgia passed a resolution asking their Congressmen to attempt to secure the impeachment of Supreme Court Justices, I decided Interpostion, and States Rights must be considered to have failed. Failing the miracle of which I spoke, the Decision will not be reversed or "interposed." It may be that the federal government will not attempt to enforce their several anti-segregation decrees. It may be the South will be able to keep ahead in the legal battle. It is, however, a somewhat precarious future we face at the best.

I am a poor typist, but I cannot take time off to rewrite this letter, now too long or to revise it making it better. From here on out I stick to my one job: writing the history of Mississippi Southern, a history I hope to make the best yet written. This is my last word on the present segregation issue.

Sincerely,

Aubrey Hickman

Dear Mr. Williamson:

Since Mr. Wright is absent for an extended period, I am taking the liberty of acknowledging your good letter of March 26th for him.

We did see the Jackson Daily News story and were unpleasantly struck by the unfairness and distortion of the story. As you may know the Jackson Daily News and other Southern papers carried an Associated Press story based on Mr. Wright's letter to Senator Rainach.

A copy of the letter was sent to all of the persons named in the newspaper accounts, and we have been in touch with Mr. and Mrs. Wheatley. It was good to know that responsible people in the community rallied to them.

Do let us know if at any time there are ways in which we can be helpful.

Meanwhile, all good wishes.

My dear Mr. Wright:

I thank you very much for your letter of March 14 addressed to The Honorable W. M. Rainach, State Senate, Baton Rouge, Louisiana. This was a real service to me personally, though you may have not been aware of it.

I am wondering if you have seen a copy of the "Jackson Daily News" for Saturday, March 9, 1957. In this issue of this paper there occurs an article under the caption, COUNCIL IN STATE LINKED TO COMMIES, by Phil Stroupe, Daily News staff writer. Mr. Stroupe begins his article with these words:

> "Bishop Joseph B. Brunini and fifteen other Mississippians are listed as directors of an organization described by a former Negro communist as a 'transmission belt' of communist infiltration in the South."

Then he goes on to say that the Moscow trained former communist told a Louisiana legislative committee that the Mississippi Council on Human Relations is a subsidiary of a communist-created organization, the Southern Regional Council.

Mr. Stroupe seems to have gotten hold of some out-of-date stationery of the Mississippi Council on Human Relations and then lists the names of the officers and members of the Board of Directors when the State Council was affiliated with the Southern Regional Council.

I happen to know that this publicity has been very damaging to at least one member of the Board of Directors, Mrs. D. S. Wheatley of Greenwood whose home has been fired into by some irresponsible person. Mr. Wheatley is a cotton broker in Greenwood.

It seems to me that Mr. Stroupe, Daily News staff writer, demonstrates very poor professional responsibility in his article in the "Jackson Daily News". It may not be possible, but I am wondering if a copy of your letter could be sent to him with the suggestion that he in some way make an effort to rectify the damage he has done to the reputations of the people whose names he uses in his article.

If a copy of your letter has not been sent to all the people listed in his article, it would be a service to them if this could be furnished.

Again thanking you for your letter, I am

Sincerely,

Dear Mr. Wilkins:

This acknowledges your letter of March 28, 1957 referring to testimony recently given by a witness, Manning Johnson, before a joint legislative committee of the State of Louisiana. According to your letter, Manning Johnson has been quoted in several news organs, including the Charleston, South Carolina NEWS AND COURIER, issue of March 9, 1957, as having testified that he is "now employed as Director of Research for the Department of Justice in Washington" and that the NAACP "has become a vehicle of the Communist Party designed to overthrow the Government of the United States." You request that we inform you whether Manning Johnson is employed by the Department as Director of Research or otherwise, and whether, in the testimony as quoted, he spoke for this Department or reflected its views.

Manning Johnson is not employed by the Department of Justice as Director of Research or in any other capacity. In fact there is not nor has there ever been any such position as Director of Research in this Department. Further, with respect to any testimony Manning Johnson may have given before the above mentioned committee, he had no authority to speak for or on behalf of the Department of Justice. You may be assured that his testimony concerning the alleged relationship between the NAACP and the Communist Party does not, in any manner, reflect the views of this Department or any findings it has made.

We have advised THE NEWS AND COURIER of Manning Johnson's non-employment with this Department. We understand that this newspaper published a corrective article in its issue of March 12, 1957.

THE FIRING LINE
April 15, 1957

a United States delegation to the World Youth Festival. Formally identified as the Midwest Festival Committee of Room 403, 189 West Madison Street, Chicago 2, Illinois, the ultimate goal of the group was reportedly "a plane-load of 70 Americans bound for Moscow-with some kind of official United States approval behind them." The newly formed Committee held its first meeting at the Hamilton Hotel in Chicago, Illinois on March 8, 1957, for the ostensible purpose of attracting "interested youths". (See "National Guardian", 2-25-57, page 2 and 11.)

In efforts to acquire official United States Government approval of American participation in the World Youth Festival, MISS PERRY appealed directly to the Legislative and Executive branches in Washington, D. C. Replying to one of MISS PERRY's inquires, a Department of State official said "the United States regards the International Youth Festival as an instrument of Communist propaganda which serves the purposes of the Soviet Union and its orbit. The State Department would strongly urge you not to engage in any effort to encourage participation in (the Festival)." (See "Chicago Daily News", 2-23-57, page 5.)

LE ROY WOLINS is Administrative Secretary of the Chicago Council of American-Soviet Friendship, Inc., which temporarily houses the Midwest Festival Committee at the aforementioned Madison Street address. According to testimony before the Subversive Activities Control Board (SACB), the Chicago Council of American-Soviet Friendship was identified as a "branch" of the National Council of American-Soviet Friendship. Testimony also reflected that both the Chicago and National organizations had "interlocking directorates." On February 7, 1956. the SACB found the "National Council of American-Soviet Friendship, Inc...is a Communist-front organization" and ordered its registration under Section 7 of the Subversive Activities Control Act of 1950. (See SACB, Recommended Decision, Docket No. 104-53, 1955, page 15; Report and Order of the Board, 1956, page VIII; and "Chicago Daily News", 2-23-57, page 5.)

One LE ROY WOLINS of Chicago, Illinois, signed an Amicus Curiae brief which was filed on February 6, 1950 with the United States Second District Court of Appeals. The brief was on behalf of six lawyers convicted of contempted of court by Judge HAROLD R. MEDINA after defending the top 11 Communist Party leaders in Foley Square, New York City, in 1949. According to the Daily Worker of June 8, 1956, page 4, WOLINS contributed a letter to that paper's "Speak Your Piece" column concerning the subject of Marxism. (See Amicus Curiae Brief, United States Second District Court of Appeals, 2-6-50, page 18.)

The Midwest Festival Committee is apparently operating on a nation-wide basis. Legionnaires should alert school and state authorities in the event other festival committees are activated in your community.

THE FUND FOR THE REPUBLIC - TAX EXEMPT - WHY?

The Southern Regional Council of Atlanta, Georgia, recipient of a $445,000 grant from The Fund For The Republic, Inc., was identified as a "Southern Red front" by MANNING JOHNSON on March 8, 1957 before the State of Louisiana Legislative Committee On Segregation. Formed by JAMES E. JACKSON, a southern organizer of the Communist Party, JOHNSON revealed that the Council is affiliated with the Mississippi Council On Human Relations. (See "Morning Advocate", Baton Rouge, Louisiana, 3-9-57, pages

1 and 8; and The Fund For The Republic's "Three-Year Report", 1956, page 22.)

JOSEPH Z. KORNFEDER, another witness testified on March 7, 1957 "the whole force of the Communist Party is concentrated on the National Association For The Advancement of Colored People" (NAACP) and has infiltrated the organization. Although the NAACP claims "it is fighting Communism", KORNFEDER revealed that their efforts are not serious since the NAACP still continues to advertise and sell Communist literature. Legionnaires will recall the March 1, 1957 Firing Line exposure of the NAACP, which directed attention to the $50,000 grant it received from The Fund For The Republic, Inc. (See "Morning Advocate", Boston Rouge, Louisiana, 3-8-57, page 1.)

In expressing a personal view on March 7, 1957, MEYER KESTNBAUM, Presidential Assistant For Intergovernmental Relations and a Director of The Fund For The Republic, Inc., said the United States "should make clear that Red China, under suitable conditions, can look forward to recognition and admittance to the United Nations." KESTNBAUM stated "he doesn't think there is any hope that Nationalist CHIANG KAI-SHEK will ever again lead China. We are going to have to deal with the people who actually run China." (See "The Washington Post and Times Herald", 3-10-57, page 10; and The Fund For The Republic's "Three-Year Report", 1956, page 6.)

This statement, which shocked many Americans, was immediately challenged by Senator STYLES BRIDGES. He said that KESTNBAUM "surely does not represent the feelings of the American people generally or the American Congress" and indicated KESTNBAUM "should be called before the (Senate) Foreign Relations Committee to explain the background of his views." Quickly repudiating KESTNBAUM, Secretary of State JOHN F. DULLES declared on March 12, 1957 "it would not be in the United States' interest" to recognize "Communist China and seating it in the United Nations." (See "The Washington Post and Times Herald", 3-10-57, page 10; and "The New York Times", 3-13-57, page 1.)

MORE ON ZELLERBACH

On March 5, 1957, a Federal Trade Commission examiner "ordered the Crown Zellerbach Corporation of San Francisco to sell St. Helens Pulp and Paper Company, a West Coast compatitor it acquired in 1953." The examiner charged "acquisition of St. Helens by the corporation violated the anti-merger law." JAMES DAVID ZELLERBACH, former Director of The Fund For The Republic, Inc. and newly appointed United States Ambassador to Italy, was president of Crown Zellerbach Corporation from 1938 until late last year. The Federal Trade Commission's decision is the seond recent allegation of violation of the anti-trust laws against the Crown Zellerbach Corporation. The first was terminated in November 1956 through a judgement granted the Department of Justice in a United States District Court. The February 1, 1957 issue of the Firing Line, pages 1 and 2, presented readers with a detailed summary of the background of the corporation's former top official. The Honorable W. M. Rainach
State Senate
Baton Rouge, Louisiana

My dear Senator Rainach:

This is to acknowledge your letter of March 26th. I have delayed replying until now so that we might have an opportunity to check the quotation from the Daily Worker cited in your transcript of Manning Johnson's testimony.

We are glad to have identified the source of this baseless charge made by Mr. Johnson against the Southern Regional Council. As I wrote you on March 14, the allegation that Communists were in any way responsible for the founding of the Council is clearly refuted by contemporary newspaper accounts and other responsible documentation. It is strange, indeed, that a self-serving statement in the Daily Worker in 1954, ten years after the event, should be accepted as reliable evidence to the contrary.

We do not share the unquestioning faith which Mr. Johnson -- though we hope not your committee -- has in the accuracy and truthfulness of the Daily Worker. It is well established that the Communist Party and its press have no scruples about claiming credit for any achievement when it suits their purpose of the moment to do so. To slur the reputations of a thoroughly patriotic organization and reputable individuals on the basis of this kind of "evidence" -- particularly when there is an abundance of reliable evidence in refutation -- would hardly become a responsible official body.

We note in the newspaper account of Manning Johnson's testimony that he is quoted as saying the Southern Regional Council is a "transmission belt of Communist infiltration in the South." This statement does not appear in the portion of the transcript reproduced in your letter of March 26th.

This charge is as false and unfounded as the one concerning the origin of the Council. We would be interested to know whether it was, in fact, made by Mr. Johnson, and, if so, whether it was also based on the false reference to the Council in the Daily Worker of December 1, 1954.

Sincerely yours,

Dear Mr. Clement:

You will be glad to know that Marion Wright is fully recovered and back at Linville Falls. In a telephone conversation today, we agreed on the text of a further letter to Senator Rainach, a copy of which will be sent you shortly.

He made the further suggestion that a statement giving the accurate history of the founding of the Council and refuting Manning Johnson's charge, signed by the surviving incorporators of the Council, would be a valuable document. I think the suggestion has obvious merit.

Would it be possible for you to dictate a suitable statement of this kind and send a copy to Bishop Moore and Ralph McGill asking them to join you in signing it? We will be glad, of course, to assist in the drafting or clerical work if you wish us to.

It is worth recalling that there are two charges concerned with the founding of the Council that we have had occasion to refute. One is to the effect that the Council is the de facto successor to the Southern Conference on Human Welfare, and the second is the James E. Jackson business. A joint statement by the incorporators might simply take notice of the fact that the founding of the Council has been misrepresented in these ways and then proceed to recount the accurate history.

I think Bishop Moore would be willing to do this, particularly at your request, though I feel that he would prefer to restrict the statement merely to the factual details of the founding of the Council rather than including any comment on its subsequent or current activities. But that would serve our immediate purpose.

I shall look forward to hearing from you.

Hon. Clyde Doyle
Room 1030, New House Office Building
Washington, D. C.

Dear Mr. Doyle:

The information requested in your letter of April 19 has now been assembled.

The Fund for the Republic makes a careful and thorough investigation of all proposed grantees. Its investigation of the Southern Regional Council, which included interviews with many leading citizens in the South, was supplemented by conferences with the responsible officials of the Council over a period of many months before the first grant was made. If there was any truth in the charge made by Manning Johnson that the Council was formed by one James E. Jackson, the investigation would have revealed it. On the contrary, the Fund's inquiries demonstrated conclusively that the Council was not at its inception, and had never been, influenced or infiltrated by the Communist Party. Attached as Appendix A to this letter is a summary of the Fund's investigation of the Council, as presented to its Board in March of 1954. It seems to me that this report speaks for itself both as to the thoroughness of the investigation conducted and as to the impeccable auspices under which the Council was formed.

The Southern Regional Council (a tax-exempt organization) is generally regarded as the most responsible and moderate organization working to improve race relations in the South (see editorial comments, Appendix B). As I am sure you will understand, the Council has frequently been under attack by those who believe that any effort to bring about improved understanding between the races is a part of the "Communist line". The Council's refutation of the particular charge contained in "Firing Line' is attached as Appendix C.

Although the Fund's first major grant to the Council was made in April, 1954, there had been previous experience with the Council dating from 1951, as described in Appendix D. Since the first grant there has been a continuous follow-up on the programs conducted by the Council. Each additional grant has been made only after a determination by the Board of the Fund that the Council has made proper use of funds previously granted. Detailed financial statements, independently audited, have been rendered quarterly. Representatives of the Fund have attended meetings sponsored by the Council, at which representatives of major religious groups and national organizations, such as the National Conference of Christians and Jews, the National Urban League, and the YMCA and YWCA, have been present. Representatives of the Fund have also made extensive field trips through the South to assess the work of the Council and to appraise the caliber and integrity of the Council's personnel both in its Atlanta office and in its state chapters. The Officers and Directors of the Fund have been convinced through these extensive contacts with the Council that its work is vitally important and that it is, as an editorial in the Asheville Citizen put it at the time of the Fund's first grant, "a spokesman for the area's best traditions of tolerance, humanity, dignity and freedom."

It should also be noted that although the Fund conducted extensive independent investigations, the Council was at the time of the Fund's first grant so well regarded by responsible organizations that in 1953 a major part of its income was derived from contributions from five church organizations, eight foundations in addition to The Ford Foundation, and four national labor unions. In 1953 the Council's Executive Director, George Mitchell, received an award from the Catholic Committee of the South for his contributions to improvement in racial understanding.

Mr. Harold Fleming, the present Executive Director of the Southern Regional Council, expects to be in Washington next Monday, April 29, on his return from an address at Rutgers University. If your crowded schedule would permit, I am sure that Mr. Fleming would be delighted to drop in and make your acquaintance, and I plan to phone your office later this week to determine whether such a meeting might be arranged. If you think well of the idea, Mr. David Freeman, Vice President of the Fund, who has been most directly concerned with the grants to the Council, would be glad to join Mr. Fleming in such a visit.

I am most appreciative of the friendly tone of your inquiry, concerning as it does a grave charge leveled against one of the Fund's major grantees. If there is anything further that I can do to demonstrate the completely false nature of this charge, please let me know.

Sincerely yours,

Bethuel M. Webster

To The People of New York City

The Position of the South on Race Relations

Recent tragic events in the integrated schools of Washington, D. C., Kansas City, Little Rock, and your own New York City, suggest that an accurate presentation of the views of Southern people on the race question might receive sympathetic consideration in the North and might even contribute to the solution of a problem in which we are now all concerned.

A PROBLEM UNIQUE WITHIN OUR NATION

Here in the United States, we are witnessing an unprecedented attempt by certain white and Negro leaders to force the Negro people of our country to abandon their own culture and mores, lose themselves physically and culturally within other races, and commit racial suicide.

Meanwhile, outside of the United States, every dynamic racial group in the world pridefully promotes its own culture. In view of their examples, should we not look twice before we leap?

In looking, we do not propose here to review the influences behind the "integration" movement. (For detailed analysis of a major influence we recommend that you review "Subversion in Racial Unrest," a documented study recently released by this Committee). Rather, let us here consider the logic of the movement and its ultimate effect on a country that we all love and cherish.

THE AMERICAN MAJORITY: A BLEND OF HOMOGENEOUS PEOPLES

You may ask: Doesn't this great country of ours represent a melting pot of different races? From a scientific standpoint, the answer is an unequivocal – NO!

The vast majority of this nation represents a blending of like peoples

THE SOLUTION NORTH AND SOUTH

This method of adjustment, which has been loosely referred to as "Segregation", enabled both the Negro and white people in the South to overcome the devastating effects of the War Between the States and pile up a record of progress second to none in history.

We believe it will, in practice, enable our Northern friends to adjust themselves to the more than one-half of the Negroes in this country who will live in the North by 1980.

A DANGEROUS PARALLEL

Now we are told that this is all wrong – that each community must conform to one unvarying racial pattern – complete integration – prescribed and enforced by a central governmental authority. But, the disastrous results of this policy are causing Americans to ask themselves: Is forced racial integration the answer?

At one time the belief was prevalent that all must attend the same church to prosper in the next world, as well as in this one. Many futile attempt by certain white and Negro leaders to force the Negro people of our country to abandon their own culture and mores, lose themselves physically and culturally within other races, and commit racial suicide.

Meanwhile, outside of the United States, every dynamic racial group in the world pridefully promotes its own culture. In view of their examples, should we not look twice before we leap?

In looking, we do not propose here to review the influences behind the "integration" movement. (For detailed analysis of a major influence we recommend that you review "Subversion in Racial Unrest," a documented study recently released by this Committee). Rather, let us here consider the logic of the movement and its ultimate effect on a country that we all love and cherish.

THE AMERICAN MAJORITY: A BLEND OF HOMOGENEOUS PEOPLES

You may ask: Doesn't this great country of ours represent a melting pot of different races? From a scientific standpoint, the answer is an unequivocal – NO!

The vast majority of this nation represents a blending of like peoples of common European ancestry, rather than a mixing of divergent races. But the energy and vitality which made America a great nation arose neither from racial self-idolatry nor racial suicide – it was an outgrowth of a passionate love of individual liberty, balanced by a sense of justice and individual responsibility which makes this liberty possible. On such a foundation, a new nation was created, capable of winning and retaining the love and loyalty of peoples of different races, different cultures and different religions.

WHAT ABOUT THE AMERICAN NEGRO?

We in the South think of our colored friends as Negro Americans, rather than as American Negroes. The normally cordial relationships between Southern white and colored people are regulated by a set of conventions or customs, the product of years of experiment and experience in adjusting to a bi-racial society.

RACIAL PATTERNS--A COMMUNITY MATTER

These customs vary widely from state to state and indeed from community to community. Until May 17, 1954 each community in the South was a laboratory in which many of these customs were being constantly examined and revised to meet changing conditions. Each community adapted itself to the problems which confronted it.

It is significant that all of the communities in the South and, indeed, many of the communities in the North, agreed that separation of the races in the fields of elementary and secondary education was essential.

This method of adjustment, which has been loosely referred to as "Segregation", enabled both the Negro and white people in the South to overcome the devastating effects of the War Between the States and pile up a record of progress second to none in history.

We believe it will, in practice, enable our Northern friends to adjust themselves to the more than one-half of the Negroes in this country who will live in the North by 1980.

A DANGEROUS PARALLEL

Now we are told that this is all wrong – that each community must conform to one unvarying racial pattern – complete integration – prescribed and enforced by a central governmental authority. But, the disastrous results of this policy are causing Americans to ask themselves: Is forced racial integration the answer?

At one time the belief was prevalent that all must attend the same church to prosper in the next world, as well as in this one. Many futile attempts of powerful groups in Europe to force their religious views on others only succeeded in dividing the continent into hostile camps. Ghastly wars and senseless massacres occurred in the conflicts over the rights of mankind to individuality, this time in the field of religion.

Today peoples of different religions may attend different churches without "degradation" or "psychological injury" to their personalities. Indeed, no one questions the right of a great religion to prohibit nonmembers from participating in certain of its rituals or partaking of its sacraments. "Experience keeps a dear school, but fools will learn in no other!"

THE BEACON OF THE FUTURE

The trend to differentiation, racial and religious, represents a natural law, as well as a basic human right. Any attempt to force a rigid conformity in such matters of human relations must inevitably result in a repetition of the deadly European pattern of religious conflict.

Upon the establishment of workable race relations hinges the very fate of our great country. In the Talmud is a saying to the effect that time may, in some situations, resolve problems which cannot be solved by human intelligence at the moment. Now is the hour for Americans of all races to heed the wisdom of this counsel.

Our Readers Speak

Arms and the Summit

To the N. Y. Herald Tribune:

A summit conference would be worse than useless, we are told on highest authority, unless its agenda is so well prepared as to afford genuine belief that "real progress toward easing of tensions can be accomplished."

The predominant source of such tensions indisputably is the terrifying race in armaments. Yet on March 5 Secretary of State Dulles declared it "at least of dubious wisdom" to hold any summit meeting that excludes the question of German reunification.

We are pledged to work for reunification, but by exclusively peaceful means—means that do not require armaments. Then why prejudice the success of a conference whose supreme purpose is to ease tensions through reducing arms by injecting into its agenda a worthy but clearly secondary issue?

Could anything contribute more to the cause of ultimate German unity in freedom than substantial progress toward universal disarmament, with its inevitable moderating effect upon the more fanatical element in the Kremlin and its concurrent acceleration of humanizing processes even now slowly but surely at work among the better-educated throughout the Soviet Union?

Dissent in Dixie

To the N. Y. Herald Tribune:

In reference to the racial ad placed in the New York Herald Tribune by a Louisiana group, I would like to say that it is "hogwash." I resent the fact that loud-voiced segregationists are using the terms "we believe" and "we in the South think" as inclusive of all Southerners. This is certainly not the case. I was born and raised in Atlanta, of Southern parents, and I am not included. There are many, many Southerners who believe that the Constitution of the United States includes ALL Americans, not just white Protestants, but we can rarely be heard above the roar of small-minded politicians. E pluribus unum? Let's pray that the loud-mouths won't prevent it.

Morale and the Mails

To the N. Y. Herald Tribune:

It may be necessary to raise the price of first-class mail, as the President has indicated. But I wonder how much of the cost of mail transportation goes toward advertising material, the greater part of which everybody consigns to the wastebasket unopened. I don't believe I open one out of ten second-class letters. A letter carrier must be aware that the greater part of his load, now vastly incr over former times, is pure bish, and this in itself is moralizing. He ought to allowed to feel that wha brings is important.

The general demoraliza of the mails is shown in even air mail letters are returned to the sender w there is the slightest error in address. The urgency of an a mail letter, together with time lost in returning it proper address, ought, o would think, to outweigh t effort of the clerk to look up number in the local directo But such is not the case.

I am all for restoring t dignity and the promptitude the mails. Whoever wishes profane it with trash, let hi pay for it with added charges.

Build a Better World

To the N. Y. Herald Tribune:

I do not cease to be amaze at the thinking of the Ameri cans who continually and bitterly oppose American foreign economic aid for a few billion dollars, but at the same time support without question our military budget of over ten times this amount.

Foreign economic aid, at worst, is money wasted, and at best, will help build a better, safer world for Americans to live in.

Our military budget, at best, will temporarily preserve an undesirable status quo, and at worst, will lead to our utter destruction, together with most of Western civilization and much of mankind.

We desperately need to find a new basis for American policy which will help cure the national schizophrenia which allows us to support the enormously expensive evils of the arms race almost without question, but raises violent objections to modest expenditures for the constructive task of world economic development.

Sen. Rainach Contacted by N. Y. Times

The New York Times yesterday asked Louisiana segregation leaders to consider using that paper in presenting to New York people the "position of the South on race relations." A representative of the New York Times contacted Sen. W. M. Rainach, head of Louisiana's segregation fight, by long-distance telephone yesterday morning.

The representative asked Rainach to use his paper in purchasing any future advertisements such as the ad which appeared yesterday in the New York Herald-Tribune. This ad pointed to recent racial troubles in New York as a condition which should "cause sympathetic consideration" of Southern views on the "race question."

Rainach told the New York Times representative the Herald-Tribune had been selected to run the advertisement because, althought both papers have been unsympathetic toward the South's position, the New York Times has been the "more unsympathetic." Too, he said, the Herald-Tribune reaches a larger percentage of the Conservative people, the people segregation forces here wanted to see the ad.

"The interest shown by the New York Times points out that the position of the south is receiving serious and almost competitive attention in the Northern Press," commented Rainach, who said the New York Times representative is sending him that paper's ad rates and other information. "They are waking up to the fact that their racial problems are more explosive than our own."

He said he is convinced that the average New Yorker is "thoroughly sympathetic to the South and is looking to the Southern social system for a solution to racial conflict throughout the nation." But he said they are powerless to act because of a "powerful political combine directed by the NAACP, the Urban League and other leftist organizations." Rainach added that he believed the "reign of this combine" is now starting to end."

UNDOCUMENTED INFO.

August 25, 1958

Senator Willie Rainach, until 1946, was one of the least known and inactive men in political life in this state or his parish. For example, the Negro high school principal, John S. Davis, who has been in the community since 1914 says he never heard of Rainach until about 5 years ago. He still would not recognize him if he saw him. Negro leaders in church and community affairs within a mile of his home near Summerfiels stated that they know of him but rarely ever had contact or knowledge of his activities prior to the last few years.

The Negro neighbors I contacted say he treats Negroes (personally) with politeness and I did not turn up evidence of his ever mistreating anyone. There is no parish courthouse record of criminal or civil suit either by or against him. A Jewish merchant in Homer (the only Jewish family in the parish for over 50 years), Marx Moritzky, says Rainach has always been well thought of. He described Rainach as "a person with possibly high political ambition but personally honorable in his political and business dealings". His wife, Moritzky said, is also a very fine person. Moritzky also termed W. M. Shaw, ~~xxxxxxxxx~~ his next door business friend, as an able attorney with good principles. He has many business dealings with Shaw on property they own together and with Rainach from whom he purchases gas and appliances. (It was found that Moritzky is listed as a Citizens Council member in the Secretary of State's official file.)

Negroes in Claiborne resent Rainach's actions on segregation. They attribute it primarily to "playing politics". Nevertheless it is leading, in Claude Davis' words, to "bad race relations. Makes me want to hate you as a white man."

Though the Negroes I contacted are not aware of the connection Rainach must be concious of and active in some of the activities that have been going on in his parish. Of the 12, 8000 Negroes, only 16 are registered to vote. There was no concerted move on their part to register until about 3 years ago. Probably individuals made attempts but were discouraged. John Davis registered about 3 years ago. He and a group of colored ministers decided they would test the registration to see if more could get on the books.

A group of about 5 met at the courthouse and he and another minister went in to register. The woman registrar was very polite, assured them it was all right, helped them to fill out their cards and was extremely polite about the procedure. During this time a white couple was also in there registering. Obviously, he said, they must have carried the tale outside to the "right" parties. Davis and his friend notified the other members of the group and they registered without difficulty.

The next day they planned to register some more. By the time the others got to the courthouse opposition was arranged. They were asked to interpret the constitution, have "proper" white people witness them as with good character. The woman registrar was no longer running the office but was there while some men did the interrogating and turning down requests. (I have not yet obtained the names of the men, but W. M. Shaw conducted similar activities in Monroe.)

Another incident Rainach must be familiar with took place last year. Rev. Battle called a meeting at his church within 1 mile of Rainach's home, to organize an NAACP chapter. More than 350 people turned out turned out (considered to be a large number). Lawless, the organizer from New Orleans, told them the idea; a large number joined. Lawless then went back to New Orleans and reported the facts with names, etc. to the Negro paper, The Louisiana Weekly. The paper reported all the information in detail.

When the newspaper story was released ~~xxxxxx~~ economic and personal pressures were used against the individual Negroes to quell the movement. Davis was told that unless he withdrew and put the pressure on others he would lose his position and everyone's name would be published in the local paper. He was threatened by the colored supervisor, John S. Lupo. The local school superintendent, Haley, is noted for his extreme radical segregation policies. Others were threatened with loss of jobs.

The movement for NAACP was killed.

Battle also organized Negro workers into a sawmill union. He was threatened but was successful in the effort to organize. This happened a few years ago and the workers are still organized, he says.

Some general observations about Sen. Rainach are stated by people who are competent in analyzing the situation. Ed Clinton, state capitol reporter for the Baton Rouge State Times believes that Rainach is just a "front man" for Leander Perez. (Perez is officially the D. A. of St. Bernard Parish. Actually he is the most powerful political factor in the state outside of Gov. Long. He is known to be immensely wealthy and ambitious. There is no thought of his wanting to be Governor but he has had a strong hand in all past elections. He is opposed to the Long forces. He is listed on the Board of Directors of the Citizens Council of Louisiana. He will be the most important person in naming the next Governor, for that will probably be an anti-Long man. Perez was one of 4 principal witnesses at the Subversive Committee hearings headed by Rainach two years ago.)

Clinton believes that because of Rainach's unreliability and lack of basic intelligence that Perez is switching over to Garrett to head up his activities. (Rep. John "Red" Garrett of Haynesville, Claiborne Parish. Garrett has been very close to Rainach. They, with Shaw and "Frankie" Mims, run the Citizens Council. Garrett is considered a smart and shrewd individual and of the group, the one with the most brains.)

- State Sen. J. D. deBlieux, of Baton Rouge, the only man to openly oppose Rainach, believes Perez is the man behind the scenes. Kenneth Walker, legislative representative for the newspapers of this state believes that Perez is really the man who pulls the strings. So does Vernon Dowdy, legislative representative for the oil industry. Dowdy is credited as being the man who knows more about what goes on in the legislature than any other individual outside of the Governor. I have drawn on Dowdy's files, contacts, and knowledge extensively. He is the one that pointed out the possible McCarthy connection through Mrs. Mims and directed me to the official material at L. S. U. Jim Maddox, L. S. U. public relations director, also points to Perez. He terms him as the "Svengali who is manipulating Trilby". He Also termed Frankie Mims as a "classic Machiavellian character".

Clinton points out that in some of the instances where Rainach has gone off half-cocked it was when he reacted rapidly to a situation. Usually he waits, sees what the "Perez line" will be, and then acts.

This could be correct. One case in point is in front of me now. A reprint was made of the Shreveport Journal article of June 20, 1958 about "Natchitoches Editor Draws Fire of Jury". This is when the police jury denied me the legals because I signed the petition to the Rainach committee asking that they not close schools because of integration. I lost the police jury legals because of this. Rainach had the reprint made and sent to all P. J., school board and other official body members in Grant Parish, Colfax, and wrote "The attached may give you a suggestion for the solution of your own problems in connection with your local paper. (signed) W. M. Rainach, Homer, La." The quoted remark is hand written. It was given to Walker by a Police Jury member as soon as it arrived in his home town, Colfax. No man expecting to stay in public life would allow this many items to get out over his personal signature. Only in an unthinking moment would he fail to realize that it could be used against him in the near future if he had any state-wide ambitions. There is now a suspicion, on my part, that Frankie Mims sent these out, but if so, Rainach is still a "small fry" if he doesn't realize the danger of having someone else sign his name to this type of dynamite.

At public meetings, especially those of Citizen Council groups, he makes wild and ridiculously inaccurate charges. It is very probable that he is being "used", but if so, he is a willing tool. He is not saying anything but that white people in his parish almost unanimously approve. He has never had real political opposition at home or in the legislature, so he is not an "experienced" politician as such.

It has been said that Rainach does not stand a chance for Governor for many reasons. First, other than Long, north Louisiana does not elect the Governor. The big votes are in south Louisiana and they are far more liberal. The race issue will not elect a man from that area. The one exception is an incident like Little Rock. Timed right (if by design or accident) it could elect Rainach. It would elect anyone else identified as a rabid segregationist.

An example of half-cocked attacks are contained in the enclosed news clipping against the Independent Women's Organization. It was quite a hassle and caused a lot of women to be opposed to him.

An interesting opinion of the Senator was given on March 13, 1955. The following is substantially what was said be Charles D. Pierce in a by-lined Times-Picayune story:

T-P March 13, 1955
"Sen. Rainach ~~xxxxxx~~ Gradually of Taking Political Spotlight"
by Charles D. Pierce

"Although he is mentioned frequently as a possible candidate for Governor, Rainach told the T-P that he is not a candidate and does not plan to run for this office.

"The state political spotlight first focused on him when he spearheaded a drive for the right to work. After success here, he carried the ball through the Senate on the Constitutional amendment on segregation.

"As the chairman he feels it is the committee's function to maintain segregation." He says that the joint committee is also interested in the problem of encroachment of the federal government on states and ind.

"The integration of races movement is just part of the whole picture." He says "The Tidelands situation is also a part of the encroachment"

Discussing segregation he said that "It is our feeling that we should preserve segregation but we think that in preserving segregation the state has a high moral obligation to provide adequate and equal facilities for every child, both white and Negro."

"Provision of facilities for that educational opportunity is a part of our program of work."

"The 41-year-old Senator is carrying the ball for most of the educational interests in Louisiana.

"Governor Kennon on more than one occasion has indicated that he will give greater interest to the report on highways than to the report on segregation.

"This has been termed a snub."

Report From Richmond

The Real Truth About The Regional Council

The Southern Regional Council, and its affiliate the Arkansas Council on Human Relations, were smeared by innuendo at the Legislative Council hearings on Communism by J. B. Matthews, the Council's hired professional witness. The following review of the history of the Council was published by the strongly segregationist Richmond Times-Dispatch after similar charges had inadvertently appeared in its columns.

Inaccurate statements as to its origins of the Southern Regional Council of Atlanta appeared recently in The Times-Dispatch, and should be corrected. They appeared—inadvertently, we are sure—in one of the series of articles by Edward B. Simmons of the New Bedford, Mass., Standard-Times concerning Communist efforts to incite racial strife in the United States.

Mr. Simmons stated in the article appearing in our paper on August 5 that the Southern Regional Council, established in Atlanta in 1944, was an "offshoot of the old Southern Conference for Human Welfare, which was dissolved in 1948 after twice being described by the federal government as 'Communist front'." He also said: "The Communist Daily Worker openly boasted that James E. Jackson, chief of the Southern branch of the United States Communist Party, was a co-founder of the Regional Council."

Taking these two charges in order, the Southern Regional Council was not an offshoot of the Southern Conference for Human Welfare. It was established in response to an appeal from respected Southern Negro leaders, who met at Durham, N. C., in October, 1942, on the call of Dr. Gordon B. Hancock, of the Virginia Union faculty here, and Dr. P. B. Young, of Norfolk, publisher of the Norfolk Journal and Guide. These Negro leaders did not ask for the elimination of segregation in the schools or anywhere else; they asked that "separate but equal" be made a reality.

Responding to their appeal, a group of white leaders met in Atlanta in the spring of 1943, and expressed a desire to cooperate. Out of this grew the Southern Regional Council. The Council was the successor to the Commission on Interracial Cooperation, founded in 1919 by leading churchmen. To repeat, it not only was no "offshoot" of the Southern Conference for Human Welfare; it was criticized in some quarters because it was more conservative than that organization and suspected of being in competition with it.

We must remember, too, that when the Southern Conference for Human Welfare was established in 1938, it was not suspected of having any Communist connections, and many well-intentioned and patriotic Southerners participated in its early meetings. A number of these later joined the Southern Regional Council when they discovered the true purposes of the Conference for Human Welfare.

As to the allegation of the Communist Daily Worker that James E. Jackson, chief of the Southern branch of the United States Communist party, was a "co-founder of the Southern Regional Council," there is nothing to support this.

A James E. Jackson is listed as having attended the Durham meeting of Negro leaders in October, 1942, but is not mentioned by the Norfolk Journal and Guide as having been on the committee which drew up the statement then issued. Jackson did not participate in the meetings of white and Negro leaders in 1943 and 1944 which led to the establishment of the Southern Regional Council, and he was not at any time an officer, director, or member of that agency. The Daily Worker's statement that he was a "founder" is as unreliable and inaccurate as nearly everything else in that Communist sheet.

The late Dr. Howard W. Odum, noted and respected member of the University of North Carolina faculty, was the first president of the Council. He was succeeded in 1945 by Paul D. Williams, prominent Catholic layman of Richmond and co-founder of the Catholic Committee of the South, who served until 1951. Mr. Williams was succeeded in that year by Marion A. Wright, South Carolina Library Board and past president of the University of South Carolina Alumni Association.

It should be emphasized that SRC worked within the framework of "separate but equal" for seven years, and did not announce for integration until 1951.

While we disagree strongly and completely with its present position on this issue, we feel obligated to point out, in fairness, that it was in no sense Communist in its origins. The Southern Regional Council was established because of a sincere desire on the part of white and Negro leaders in the South to eliminate many of the disabilities and discriminations from which Negroes were suffering.

It was hoped that if these could be substantially lessened, the colored South would not look to the colored North for leadership. Insufficient progress was made, unfortunately, and the NAACP moved in and launched its drive for the complete elimination of segregation—sooner than it probably would have done if SRC's accomplishments had been larger.

That is where we stand today.

M. Johnson, Red Fighter, FBI Agent

SAN BERNARDINO, Calif., July 25 (AP)—A sparsely attended military funeral yesterday ended the career of Manning Johnson, Negro leader, onetime Communist organizer who later became an FBI undercover agent.

Mr. Johnson, 51, died July 2 of a heart ailment. But a spokesman for Mr. Johnson the mortuary which conducted the burial said interment was delayed because consent was needed from his wife, Mae Johnson of New York City.

Mr. Johnson testified in numerous un-American Activities Committee hearings and state anti-Communist legislative sessions.

He was a key witness in the 1949 perjury trial of Harry Bridges, president of the International Longshoremen-Warehousemen's Union, accused of lying at his 1945 naturalization hearing.

Mr. Johnson, a native of Washington, D. C., joined the Communist Party in the 1930s. He became a Party organizer in Buffalo, but later expressed disillusionment with the Party's methods and goals.

He tried to quit the Party but was persuaded to remain a member by the Federal Bureau of Investigation, which used him as an undercover agent. He finally broke with the Party during World War II and joined the Navy.

Shortly after his discharge, Mr. Johnson was hired by the Department of Justice as an "expert witness and researcher."

He had lived in relative obscurity in recent years, working as a lecturer and researcher for conservative magazines.

Mr. Johnson was an outspoken foe of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People. He declared over-ardent Negro integrationists were hurting their own cause.

STATE OF LOUISIANA

"ACTIVITIES OF THE SOUTHERN CONFERENCE EDUCATIONAL FUND, INC. IN LOUISIANA"

PART I

Paul --

Late yesterday afternoon Jim got a phone call from a MR. ROBERT C. SHUMAN, APT. #7, 120 LEWIS DRIVE, MARIETTA, GA., 30060. Mr. Shuman apparently heard you on WRNG Radio and has requested documentation showing the MANNING JOHNSON'S testimonies were repudiated.

I have gone through our Defense Materials files and have come up with what I think you might want to send Mr. Shuman. As is indicated in some of the materials, Manning Johnson's testimony was found to be "tainted" by the Subversive Activities Control Board in its report of August 11, 1956. There are other items here that substantiate this fact. I looked everywhere around here, including our Research Department, trying to come up with a copy of the Subversive Activities Control Board Report. There is not one here. However, if Mr. Shuman would like to see a copy in print, he could be referred to the Subversive Activities Control Board with offices in the Lafayette Building, 811 Vermont Avenue, Washington, D. C. 20445. If you wish to send the attached I'll be glad to xerox it all for you.

Greenwood Matron Denies Council Is Linked To Reds

GREENWOOD, Miss. (AP)—Mrs. Elizabeth Wheatley, who links a bullet fired into her home with her membership in the Mississippi Council on Human Relations, said yesterday the controversial organization "has no Communist connections whatever."

A bullet ripped through two walls Tuesday night in the Greenwood home of Mrs. Wheatley and her husband, cotton buyer D. S. Wheatley Sr.

Mrs. Wheatley, in a formal statement yesterday said, she has belonged to the council 20 years. She said its purpose "has been to work for better human relations."

Her statement said the council "is entirely a Mississippi group and has no Communist connections."

She said it was notified last year it had "not been cited as subversive or un-American by the House un-American Activities Committee or the attorney general."

Mrs. Wheatley said the group was headed by Bishop Theodore Bratton of the Episcopal Church when she joined, and that it "never engages in any political activity."

She said it was affiliated for a time with the Southern Regional Council.

A witness at a Louisiana legislative committee hearing last week said the Mississippi Council was a "transmission belt of Communist infiltration into the South." The witness, former Communist Manning Johnson of New York, said the council was a subsidiary of the Southern Regional Council which he said received money from the Fund for the Republic. Johnson said the Fund is under congressional investigation now.

In Jackson, the attorney general's office said it did not give approval to a charter of incorporation to the Mississippi Council when the charter was filed two years ago because Asst. Atty. Gen. Dugas Shands "was not satisfied it complied with the Mississippi law."

RELATED FACTS AND OPINIONS

The only man in the state to oppose Sen, Rainach openly up to this time is State Sen. J.D. deBlieux. He has been the only legislator to vote against the segregation bills and has made his stand perfectly clear. He does not think that hysterical legislation will do anything except to complicate the problems.

Privately he has told me that it is foolish not to give the Negroe every right to which he is entitled. Sen. deBlieux, a devout Catholic layman, is fully convinced that the time for integration is not far off. He is from a highly industrialized area (Baton Rouge). He says that as long as Negroes get good wages, and the unions will assure them of this, they are bound to become economically independent (and this is as it should be, he says). Next they are bound to seek and receive equal political and educational freedom. He stated that no longer can industrialized areas get colored domestic labor at will. Now the men are earning fair wages and the women prefer to stay at home.

Strong attempts were made to defeat him at the last election and to some extent the racial issue was used. He said it boomeranged. However, he pointed out that the issue was not a big one this last time. His real test will come in this next election as he has been very outspoken against the segregation leaders and they will use this as a weapon against him.

He has received letters from all over the state congratulating him on his stand opposing Rainach and standing firm against the hysterical legislation. Virtually every church group or some member of a church identified as such, has sent him congratulations.

The following comments are pertinent for it shows that one opposed to Rainach has support. "I am not acquainted with you personally, but I was delighted in reading the Legislative Digest from time to time and to see the independent stand you have taken. It takes courage to stand up and give your views as you have done", Ralph M. Pons, vice-pres., Godchaux and Mayer, Ltd, insurance agents, N.O.

The Presbytery of N.O. adopted a resolution supporting the stand of those who wished to oppose closing of Louisiana schools overthe segregation issue. A copy was sent to Sen. deBlieux

"After watching you on television I had to write a fan letter to you. I must say it is a pleasure to find out there is at least one intelligent man in our legislature. Your's is the first completely honest view on 'segregation' that I have heard from a politician yet" Miss Stephanie Dennis, N.O.

"I applaud your stand on the segregation issue. You are congratulated for your intelligent foresight amongst selfish, thoughtless legislators". Mrs Marjorie von Rosenberg, Baton Rouge.

"As a minister I must support the Supreme Court decision....I want to compliment you on your firm stand on the floor of the Senate Chamber against this type of tactics....potentially dangerous to our state", Verl Underwood, First Christian Church, B.R.

"Congratulation! Have been rooting for you! Our state and our country need more men like you." John S. Hurt, chaplain, B.R. (Baptist) General Hospital.

"You will get many letters of congratulations for your standing in opposition to a fellow senator's segregation measures....." G. Avery Lee, minister, 1st Baptist Church, Ruston, La.

There were a few letters opposed to his stand. None from any identifiable religious group.

Sen. deBlieux is considered as one of the most sincere and honest people that ever got into a political office (albeit not the most brilliant). He is an attorney with a comparatively small practice.

R. is chairman of the Special Joint Legislative Committee to investigate LSU, set up after a petition was signed by 66 college professors who opposed the school closing amendments. The July 2, 1958 report found no evidence of subversion, and only rehashed old charges against the American Civil Liberties Union (whose Louisiana members circulated the petition the professors signed) about it having "front" associations and being "red tinged". Most of the "evidence" came from a former United Mine Workers report, Jan 3, ~~1912~~ 1924 and a Lusk Committee report of similar vintage.

The remark made by Rep. John Garret at a private dinner party a few weeks ago is apropos. He and R. work together on the many angles of the segregation questions. This applies to legislation, personal contact, operations within the Citizens Council and personal visits they make together to address meetings or local political bodies trying to get them to pass segregation legislation or join their movement. Garrett stated that he wished the Klan was again operating in Louisiana like it used to. There are many things the Council would like to do that would be better handled by the Klan. Sort of one take the high road and one take the low but both have the same objectives.

To sum up, it is fair to assume that R. has ambitions to be Governor. He is an arrogant person, though soft spoken---not gregarious. He is not personally disliked but politicians especially and every one else in general are afraid to oppose him. It is not quite like the fear of McCarthy, but it is known that this fellow will holler "red" and "Yankee" at the drop of a hat, if disturbed, let alone aroused. He has little real chance to make high political office on his own but can be re-elected from his district for a long time. He can be put in the Governor's chair with the combination of circumstances and Leander Perez's power and money. The Citizens Council and he personally are undoubtedly getting outside money, although through committee appropriations thwy are doing a good job of tapping the state for financial assistance to broaden their activities.

Former McCarthy supporters may be getting to him through Mrs. Mimbs. Surely they have a good pipeline and if this segregation rabble rousing can serve their ends, they have a willing cooperator.

Rep. Garrett may actually be the man to simmer to the top as he has a lot of political "savvy" and is considered as having the intelligence. He is as pro-segregationist as R. and works in close association with him.

W.M. Shaw is a big help to keep their legal skirts clean. He would like to see the Klan effective, like Garrett, but have that operation strictly legal. He personally conducted the vote purge in Ouichta parish that led to the federal investigation.

R. because of his lack of ability may be led into a trap or fall in one before he becomes a bigger political threat or he may wind up in one if he makes the grade.

R. is considered as a spokesman in the legislature, for the LP industry. Because of his relgious convictions, he is supposedly quite opposed to the liquor interests.

He is not know to be the gregarious type. He is a "loner". He does not attend the cocktail parties, "go out with the boys". The lobbyists do not generally find him around when the liquor is flowing.

MINUTES OF THE LAST MEETING:

Integration Leaders Work Busily to Influence Public Opinion

• These minutes, which recently came into our hands through an unimpeachable source, describe a meeting of a coördinating committee of integrationist groups in New York City early this month. Readers will find the minutes an absorbing account, we believe, of how a pressure group works. Editorial comment at left. — EDITOR.

Minutes of the Mass Media Committee of the Consultative Conference on Desegregation
Wednesday, February 4, 1959

PRESENT: Arnold Aronson, National Community Relations Advisory Council; Gunther Lawrence, Union of American Hebrew Congregations; Henry Moon, National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, Alex Morisey, American Friends Service Committee; Guichard Parris, National Urban League; Alan Reitman, American Civil Liberties Union; Ed White, United Steelworkers of America; Chairman, Al Bernheim, American Jewish Committee; Secretary, Harry Fleischman, National Labor Service.

The next meeting of the Mass Media Committee will be held on Wednesday, March 18, 1959 from 9.30 a.m. to 12 noon at the NAACP, 20 West 40th Street, New York, New York

Put this on your calendar and please call or write to let us know whether or not you plan to attend.

1. Approximately 15,000 copies of POGO and the SPEAKEASY SCHOOLS, a reprint of Walt Kelly's comic strips on that subject, will be published by the National Labor Service of the American Jewish Committee, the Southern Regional Council, the Anti-Defamation League, the American Friends Service Committee, and six AFL-CIO unions. Sample copies will be distributed to CCD agencies

2. A letter was received from Herman Long, of Fisk University, Director, Race Relations Department, Congregational Christian Churches, mentioning that race labeling has begun to appear widely in wire service stories in the newspapers. It was agreed that Alan Reitman would talk with officials of Associated Press, United Press International and Editor and Publisher concerning this matter.

3. Reitman agreed to contact Life magazine again concerning a proposed article on the role of the clergy in the South in supporting law and equality.

4. The American Friends Service Committee is sponsoring a pamphlet on American Race Relations, which will be published by the University of Oklahoma Press. Agencies interested in quantities of the pamphlet should write to Alex Morisey, American Friends Service Committee, 1201 Chestnut St., Philadelphia 7, Pennsylvania.

5. The Southern Regional Council reported that it will reprint the Arkansas Gazette report on the effect of the desegregation controversy on economic conditions in Arkansas. Sample copies will be sent to all CCD agencies.

6. The National Urban League has prepared an attractive 11x14 illustrated pamphlet, "Half a Life," in connection with Equal Opportunity Day. Copies are being sent to CCD agencies.

7. The Turnpike Press has just published as a 24 page pamphlet, THE TRUTH ABOUT DESEGREGATION IN WASHINGTON'S SCHOOLS, which first appeared as a series of articles in the Washington Post by Erwin Knoll. The series is an excellent survey of progress in the Washington schools and should be helpful in countering the vicious propaganda being spread by Governor Faubus of Arkansas and other Southern segregationist leaders. Single copies are 15c postpaid; 10 copies or more 10c each postpaid; 100 copies or more 7½c postpaid; 500 copies or more 5c each plus shipping charges. Please order from the Turnpike Press, Annandale, Virginia.

8. A group of organizations in Miami, under the leadership of the United Church Women, have conducted a Community Audit in connection with United Nations Human Rights Day. Copies of the folder describing the Community Audit are being mailed to all CCD agencies.

9. Pro-segregation ads have appeared in The New York Times, January 5, 1959 and in the Wall Street Journal, February 9, 1959 under the signature of Carleton Putnam, who describes himself as a distinguished New Englander. Putnam, a Board member of Delta Airlines, has set up a Putnam Letter Committee in Birmingham, Alabama to solicit contributions to reprint his letter as an ad in additional Northern newspapers. When a similar ad was placed by Louisiana segregation leaders in the N. Y. Herald Tribune in February 1958, we urged CCD member agencies to alert their local units to such ads and ask them to check with editors and publishers about the problem. When such ads appear in Northern papers, it would be helpful if Southerners would write dissenting letters to the editors analyzing the misstatements and errors in the ads. Where such ads appear, editors should be asked to include editorials rebutting the segregation thesis advanced in the ads, or at least run news articles (in the same issue carrying the ads) quoting opponents of segregation.

10. INTEGRATION—A CHALLENGE TO THE SOCIAL AGENCY, a 25-page report of a Workshop conducted by the National Social Welfare Assembly's Committee on Intergroup Relations, features discussion of case histories in hiring Negro social workers, establishing integrated programs, problems of loss of financial support by pro-integration agencies, achieving community acceptance, developing national and local policy on integration, etc. Copies of the Workshop Report are available at 75c each from the National Social Welfare Assembly, 345 East 46th Street, New York 17, N. Y.

11. Papers throughout the nation carried an Associated Press Wirephoto February 2 and 3, showing a lone Negro boy in Maury High School Auditorium in Norfolk, Va.—apparently shunned by his classmates. An article in the New York Post February 3 reported that the photo was phony. Photographers had beckoned the Negro boy up front and took the picture. A minute later, the seats around him were filled and other kids were asking him if he could play basketball or football. By then the photographers had gone. It was agreed that it would be useful if editors throughout the country who used the photo would query A.P. on the alleged irresponsible reporting, and also bring this to the attention of Editor and Publisher magazine.

12. Alan Reitman agreed to suggest to The New York Times that it carry a story concerning the reactions of students who have returned to desegregated public schools from private schools and tutoring classes. It was felt that such a human interest story might make the comparison more meaningful, even in the South. Henry Moon agreed to suggest the same kind of stories for the educational pages of Time and Newsweek.

13. Members of the Committee expressed great indignation over the way in which Chet Huntley had called for virtual suicide by the NAACP on his program on The Second Agony Of Atlanta. It was suggested that the February 8, 1959 program ought to include a genuine moderate, who recognizes the importance of the role of the NAACP in the desegregation issue. This it was felt, could effectively explode the Huntley thesis that Southern moderates were only awaiting NAACP abdication to rise up in their might to support orderly desegregation. NAACP attempts to arrange for the inclusion on the program of such a moderate were unavailing. (Fortunately, Roy Wilkins did such a tremendous job on the February 8, 1959 NBC program with Chet Huntley and Thomas Waring, editor of the Charleston, S. C. News and Courier, that he removed a good deal of the sting from the Huntley thesis.)

Respectfully submitted,

Harry Fleischman

Pow-Wow on 40th Street

Elsewhere on today's editorial page appear the minutes of a most interesting meeting held in New York City on February 4, at the NAACP's headquarters on West Fortieth Street. The document speaks for itself, and it should speak eloquently to white Southerners.

Until this week, we ourselves had never heard of the "Consultative Conference on Desegregation," or of its "Mass Media Committee," but the internal evidence in Minute No. 9 suggests that the committee has been in existence for at least a year. Obviously, the "conference" is composed of various organizations seeking to further the integration movement, and its "Mass Media Committee" is charged with influencing newspapers, magazines, press associations, and radio-TV networks in behalf of the integration cause. In a free country, this is certainly anybody's privilege, and we assume there is no particular secret about what these people are up to.

What are they up to? They are a busy crew.

They are distributing thousands of copies of a "Pogo" comic strip which ridicules Virginia's action in closing schools last Fall. They are repeating a series of pieces from the Arkansas Gazette and circulating some articles from the Washington Post. They direct attention to a pamphlet of the Urban League and a "workshop report" of the National Social Welfare Assembly.

Several special assignments claimed the committee's attention on February 4. A letter was at hand mentioning that the Associated Press and United Press International are engaging in "race labeling." Alan Reitman, of the American Civil Liberties Union, is instructed to talk with officials of the wire services concerning this matter. Evidently the committee had been unsuccessful in planting in Life magazine an article about Southern clergymen who support integration. Mr. Reitman agrees to contact Life again. The busy Mr. Reitman also will call upon the New York Times to suggest a particular article there. The NAACP's Henry Moon is to push the same kind of stories at Time and Newsweek.

To judge from the wassish tone of Minute No. 9, the famed "Carleton Putnam Letter" is beginning to hurt. This was an open letter sent by Mr. Putnam to President Eisenhower last Fall. Following its publication in the Richmond Times-Dispatch in October, the letter was distributed widely around the country. Subsequently, a group of Alabamians formed a committee to arrange for publication of the letter as paid advertising in major newspapers. (James F. Simpson, Attorney, 317 North Twentieth Street, Birmingham, is treasurer of the committee.) Mr. Putnam, who assuredly is "distinguished" though he has not described himself as such, had nothing to do with formation of this committee. In his letter, the New York-born historian, biographer, and businessman ringingly defends the Southern point of view on school segregation, and urges upon the President a reconsideration of civil rights agitation. The integrationists' "Mass Media Committee" finds the Putnam letter a problem, and outlines various schemes for undermining the letter's effectiveness.

There is much for the Southern traditionalist, believing in essential separation of the races, to learn from the minutes of this New York committee. Two points especially bear emphasis:

First, this is a coordinated effort. Nine different organizations sent representatives to the committee meeting.

Second, this is a professional effort. Reitman and Moon are not amateurs in public relations. They are pro's, full-time people, and when the committee members meet on West Fortieth Street in Manhattan they meet within a few minutes' taxi ride of the top men in the communications industry.

What does the white South have to match this? Let us attempt an answer in one word. Nothing.

Organizations that believe in the constitutional right of the States to maintain racially separate institutions have no coördination of any sort. Conservative, right-wing groups as a whole have no unity or strength. We have no "consultative conferences," no "mass media committee," no skilled and personable representatives to call upon magazine editors and network officials. Is it any wonder that the South continues to take a terrible licking?

Let us ponder these revealing minutes more in sorrow than in anger, more in honest concern than in resentment. We live in a day of the pressure group, in which public opinion is molded like wax and the grass roots are fertilized from a hundred artificial sources. It is high time for the conservative South to unstuff its shirt, put up some real money, and adapt the techniques of its foes to the cause we hold to be right.

I am sure you will be interested in the enclosed editorial which appeared in the Richmond News Leader of Friday, February 27.

Accompanying the editorial, and prefaced by the enclosed note from the Editor, was the full transcript of the minutes of the February 4 meeting of the CCD Mass Media Committee. We have been unable to ascertain how these minutes came into the hands of the Richmond News Leader. Except for the fact that the meeting was held in the offices of the National Urban League rather than of the NAACP, however, the minutes were reproduced accurately.

As you will note, the editorial contains the following statement: "Inquiry this morning to the Associated Press elicited a few facts, drawn unwillingly from a reluctant source: The CCD is made up of 'about 40' organizations with an interest in promoting racial integration. The AP's source declined to release a list of these members."

I am the "reluctant source" referred to any my "reluctance" stemmed from our long standing policy of not issuing any statements in the name of the CCD.

There is no disposition to change that policy or to make any comment with respect to the story in the News Leader. Since the publication of the editorial, however, I have again been asked by the AP for a list of the participating organizations. It is the consensus of those members of the Executive Committee with whom I have had an opportunity to discuss this request, that continued refusal to reveal the names of the participating organizations to the AP would play into the hands of the Richmond News Leader and other segregationist organs by affording them a basis for fostering the impression that we are engaged in a clandestine and furtive conspiracy.

Accordingly, I would appreciate your wiring me permission to release a list of the participating organizations and to include your organization in such a listing. If I do not hear from you by Monday, March 9, I shall assume your assent to this procedure.

Following its publication in the Richmond Times-Dispatch in October, the letter was distributed widely around the country. Subsequently, a group of Alabamians formed a committee to arrange for publication of the letter as paid advertising in major newspapers. (James E. Simpson, Attorney, 317 North Twentieth Street, Birmingham, is treasurer of the committee.) Mr. Putnam, who assuredly is "distinguished" though he has not described himself as such, had nothing to do with formation of this committee. In his letter, the New York-born historian, biographer, and businessman ringingly defends the Southern point of view on school segregation, and urges upon the President a reconsideration of civil rights agitation. The integrationists' "Mass Media Committee" finds the Putnam letter a problem, and outlines various schemes for undermining the letter's effectiveness.

There is much for the Southern traditionalist, believing in essential separation of the races, to learn from the minutes of this New York committee. Two points especially bear emphasis:

First, this is a coordinated effort. Nine different organizations sent representatives to the committee meeting.

Second, this is a professional effort. Reitman and Moon are not amateurs in public relations. They are pro's, full-time people, and when the committee members meet on West Fortieth Street in Manhattan they meet within a few minutes' taxi ride of the top men in the communications industry.

What does the white South have to match this? Let us attempt an answer in one word: Nothing.

Organizations that believe in the constitutional right of the States to maintain racially separate institutions have no coordination of any sort. Conservative, right-wing groups as a whole have no unity or strength. We have no "consultative conferences," no "mass media committee," no skilled and personable representatives to call upon magazine editors and network officials. Is it any wonder that the South continues to take a terrible licking?

Let us ponder these revealing minutes more in sorrow than in anger, more in honest concern than in resentment. We live in a day of the pressure group, in which public opinion is molded like wax and the grass roots are fertilized from a hundred artificial sources. It is high time for the conservative South to unstuff its shirt, put up some real money, and adapt the techniques of its foes to the cause we hold to be right.

Minutes of the Last Meeting:

Integration Leaders Work Busily to Influence Public Opinion

About two and half years ago, we are advised on inquiry to the Associated Press in New York, a group of national organizations quietly established the Consultative Conference on Desegregation. This body, known as the CCD, has shunned publicity and has issued no statements. It is comprised today of "about 40" member organizations. Its purpose is to coordinate activities in support of racial integration. The officers include Dr. Eugene C. Blake, of the National Council of Churches; Rabbi Abraham Feldman, Synagogue Council of America; and Father Maurice Sheehan, of the Catholic Committee of the South, all of whom serve as co-chairmen. The executive director is Arnold Aronson, of the National Community Relations Advisory Council. Lewis Hoskins, of the American Friends Service Committee, is treasurer.

The CCD's "Mass Media Committee" met in New York on February 4. A copy of the committee's minutes recently came into our hands. It is reproduced verbatim below. Readers will find the minutes an absorbing account, we believe, of how a pressure group works. Editorial comment appears at left.

SUBJECT: Follow-up to March 4 Memorandum

The response to my memorandum of March 4 regarding the editorial in the Richmond News Leader indicated that a majority was in favor of complying with the request of the Associated Press for the names of the participating organizations. Several organizatio however, suggested that before taking any action, an opportunity b afforded for full discussion of the issues involved. Accordingly, all organizations which could be reached by phone were invited to a meeting on March 10. Despite the short notice, 14 organizations were represented at the meeting.

It was recognized by all those present that publication of th names of the participating organizations might result in harassmen and intimidation of local affiliates. Nevertheless, all were agre that continued refusal to release such information was likely to prove even more damaging in the long run.

Such a course of action, it was suggested, would result in additional undesirable publicity in that it would afford the segregationist press a pretext for further distorting the nature and purposes of the CCD, and for continued attacks on the participatin organizations as being engaged in a secret conspiracy. Moreover, it was the view of those present that the anonymity of the participating organizations could, in any event, not be preserved. It was pointed out that the names of the organizations attending the Mass Media Committee meeting of February 4, as well as those represented by the officers, had already been made public. An enterprising reporter, it was suggested, would have little difficulty in ascertaining the names of other participating organizations. In the opinion of the group, an inclusive listing, reflecting the range and representative character of the participating organizations, was preferable to a partiallist, and voluntary disclosure preferable to newspaper exposure.

It was the unanimous recommendation of the meeting, therefore that the secretary undertake:

(1) To obtain authorization from as many of the participatin organizations as possible for inclusion of their name in a list to be furnished to the AP and,

(2) provide the AP with a brief description of the CCD pointing out its consultative and advisory character.

The secretary was instructed to communicate by telephone with the officers and Executive Committee to assure that the proposed recommendations were in conformity with the CCD constitution and to secure proper authorization for their implementation.

In accordance with this instruction, the secretary contacted 14 of the 17 individuals comprising the officers and Executive Committee. The remaining 3 could not be reached. Of these 14, all but one favored the proposed recommendations as being both desirable and in keeping with the provisions of the constitution.

Consensus regarding the constitutional question was as follows:

(1) The constitutional prohibition against the issuance of public statements in the name of the CCD was interpreted as applying to the issuance of statements of policy or position on substantive issues and not to the release of factual information regarding the purpose or composition of the CCD in response to requests for such information from responsible news sources such as the AP.

(2) The proposed recommendations did not envisage releasing the names of all participating organizations, but only of those which specifically authorized such release. Thus, the proposal appeared to fall squarely within that section of the constitution which provides that "the offices of the CCD may be used to facilitate the issuance of joint statements by such of the participating organizations as desire to join in such a statement."

(3) The identical procedure contemplated by the proposed recommendations had been approved and carried out in response to requests for information by the wire services in 1957, at the time of the Plenary meeting in Washington.

On the basis of this authorization, a letter was sent to the AP on March 13, setting forth the information recommended at the March 10 meeting. (See enclosed copy). The AP has agreed not to use the contents of the letter for a general news story but will convey the information only to those member newspapers which have requested it.

Since the appearance of the original article in the Richmond News Leader, comment on the CCD has appeared in other newspapers, as well as in the Congressional Record. The text of some of these items, and relevant excerpts from others are enclosed. I would very much appreciate being advised of any such publicity which has or may come to your attention.

CONSULTATIVE CONFERENCE ON DESEGREGATION
55 West 42nd St.
New York 36, N.Y.

Copy of Letter to Robert Farrington of Associated Press

Dear Mr. Farrington:

This is in reply to your request for information regarding the Consultative Conference on Desegregation.

The Conference was formed a little over two years ago in order to further communication among organizations committed to facilitating orderly compliance with the constitutional requirements regarding desegregation.

As its name implies, the Conference is a mechanism for interconsultation and for an exchange of information, views and experiences among the participating organizations. The deliberations of the Conference are advisory only and are not binding on any organization.

The Conference itself is not an operating agency. It does not engage in legislative activity nor does it take public actions or issue public statements.

The officers of the Conference are: Co-Chairmen; Rev. Eugene Carson Blake, Department of Racial and Cultural Relations, National Council of the Churches of Christ in the U.S.A., Very Rev. Maurice V. Sheen, Catholic Committee of the South, Rabbi Abraham J. Feldman, Synagogue Council of America; Treasurer; Lewis M. Hoskins, American Friends Service Committee; Secretary; Arnold Aronson, National Community Relations Advisory Council. The Conference has no paid staff.

In addition to the organizations represented by the officers, other organizations which participate in the consultative processes include: American Civil Liberties Union; Americans for Democratic Action; American Jewish Committee; American Jewish Congress; Anti-Defamation League; Board of National Missions, United Presbyterian Church in the U.S.A.; Catholic Interracial Council; Council for Social Action, Congregational Christian Churches; Department of Social Welfare, United Christian Missionary Society, Disciples of Christ; Evangelical & Reformed Church, Commission on Christian Social Action; Jewish Labor Committee; National Association for the Advancement of Colored People; National Board, YWCA; National Council of Jewish Women; National Council Protestant Episcopal Church, Division of Christian Citizenship; National Sharecroppers Fund, Inc.; National Social Welfare Assembly; Southern Regional Council; Union of American Hebrew Congregations; Unitarian Service Committee; United Automobile Workers of America; United Church Women; United Steelworkers of America; and Women's Division of Christian Service of the Methodist Church.

Yours truly,

ARNOLD ARONSON
Secretary

PUBLIC COMMENT ON CCD SINCE RICHMOND NEWS LEADER EDITORIAL OF FEBRUARY 27, 1959

March 1 -Charleston, S.C. News and Courier

Under heading "Anti-South Tactics - How a Pressure Group Works", the paper reproduced in full the February 4 minutes of the CCD Mass Media Committee meeting. The minutes were preceded by a paragraph stating that the CCD was "quietly established" about 2½ years ago, is comprised of "about 40" member organizations, "has shunned publicity and issued no statements", and is designed "to coordinate activities in support of racial integration." Officers of the CCD and their organizational affiliation were listed.

March 3 - Richmond News Leader editorial and Mass Media Committee minutes inserted into the Congressional Record by Congressman Watkins M. Abbitt of Virginia. In his introductory remarks Congressman Abbitt said: "This editorial points out cogently the efforts of certain elements in trying to brainwash our people into accepting integration. It also points out the lack of coordination of effort on the part of the people in our area who are trying to maintain constitutional government in America. The comparison is well demonstrated and I hope that enough of our people will read this editorial and profit therefrom so as to set up some cohesive and coordinated effort to get across to the people of the Nation the truth regarding the false propaganda being carried in many elements of the press and news mediums."

March 3 -News Leader - Letter from Thomas A. Hanes, managing editor of the Norfolk Ledger-Star defending accuracy of news photo referred to in Mass Media minutes. (Copy of letter attached).

March 5 - Jackson, Mississippi Daily News Front page editorial "Publicity Peter Funks". The same issue carried an inside editorial titled "New Anti-South Propaganda Plotted at Secret Huddle". The Mass Media Committee minutes were reproduced under the heading "Here is Proof Agitators Serve as Press Censors". (Copies of editorials attached).

March 13 - Editorials and minutes from Daily News inserted into Congressional Record by Congressman John Bell Williams of Mississippi. Congressman Williams' remarks included the following:

"These editorials point up what many of us have known for years: that a concerted and highly organized conspiracy exists among much of our Nation's mass information mediums to portray the South's attitudes and position to the rest of the country in the most ridiculous and unfavorable light possible.

The information contained in these editorials should be cause for grave concern on the part of every right-thinking and patriotic American citizen:"

New Anti-South Propaganda Plotted at Secret Huddle

How does a pressure group dedicated to racial agitation work?

How do these creatures continue to gag the press, magazines, and radio and television?

How do they successfully distort and discredit remarks made by honorable American people who oppose their vicious slander?

In these same columns below you will read minutes of a most remarkable secret meeting held in New York City on February 4 at the NAACP's headquarters on West 40th Street. These minutes have been brought to public attention by the Richmond News Leader, of Richmond, Va.

Efforts by that newspaper have failed to establish the identity of "about 40" organizations allegedly supporting the organization known as the "Consultative Conference on Desegregation."

It is extremely significant that news media in New York, the nerve center of world newsgathering, can send high-powered journalists into the South to dig up any facts they desire on any organization, but the group of about 40 organizations supporting the CCD remain anonymous.

Is it not extremely strange that the CCD voted to protest to the Associated Press, United Press International and Editor and Publisher regarding identifying people by race when the meeting was arranged by an organization which includes the term "colored people" in its own name. We refer to the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People.

There is no more reason why the news media should suffer censorship at the hands of this unidentified outfit than should a judge juggle evidence in court or turn a deaf ear to defense attorneys.

After you have read the article below, we believe you will agree the Nation's press and radio and television facilities are being pressured into giving the South another double dose of ridicule in the court of last resort - public opinion - and, please, look at the professional agitators packing the court.

In the face of this evidence it is no wonder the South continues to take such a licking.

In the face of perpetual bombardment with vicious lies, it is a wonder this region has shown the ramarkable restraint it has exercised.

The falsehood peddlers yell for moderation, yet they display no regard for the word in dishing out abusive propaganda.

Editor, The News Leader:

This past Friday, you carried on your editorial page the minutes of a recent meeting in New York of the Mass Media Committee of the Consultative Conference on Desegregation, whatever that is, in which those present discussed a photograph that appeared in many American newspapers February 2 and 3.

To quote from this outfit's minutes: "The Wirephoto showed a lone Negro boy in Maury High School Auditorium in Norfolk, Va. - apparently shunned by his classmates. An article in the New York Post February 3 reported that the photo was phony. Photographers had beckoned the Negro boy up front and took the picture. A minute later the seats around him were filled and other kids were asking him if he could play basketball or football. It was agreed that it would be useful if editors throughout the country who used the photo would query AP on the alleged irresponsible reporting..."

This photograph (below) originated with the Norfolk Ledger-Star.

The subject of the Norfolk Ledger Star's integrity is not debateable, particularly when it is questioned by people whose qualifications to discuss any kind of integrity are so scanty that their acceptance would be limited to zero. However, since distorted, inaccurate and dishonest accounts of the circumstances connected with the acquisition of the widely published photograph have been circulated, truth is long overdue.

Here is what happened:

On the morning of February 2 when Norfolk schools were integrated, the Ledger - Star sent out reporter-photographer teams to every school involved. Prior to their departure, the teams attended a briefing session in which standing written instructions were reviewed. City Editor Clarence Walton placed particular emphasis upon the prohibition of posed pictures. He made it quite clear that any violation of the rule would result in immediate dismissal. So when Photographer J.T. McClenny appeared at Maury High School, he knew the score.

He simply walked into the auditorium and shot what was there. The picture showed a Negro boy surrounded by empty seats. And the reason the picture showed a Negro boy surrounded by empty seats is because the Negro boy was surrounded by empty seats.

If the New York Post, which was quoted by integrationist Harry Fleischman, knows more about the Ledger-Star's operation and its dedication to journalistic honesty than I do, it's a hell of a lot better paper than I think it is, which isn't much.

Publicity Peter Funks

The extent to which organized, professional pressure groups apply the squeeze to the Nation's large newspapers, magazines, wire services, radio and television outlets on behalf of stirring up racial hatreds and warped opinions of the South has been uncovered.

Minutes of a secret meeting held in New York recently have been obtained. This document reveals very significant background into reasons the South continues to suffer abuse and slander in the court of last resort - public opinion. The judge and jury are both stacked against millions of decent, law-abiding people who disagree with leftwing, Communist-front strife-spreaders, do-gooders, and social and publicity Peter Funks.

The minutes of the hush-hush session at which distorted stories against the South were conceived appear, along with additional editorial comment, on the editorial page in this issue of the Jackson Daily News.

You will see from the pressure techniques plus an abundance of fawning willingness on the part of journalists and television commentators that the South has no more chance of unbiased treatment than a billy goat has of winning a prize at a perfume contest.

The minutes reveal propaganda leaflets are distributed by the Mass Media Committee of the Consultative Conference on Desegregation to all CCD agencies. It is reported about 40 agencies cooperate in this the falsehood spreading, but the names of these agencies are kept secret.

Visiting newsmen can swarm into the South and get all the factual information they desire on any organization, but the nerve-center of world journalism, television and radio has not been able to get a list of these agencies.

Right-thinking southerners should study with concern the underground activities of vicious sabotage against reputable people.

It must be accepted that the South has been long-suffering in enduring the assaults.

Although it can hardly hope to cope with a secret underground of hate-pushers, the Citizens Council (there's no secret about its board of directors) is the only active organization putting up an intelligent defense against the constant barrage of smear against the South.

After reading the details on the editorial page today we believe our readers will hold renewed respect and admiration for those who stand on the forefront of this all-important fight for decency and fairplay.

I am sure you will be interested in the enclosed editorial from the Richmond News Leader of March 26.

This is the first publicity which in any way takes into account the information we gave to the AP. The subdued tone of the editorial suggests that the breadth and character of the organization included in our listing may have served as a deterrent to the kind of innuendos which characterized earlier publicity.

Also enclosed are copies of two additional references to the CCD taken from the Augusta (Ga.) Courier of March 23 and the syndicated column of John Temple Graves of March 18.

It is doubtful whether Roy Harris or Mr. Graves was aware of the information given to the AP.

FLASH! The Putnam Letter is upsetting the "Mass Media Committee of the Consultative Conference on Desegregation."

And massively!

The organization is made up of some 40 organizations interested in promoting integration. Recent minutes suggested that members "check with editors and publishers about the problem." (Apparently checking has been successful with The Washington Post and Los Angeles, which refused the letter as an advertisement.) "To judge from the waspish tone of (the minutes)," writes Editor James J. Kilpatrick in The Richmond News-Leader, "the 'Carleton Putnam letter' is beginning to hurt." The "Mass Media Committee" circulates stories and editorials from The Arkansas Gazette (Harry Ashmore), The Washington Post and The Urban League (which is still receiving over $2 million a year from community chest groups even though a number of Southern chest organizations have dropped it).

Strong Propaganda Machine Fights Southern Traditions

When Lewis B. Pendleton of Richmond, a leader of the forces to maintain segregated public schools in Virginia, addressed the Sumter County Citizens Council, he warned his hearers against powerful propaganda machines bent upon the destruction of school segregation in the South.

One of these anti-Southern bodies has been brought to light by The Richmond News Leader. It is called the Consultative Conference on Desegregation and comprises "about 40" member organizations. Known by the initials, CCD, the organization was established quietly. It shuns publicity and issues no statements. Its purpose is to coordinate activities in support of racial integration.

Among the officers are Dr. Eugene C. Blake of the National Council of Churches, Rabbi Abraham Feldman of the Synagogue Council of America and Father Maurice Sheehan of the Catholic Committee of the South. They serve as co-chairmen.

Arnold Aronson of the National Community Relations Advisory Council is executive director. Lewis Hoskins of the American Friends Service Committee is treasurer.

One of the CCD committees is charged with the responsibility of influencing newspapers, press services, magazines and radio-TV networks to propagandize their pro-integration cause. It is called the Mass Media Committee. Minutes of a meeting of this group on West Fortieth Street in New York was obtained by the Richmond newspaper.

Nine organizations were represented at that meeting. The individuals present were CCD Executive Director Aronson; Gunther Lawrence, Union of American Hebrew Congregations; Henry Moon, National Association for the Advancement of Colored People; Alex Morisey, American Friends Service Committee; Guichard Parris, National Urban League; Alan Reitman, American Civil Liberties Union; Ed White, United Steelworkers of America; Ali Bernheim, American Jewish Committee, chair-

Reitman also was to contact Life magazine on a proposal to publish an article on "the role of the clergy in the South in supporting law and equality."

The committee called attention to a pamphlet on race relations sponsored by the American Friends Service Committee and a reprint by the Southern Regional Council of an Arkansas Gazette report "on the effect of the desegregation controversy on economic conditions in Arkansas."

Other desegregation publications cited were prepared or sponsored by the Turnpike Press of Annandale, Va., the National Social Welfare Assembly's Committee on Intergroup Relations, and "a group of organizations in Miami, under the leadership of the United Church Women."

Members of the committee, according to the minutes, expressed "great indignation" over Chet Huntley's suggestion on television "that Southern moderates were only awaiting NAACP abdication to rise up in their might to support orderly desegregation."

Evidently creating greater disturbance among the Mass Media committeemen than anything else, however, was the Putnam letter, which has been widely published in the South. It has been run as an advertisement by some Northern newspapers and refused even as an ad by some integrationist newspapers.

The Putnam letter, which THE STATE was one of the first to publish, and which it later reprinted, assails the Supreme Court for ignoring legal precedents and then arriving at a decision conforming to preconceived notions by unquestioning acceptance of psuedo-scientific theories advanced by "authorities" such as Myrdal, a Swedish sociologist, and Franz Boaz, the foreign-born "father of anthropological egalitarianism."

"We urged CCD member agencies," said the committee's minutes, "to alert their local units to such ads and ices, magazines and radio-TV networks to propagandize their pro-integration cause. It is called the Mass Media Committee. Minutes of a meeting of this group on West Fortieth Street in New York was obtained by the Richmond newspaper.

The individuals present were CCD Executive Director Aronson; Gunther Lawrence, Union of American Hebrew Congregations; Henry Moon, National Association for the Advancement of Colored People; Alex Morisey, American Friends Service Committee; Guichard Parris, National Urban League; Alan Reitman, American Civil Liberties Union; Ed White, United Steelworkers of America; Ali Bernheim, American Jewish Committee, chairman, and Harry Fleischman, National Labor Service, secretary.

Fifteen items of business were reported in the minutes.

Among them were plans for publication of reprints of Walt Kelly's anti-segregation Pogo comic strip series, "Speakeasy Schools," by the National Labor Service of the American Jewish Committee, the Southern Regional Council, the Anti-Defamation League, the American Friends Service Committee, and six AFL-CIO unions.

It was agreed that Reitman, a paid propagandist, would try to persuade the Associated Press and United Press International to discontinue identification by race, and would pursue the matter further with Editor and Publisher, a newspaper trade publication.

"Alan Reitman agreed to suggest to The New York Times that it carry a story concerning the reactions of students who have returned to desegregated public schools from private schools and tutoring classes. It was felt that such a human interest story might make the comparison more meaningful, even in the South. Henry Moon agreed to suggest the same kind of stories for the educational pages of Time and Newsweek."

was the Putnam letter, which has been widely published in the South. It has been run as an advertisement by some Northern newspapers and refused even as an ad by some integrationist newspapers.

The Putnam letter, which THE STATE was one of the first to publish and which it later reprinted, assails the Supreme Court for ignoring legal precedents and then arriving at a decision conforming to preconceived notions by unquestioning acceptance of psuedo-scientific theories advanced by "authorities" such as Myrdal, a Swedish sociologist, and Franz Boaz, the foreign-born "father of anthropological egalitarianism."

"We urged CCD member agencies," said the committee's minutes, "to alert their local units to such ads and ask them to check with editors and publishers about the problem. When such ads appear in Northern papers, it would be helpful if Southerners would write dissenting letters to the editors analyzing the misstatements and errors in the ads. Where such ads appear, editors should be asked to include editorials rebutting the segregation thesis advanced in the ads, or at least run news articles (in the same issue carrying the ads) quoting opponents of segregation."

The Mass Media minutes disclose a high powered, strongly coordinated, well financed, professional propaganda machine designed to direct the mass opinion of America against Southern institutions.

"What does the South have to match this?" the Richmond News Leader asks, editorially. "Let us attempt an answer in one word: Nothing."

"Organizations that believe in the constitutional right of the states to maintain racially separate institutions have no coordination of any sort," the Richmond newspaper continues.

"Conservative, right-wing groups as a whole have no unity or strength. We have no 'consultative conference,' no 'mass media committee,' no skilled and personable representatives to call upon magazine editors and network officials. Is it any wonder that the South continues to take a terrible licking?

"Let us ponder these revealing minutes more in sorrow than in anger, more in honest concern than in resentment.

"We live in a day of the pressure group, in which public opinion is molded like wax and the grass roots are fertilized from a hundred artificial sources. It is high time for the conservative South to unstuff its shirt, put up some real money, and adapt the techniques of its foes to the cause we hold to be right."

Russian libraries, a reporter writes, arrange their books according to size, rather than by title or author's name. This is a far cry from the smartly decorated American home, where the books are arranged according to color.

INDUSTRIAL OPPORTUNITIES OF THE SOUTH

During the past few years the people of the South have come to a fairly firm agreement on what their economic situation is, and what their needs are. Briefly, that agreement is that they need more fabrication of their own raw materials at home, and need the skills, employment and wages that go with fabrication, and that do not go with the primary processing of raw materials or with one-crop agriculture. You have all participated in or followed the course and development of the analysis which has led to this conclusion. I do not need to repeat it. I agree with the results completely. The people of Tennessee are as much convinced of them as the people of Louisiana or Virginia.

Let us take this agreement on the need for more fabricating as a common basis for our discussion, and go on from there. How do you get the needed fabricating?

Current Situation

The problem cannot be separated from the current situation that extends beyond the South. It is part of that situation. Some of the main elements in the current situation are these:

1st. The war is still on, and may go on for some years. The full force of reconversion will not come at once, but may come in two parts: one part after the war in Europe, and the rest after Tokyo is taken. The war industries of the South (with the exception of shipbuilding) will have a little more time to convert to peacetime uses than the industries of some other parts of the Nation. Ten Southern states with one-tenth of the manufacturing capacity of the country got about 4% of the total war contracts and about 5% of the new plant and equipment.

2nd. The South has as yet very little independent industry outside of its tobacco and textile plants. It follows that the reconversion and expansion of Southern industry will not be considered by the industries involved solely from the viewpoint of the South. It will be part of plans made for both Northern and Southern plants in the various industrial centers.

3d. Other areas of the Nation are following the Tennessee Valley Authority example, and are getting ready for regionalization. The South will have even more competition for industries than it has had before. These areas include the Gulf Coast of Texas, the Missouri Valley, California, the Northwest and even New England. This is not equal competition. Some of these new regions have fewer people to offer as potential markets than has the Southeast. Some can offer cheap electric power as an inducement, as the Tennessee Valley Authority region can do, some cannot. Few can offer equally convenient access to water transportation. Few can offer the long growing or outdoor working season. Few can offer the low cost wood, coal or fibre materials. But they have other advantages and skills, and are going to try to make the most of them.

4th. The people of the Nation are getting to a position where they will have more concentrated spending power in their hands than they have ever had since the beginning of time. They are also becoming more aware that they need a national income level of 140 billion dollars to keep all of them employed and to keep up their standard of living. Before the election is over the people generally may be convinced that both parties have committeed themselves to produce such a high level of income, and will be ready to throw out any party that fails to deliver it up to the last dollar.

While the South does not have a full share of the accumulated savings of the Nation, it has great sums. These sums are sufficient to absorb much more Southern-made consumer and durable goods than ever before. They are even great enough to allow for a considerable Southern investment in Southern enterprise.

5th. The Tennessee Valley Authority is having a constructive influence in the South in that people are coming to realize that they can meet and overcome man-made difficulties as well as acts of God, such as floods. They have found in the Tennessee Valley Authority an instrument of unity and progress that does not upset states rights. It aids in doing regionally what none of the states could do alone. No one of them alone could have redressed the economic unbalance of the 1920's which took out the lumber and coal and young men of the South to Detroit and paid so little for them that the people of the South could not buy back the products of Detroit. It required national action and regional development to redress that balance. The result is that the income of the people in the Tennessee Valley was increasing much faster than the income of the Nation before the war (76% compared to 56%).

6th. At the same time, it is uncertain whether the South or any of the non-industrial regions can expect much more support from the Congress than they have been getting. Most of the Southern Representatives are very alive to the problems of development. Outside of some public works expenditure on rivers, roads and possibly swamp drainage, it is doubtful that the Congress is presently inclined to do anything very much to stimulate the industrial development of the regions. Possibly a continuation of industrial research by the Smaller War Plants Corporation might be secured. More accurately, let me put it this way: Unless the regions put very definite plans before the Congress and unless they also join hands in promoting those plans, the underdeveloped regions, including the South, can probably expect no major help from the Congress. That statement applies to surplus property disposal as well as everything else.

Finally, the post-war development of the South will begin to take shape in an atmosphere of uncertainty about the position of the United States as an exporting and importing nation, and that uncertainty will affect the regions desiring expansion, such as the South and West, more than the regions already heavily industrialized. At the end of the last war and again at the end of the "new era" in the late twenties, our unemployment made us panicky, and we rushed to keep out all foreign goods--and thereby to lose our foreign markets as fast as we could. Later we found out that we had cut off our noses to save our faces, but there is no real guarantee that we will not do this again. Such decisions, of course, affect the cotton-exporting part of the South directly and profoundly. But they also affect the whole great expansion of the Nation to the basis of a 140 billion dollar income, and the development of the regions depends on that expansion. It cannot be undertaken without that expansion. It may help greatly in creating that expansion, but if we are going to contract and diminish our foreign trade, we are also going to contract generally, and there will be no regional expansion, and no notable Southern expansion.

I have mentioned these seven factors in the current situation, because our task of securing fabrication for the South will be determined in part by the manner in which the people of the South utilize these factors. They are not all unfavorable.

Let us come back for a moment to the type of fabrication we want for the South. It consists of those industries for which local raw materials are available, and which have a high value added by manufacturing per wage earner, a relatively high annual wage, and a high remaining amount for profits and interest payments.

Typical of the type of industries which meet these tests are:

Drugs and medicines, vegetable shortenings, soap, flour and mill products, sugar refining, blast furnace products, feeds, evaporated and condensed milk, meat packing, industrial chemicals, paints, pigments and varnishes, petroleum refining. These are only a few.

Several basic developments in the South are already indicated. The phosphate rock of Florida will in time supersede the smaller deposits in Tennessee, and the South will be able to retain what is left of its soil. So the basic soil situation should gradually improve. Perhaps it will improve to the point where seven Southeastern states will pay as much for farm labor as for fertilizer instead of less. Similarly, the iron and steel industry of Birmingham may reasonably expect to continue as one of the lowest cost steel producers in the country -- subject only to the discovery of additional ore.

Next, the discovery of oil in Florida and the expectations for further discovery along the Eastern Gulf Coast furnish the makings for an increased chemical industry, including plastics.

Next, the recent developments in wood waste use may put the low grade Southern woods into use on a more intensive basis, including plastics. The South has a definite advantage over other forest areas because of the faster rate of growth.

Next, the recent development of lower cost driers and deep freeze appliances should affect both the dairying and vegetable growing functions of the South favorably.

New Research in the South

There are other things in the making. In South Carolina a plant to produce alumina from clay is probably also going to produce a good cement, and the split of by-product costs may make this a real development. This is also a possible industry for Georgia. In Arkansas there is a renewed interest in ceramics development, and low cost ceramics space heaters and toilet appliances may result. The U. S. Bureau of Mines' laboratory at Norris has been working on refractories of importance to the steel industry, including the substitution of South Carolina topaz for Indian kyanite. It has also been working on the possibilities of Southern production of medium-priced chinaware of the type which has in the past been largely imported from Japan.

The large tungsten deposit uncovered during the war in Northern North Carolina might come into successful competition with low-cost foreign tungsten if ways are found to produce both tungsten metal and tungsten bronzes on the spot. The Bureau of Mines' laboratory at Raleigh is working on this. In North Carolina work on sponge iron is also going on, which may help a local development of wrought iron. In Florida the beach sands are yielding rutile which is useful as a coating for welding rods, and zircon which is a refractory material.

During the war some work has been going on to produce alcohol in one case and starch in another from sweet potatoes (Ala.), new processes for rice preparation that keep the vitamins (Ark.), pulpwood from pine stumps and tannin from scrub oak (Fla.), new fibres, such as ramie (Fla.), "hardwood" from Georgia pine through new processes (Ga.), wall board from mineral products (Ky.), heating insulation with rice hulls (Lsa.), bamboo reinforcing for concrete farm buildings (S. C.), pulp from bagasse (Lsa.), alcohol from farm wastes (Miss.), high frequency electronics for boll weevil control (Tex.), cotton fibres in plastic laminates (Tex.), laminated lumber (Va.), new carding machinery for coarse cloth (N. C.), agar for lubricants and medicines (N. C.), vacuum dehydration of fruits and vegetables (Ga.), and improved transportation refrigeration (Fla.)

I wish to point out that most of the work on these processes has been carried on during the war to save the use of some critical raw material or to render unnecessary the expansion of high cost equipment in the standard process. Some of them have met strenuous opposition. Some have been stopped. In many of them the work has not been carried on as yet to a point where reliable cost figures have been obtained. In other words, the interested question of the South has not yet been answered: "Are these new processes or new uses for its raw materials competitive in quality and price?" Yet until this question has been answered, the value of the work will be lost to the South.

Industrial research is without doubt absolutely necessary if this region or any region is to find out what new uses its raw materials can serve, and at what costs and prices the new products can be produced. Yet in the main the industrial concerns that might undertake such research, already have products that are now standard products, and any new products from new sources would be competitive with them. This situation can be a greater handicap to the South than adverse rail rates, and we all know that adverse rail rates can be a real road block.

Involved in this problem is the fate of small business and industry, or of independent business and industry. These people cannot individually afford costly experimentation. New processes, new materials, new uses alone would make them independent or keep them independent, and they cannot afford the necessary technological staff and equipment to get or keep their independence. If we are to keep this and other types of research into the use of our materials going, our Southern businessmen will probably have to split the laboratory costs or call on the various Governmental research agencies to do the work for them. This might be contracted out through the Smaller War Plants Corporation, which is supposed to aid and protect small and independent business.

There are also a great number of German patents and processes now open to everyone for a small fee, and it may be that Southern businessmen can find among them a few that would be helpful to the South.

An important question immediately arises, however. All the work done by Government research organizations, including the Bureau of Mines in my own Department, immediately becomes available to everybody else in the country. Any patents taken out as a result of such research work can be licensed by anyone anywhere for a nominal fee. The Government, representing all people, can and probably should do nothing else. The people of the South, however, may want to have some exclusive rights for awhile on processes valuable to the South, so that this approach has to be considered carefully. It may be more desirable for the business people of the South to pay for their own research, and have the exclusive use of the results for a period of time sufficient for them to get started on production. But here again, a new process or a new use of Southern raw materials should not get started on such a high-price basis that will prevent widespread acceptance of the new produce, and large employment.

Major Problems

Let us look for a moment at your other major difficulties which stand in the way of securing more fabrication. The freight situation still prevails that Southern class rates put a 37% handicap on industries wishing to locate in the South and ship into Northern markets. Where a ton of freight moving between two Northern points on a class rate costs $10.00, freight moving from South to North costs $13.70 (Bureau of Investigation and Research). Where $3.70 per ton is an important part of the total cost of a product, this rate situation is a real handicap. This can be handled through the Southern Governors and the I.C.C. -- at least there are channels open, whatever the delay may be.

It is also possible for the people of the South to use the freight rate structure to prevent the worst type of industrialization, the crowding together of more hundreds of thousands of people into the large cities. That trend has been worse in the South in recent years than elsewhere. Low-cost electric power makes it possible to distribute industry throughout the smaller towns instead of piling up great industrial slums, but the freight rate structure at present does not help that development. It is possible for the people of the South to make the freight rate structure have entirely different effects, if they care to do so. (Mr. Lilienthal has made this suggestion on several occasions.)

Our other major difficulty is in securing financing for independent Southern industries. Low-cost financing is essential for industries which need some years to get going. Perhaps the simplest illustration is in turpentine gum farming. The income from 5000 workable trees averages only $180. annually during the first ten years. After several decades it goes up to $665. A man needs money to carry him through the first years or he cannot start at all, and the money must be at rates that will not sink him in the process. For example, you have to borrow $1,000 at 6% and can't pay off until after ten years, you then have to pay $1,790. At 2% you have to pay off $1,219. The lower interest rate saves you $571. or more than half as much as the original loan itself. Much development in the South can become possible at 2% interest per year that would never become possible at 6%. The ability of the REAs to bring light and power to so many Southern farms has obviously been due in a large part to their access to low-cost capital.

Here, then, are the three major hurdles, difficulty in securing access to the technological processes that might make new uses out of Southern raw materials, difficulty in securing access to markets and difficulty in securing access to low-cost capital.

These are the old handicaps. Is there anything in the current situation which makes it more possible for you to overcome them? I mentioned several such factors earlier in this discussion. The fact that more money is now available for investment is one of the most helpful parts of the new situation. The fact that other undeveloped regions are also stirring may be helpful if the South needs Congressional support. The fact that most of the South has less of a conversion problem than other areas is to the good. The Tennessee Valley Authority experience is to the good. The determination of people in the whole country to get and keep a very high level of national income is also helpful. The industrial research work already undertaken in the South is a good beginning. Added together, these probably spell as good an opportunity for the South as it will have in another fifty years, in spite of the difficulties in your way.

Let me state here my belief that the South should be developed by its own people and not by the Government. The Government can and should aid people to get started. The big automobile boom of the 1920s that picked us up after the last war was based on an expenditure of billions by Federal, State and local governments for good roads to replace the mud roads. The equivalent of that automobile boom after this war may be created by enormous regional expansion, and it would be proper for the Government to help in cleaning up the mud holes in the road of such a boom, as it did before. The freight rates are already being worked on, in part. That leaves the problems of technological research and low-cost financing.

Self-Financed Cooperative Research

I would suggest for your consideration the possibility that the businessmen and agricultural groups of the South unite in financing the necessary industrial research for the South to the extent of $1,000,000 a year for five years. They could secure laboratory and pilot plant equipment of almost every type needed from surplus property stocks at low cost. They could pick up all the War Production Board research undertaken during the war, all the Bureau of Mines, the Tennessee Valley Authority, and the Forest Service research, the alien patents, and go on from there, and see what they can develop. Each group of industries could have the things in which they are most interested tried out in laboratories and pilot plants. The results would be patented by the group and made available only to the groups participating in the expense, for use inside the South for a period of years. That would be the dividend to each group. Ten or fifteen tryouts might be failures, but each success might well pay out for the 10 or 15 failures.

There would be a high degree of risk in such a joint experiment undertaking, but people occasionally take high risks, as they did when they financed exploration for gold. Technology is the modern gold of the South. I believe that it might even be possible that if the public had confidence in the engineering soundness of the management it would invest some risk capital in the proposition. Anyone buying stock in a chemical, electrical, metallurgical, or paper company in those days is really investing in their laboratories, for their laboratories are the main hope of each company for besting the competition. This would be an investment in a laboratory for the whole South.

I realize that there are many difficulties involved in any such proposition. If the participating agricultural groups wanted research carried on in the field of low-cost motor fuel from begasse or wood waste, the oil companies might not want it carried on. Or if the oil companies wanted research on one type of plastics, the lumbering people might prefer to give priority to another type with a cellulose base. It would be necessary to have a governing board that would not stifle competition, but would give every group a full opportunity to have its technological ideas tried out and get a fair run for its money. It may be difficult, but it seems to me manageable by the business and agricultural groups of the South.

Problem of Low-Cost Financing

We come finally to the problem of low-cost financing. I think that the banks ought to do all the short-term financing. At the same time there are long-term financing needs that the banks cannot meet and yet which have to be met if the South is to be developed. The turpentine grower I mentioned before illustrates this. The Tennessee Valley Authority also illustrates it, on a larger scale. The Government will get back all the money spent by the Tennessee Valley Authority on power developments, but because so much other money was needed for flood control and navigation, the full development of the river basin would have been left undone if the Government had not financed the job.

I frankly do not know where to suggest drawing the line. I can see that the banks would do a much larger short-term loan business with a developed and thriving industrial South than they would do with a 1939 or a 1929 South. But they may not see it that way. I can also see that development of the South on a basis of 2% interest is preferable to no development on the basis of 6%. I can also see that a bank loaning money to a company producing one product would not be interested in loaning money at low rates to a company producing a competitive product. But I cannot see how that situation helps either the competition or enterprise you nee in the South.

You may wish to note the fact that some business groups are quite unaware of the importance of low interest rates on post-war development. The National Association of Real Estate Board is circulating a proposal that local community development authorities be set up to acquire land and to contract for housing developments. The proposal is that they be financed Federally either through non-interest bearing loans, or that the tax laws be amended to make any investment in the bonds a proper deduction from net income. The purpose of the proposal is to avoid public housing, and keep the housing field in private hands. The significant fact is the realization that low-cost or no-cost money has to be used as a basis for a really large housing program.

There is a possibility here that the Smaller War Plants Corporation, whose director is convinced of the absolute dependence of independent business on low-cost capital, may set the pace, not only for the South but for the whole country. The Congress seems interested in helping the small and independent businessman to keep whatever opportunities he has left, and may support developmental loans at 3% or less.

It is, I think, necessary to tie action on all these three major problems together, to have a combined developmental group for all the States of the South in which the people can have confidence. It should unify and keep the people of the region informed of all the steps undertaken and proposed in regard to all of these matters, and the results achieved. It should lay before the people and perhaps the Congress the key problems, such as those involved in low-cost financing, and try to work out the solutions which will best serve the South. The Tennessee Valley Authority would, I am sure, give leadership in this matter for part of the region, if that part so desired. The other areas might profitably unite their promotional work. The South is a region of the Nation, and in these days of great opportunity before it, should act as a region rather than as a group of separate interests. It probably never had a better chance in recent years to hurry up its future.

Advantages of Well-Tried Investment

There is a very definite financial reward to business and food farming from such combined action, if such action succeeds in concentrating both public works investment and the investment in private plant construction within a few years rather than spacing them over a longer period. This is especially true at a time when the main job is to avert unemployment. The stimulating effect on business, industry and food farming during the early years of such a period, in my personal opinion, outweighs by far the effects of staggered investment. I think that every dollar spent then has the curative effects of $2.50 invested at a more leisurely rate.

Let me illustrate. If two Southern or Western states can each reasonably expect a public and private construction investment of 120 million within the next five years, the State (say, Louisiana) which can manage to concentrate that investment in the first two years will probably get an additional secondary spending effect of 180 million in the first two years out of the original investment, or a total of 300 million.

The other State, (say Georgia) which staggers the investment evenly throughout the five years will get only 68 million in secondary spending in the first two years in addition to the original investment of 48 million. It would put only $116 million into the job of preventing unemployment in the crucial period compared to Louisiana's $300 million. It would, of course, get the rest in later years.

If the major contention is correct, that the first years of unemployment are the critical years in which the trend can be reversed most effectively, then Louisiana would be concentrating $2.50 of actual spending on the first two years to every dollar that Georgia would concentrate in those two years.

In fact, the situation may be worse than this if the people in the second state are caught in the fear of unemployment. Then the rate of non-spending may drop from 1/3 to 1/2, and in the whole five year period Georgia might never get as much actual purchasing out of its original investment as Louisiana would get in three years. Its loss over the whole period might run to 90 million, or 3/4 of the original investment.

These estimates are necessarily very rough, but they do point up the financial advantage prior to a period of possible unemployment of such combined regional action as was suggested above.

MEMORANDUM TO: All Executive Board Members. April 25, 1945

FROM: James A. Dombrowski

SUBJECT: Recent Events.

1) Conference with William Green. Following the board meeting on April 4, Dr. Foreman and I had a very satisfactory interview with William Green. We discussed mutual cooperation between the AFL and SCHW. Mr. Green agreed to write an article for the Patriot, and said he would arrange for an interview later in the month between Dr. Foreman and Mr. Googe, who is expected in Washington.

2) Institute of Human Relations. From Washington I went to Chapel Hill to attend the biennial Institute of Human Relations, conducted by the University of North Carolina, on the theme: The Price of Peace.

3) The second week in April I spent two days in Atlanta, attending the conference sponsored by the Southern Regional Council, on postwar economic problems of the South. From Atlanta I went back to Chapel Hill to attend the Conference of Southern Students, to discuss plans for world organization. This student meeting grew out of the Institute of the previous week. The meeting was initiated and underwritten by the SCHW. Fifty delegates from that number of colleges and universities from all of the 13 Southern states met at Chapel Hill for a one-day conference. About one-third of the delegates were from Negro schools. Two students, Douglas Hunt of the University of North Carolina, and Sgt. Maurice Clifford of Meharry Medical College were elected to go to San Francisco to represent Southern students as observers and to make reports to the Southern student press. The State Department has given tentative assurances that they will receive tickets for the public sessions. Detailed plans for mobilizing the college campuses for peace and for greater participation in international affairs were discussed. A permanent organization was established, the Conference of Southern Students, with Charles Proctor of Fisk University as president, Douglas Hunt of the University of North Carolina executive secretary and treasurer, and with an executive committee of 13 consisting of one delegate from each of the Southern states. The only incident to mar the very successful conference was the unfortunate automobile accident in which board member Helen Fuller suffered a laceration of the scalp and a slight concussion. She is at present in the Duke Hospital at Durham, N.C.

4) Tennessee Citizens Political Action Committee. At a meeting of the TC-PAC in Nashville on April 22, it was unanimously voted to affiliate with the SCHW. A committee was appointed to interview three candidates for the position of executive secretary of the committee. Membership cards will be printed at once and state areas were authorized to begin a membership campaign. Plans were discussed for mobilizing wide interest in the Tennessee Valley and to defend the TVA and to secure the reappointment of Lilienthal.

5) On April 24 a group met in Nashville, representing the states in the Tennessee Valley area, and composed of men who had carried the fight in the last three years to defeat attacks on the TVA. The immediate concern of the group was to defeat the present efforts of Senator McKellar to change the financial structure of the TVA (the Byrd-Butler bill now before the Senate Banking and Currency Committee) and to remove the present chairman, David Lilienthal.

The executive secretary was a member of the group. Extensive plans were laid for a campaign to defeat the present Senate bill and assure the reappointment of Lilienthal. The board members in TVA states are urged to get as many organizations as possible to send telegrams to the President, urging the reappointment of Lilienthal, and to Sen. Robert Wagner, Chairman, Senate Banking and Currency Committee, opposing the Byrd-Butler bill.

6) Roosevelt memorial issue of the Southern Patriot is enclosed. The May issue will be devoted exclusively to the problem of health in the South. A number of original graphic charts have been prepared. It is anticipated that this issue will be one of the most useful thus far. It will include a 4-page supplement on the Hugo Black testimonial dinner.

7) A Virginia Citizens' Political Action Committee has been organized, with Robert Johnson of Portsmouth, Virginia, appointed as a fulltime executive secretary. Headquarters will be opened in Richmond the first of May. The Virginia committee was formed through the initiative of the state CIO group, and is an independent organization.

8) A Committee for Kentucky has been organized, as "a fact-finding committee whose objective is the welfare of all of Kentucky." Mr. Harry W. Schacter of Louisville is chairman. Address of the Committee is 427 Fourth Street, Louisville 2. I have written the committee for a sufficient number of copies of the prospectus to send to each member of the board.

Cooperation on the Color Line

What is Happening in the South

By Alva W. Taylor

IN THE SOUTH, and now, as large Negro populations increase in northern cities, in the north as well, the color line is a cast line. It rests on the Nazi theory of racial superiority and inferiority in contradiction to the findings of science, the principles of democracy and the teachings of Christianity. It arose out of slavery and was irritated into a post emancipation mores by the "carpet-bag" reconstruction era. There is a new south arising in the old, but custom, the mores and racial prejudice, rooted in tradition, brings conflict between the old and the new. And now, fear of what the returning Negro service men and women may demand has sharpened the fears and inflamed the prejudices of those extremists who fear to even consider giving the Negro equitable rights as a man and a citizen. And one hears talk of the Ku Klux type and threats of violence to "keep the nigger in his place." This makes the new approach to the problem, recited in this article, promising.

A group of some seventy Negro leaders from ten Southern states met some months ago in Durham, North Carolina, and organized the Southern Conference on Race Relations. There were no northern Negroes or white southerners invited. Northern Negros were omitted from the invitation list because so many of them demand radical measures that their leaders in the south know cannot at any one time be inaugurated. White southerners and all other whites were left out because these intelligent, resourceful and constructive leaders of the Negroes in the south wished to present their own realistic and workable program for the betterment of race relations.

The chairman of the conference, Dr. Gordon B. Hancock, stated the purpose as that of "proposing to draft a new charter of race relations in the south. The old charter is paternalistic and traditional. We want a new charter that is scientific and fraternalistic."

White southerners who are devoted to the cause of justice toward the southern Negro have commented favorably upon the conference and its findings. Virginius Dabney, editor of the Richmond Times-Dispatch, said: "I have been gratified by the uniformly favorable reception which your statement has received. At least, I have seen no unfavorable reaction anywhere." Dr. Samuel C. Mitchell, of the University of Richmond, called it "a statesmanlike paper," and added: "It is able, candid and effective. It should mark an epoch in the cause of goodwill between the races in the south. More important, perhaps than any single statement is the fact of the trained leadership of the Negroes and the increasing part it is destined to play in the future." Ralph McGill, editor of the Atlanta Constitution, made the following comment: "It will be most unfortunate if the south does not discuss calmly and intelligently the basis for interracial cooperation advanced recently by a group of southern Negroes. It was something which has been needed for a long time; a declaration of policy by southern Negroes representing 70 per cent of all the nation's Negroes, in a section which has 25 per cent of all the nation's native-born whites, and the least economic resources for meeting problems involving both."

They went on record first for loyalty to the United States and "all out" for winning the war, but said that this does not "preclude consideration now of problems and situations that handicap the working out of internal improvements in relations essential to our full contribution to the war effort and of the inevitable problems of post-war reconstruction, especially in the south where we reside." They oppose compulsory segregation without advocating social intermingling and deplore any action on the part of Negroes that incite deep prejudices or racial antagonism. They ask for equal civil rights, the abolition of the poll tax and the white primary and all forms of discriminatory practice, especially in the courts of justice. They protest exclusion of Negroes from jury service and the abuses frequently visited by officers of the law upon their people. They ask that where there is segregation, as on railroads, provisions be made equal in quality and that members of the race be represented upon governmental boards where their interests are at stake. They advocate a federal law on lynching if the states refuse to adequately provide for its suppression.

THEY demand equal pay for equal work and an equal chance to attain position on any task for which ability qualifies them, for full recognition to union membership and a part in collective bargaining. They regard the wage-freezing order as a disadvantage because of the low-wage scale and discriminatory practices toward them at the time the scales were frozen. They remind the south that an increase of their economic and cultural development will react to the good of all through increased intelligence and purchasing power. A depressed group of people are expensive to social welfare to say nothing of the suffering entailed.

They ask for equality in educational facilities supported by taxation and remind the south of the great progress they have made even under the handicap they suffer in school facilities. In agriculture, where millions of them in the south still earn their living, they ask simply for full protection of the law and for economic justice through written contracts, longer leases, higher farm wages, equal assistance where government distributes funds both for teaching of agriculture and in giving credit for rehabilitation.

Reminding the government that their sacrifices were the same as that of the white soldiers, they asked equal recognition in all military matters. Suffering as they do from low income, poor social conditions, and discriminatory practice, they ask in the name of not only their race, but of common humanity that all provisions for health be extended to them on a basis equal to that of their white neighbors and that they be given equality of service in hospital, health offices, the training of doctors, nurses and of their practice wherever their people need them.

THEY conclude their resolutions by saying: "The effect of the war has been to make the Negro in a sense the symbol and protagonist of every other minority in America and in the world at large. Local issues in the south, while admittedly holding many practical difficulties, must be met wisely and courageously if this nation is to become a significant political entity in a new international world. The correction of these problems is not only a moral matter but a practcial necessity in the winning of the war and in winning the peace. Herein rests the chance to reveal our greatest weakness or our greatest strength."

The obvious effort of this group of educated and highly intelligent southern Negro leaders is to be realistic in requesting equal treatment without going to those extremes in demand that they know will only increase antagonism and deepen prejudice among that class in the south who are filled with fear at the spectre of what they call social equality, meaning thereby not only social intermingling but an arbitrary segregation of which the Atlanta Constitution says: "The facts are, of course, that segregation never meant what it has come to mean. It means merely a separation. It has come to mean, as every person of even average powers of observation know, 'nigger shacks,' no pavements, no playgrounds, no conveniences, and other instances of exploitation and mistreatment. Those things should be, must be, corrected if any city is to improve its financial and political status. If the southern Negro leaders, asking for the cooperation of the majority race, do not receive encouragement, then the south will have failed the first effort by southern Negro leadership along realistic lines."

A little later about one hundred white southern men and women of goodwill, all influential people, met in Atlanta and gave thoughtful consideration to the program proposed by the Durham conference. The result was a hearty adoption of it as a working basis of inter-racial cooperation. Then a chosen group, representing both groups, met in Richmond to plan ways and means to instrument their resolutions. Out of it came the Southern Regional Council, the merging of the time honored inter-racial committee into it and the establishment of offices in Atlanta with both white and colored secretaries. They publish a bulletin — The Southern Frontier — devoted largely to research and information.

The possible weakness of the council has been inherent in three things, as this writer sees it. It was manned by academicians, its membership was limited to invitations and it was in danger of an over-stressing of research to the prejudice of organized action. The Southern Conference for Human Welfare has the advantage of having its major support come from men and women of action under the guidance of a well educated leadership who well know the value of research and information, and it is severely democratic in that it invites into membership all progressives, not just those some guiding committee may think agreeable to their purposes.

The value of the council will be in action based upon sound fact and a motivation at once both democratic and Christian. Any new or contemporaneous facts it puts into its bulletin will be welcomed and useful, but we may say of it as Norman Angel reminded us years ago, that there is enough known today to change society for the better in every way, but what is needed is organized action to bring the reforms. Their recent appointment of an able white southerner to work with Negroes on postwar and reconversion problems is a promising sign of action.

NOTE: Since above was written and now, just as it is being mailed to The Churchman, the council has reversed its policy, elected a layman president, resolved to seek the widest possible membership by welcoming all who are interested and resolving to emphasize action rather than research, doing only such research as policies of action require.

The Successor to War

The New Principle—World Government

By Elmore McKee
Rector, St. George's Church, New York

HISTORY may be viewed as a study in the progress of great ideas. The great idea which is up front now is that of World Government. And it will stay up front unless man himself is to go off-stage altogether.

Seventy competing sovereignties cannot police the atom. Only one authority can police the atom. The U.N.O. will try. That is the beginning of World Government. Such a beginning should force the U.N.O., organized before Hiroshima, to re-open the whole question of international organization in the light of the fateful parachute dropped on Hiroshima. The U.N.O. represented prerevolutionary progress. Hiroshima was the revolution which telescoped history. World organization must keep up with the revolution. When the earth-centered astronomy of the Ptolomies gave way to the sun-centered astronomy of Copernicus, men's horizons were completely revolutionized. Atom-splitting is Revolution 1945. In a world made so small that one man's voice can now address the entire global audience, seventy competing sovereignties have for a long time looked stupid. Now the split-atom forces the seventy into a huddle to survive at all. World government becomes postrevolutionary, inevitable Idea. Europe's present political and economic chaos, and its war breeding despair and nihilism, further dramatize with poignant urgency the need for a new principle to give the new answer to a stale defeatism.

The new principle is World Government. It was proclaimed when Norman Cousin's Saturday Review editorial "Modern Man Is Obsolete" became an instant national sensation; when Einstein went to the microphone and told us all to read Emory Reeve's The Anatomy of Peace, and when Captain Harold Stassen, Ernest Bevin and Anthony Eden gave the same lead, each in his own way. World Government is no longer the panacea of parsons, but the practical plan of post-revolutionary realists. If Switzerland can combine under one authority one million German speaking people, as Germanic as any in the Reich and three million French speaking citizens, as Gallic as any in the French Republic, how much greater would be the benefits which Germans and French, who in the past have fought each other along the borders of Switzerland, would derive if one authority were to unite in constructive usefulness the two parent bodies. And did not Churchill say to France in 1940, "Let us form one nation out of two?" All this was in the cards long before Hiroshima. Now the plan for union becomes Priority I, as the atom says to us all: "Channel me constructively or I will catapult you right off your precarious position on the planet."

World Government would be based on two principles. First, no secession. Just as Pennsylvania cannot now secede from the Union because of an interstate commerce disagreement with New York, but will rather demand and accept a settlement from Washington, so the United States would not be able to secede from World Government because of regional trade practices of Argentina, but would demand and accept a settlement from World Government.

Second, no aggression. Once war almost broke out between Vermont, New Hampshire and New York. But fortunately the pressures to organize a "New-World Government" for the early colonies were stronger than the pressures to fight it out on the colonial front. So under World Government, Argentina and the United States would know that the right to use force would rest only with the Center. Thus true peace, which is order based on law, would give the nations their first rich opportunity to use all their energies for constructive purposes. What relief would follow the removal of the burden and fear of war!

The plan can succeed for these reasons:

First, because the instinct of self-preservation is aroused. In spite of all our earthly vicissitudes, we enjoy living. What a chance we would take if we put our faith in counter-weapons to atomic bombs, or in the securities of shelters 3,000 feet below ground. Either way we take a chance. World Government is the creative risk.

Second, because scarcity, a basic urge to conflict, has been removed. The atomic age almost guarantees new abundance for all nations.

Third, because man is skillful. If we are skillful enough to plan those intricacies in technical achievement and human cooperation which we call military invasion, skillful enough now to produce a bomb to wipe out an area the size of Indiana and Illinois, at one blow, we are skillful enough to channel these new powers constructively and to learn to work together.

Fourth, because man's capacity for cooperation is greater than his will to compete. Our proclivities to war have been obvious because the strain of competing sovereignties has kept them in readiness. Just as soon as World Government eliminates the strain of a now obsolete competition, then the more fundamental human drives, the demand of each man for relationship, for the end of loneliness, for the achievement of an effective place in the community, will have right of way to lead us into an era of cooperation. Every family is World Government in embryo. The family fact is stronger than the individual fact. It will be so, too, with the world family, once the power of the Center (World Government) gets under way.

Of course World Government is not a new Idea. It is as old as Christianity. Universality was the revolutionary idea presented by Christianity. In the sight of the one God all men are of equal value.

Atlanta.... Ga.

Dear Dr.Mitchell.

Encl. is an article I wrote for the Churchman. Please note the added paragraph in italics. I understand SRC sent Mrs Tilley to Columbia. We would like very much to have a copy of any report she made or anything else done. Our Com. is to meet tomorrow again, now that we can feel pretty sure of our ground, to see whether or not we can do anything from this distance. This is not a SCHW Com. but one we induced the Pres. of the Laymans Council, a forward looking attorney to call.

I am pleased to know that SRC sent Mrs Tilley up. She is real gold; even more so that they sent her after my experience before the meeting we had here with representatives of NAACP, Civ. Liberties U and Fed. for Constitutional Liberties. They scoffed at my suggestion that we ask SCR to take the leadership in the whole matter. Your appointment for an action task and the turn in policy at the recent meeting of your Com. have me confidence, but it seems the others do not share it yet; we may hope they will be convinced they can by what is done on this Columbia matter.

Sincerely

Dombrowski Offices May Be Moved to New Orleans

Nashville Banner
about 8-11-46

The Southern Conference for Human Welfare, Communist front outfit, which took a beating along with the CIO-PAC in their joint effort to defeat Senator K. D. McKellar, will move its headquarters from Nashville to New Orleans, according to a well authenticated report received by THE BANNER.

It is assumed that James Dombrowski, long the executive head of the organization, will take charge of the offices in New Orleans, where the Communist Party is making a desperate effort to form an active unit.

The Nashville headquarters of the SCHW are now located at 212½ Union Street.

Dombrowski has left a red trail across Tennessee and the South. He was one of the founders of the Highlander Folk School, which has been called the Southern center for spreading the Communist doctrine.

Closely associated with him has been Mrs. Margaret Frantz, well known fellow traveler and former employe of the war-time Soviet purchasing commission in Washington.

Since he has had offices in Nashville, the SCHW administrator has been engaged in various types of agitation, which was climaxed by the inflammatory report gotten out by the Conference on the Columbia incident. Because of this Dombrowski was called to testify before the Federal Grand Jury.

In its booklet, "Don't Say We Didn't Warn You," the Constitutional Educational League has this to say of Dombrowski:

"Taking a leading part in both the PAC and CIO Southern campaigns is James Dombrowski, excutive secretary of the Southern Conference for Human Welfare . . . Dombrowski found out how to train agitators during a sojourn in Soviet Russia in 1932. On returning to this country he had a little trouble with the Customs over some Communist posters in his baggage . . .

"In 1940 Dombrowski was speaking for the National Conference for Constitutional Liberties, which the Department of Justice has held to be subversive, and in 1941 he signed a public statement defending the Communist Party . . ."

Communist writers and organizers moved into Columbia after the SCHW's exploitation of the incident. Since that time Dombrowski has been listed on speaking programs of the National Negro Congress and the PAC School in Washington.

At the present time it is not known whether, if the SCHW headquarters move to New Orleans, a "cell" will be left in Nashville. It is known, however, that Dombrowski has gathered about him a number of fellow travelers,

THE CITY'S GAIN

ON THE prospective move of the Southern Conference for Human Welfare from Nashville, we would congratulate the city. At the same time, we extend condolences to New Orleans, where, it is reliably reported, James Dombrowski and his coworkers are to establish their home base.

The good sense and general, patriotic decency of Nashville—of Middle Tennesse; yea, of the whole state—blocked the SCHW's major escapades in this area. They saw it for what it was when the spotlight of constant exposure was held on it; they recognized its aims by its preaching, its intended fruit by the plant. At every turn, it has been adequately exposed as an agency of social and political insurrection; a tool of Communism; hence a chronic, professional trouble-maker.

Why it chooses New Orleans as a landing spot we cannot say. Possibly it imagines it will encounter there no opposition, but if we know the New Orleans Times-Picayune and the Item, its shenanigans won't go undetected and unpublicized. It doesn't like that—in Nashville OR New Orleans. It doesn't like the formula of exposure to which it has been treated here.

It doesn't like THE BANNER or the spirit of Americanism which deprived it of a foothold. The dislike is mutual.

Pastors Approve Blow to Machine

Athens, Tenn., Ministers Say Veterans' Seizure by Force of Primary Ballot Boxes Was Gesture for Freedom

MEMPHIS, TENN., Aug. 29.—Ministers of two churches in Athens, Tenn., spoke approvingly of the action of former service men who stormed the local jail during the recent primary and recovered ballot boxes which had been taken there for "safe counting" by the political machine which for a decade has run the county. "Sometimes things get so bad men have to take the law into their own hands," Paul Huling of the East Athens Baptist Church told his congregation the following Sunday. "We should like to get rid of such [machine] rule in a quiet, orderly manner, but when that becomes impossible, we must fight back as best we can to recover our liberties." Bernie Hampton, Methodist pastor who headed the three-man commission which ran the town for several weeks after the election, said on the same Sunday: "I believe God's hand guided many of those who participated in this little revolution." Latest news is that some members of the deposed machine have agreed to move away from the county and not to return.

Blame Mississippi Result On 'Outsiders'

Mississippians who know their politics smile at the suggestion that Senator Bilbo and Representative Rankin were nominated by majority vote. They know that the ballots in the key counties were counted by friends of the two men. Many maintain that the re-election of both demagogues was due to "outside interference." The two men have been political enemies for years, but because some of the support for Rankin's opponent was identified as C.I.O.-P.A.C., Bilbo joined forces with the congressman. William Gordon, who conducts a column in the Memphis World, Negro newspaper, said on the day after the primaries: "The fact that men like Bilbo, Rankin and Talmadge have been re-elected is proof that the south is still living in a dark age on which education has had but little influence. The only solution will be time itself which will carry these hatemongers to the good earth. We must be tolerant and prepare ourselves through education, so that when these monstrosities shall have become extinct we shall be able to carry on with the dignity of human beings."

Episcopal Rector Opposes Rankin

A sacrifice hit should be credited to Charles Granville Hamilton, Mississippi Episcopal minister who was drafted by a veterans' committee to oppose Rankin. Hamilton did not so much ask votes for himself as expose Rankin's record to the largest crowds attracted during the campaign. Many ministers and educators voted for Hamilton, who is perhaps the best known minister in the state. The Episcopal Church stands higher in the opinion of Mississippians because of his campaign. Church people in his district consider him a token of the religion of tomorrow because of his stand against hate, prejudice and bigotry. Too late to aid in the campaign, the Churchman, independent Episcopal magazine, said editorially: "There are preachers in politics of whom the church has been ashamed, but Hamilton is one whom the whole church should be proud to see in Congress. His example should encourage those who fought the nazis abroad. It is a help to missionaries, since it shows how some Christians can fight prejudice. Hamilton's campaign against Rankin is a token to Americans that the church can mean business when it says it is opposed to intolerance, hatemongering and persecution."

Anti-Poll Tax Fight Goes On

The fight against the poll tax has not ended. Senator Claude Pepper has promised to introduce a new bill when Congress convenes in January. The National Committee to Abolish the Poll Tax is reaffiliating with the Southern Conference for Human Welfare. Many persons not actively connected with the conference were distressed recently to read in the Memphis Commercial Appeal, hitherto not rash in its statements, a declaration that the conference is "a borderline if not an actual Communist front organization." The statement appeared in an editorial denouncing the "funeral demonstrations and memorial services currently going on for the four victims of George lynch violence." The Poll Tax Repealer, organ of the National Committee to Abolish the Poll Tax, currently describes the deal by which the anti-poll tax bill was killed in the Senate last November after it had passed the House. According to this account, the southerners promised to permit the bill to be brought up without filibustering against it. There was to be no debate, but a cloture vote was to be taken. If two-thirds of those present voted against cloture, the bill was to be shelved. On the vote for cloture, the yeas outnumbered the nays, but not by a large enough majority to bring the bill before the Senate. Opponents of the poll tax feel that this "silent method" of smothering the bill is more to be feared than the old filibuster, which at least had the virtue of keeping the matter before the public. They feel that the bill would have passed the Senate if it could have been brought to a vote.

And So Forth

H. L. Mitchell, president of the National Farm Labor Union, charges in a protest to the U. S. public health service that some physicians in Arkansas are conspiring with large cotton planters to keep farm workers from leaving the state by denying them health cards. He has also filed with the governments of Great Britain and Mexico protests against the proposed use of their nationals to beat down wages of American workers. Northeast Arkansas planters have asked for 2,500 Mexican and British subjects to pick cotton this fall.

B. Harvie Branscomb, dean of Duke University's divinity school, has been elected chancellor of Vanderbilt University, Nashville. He succeeds O. O. Carmichael, who has become president of the Carnegie Foundation.

The ministers' association of Knoxville, where the Ku Klux Klan has recently flared into activity, has passed a resolution urging all church members to refuse to countenance an organization which "stirs up class animosities, racial ill will and religious intolerance, hides behind masks and operates under cover of darkness."

LOUIS AT RALLY TO AID SOUTHERN WELFARE

A crowd estimated at 3,000 crowded West Thirty-eighth Street, between Seventh and Eighth Avenues, at noon yesterday to see—and hear—Joe Louis, heavyweight champion, and others who spoke on behalf of the Southern Conference for Human Welfare of 112 Park Avenue.

Mr. Louis said that he came because "he wanted to do something for a better South." He believed that "the people back of this organization can help do away with the poll tax and other things that make the going hard for my people."

When Mr. Louis had finished his short speech, which carried the ring of sincerity characteristic of him, the crowd pushed around him seeking a handshake. He said something like "it takes money to make the world go." He sold his necktie and later his handkerchief. It was estimated that nearly $500 was handed to him.

Councilman Michael J. Quill said that he spoke "as a trade unionist and as a member of the great Catholic community of New York."

Senator Claude Pepper, who was previously announced as a speaker, wired Clark Foreman, president of the conference, that he was absent because of the death of Senator Charles O. Andrews of Florida.

The goal set for the "Lend a Hand to Dixie Campaign" is $100,000. Other street meetings were held in Manhattan and the Bronx last night. More than $1,000 was contributed at the noon rally, it was announced.

WASHINGTON Branch of the Southern Conference for Human Welfare is a Johnny-come-lately as branches go. Originally it sort of served as the Washington lobby for the National Office located in Nashville. At the insistence of some of the colored members it has lately turned its attention to the "Southern Problems" as serious in Washington as in Meridian and Waycross.

Now comes recognition. The National Office of the Conference has finally and a bit reluctantly granted full Branch Rights to the Washington Office, and will allow it to send delegates to the convention in New Orleans in November. This, it is worthy of note in passing, sort of officially places Washington in the South.

Fight for Democracy First Appearance After 23rd Defense of Heavyweight Title

NEW YORK—In his first public appearance after the 23rd successful defense of his title, Joe Louis championed the cause of freedom and equality at a "Stop Murder, Lynch Style" rally, Sept. 19, between 7th and 8th Aves., NYC.

The rally officially opened the "Lend-a-Hand-to-Dixieland" street collection campaign of the Southern Conference for Human Welfare which continued through Sept. 21.

Before an estimated audience of 15,000 people, Mr. Louis, who is co-chairman of the campaign, said colored and white people must march together to fight all the way to freedom for all the people.

Mrs. Bethune Presents Joe

Mrs. Mary McLeod Bethune, president and founder of the Bethune-Cookman College, introduced Joe Louis as "a real fighter for the cause of humanity." Speak-f the growing unity between the minority and white people, Mrs. Bethune said, "We cry now as one voice from the Southland."

Other speakers, who called for mobilization of all progressive forces to fight for federal anti-lynching legistlation, were Paul Robeson, James W. Wise, director of the Council Against Intolerance and author of the Springfield Plan; and Councilman Michael Quill, president of the Transport Workers Union.

Senator Claude Pepper, who was unable to appear, wired: "The Southern Conference for Human Welfare has been doing a great job. It is pledging democracy. It is worthy of all possible assistance from all those who believe in the principles of our Constitution."

Dr. Foreman Speaks

Dr. Clark Foreman, president of the Southern Conference for Human Welfare, and chairman of the rally, declared that "we heartily welcome the support of all Northerners who realizes that the battle for a free South extends above the Mason-Dixon line."

Entertainers were Kenneth Spencer, Betty Garrett, Larry Winters, George Hall, Louis Jordan, Willie Bryant, Thelma Carpenter an dthe Brown Dots. Three folk singers from Texas, Johnny Faulk, "Brownie" McNeil and "Doc" Reece introduced the theme song of the "Lend a Hand to Dixieland" campaign called "The New Dixie."

Foreman Says South Not Allowed To Solve Problems

Dr. Clark Howell Foreman, president of the Southern Conference for Human Welfare, told the Hungry Club of Butler Street YMCA Wednesday that "the south is not the economic problem number one of the nation because of natural resuorces or because of inferior conditions, but because the people of the South have never been allowed to come together and work out their problems."

Speaking on "The White Group In The South," Dr. Foreman pictured the white child of the South as being subjected to such confusions of thought that it is almost impossible for him to grow up sane and rational about the Negro race. Foreman said that white people seem to forget that since some 80 percent of Negroes have white blood in the South, some of us are kindred people.

The speaker pointed out that a large percentage of white children receive nursing by Negroes, some being suckled by them, but as soon as they are old enough to be taught anything, they are instructed that there is a difference in home environment of the races. Taught Christianity, the white child goes to church to find no Negroes there. Taught democracy, they are sent to war to fight for something, but return home to find that it does not exist and that the Negro "must be kept in his place.'

INFERIORITY ACCEPTED

Even inferior working conditions are accepted by white workers rather than tolerating mixed work ers, Dr. Foreman said. "Society, from the very beginning of the child born in the South, does everything to warp and distort his mind about the true picture of hu man problems," the speaker asserted.

The Welfare Conference head said that as an Atlanta boy he had to go to London before knowing anything about the Interracial Commission which was started here and had been going for a number of years. It was there that Dr Foreman decided this was the group he wanted to work with. He aid further that "I always like to talk of things as related to human beings rather than racial, for the other group so often uses the racal angle as an excuse for its failure to do something that would better conditions for all.

Pointing to the first meeting of the Southern Conference for Human Welfare, Foreman said it had been decided that the meeting would have no segregation, but when 1,500 people from all over the South met Birmingham city officials brought out some old ordinances against the meeting of a mixed group.

Dr. Foreman said the Conference since has held meetings for eight years and in every meeting, no matter where held, there has never been any segregation and that there are Negro and white officers in all organizations throughout the South. Quite often the conference or those working with it are labeled communist. Dr. Foreman pointed out, but added that to be 'called a Communist in the South usually means that you are trying to be a human being."

THIRD PARTY TALK.

After what amounted to a repudiation of that faction of New Dealers who believe most strongly in a collectivist economy, third party talk is being heard on every hand, with HENRY WALLACE most often mentioned as the man who will lead it.

This talk was given some impetus by the conference of "progressives" in Washington three days after the election, despite the exhortation of its chairman, HENRY MORGENTHAU, that its work should be accomplished within the established parties.

WALLACE is said to have told his intimates that it will take six years to organize a third party effectively, and that he does not expect it to win in 1948 but hopes for a great victory in 1952.

The Communists, no doubt, will prefer MORGENTHAU's plan, because it is their customary practice, when they are working in a country that is generally hostile to them, to infiltrate into established organizations.

The unfortunate aspect of this trickery is that too many persons who do not intend to be associated with Communists and who are really patriotic Americans are deceived into believing that they are merely supporting a "progressive" element.

A list of those who attended the conference at Washington illustrates this point perfectly, because it contains the names of radicals who are known to be openly sympathetic with communism alongside many others who would be shocked if they were accused of being fellow travelers and who really believe they are doing their country a service.

The list includes, for example, JACK KROLL of the C.I.O.-P.A.C. and CLARK FOREMAN, president of the Southern Conference for Human Welfare. GEORGE ADDES, who is at open war with PHILIP MURRAY over communism in the C.I.O., was there along with Mrs. GIFFORD PINCHOT; several representatives of that artist outfit were in seats near JOSEPH L. JOHNSON, dean of the Howard University medical school; HYMAN BLUMBERG, chairman of the New York American Labor Party was present, along with a large representation from the National Citizens' P.A.C., the National Lawyers Guild, and the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People.

This bizarre company represented the various motley crews that were held together by the personality of FRANKLIN D. ROOSEVELT, but they have lost their influence in the party with which they aligned themselves, because the personality that bound them together, made them work for him, but held them in check, is gone.

The list of those present shows clearly that the Communist element is dominant among these so-called "progressives." They have lost face in the Democratic party and probably will not regain their influence there. They cannot go to the Republican party, where they are not wanted and have never been welcome.

Only two courses, then, appear to be open to them. They may be reduced to the status of interlopers like the American Labor Party, which does not run candidates of its own, but indorses any radical that turns up in either of the major parties.

Their other alternative is to form a third party, but, considering the fate of third parties in this country, they are not likely to get very far in that direction.

As a political force in free elections, communism is notoriously weak, because in no country has it ever commanded a majority. Its method is to infiltrate into key positions, where it can exercise an influence out of all proportion to the actual number of Communists.

Being familiar with their tactics, we can guard against them, but they are hoodwinking too many good Americans by traveling under false colors.

This deceit must be continually exposed.

NEW ORLEAN

Southern Welfare Group's Removal from City Urged

The Southern Conference for Human Welfare, which is attempting to move its headquarters from Nashville, Tenn., to New Orleans, was scored today by the Young Men's Business Club as "having definite Communistic tendencies."

After receiving a report on the organization from its Americanism committee, the board of directors of the YMBC adopted a resolution unanimously opposing the conference and seeking its removal from New Orleans.

The resolution read in part:

"Be it resolved that the Young Men's Business Club of New Orleans go on record as being opposed to the activities of the organization known as the 'Southern Conference for Human Welfare;' that the press and city officials be notified that many of the national officers of this group have definite Communistic tendencies, and further that the mayor of the city of New Orleans be requested to ask the subject organization to move not only its local, but also its national, headquarters elsewhere."

The local chapter of the SCHW is located at 935 Barracks street, with F. C. Bancroft as chairman, the Americanism committee reported.

The YMBC board's resolution stated that it wanted to make clear that it was not pointing an accusing finger at any of the "local, upstanding citizens who are associated with this organization."

"It merely desires to call to their and to the public's attention the fact that, after careful investigation, the conclusion has been reached that the real aims and purposes of this group are in direct contrast to the fundamental principles of democracy upon which our government was founded," it stated.

The YMBC investigation, according to Ted Hickey, president, revealed that the SCHW was cited as a Communist Front in 1944 by the special congressional committee on un-American activities.

Will Attempt to Hold Price Line

Local members of the Louisiana Building Material Dealers' Association believe that building material dealers in this area will attempt to hold the line at present price levels, according to E. G. Boh, vice-president of the local organization.

Despite the absorption of two OPA increases granted manufacturers within the past year the dealers would like to hold the present level "but of course our future action will depend largely on the course taken by the manufacturers," Boh said.

Priority control as well as price control must be lifted before the housing shortage battle is won, he declared, explaining that lumber men still can't sell essential material without authority of the civilian production administration.

Boh predicted that a better grade of lumber would now reach the market as the larger mills go into full production. Lumber, he added, already has been flowing into the market because of the increase in the smaller mills as well as the recent good weather.

English farm workers now get a minimum of $16 for a 48-hour week, women $12.

Welfare Group Pained by Attack

The administrator for the Southern Conference for Human Welfare, James A. Dombrowski, expressed disappointment at the attack leveled at him and his organization in the form of a resolution released yesterday by the Young Men's Business Club's board of administrators.

He said: "The attack which the Young Men's Business Club has made . . . upon the progressive program of the Southern Conference for Human Welfare and upon me personally comes as a disappointment because it seems so out of keeping with the YMBC's program of civic betterment. It has been our hope that this important organization would do the fair thing by getting first-hand information from prominent New Orleans citizens who have been interested in the conference for years . . .

"The officers of the YMBC have twice been invited to do this, but both times have seen fit to disregard this offer and to give the club's membership only hearsay. It seems to us to be incredible that a body like the YMBC . . . should publicly attack a great movement without gathering facts from those most interested and familiar with it."

The YMBC yesterday branded the organization as having "definite Communistic tendencies" and requested that the mayor ask the organization to move "not only its local but also its national headquarters elsewhere."

The conference recently moved its national headquarters here from Nashville, Tenn.

We Trust the Governor Will Refuse

We see by the papers that Gov. Ellis Arnall has been voted an award, offered annually, by the Southern Conference for Human Welfare.

We have not seen any public announcement of acceptance.

We trust we will not.

The Southern Conference for Human Welfare has done some few good things, but we do not regard it as a trustworthy organization.

In some states it has taken a fellow-traveler position and while we do not at all think it is a Communist organization in any respect, or that it is a Communist front organization in any degree, it has made itself suspect by flirting with certain "commie" personalities.

We are aware, too, that many fine and sincere persons work with it, who despise Communism as much as we. We regret any pain this comment may cause them, but we feel it necessary to call attention to what we believe a cynical attempt of this organization's leadership to cash in on the splendid national reputation which the Governor enjoys. He has nothing to gain by accepting the dubious honor; he has much to lose.

The organization seems largely to exist to promote the interests of two of its chief directors. Much of the criticism leveled against it has been unfounded, but there is enough basis for it for us earnestly to recommend to the Governor that he pass up this effort to use him.

BIDS NEGROES SEEK COMPLETE EQUALITY

Judge Delany Tells Youth Group They Must Stop 'Apologizing for Being Alive'

WARNING TO REPUBLICANS

Conference Is Urged to Ignore Pleas of Party in 1948 Based on 'Good-Old-Days' Reaction

By GEORGE STREATOR
Special to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

NEW ORLEANS, La., Nov. 21—Justice Hubert Delany of the New York City Court of Domestic Relations told the annual youth conference of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People tonight that Negroes must seek "unadulterated equality in every field," and "stop apologizing for being alive."

Negroes must learn to say "I want a job, I want a decent place in which to live, and I want to live like a free human being," he continued. It is no longer possible, Judge Delany went on, for "the middle-of-the-road interracial philosopher to hide the truth from the minds of intelligent white folks."

The Negro in the North and the white man in the South must learn that they will not get their share of good life until the Southern Negro gets his, said the judge.

"Negroes now have the task of warning the Republicans who seek their support for 1948 that they do not have a mandate to go back to the 'good old days' of social and economic reaction," he added.

Tennessee "Violence" Discussed

Thurgood Marshall, special counsel for the association, whose arrest on the highway between Columbia and Nashville, Tenn., Monday night brought charges of intimidation by officers employed to enforce the law, said that he feared "violence momentarily" when eight men, "including a deputy sheriff, a constable and two highway patrolmen" stopped his car three times on charges ranging from transporting liquor to driving while drunk.

The rise of anti-Semitism in America was called a danger to Negroes by Madison Jones, former director of the youth work in the association. He said that veterans had already found that he "who does not like Jew down in his heart does not like Negroes either."

"We see that we did not accomplish much through our sacrifices in this war," Mr. Jones continued. "The roots of the brutality and murder against Negroes in the South are linked with the problems of India, China and the dispossessed whites of the South."

For Ending "Jim Crow" System

Railroads which plan to build a new union station here should eliminate "Jim Crow" facilities, Daniel E. Byrd, local secretary of the association, said this morning. He said that "filthy" accommodations for Negroes ought to shame every decent white person who travels.

There is some apprehension among Negroes about the application of "Jim Crow" laws at the coming convention of the Southern Conference for Human Welfare which meets here Nov. 28-30, and at which time the Thomas Jefferson Award will be presented to Gov. Ellis Arnall of Georgia, by Clark Foreman, Walter White and others. Meetings will be held in the Municipal Auditorium.

While there is no organizational connection between the N.A.A.C.P. and the Southern Conference, Negroes here look upon both groups as parts of the social reform movement held necessary for the South.

Broughton Committee Looks Ahead to Problems Facing Regions of South

Birmingham, Ala., Nov. 21.—(AP)—Southerners prominent in the ranks of labor, industry, agriculture, government and education joined hands here today in forming an organization aimed at speeding their section's development.

They named their organization the Committee of the South, chose ex-Gov. J. Melville Broughton of North Carolina as their chairman, and agreed that their region faced many hurdles in the years ahead.

Broughton, after assuming the chairmanship at a preliminary session yesterday, declared:

"We will start with available information, look at the facts, and find out where we go from here if we are to raise our incomes and living standards in the South and make our full contribution to the nation's progress."

Tasks Ahead.

Broughton assigned the organization such tasks as finding ways and means of increasing industrial expansion; the promotion of industrial research; the financing of new industries; development of rural industries based on the use of agricultural raw materials; expansion of vocational; engineering and business administration training, and formulating programs for the absorption of workers displaced by the mechanization of cotton production.

The committee represents a cross section of the South's top leaders, and included President Raymond P. Paty of the University of Alabama, Dean Paul Chapman of the University of Georgia; President F. D. Patterson of Tuskegee Institute; Director Clarence Dorman of the Mississippi Agricultural Experiment Station; Dean Cherry L. Emerson of Georgia Tech; Dr. L. P. Gabbard of Texas A. & M. College; President Frank P. Graham of the University of North Carolina; Gov. Robert S. Kerr of Oklahoma; President David A. Lockmiller of the University of Chattanooga; Editor Ralph McGill of the Atlanta Constitution; Dr. Clarence Poe, editor of the Progressive Farmer; President Walter L. Randolph of the Alabama Farm Bureau Federation; President Romeo E. Short of the Arkansas Farm Bureau Federation; Charles H. Gillman of Atlanta, CIO; George L. Googe, of Atlanta, AFL; Donald Comer, Alabama industrialist; Dean D. W. Watkins of Clemson College; Margel J. Voorhies of the American Sugar Cane League, New Orleans; and C. C. Spaulding, president of the North Carolina Mutual Life Insurance Company.

Turkey Hunt

Madison, Nov. 21.—(AP)—Not since the days of Daniel Boone have residents of this Western North Carolina community taken part in such a turkey hunt as the one this week when 400 turkeys escaped from a truck.

The birds, all destined for Thanksgiving Day dinner tables, gained their freedom when the truck crashed into a bridge near here. Since then everybody for miles around has been chasing turkeys, luring them with feed and improvising turkey traps.

Holiday Extended.

Greenville, Nov. 21.—Students at East Carolina Teachers College received enthusiastically at a specially called assembly program on Tuesday, an announcement by Dr. Dennis H. Cooke, college president, that Thanksgiving holidays will be extended a half day in order to avoid travel over crowded highways during the weekend. The holidays, originally scheduled from November 27 through December 1, will now end at noon on December 2.

Milk Plant Started.

Lumberton, Nov. 21.—(AP)—Construction work is under way here on a new $100,000 milk processing plant being erected by Lumberton Dairies, Inc.

The plant, which will handle all dairy products and ice cream, is expected to be in operation by next July 1.

YMBC and SCHW

New Orleans.

Editor, The Times-Picayune:

The Young Men's Business Club recently launched an attack on the Southern Conference for Human Welfare designed to prevent the SCHW from establishing either a state branch or national headquarters here.

The YMBC at no time asked for facts from either SCHW officials or the many prominent Louisianians who are members of the conference. A letter was sent by Mr. Clark Foreman, president of the SCHW, to the YMBC inviting a thorough investigation. The letter was never answered. Instead, the YMBC went ahead with its campaign to rid our state of one of the most progressive of native Southern organizations.

The first public attack by the YMBC against the conference appeared in local papers on November 9. Three days later the conference, through a letter signed by 25 board members from New Orleans, again asked the YMBC to meet with conference officials, so that the YMBC could become familiar with the first-hand working of the conference.

Again the YMBC refused to meet or talk with conference officials.

The South has always answered Northern criticisms by saying we can solve our problems ourselves. The SCHW is an organization of native Southerners who seek advancement for all peoples in the South. An organization of this caliber does not deserve the attack made upon it by the YMBC.

Why Don't They Go to Russia?

New Orleans.

Editor, The Times-Picayune:

So, we had a Vieux Carre excitement—all because some of our citizens are all out for Russian Communism and object to our United States government.

Why don't the R. Communistic idea white and colored citizens of our United States pack up their belongings and move to Russia in order to enjoy life under the Communistic regime, instead of getting into scraps with the rank and file of Americans who love their country's mode of government and way of life? They, as we, are free men—can move from any house, city, state—yes, out of the United States in order to enjoy conditions they approve of so heartily.

I'm sure Uncle Sam would willingly give them reduced rates on a special ship in order to accommodate such aggrieved free men and women. And every red-blooded American would thank them for renouncing their American citizenship, because we, too, are free and are determined to stay free from Communist dictatorship.

Let them get going quickly to their "Shangri-La Russe"—say we-all.

Freedom of Speech and Assembly

Chattanooga, Tenn.

Editor, The Times-Picayune:

The freedom of the press is one of the heritages we in the USA cherish and defend. We recognize a wide divergence of opinion, many factors are involved in the formulation of policy and coverage. The right of expression is taken for granted with us. This is not so where democracy does not prevail.

I would not wish that newspapers offering a different point of view should discontinue. That would be the totalitarian approach.

As the time approaches for the meeting of the Southern Conference for Human Welfare, the Young Men's Business Club of New Orleans, as I see it, is taking a stand that is undemocratic in making pronouncements without due investigation.

As a minister I certainly would not have interest in Communism, nor do I consider the SCHW in any way subversive. We of the South may expect to meet a changing economy as industries move in on us. This calls for patience and courage in the transition. The Southern Conference for Human Welfare consists of a group of people who are tremendously concerned with humanity in this change. As such, its approach is not political but humanitarian. It is not subversive but constructive. If, because it expresses opinions at variance with other groups who follow a more conservative pattern, as newspapermen, I do not think that justifies unwarranted, uninvestigated attack.

I would not suggest you endorse the program of the SCHW. That is your personal privilege. I do think in the name and cause of freedom you should defend the right of this group to meet and make suggestions on what it sincerely considers to be the answer to the problems facing us in this era of transition.

Defends SCHW

Randleman, N. C.

Editor, The Times-Picayune:

It has come to my attention that the Young Men's Business Club of your city has adopted resolutions against the Southern Conference for Human Welfare whose offices are there. It appears to me that their stand was taken ill-advisedly.

I have belonged to the SCHW for about eight months, have studied its literature and attended one of its meetings in Raleigh. I have found the group to be thoroughly American in all respects.

Their goal seems to be to get people together to consider the problems peculiar to our region. People getting together can be a good thing, I think.

Another Job for Radar

Mandeville, La.

Editor, The Times-Picayune:

Your editorials, "Maritime Radar" and "Down to Fine Points," in Thursday's (November 14) edition, were well worth the printing. In "Down to Fine Points" you mentioned the fact that the physicists of California's Institute of Technology were constructing a private sewer system to maintain the accuracy of nuclear experiment.

It was strange that two editorials on the same day covered subjects I have been conjecturing about: Radar and subterranean drainage.

More and louder are public objections to city and factory sewage and effluents being discharged into our open streams, and more and more are the headaches and experiments and expenses that industrialists are up against as they try to cope with the problem of water-waste disposal.

The interior of the earth must contain innumerable volcano caverns, river, lake floors and other vacant water networks that performed their given missions and then dried out. Radar should be able to locate these vacuums—and scientists should be able to calculate—from radar findings—the exact capacity — (as a receptacle for surface water each could take care of)—and for how many years.

With such authentic information at hand, manufacturers could then build factories around these one-time "water-holes" and by siphoning the annoying and troublesome effluent into the bosom of the earth, make themselves and complainants happy forever and a day.

If radar has not been perfected to serve "land" needs, then it has a mission ahead of it. The greatest service right now could be that of locating subterranean caverns of sizes to accommodate heavy drainage of all sorts for long periods of time.

An Ex-WAC's Complaint

New Orleans

Editor, The Times-Picayune:

This is the first time that I've had an occasion to air my views, or "gripe," in a civil or military publication. However, I think the privilege is rightfully mine now.

I enlisted in the WAC in March of '44 and served faithfully and honorably in the station hospital as ward master until October, 1946. True, I didn't have the hardships as other GI's, no fault of my own, but I honestly think that I did my part or more, as the hospital personnel very seldom get time off from duty.

Now, the gripe. I applied for benefits as a discharged military personnel and was informed that I had to be able to work before I could receive the $20 a week, which isn't very much to me as I am on my own and my savings are exhausted. Unfortunately, I am unable to accept a job as I have a broken jaw. Would be happy to work if it were possible.

Shouldn't there be some provision for ex-GI's unable to work?

Arnall Took Award After Giving Word

Governor Ellis Arnall, of Georgia, criticized by some newspapers for accepting the Thomas Jefferson award of the Southern Conference of Human Welfare, said Monday he probably would have refused it had he not given his word of acceptance beforehand.

The governor, who will address the conference at New Orleans next Saturday, said the award was tendered in recognition of his work for the South "in the traditions of Thomas Jefferson," and especially for his fight for freight rate parity. On this basis, he said, he accepted.

"The fact that I accept an award," he added, "does not mean that I indorse or approve the purposes, or adopt the viewpoints, attitude or ideas of any organization." Mr. Arnall said he would speak Saturday in condemnation of communism and facism and in praise of democracy.

The Ledger on an 'Empty Honor'

We are pleased to note that more than a few Georgians share our opinion that Gov. Arnall should decline the "Jefferson Award" which the Southern Conference of Human Welfare has announced, with considerable fanfare, will be bestowed upon him Saturday in New Orleans.

We are not surprised, of course, that long-time critics of the Governor, as the Savannah Mornings News, have seized upon it as the basis for their own editorial expressions of distrust of the Southern Conference of Human Welfare. But we are gratified at the number of papers, like the temperate Valdosta Daily Times, which have reprinted it, without comment, in their own editorial columns.

One of the best evaluations of the "Jefferson Award" was carried, under the title "Empty Honor," by the Columbus Ledger, which has been, like The Constitution, a friend and supporter of Gov. Arnall.

Said the Ledger:

"We would not go quite so far as The Atlanta Constitution which urges Gov. Ellis Arnall to decline the so-called 'Jefferson Award' of the Southern Conference of Human Welfare, but we do wonder if such an 'honor' has any very real meaning.

"The Constitution says the Southern conference isn't a 'trustworthy organization,' and goes on to suggest that it is merely trying to 'cash in' on Gov. Arnall's national reputation by tendering this award.

"To a considerable extent we share this feeling. At one time we were dues-paying members of the Southern Conference; perhaps we are still carried on its rosters. Some of its moving spirits are close personal friends who won't like this piece at all, but the fact remains that in the last year or two it has espoused some extremist views, particularly with respect of racial relationships, which are simply too radical for our taste.

"In some respects it has performed magnificently. It has been a powerful force in bringing about poll-tax repeal and other electoral reforms. It is a dependable foe of the Ku Kluxers, but—in the same breath it is a dependable friend of such organizations as the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, which we have lately come to regard as almost as outrageous on one extreme as the Kluxers are on the other.

"In short, we rather think that the developing policy of the Southern Conference for Human Welfare has itself become warped to the point where a vaunted concept of 'tolerance' itself connotes intolerance of any moderate, middle-of-the-road viewpoint, and it does tend to attack and despise those who are unwilling to go all the way to the left.

"We are not willing to go all the way left, and we do not believe Ellis Arnall is willing.

"Perhaps it would do no real damage to Ellis Arnall's stature for him to accept this 'Jefferson Award'—whatever that term means—but we don't think it would help him any, and we definitely don't think he needs it!

"History, in due time, will evaluate Ellis Arnall in true perspective, and certainly we hope that the end of his tenure as Governor does not mean the end of his usefulness in the public life of a State which needs him sorely.

"He has made a secure reputation, not only among Georgians, but among Americans as a whole, and for the moment it seems to us that he might very well rest upon his laurels, without embellishment by extremists who just might be wanting to ride his coat-tails."

Atl. Constitution 11-26-46

The Chronicle On a Dubious Honor

Still another of Gov. Arnall's long-time friends and supporters has joined those urging that he decline the "Jefferson Award" which the Southern Conference of Human Welfare plans to confer upon him Saturday in New Orleans.

Concerning the Southern Conference, the Augusta Chronicle, in an editorial entitled "A Dubious Honor," declares:

"This organization, we believe, started out with noble aims, and some of its accomplishments have been noteworthy. But somewhere along the line it deteriorated into an extremely left-wingish group; many of those who conscientiously joined up with it thinking that its aims were what its name implies—to work for human welfare—have unwittingly been taken in and their influence used by a small controlling clique which is assiduously attempting to foist on the South practices and policies which are contrary to Southern tradition, and which go far beyond the scope of what liberal-minded Southerners accept as being liberalism. . . .

"Mr. Arnall has established himself as a Southern liberal, but we do not think that his liberalism jibes with policies espoused by the Southern Conference for Human Welfare. We think that his record stands for itself, and that he would assume no added glitter by accepting such a dubious honor from an agency whose philosophy is suspect, and whose obvious object is to advance its own questionable cause by swinging onto the coattails of a distinguished Georgian who has won a nation-wide reputation as a liberal."

Organizations and Objectives

New Orleans.

Editor, The Times-Picayune:

The Young Men's Business Club rendered a public service in letting fly at the organization with the front name of "Southern Conference for Human Welfare." That there are hundreds of clubs and organizations sprung up all over the country, having objectives concealed behind harmless or meritorious facades, is tolerably well known. What is not so well understood is that many of such clubs which appear to be operated by idealists, zealots, eccentrics and some whose mental machinery has slipped a cog, are really promoted and managed by firebrands whose attained objectives would in some cases bring consequences shocking to "human welfare."

Of course, all favor high standards for farmers and industrial workers with better schools and better health, just freight rates for the South, and many other undeniable fair and equitable things. But when hidden, as in this case, among clauses, you discover that among the pretty phrases "adult franchise" here in the South is the real objective of the managers, their heart's core: Brother, it is time to take a powder.

The head of the Southern Conference for Human Welfare is quoted in your paper of November 26th as saying, among objectives of this so-called "Southern Conference," is this, that all persons over the age of 21 years should be allowed to vote.

The members of the Young Men's Business Club probably do not claim to be intellectuals, but they are realists enough to know that the exercise of "adult suffrage," regardless of qualification, in this and six or seven other states, in an election next month or next year, would mean rioting, arson and perhaps worse evils.

One can understand how the excellent Miss Wisner and the great Dr. Graham, detached from many of the realities of life, could be misled into supporting this "Southern Conference;" but that Governor Arnall, a seasoned politician, should be hooked, is something else.

Too often we go about our daily chores contemptuously amused at:

"The land of futile Piffledom;
Salons weird where congregate
Freak, Nut and Bug and Psychic
Bum,
Upon a mantel seated a Bust,
Lord Bilk, the Deity of Rot,
Nay surely, the great god Bunk
Who when you wunk at it wunk."

Then we awake, finding something serious indeed confronting us.

PEPPER DEFENDS USSR IN TALK BEFORE SCHW

Says Russians Have Always Been Friendly to U. S.

BY HOWARD JACOBS

In high dudgeon over what he said were unwarranted attacks on Russia and her ideologies, Senator Claude Pepper, D., Fla., Thursday charged that many Americans were trying to make the Soviet republic a whipping boy.

Senator Pepper, here to speak at the opening session of the Southern Conference for Human Welfare, lashed out at those detractors "who try to make everything Russian anathema."

He heatedly denied that the Soviets were attempting to impose their doctrines on other nations "any more than anybody else," and contended that "Russia is about the only major power with whom we have never approached any hostility."

"We've had two wars with England, and we practically went to war with France during the Napoleonic days," said he. "But of all countries, Russia has done more to protect our integrity and security than any other."

Points Out Instance

Senator Pepper asserted that "on no other subject has so much misrepresentation and falsehood been disseminated," and denounced those "who hold any man who tries to explain Russian conduct guilty of treason."

As proof of religious freedom in the country, he pointed to the visit of a Baptist minister who spoke in a Baptist church there "and on the radio without even being asked to see his script."

He criticized the Republicans as "your real reactionaries," and predicted that if a proposed tax cut is realized "they will take them off the rich and put more on the poor."

"A leopard can't change its spots, and I believe the Republicans have repainted theirs," he declared.

Senator Pepper conceded that many Southern Democrats have joined with Republicans on vital issues, but described the liaison as "a grave disservice to the South."

"The Republicans want to be the hewers of wood and the drawers of water for the industrial area they dominate," he said.

Avoids Lewis Criticism

He avoided any direct criticism of John L. Lewis and the coal strike, but foresaw the possibility of "drastic legislation against labor" in the next Congress. Compulsory arbitration, he said, is strongly supported by many factions.

The Floridian was vehement on the subject of the poll tax, which he contended "never should have been imposed." Should the states decline to abolish it, he said, the federal government must do so. "It's unthinkable that a country dedicated to the principles of Democracy should disenfranchise a man because he hasn't the price," he said.

Asked his opinion of the segregation issue, which compelled the changeover of the conference from Municipal Auditorium to Colonial Hall, the senator concluded:

"When I am invited to a man's house for dinner, I never attempt to tell him how to seat his guests."

PLEADS LIBERAL RULE FOR SOUTH

N.O. Times - Picayune

SCHW Speaker Hits at Restrictions on Voting

11-30-46

The movement to develop liberal government in the South along the lines of the Roosevelt policy must be carried forward for benefit of the whole nation, Dr. Palmer Weber, Charlottesville, Va., director of research for the CIO Political Action Committee, said here Friday.

Addressing delegates to the fourth biennial convention of the Southern Conference for Human Welfare at Colonial Hall, Dr. Weber said that "the people in the Southern Democratic party who are leading the fight for Roosevelt policies need and deserve the support of the SCHW, labor leaders and other liberal-minded persons."

"We want to see millions of new voters through the abolition of the poll tax and other restrictions on voting," he said. "We expect to work in every election in every area of Southern life which is dominated by reaction today."

Dr. Weber said that the reactionary Democrats were in large part responsible for the Republican victory in the November election and that the "nation can't go forward politically unless we houseclean our political reaction in the South.

600,000 Negroes Registered

"The fight for the Negroes' franchise is a fight of tremendous importance to the whole nation," he said. "And this year for the first time in 40 or 50 years the Negroes broke through to a large use of the ballot."

He said that more than 600,000 Negroes registered in Southern states this year and added that the liberal movement retired 25 congressmen this year. "This was due to the work of the SCHW, Negro voters, CIO and AFL," he asserted.

He said that anti-lynching and human rights laws must be enacted in the Southern states and that the SCHW "must take hold of each issue as it affects the people" in a battle to win passage of liberal laws.

"The only reason for the existence of the SCHW is to fight," he said. "When it quits fighting it is doomed, because it is a fighting organization."

Presiding at the afternoon session, Tarleton Collier, associate editor of the Louisville Courier-Journal, introduced executive secretaries of the various state committees of the SCHW.

Percy Green, Negro, of Jackson, Miss., said that 2000 Negroes voted in the Mississippi state elections recently and that Negro voters, in order to exert their right to vote, must "eliminate the fear complex."

Two Parties Urged

Elimination of fear, he said, could be accomplished through new civil rights laws. He said that the two-party system of politics in the South "is the only intelligent approach to the problems confronting the South" and that the Republican party was trying to prevent the growth of a two-party system here for factional reasons.

"There are vest pocket Republican organizations in every state put there to prevent development of the party in the South and to keep Republicans from turning out a large vote," he said.

Osceola McKaine, Negro, former SCHW field representative, said that the way to "keep up the progressive vote is to come to close grips with machine politics and educate the Negroes to think of legislation in terms of benefitting the whole people."

Miss Mary Price, executive secretary of SCHW for North Carolina, said that the organization should work with civic organizations and women's groups and that the "North Carolina committee is going forward with a well defined state legislative program."

Malcom C. Dobbs, executive secretary for Alabama, said the platform on which Governor-Elect Jim Folsom ran this year was taken from SCHW literature.

Mrs. Virginia Beecher, secretary for Virginia, estimated that 10,000 Negroes had voted in the 1945 Democratic primary in that state and asserted there was "a potential of 150,000 Negro votes in Virginia that would smother the Byrd machine."

Monroe Stringer, Negro, assistant business agent here of the construction and general laborers union, AFL, said that less than 5000 Negroes had registered in New Orleans this year.

He said that "some newspaper factions here in the city which don't support the SCHW put the heat on to prevent the conference from using Municipal Auditorium for its present meeting.

A gloomy picture of what may happen to recent agricultural and industrial gains made in the South as a result of Republican victories was drawn Monday by Aubrey Williams, Montgomery, Ala., publisher of the Southern Farmer, in an address to the delegates.

Mr. Williams said many of these gains will be lost if federal controls over industry and social problems are withdrawn.

Questions Raised

"The election," he said, "brings up certain questions. What will be the government's attitude toward maintenance of full employment? What will be their attude towards the national labor relations act? Toward wages and hours in industry, the color question, FEPC, anti-lynching legislation, toward bringing the earnings of farmers up to an income in line with that of city workers?"

He said: "We know leaders like Taft, Martin, Wherry and Knutson and their backers like Pew, McCormick, DuPont and Weir bitterly fought and voted against the full employment bill in Congress. The attitude of these leaders on the national labor relations act is equally as well known and there is only one point in which they have not been quite frank and that is how far they really want to go in making over the labor relations act. Their attitude on the color question is not so clear. In fact there is reason to hope that some positive moves may be forthcoming in behalf of the Negro.

"As to their attitude towards the farmer, they have in the past taken their cues consistently from the so-called farm bloc which the veriest cub reporter in Washington knows is made up of the farm bureau, the big processors, the American Bankers Association and the National Association of Manufacturers. These groups for the past 10 years have advocated a policy favorable to the big farmers and hurtful to the small operator."

Mr. Williams said many feel that as far as the Southern electorate is concerned the picture is not hopeful.

"But I," he said, "happen to be an optimist. The South in spite of the results obtained this year, has given a splendid account of its progressive strength. When Bilbo did not carry a single hill county, where the small farmers live, there is something to count on in 'them hills.' When Folsom sweeps Alabama with his common man's program, there is something to count on. When Talmadge gets only 42 out of 100 votes, there is something to count on in Georgia."

A. G. Mezerik, author of "The Revolt of the South and the West," said that when the Southern Baptists, meeting last week in Asheville, N. C., "voted for an FEPC, for an anti-lynching law and for abolition of segregation, the Southern liberals should have been on their toes and sent telegrams of comemndation." Instead, of the 3000 telegrams received, the speaker said, "most were from the other side." And the resolution lost its force.

Frank Prohl, Southeastern regional director of the teamsters' union, said when he came to New Orleans to organize labor eight years ago he found truck drivers working for 17 cents an hour; that employers would lend them money during the middle of the week and then demand 25 per cent interest; that some employes were forced to rent houses from their employers in order to keep their job.

Edward Stone, public relations man for the CIO in Louisiana, said "there are bad unions and good unions," but that the answer to bad unions is not "no unions" but good unions. Mr. Stone said he didn't blame employers for not raising wages that after all "they are only human," but that by the same token you couldn't blame labor for wanting a fair wage.

Alfred R. Leiserson, Richmond, Va., manufacturer, told the delegates that Southern workers are not ready for unionization; that they must first be educated up to it.

Lewis Jones presided at the morning session.

More U.S. Funds Urged for So

Health, Housing, Education, Security Needs Cited

More effective federal assistance in the fields of health, housing, education and social security was urged Saturday at the Southern Conference for Human Welfare session in Carpenter's Hall.

The three-day biennial convention of the conference was set to close Saturday night with the presentation of the Thomas Jefferson award to Governor Ellis Arnall of Georgia for "outstanding service to the South" and an address by Walter White, secretary of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People.

Speaking at the morning session Miss Lillie Nairne, head of the New Orleans department of public welfare, reported that though the federal government has increased the social security allotment by $25 per capita in the past two years, the funds are far from adequate.

"It is quite impossible for anyone to retire at the age of 65 and to live on $30 per month, as it was believed in 1930," she declared.

Welfare Changes Urged

"The South is stylmied in its welfare problems and there is no permanent solution in sight until the current system of matching federal funds with state funds is modified drastically. Under that system states more able to pay, those of the East and the North, derive the larger share of the benefit."

Miss Nairne was followed by Dr. Joseph L. Johnson, dean of the Howard university school of medicine, Washington, who proposed a six-point program, assisted by federal funds, which would improve the South's health condition, now the lowest of any section in the country.

"When people are economically poor they are in poor health, and when they are in poor health they are unable to secure the ability to pay," he said.

In asking support of the convention for the adoption of a national health bill he listed these factors which he said would improve health conditions throughout the South:

Easier payments of medical bills; more doctors, dentists, nurses and technicians; more health centers and hospitals; more health services through preventive facilities; improved standards of medicine in rural areas, and better working conditions and educational facilities.

The condition of education in the South was discussed in a paper written by N. C. Newbold of the University of North Carolina, who was unable to attend the meeting. His paper was read by F. L. Rousseve of Xavier university.

Asserting that 350,000 teachers had left their profession since 1939, Newbold declared that there was little hope for the alleviation of the situation, since only one out of 10 students who begin college courses in education graduates in the allotted time. Two finish by extra study, while the remaining seven never finish."

U. S. Aid Held Need

"Our educational system is in great need of aid from the federal government," Newbold said. "In the past congressmen have been opposed to the bills for the appropriation of from $80,000,000 to $100,000,000 which have been proposed, but we have hopes that the 80th Congress will prove more receptive to the idea."

Miss Anna Berenson, director of housing for the United Automobile Workers (CIO), declared that the housing program of the nation for the next five years is being decided now in Washington.

"The nation has had a housing deficit for the past 25 years

It is quite impossible for any one to retire at the age of 65 and to live on $30 per month, as it was believed in 1930," she declared.

Miss Anna Berenson, director of housing for the United Automobile Workers (CIO), declared that the housing program of the nation for the next five years is being decided now in Washington.

"The nation has had a housing deficit for the past 25 years which has just reached its critical point as a result of the end of the war," she said. "The best year we ever had in building houses was in 1925, when 900,000 dwellings were constructed. The demand is now estimated at 16 million dwellings in the next 10 years to be used by people unable to pay more than $40 per month rent."

Reviewing the housing situation over the past year, Miss Berenson declared that the lifting of controls on building materials in October, 1945, was one of the greatest errors of the present administration.

"The real estate board had $5,000,000 to spend to get the materials control program killed, while those who saw the effect it would have on housing had little or no funds with which to fight the action. The result was that buildings that are just being completed today, many of them juke joints and unnecessary commercial sites, are using material that could have gone into housing for veterans and others."

The error was seen, but it was not until March, 1946 that controls were re-established, she asserted.

Looking at the housing situation in New Orleans where she lived while a student at Newcomb college, Miss Berenson said, "New Orleans, from what I've seen in the past few days, is one big slum. You could tear the whole place down and start rebuilding it right now."

Declaring that the veteran's housing program would cause a boom and bust period that "would make the last one look like peanuts," she urged delegates to bring all possible pressure on the president to support Housing Expediter Wilson Wyatt in his differences with other government department heads.

"We can't avoid depression if the construction industry stops," she said, adding that the development of factory-made housing would create an important new source of employment.

Fascism's Threat Tops Communist, Arnall Declares

Atl. Const. 12-1-46

NEW ORLEANS, Nov. 30—(AP)—Gov. Arnall, of Georgia, declared Saturday that he considers "the danger of Fascism more immediate and serious in the United States than the danger of Communism."

In a speech delivered at a meeting of the Southern Conference for Human Welfare, where he received the organization's Thomas Jefferson award, Gov. Arnall said, "The American menace comes from the extreme right, where men of ill will are deliberately using the lunatic fringe to create a condition favorable to the establishment of a totalitarian state."

He said he knew that "such organizations as the Columbians" and such publications as "slimy little racial and class sheets" cost more to support than "the riffraff that front for these groups can raise from deluded and neurotic followers."

Arnall said Communism and Fascism, "equally distasteful to me," united in declaring that "the average man is a fool."

He called for "dynamic democracy" in the South, with an "agrarian-industrial system that provides full employment at the highest level of skill possible." The Federal Government, he added, must contribute "in an extraordinary degree" with public works.

Looking Back At Southern Conference

By ERNEST E. JOHNSON
Special to Journal and Guide

NEW ORLEANS, La.—Viewed perspectively, it may be said that the recently held fourth biennial convention of the Southern Conference for Human Welfare was indeed fortunate in hurdling an assortment of obstacles apparently erected by those who would like to wreck the work of the organigation. In fact, it is something of a tribute to the chief planners who exhibited their determination not to be harassed to the point of complete dejeciton.

The first bugaboo raised was the Red issue. The opening gun was fired by the Young Businessmen's Club of this city. This group comprises the young sales executives and intermediate functionaries of New Orleans businesses, a few newsmen, and some labor people. In their publication, Action, the group quoted from records of the discredited Dies Committee to brand the conference and its leaders as Russian missionaries, or at minimum, fellow-travelers. They did not want the conference's headquarters moved here from Nashville.

Although the statement appeared and was picked up by the local press, it is now known that a small but vocal minority within the YBC was opposed to the publication of the statement, but not so much because they believed in the Southern Conference. Their complaint was that the evidence being offered in support of charges was inadequate. It is to be noted too that several members of the YBC hold membership on the Southern Conference's Committee for Louisiana.

The transfer of headquarters itself was not without some contention. Official reason for the change is that the new location places the conference in better proximity to certain states which do not now have state committees—Mississippi, Oklahoma, Arkansas, and Texas. Actually, the hostility of the Nashville community, spearheaded by the constant attacks of the Nashville Banner, forced the shift.

The leadership in New Orleans, however, believe that the change might have been made easier had there been wider consultation both among board members and the Committee for Louisiana. It is pointed out that although a successful race relations institute had been conducted here last year, this city was not yet amenable to accommodating too much interracial activity. Further, it is suggested that the transition might have been simplified somewhat had an invitation from local people been sought before coming.

Sometime ago the conference had announced that Gov. Ellis Arnall would receive the Thomas Jeerson Award. However, an editorial which appeared afterwards in the Atlanta Constitution denouncing the Southern Conference also urged Arnall not to accept the dubious honor. Hurried conversations between the governor and Clark Foreman, SCHW president, saved the day here when suitable language of the presentation was agreed upon.

It is not generally known either that up to the last minute it was expected by conference officials that some question might be raised from the floor about making the award. In anticipation of this contingency, a resolution was prepared and held in readiness designed to clarify respective positions—the conference's and the governor's—so that the award could be made. No objection was raised.

Insofar as the Municipal Auditorium is concerned, the pretense of the segregation issue is a false one. The precedence for unsegregated meetings in the auditorium was set long ago and has been reaffirmed by two labor organization meetings, the Catholics, the Lutherans, and one other group.

The hand of politics was behind this. The mayor does not control the auditorium commission since none of the members are his appointees. He is a reform mayor and has been subjected to frequent attacks by the Maestri machine, which he unseated, for his relatively favorable attitude towards Negroes.

It is a foregone conclusion that Mayor DeLesseps Morrison would have been attacked again had the unsegregated meeting been held on city property, and it is not unreasonable to believe that the course taken by the commission had his complete approval for the sake of expediency.

Finally, a battle broke out in the resolution committee over the propriety of such an organization as the Southern Conference, concerned as it is with primarily domestic matters, should issue a resolution dealing with foreign policy.

Proponents argued that many domestic matters have their repercussions abroad and certainly ought to be dealt with in this light. Opponents contended that to venture into the area of foreign policy—and obviously make some observations regarding American-Soviet relations—would be affirming the criticism of the organization. No such resolution was prepared.

Apart from these observations the conference went along in a mediocre fashion after an enthusiastic opening meeting which heard Senator Claude Pepper of Florida and Mrs. Mary McLeod Bethune. There were several technical sessions which were rich in their content but lacking the spark of the larger public meetings.

Repeated threats of possible violence by hoodlums had been heard, but nothing of an untoward nature materialized. Miss Lillian Smith, author, was to have appeared but failed.

Dear George:

Your letter of December 9th was forwarded to me here. I am very glad to get your views on the actions of the Board at its December 1st meeting. I am very sorry that you were not at the meeting so that you could have heard the full discussion and given us your advice at that time. At this point I don't feel that I have the constitutional right to delay or counteract the actions of the Board.

Especially in view of the stress that has been placed on the necessity for democratic procedure in handling the affairs of the Conference, I believe that I would be accused of acting high-handedly and contary to the by-laws if I undertake to overrule the Board.

On the other hand I want to assure you that I am prepared to have the Board, at its meeting on February 2nd, review the whole situation and make whatever changes seem necessary. I hope very much that you will be in Columbia on February 2nd and give us the benefit of your advice.

Yours sincerely,

Clark Foreman

WELFARE LEADER WILL SPEAK HERE

Dr. Clark Howell Foreman to Speak Tomorrow at Institute of Religion

Dr. Clark Howell Foreman of Washington, president of the Southern Conference for Human Welfare, will address the Institute of Religion at the United Church tomorrow night at 8. Dr. Foreman's subject will be, "Democracy and Minorities."

An instigator of the late President Roosevelt's survey of Southern resources and conditions, Dr. Foreman was an author of the famed "Report on Economic Conditions of the South," which was the result of the survey. The report has since served as the background for much social and political reform.

A by-product of the report was the formation of the Southern Conference for Human Welfare, which Dr. Foreman first served as treasurer and, since 1942, as president.

War Work.

During the war, Dr. Foreman served in a civilian capacity with the Navy, and for eight months did operational research in London. In 1943, he taught economics at Black Mountain College. In the political campaign of 1944 he served as full-time secretary of the National Citizens Political Action Committee.

Dr. Foreman is a native of Atlanta, Ga., and two of his grandfathers fought in the Confederate Army. He was educated at Columbia University and at the London School of Economics, and he holds both M.A. and Ph.D. degrees. Dr. Foreman also has served as secretary of the Georgia Inter-Racial Cooperation Commission, working with Dr. Will Alexander, a pioneer in the cause of better race relations in the South.

In 1926, while working for his M.A. at Columbia, he became assistant to the director of the Phelps Stokes Fund, and, later as director of studies for the Julius Rosenwald Foundation, he helped to place in 11 Southern counties libraries which are open to all people, both white and Negro. His dissertation for his doctorate at Columbia was in support of the thesis that there is no difference in intelligence between white and Negro students.

From 1933 to 1938, Dr. Foreman was director of the Power Division of the U. S. Department of Interior. During this period, he was instrumental in obtaining the appointment of the first Negro in a CCC camp under the Park division. In 1933, Dr. Foreman overcame the long-standing government discrimination against Negro secretaries by the simple process of hiring one. With the help of his assistant, Robert Weaver, he was responsible for getting "no discrimination clauses" in PWA contracts, the first time that discrimination was mentioned and defined in government contracts.

Dr. Foreman will be introduced at tonight's session by Jonathan Daniels, executive news editor of The News and Observer and former special assistant to President Roosevelt. Dr. L. E. M. Freeman of Meredith will offer the invocation. Dr. Freeman is affiliated with the Southern Conference for Human Welfare. The Rev. Frederick B. Eutsler, pastor of the United Church, will preside.

The fellowship dinner will be held at 6 tomorrow night and classes will follow at 7.

Dr. John Shelton Curtiss, professor of History at Duke University, will address the course on "Problems of International Organization." Dr. Curtiss' topic will be, "Russia and the United Nations." Rep. O. M. Mull of Cleveland will address the course on "The Ethical Basis of Living." His subject will be, "The Christian and Politics."

Rabbi Harold L. Gelfman of Temple Beth Or, instructor of the course on "The Contributions of Judaism," will discuss "The Jew in America and His Contribution to Democracy." Dr. J. L. Godfrey, associate professor of History at the University of North Carolina, will be the speaker at the course on "Contemporary Problems in Perspective." His subject will be, "Liberty Under Law."

Professor W. N. Hicks of State College, leader of the course on "Marriage: Yesterday, Today, and Tomorrow," will continue his discussion.

College Head Pressured, Quits Interracial Body

PINE BLUFF, Ark.—(ANP)—Intimidation was blamed here last week for the sudden resignation of Dr. Lawrence Davis, president of Arkansas A. M. and N. College here, from the vice presidency of the Southern Conference for Human Welfare.

On the day before Dr. Davis sent his resignation to the Rev. Samuel F. Freeman, pastor of the Pulaski Heights Christian Church and president of the Arkansas chapter of the conference, Gov. Laney told reporters he planned to talk to Davis about his affiliation with the conference.

"I want to make sure that people working for the state do not think in terms at variance with the American way of thinking," Laney said.

Dr. Davis submitted his resignation from the conference, branded as "communistic" by the Rankin-Thomas un-American activities committee, the next day. He said, "Since the organization has been branded as a Communist-front organization by a committee of congress, in fairness to myself, the people of Arkansas and the Negroes of Arkansas, I am no longer associating myself with the Southern Conference for Human Welfare."

Arkansas A. M. and N. College is the Negro branch of the University of Arkansas.

"Surprised and Shocked'

Editor, Journal and Guide—I was very much surprised and quite shocked to read your recent attack on Mr. Jerry Gilliam because he upheld the motion to rescind the resolution passed by the board of the Committee for Virginia making it mandatory for each applicant for membership to sign a so-called "loyalty" pledge. I would like to set you straight on this matter and hope you will print this letter.

The Constitution of the Southern Conference for Human Welfare specifically states that membership is open to "all" residents of the thirteen southern states and the District of Columbia without respect for "race, creed, color or national origin." A condition of affiliation of a State Committee is that its membership shall be open to "all" residents of the State and that if this provision is abrogated the State Committee is subject to disaffiliation by the national board.

The specific reason for this provision is that it not only is in the American tradition, but specifically it bars segregation. It seems odd that after only eight years of the existence of the Southern Conference, it should be so easily forgotten, the battle we have had over the years to keep it a non-segregated group.

I think if you lived nearer to Washington you would know how dangerous "loyalty" pledges are to the Negro people, particularly. A belief in and a fight for racial equality is judged by many investigators to be an evidence of "communistic" and "subversive" tendencies. Negroes are being fired without any charges being preferred against them and without any way of knowing who their accusers are, and with no right of appeal.

The Committee for Virginia stands on its platform of Roosevelt Democracy with equal rights for "all" people to participate in its membership if they will help us in our battle against the evils of Jim Crow, low living standards and Byrd totalitarianism.

NELL BATTLE LEWIS.

MISS LEWIS AND COMMUNISTS.

To the Editor: In her attack on Dr. Graham—one of the few remaining statesmen in North Carolina—Nell Battle Lewis reveals herself to be the Madame Winchell of her age, a woman masquerading under good intentions with apparently the sole object of stirring people up over nothing, to no directed end.

As for her ignorant charges against the Southern Conference For Human Welfare, let me say, as a proud member of that organization, I have observed it to be one of the few active institutions for the progressive equalization of minorities and for generally helping the underprivileged to find the adequate respect and economic opportunities due them, especially in a supposedly democratic society. If she were less concerned with attacking statesmen and creative movements, less superficially taken in with political lies of a degenerate and undemocratic organization (un-American Committee) which has become tragically intrenched in the heart of our government, she would do our great Southland and this State a tremendous service: she has a vital and creative energy, but she seems incapable of using it other than in spite." For shame, Miss Lewis!

Meanwhile, though I am no Communist myself, I feel no hypocritical need to repudiate Communists so long as they concern themselves with liberal and creative actions. I'm willing to trust the judgment of the Negro people in Winston-Salem, who, being yet closest to the earth, are our deepest and most genuine realists. They, when told of supposed Communist leadership in their union, did not repudiate those people. The Negroes are sick of judging people by names and words: they can judge only by actions. When your actions and mine, Miss Lewis, prove more helpful to the underprivileged than does the work of the Communists, then we can set about repudiating them. Until that time, we would do well to hide our heads in honest shame.

THE PULSE OF THE PUBLIC

Reply From Foreman

Editor, Constitution: Several errors in your most recent column dealing with the Southern Conference for Human Welfare seem to me worth correcting.

In the first place, I do not, and have not for months, received any salary from the Southern Conference. Our Administrator (we do not have a director) receives less than $4,000 a year.

Secondly, the lady whom we sent on a speaking and money-raising trip to the West Coast was, until her recent illness, a soloist in the choir of St. Luke's. Although you say that person was almost certainly a member of the Communist party, she has recently been attacked by the Daily Worker, which I presume is even more informed about the Communists than you. This Atlanta lady, the former Administrator of the Conference, and I are the only three people who have ever gone to the West Coast for the Southern Conference and, regardless of your information, I can assure you that none of us is, or ever has been, in any way connected with the Communist party. To imply it is to do something that would be libelous if stated openly.

Thirdly, the Southern Conference is active in every Southern State. When you find out what the various committees are doing we will no doubt get more publicity in your column. The officers of the Southern Conference, contrary to your statement, have never pretended to speak for the whole South. We speak for the thousands of Southerners who believe that the South's problems can only be solved by greatly increasing the prosperity and democracy of all the people of the South, regardless of creed or color.

The Constitution welcomes letters on either side of any subject. They should not exceed 200 words and must be signed, although names will be withheld on request. We regret none can be returned.

Membership in the Southern Conference is limited to residents of the Southern States and the District of Columbia. The Board and officers are democratically elected by the membership. The policies of the Conference are therefore both Southern and democratic. We naturally solicit money in all parts of the country to carry out these policies.

The newspaper that was made famous by Henry Grady should never forget that the South is now a part of the rest of the country, and that so long as the Southern States send men like McKellar, Bilbo and George to the Senate, the whole country suffers along with the South. You correctly deem it your duty to expose Gerald L. K. Smith. Why do you think Northerners should not be equally interested in opposing the menaces to democracy who arise in the South?

We think the people of the North and West are concerned, and rightly want to help those Southerners who share their views. We welcome their help just as we as individuals are glad to support them in their fight for democracy in other parts of the country. That is why we have an office in New York to solicit and receive contributions for our work. You are right in thinking this has been very helpful, and we hope it will continue to be.

You end your column by saying that it is fair to ask about our policies. I hope you will consider it equally fair to print in as favorable a spot this answer to your question.

CLARK FOREMAN,
President, Southern Conference for Human Welfare.
Atlanta.

(Editor's Note: We are happy to publish Mr. Foreman's letter which, however, seems inconclusive. The Constitution did not identify any person sent to the Coast to collect money, but The Constitution does have information that one such person was there in the company of people actively identified with the Communist movement. The Constitution made no attack on Mr. Foreman, but did say that Mr. Foreman in a public statement had declared that he was not interested in removing Communists from the Southern Conference for Human Welfare. The Constitution is unable to find any active office or organization of the Conference in several Southern States, and would still like to know for what the money is spent. Meanwhile, The Constitution cannot help but regard as suspect any organization which publicly recommends Communists to its membership.)

Likes Hanna

Editor Constitution: In a recent letter to your column, Mrs. Boyd paid a fine tribute to Evelyn Hanna.

Permit me to add a word of praise to Miss Hanna also. It so happens that I have known this fine woman since her childhood. Her father was one of my earliest friends about the turn of the century. She comes of good stock. Her uncle is a Presbyterian minister, much loved in his community. Her mother was Miss Jessie King, a belle of old Thomaston. Evelyn seems to possess a keen literary mind. Despite the fact that she married an Englishman and now resides in London, I am glad that she still contributes her column to the Constitution.

Let's have more of her writings and less of one who signs himself Westbrook Pegler. Your paper is too fine to give space to this fellow.

THE PU

Atlanta Constitution Sept-22-47

Welcome

Editor Constitution: The editorial comment appended to my letter in your issue of the 15th gravely distorts the facts.

It is absolutely untrue to imply that the Southern Conference for Human Welfare or any of its officers ever welcomed Communists to its membership. You fail to distinguish between such an undertaking and a witch hunt. We refuse to be sidetracked from the fundamental job of improving the economic and democratic condition of the Southern people.

We are not alone in our confidence in the American people. The Democratic Party, of which I believe you are a member, takes exactly the same position on these matters as does the Southern Conference for Human Welfare; namely, it stands by its program and asks all who subscribe to that program to join. The Democratic Party has never, to my knowledge, carried on any witch hunt or attempted to purge its ranks of Communists. If you feel so strongly on this question, why don't you start with your own (party) organization instead of denouncing others?

You have twice represented me as welcoming Communists. Again I must say this is untrue. I have never made any such statement or anything that could reasonably be twisted to mean that. What I have said is that we stand by our program and welcome all who will support it. That is the same position as taken by the Democratic Party.

SCHW Branded as 'Sham And Delusion' by Sensing

Branding the "very name" of the Southern Conference for Human Welfare "a sham and a delusion," Thurman Sensing, research director of the Southern States Industrial Council, told a New Orleans audience Wednesday that "it is high time such Communist front organizations found no resting place in the South or nation."

Speaking on the general subject of freedom and democracy before the New Orleans Rotary Club, the Nashvillian asserted, "There is no place in our nation for those who would overthrow our system of government. That is why we cannot countenance organizations within our midst that allow Communist members—for instance, the Southern Conference for Human Welfare, which organization, its president lately said here in New Orleans, is not interested in whether or not its members are Communists.

"No wonder the responsible people of New Orleans, where this organization has its headquarters asked its removal from the city It had lately moved from Nashville, Tenn., where it had found no sympathy among the thinking people of the community. It is high time such Communist front organizations found no resting place in any community of the South, or of the nation. The very name of the organization is a sham and a delusion.

"Moreover it is a travesty of freedom," Sensing continued, "of tolerance and common decency that this organization should now be conducting a contest on, "What Is Americanism?" The only observation we might make here is that if any group in this nation needs to know what Americanism is, it is this bunch of termites who are attempting to undermine it. This is not a question of tolerance. We can tolerate those who would advocate changes within the framework of our democratic system of government, but we cannot tolerate those who would destroy the framework itself.

On the subject of foreign aid, Sensing urged that "if we are to continue pouring out money and food and materials all over the face of the globe, we at least need to know why we are doing it. If it's charity, it should be handled on a humanitarian basis. If it's blackmail—well, the American people don't scare easily. If it's war, then just talk and half-way measures will not suffice.

"We had better center more of our attention on remaining strong at home," Sensing concluded "and providing an example to the people of the world what a democratic form of government can accomplish."

He declared that this nation cannot afford to be "generous to a fault" and added that "love of democracy cannot be bought like a commodity in the market place; it must first exist in the hearts of the people themselves."

In another reference to Communism, Sensing said:

"There can be no compromise with Communism in this nation. There is no more place for Communists within a democratic land than there is for boll weevils in a cotton patch. A free society including Communists can no more be healthy than a man with cancer. Their whole philosophy is directly contrary to all the principles of democracy. Under their creed, the individual is nothing more than the chattel of the state; there is no such thing as a free man. The whole effort of Communists is centered on the overthrow of established government and its replacement with Communist government. In the United States, this means the destruction of all the ideals and principles and traditions which we cherish and for which our fathers and sons have fought and died."

VOL. LX OCTOBER, 1947 No. 8

REPORT ON A REPORT OF THE HOUSE COMMITTEE ON UN-AMERICAN ACTIVITIES*

THE Southern Conference for Human Welfare, according to its by-laws, is an organization "to promote the general welfare and to improve the economic, social, political, cultural, and spiritual conditions of the people of the South, without regard to race, creed, color, or national origin." [1]

On June 12, 1947, the House Committee on Un-American Activities issued a report condemning the Southern Conference.[2] That organization, the report asserted, is a "most deviously camouflaged Communist-front organization"; [3] its "professed interest in southern welfare is simply an expedient for larger aims serving the Soviet Union and its subservient Communist Party in the United States." [4]

The Committee report appeared, seemingly by design, immediately before a public meeting at which Henry Wallace was to speak under the auspices of the Southern Conference. Moreover, as the Southern Conference quickly remarked, its repeated remunist ties" of the Suspect Sixty-Two is not persuasive.[98] But even if the evidence were compellingly clear, one would still deplore the Committee's readiness to attribute to an organization of thousands of members the political views of this handful of individuals, and to suppose accordingly that the whole organization is dedicated to serving the Soviet Union.[99] If the Southern Conference is to be known by the company it keeps, then it is only fair that all its companions be named, and that the Committee give equally prominent mention to Chief Justice Vinson, Senator Barkley, former Secretaries of State Byrnes and Stettinius, Secretary of Defense Forrestal, former Postmaster General Walker, former Secretary of the Navy Daniels, and all the other men and women of greater or less distinction who have been officers, members, "sponsors," "speakers," "supporters," or "advisory associates" of the Southern Conference in the same way as the Suspect Sixty-Two.[100]

IV. Foreign Policy

All that has gone before is but prologue to the Committee's main charge: "The most conclusive proof of the Communist domination of the Southern Conference for Human Welfare is to be found in the organization's strict and unvarying conformance to the line of the Communist Party in the field of foreign policy. It is also a clear indication of the fact that the real purpose of the organization was not 'human welfare' in the South, 98 One is reminded of Professor Chafee's quip about another somewhat excited legislative body, that it 'had repudiated government by representation and substituted government by misrepresentation." CHAFEE, op. cit. supra note 90, at 282.

99 Consider the pertinent words of Mr. Justice Douglas in Bridges v. Wixon, 326 U. S. 135, 143 (1945): "Individuals, like nations, may cooperate in a common cause over a period of months or years though their ultimate aims do not coincide. Alliances for limited objectives are well known. Certainly those who joined forces with Russia to defeat the Nazis may not be said to have made an alliance to spread the cause of Communism. An individual who makes contributions to feed hungry men does not become 'affiliated' with the Communist cause because those men are Communists."

RALPH McGILL

A View Of Wallace's Visit

Ralph McGill is out of the country on a tour of European areas. Due to irregular mail service, his column will be missing from its regular space from time to time during the next few weeks.

Today's substitute feature is an editorial from the Macon Telegraph concerning Henry Wallace's speeches in Georgia last week.

A Tawdry Show The warmest admirers of Henry A. Wallace must have been humiliated by the tawdry stagecraft with which the principal speaker was held under wraps for a dreary hour and a half at the Municipal Auditorium while members of the supporting cast strutted their stuff in efforts to steal the show and the bumbling President of the Southern Conference for Human Welfare held up the program while he beat the drum with an evangelical fervor for dollars and dimes.

The old Wizard Oil show, with its doxology of "All it costs is a dollar a bottle," followed a wiser technique and achieved better results, if we may judge from casual observation of the few fluttering bills held aloft and the hollow clink of two-bit donations dropped in the collection boxes. With a tent and a tenor singer, almost any evangelist could have done better.

An impartial estimate placed at 1,500 the number of persons who certainly did not tax the capacity of a hall which seats approximately 4,000 and, of course, a substantial majority of the customers paid their 80 cents to hear the changes rung on "free" speech, but even so, the Southern Conference for Human Welfare must have moved on the next town with a feeling of frustration and disappointment, accentuated by the fact that there was not a single burst of that enthusiastic applause which usually greets a great orator advocating a good cause.

There were periods in the Wallace speech which ordinarily might have evoked such applause had it not been for the inept idea of holding back the main speaker for an hour and a half, gripped like the "bony hand" of the Ancient Mariner, while the wedding guests "could not choose but hear."

Next to Wallace and the benediction, the best feature of the evening was the South Wind Quartet.

Courteous The Telegraph bespoke for Mr. Wallace a large attendance and a courteous hearing. He was at least given a courteous hearing.

Mr. Wallace is a man of ability and reads his speech with an easy deftness which gives the impression of spontaneity. The fact remains that apparently there were few in the audience who agreed with his political and social philosophy and Wednesday evening's meeting probably did not win anybody to the folly of setting up a third party in this country or indorsing the statement that through nonsegregation alone can this country ever reach real prosperity.

Mr. Wallace harped on the familiar theme that the South is the No. 1 problem child of the United States. The former Secretary of Commerce should have brought himself up to date on official statistics which show that the Southeast is advancing more rapidly in industry and general prosperity than any other section of the country, while the Eastern States are losing their leadership. This is hardly consistent with the notion that some ogre in Wall Street through unfair freight rates and other evil devices is deliberately strangling the South. Any conference truly interested in the human welfare of the South would find less satisfaction in "fouling its own nest" than in looking with hope and confidence to the greater welfare which is already on the way.

We will pass over with sober tolerance the hint by one of the supporting cast that force and violence will break out in this part of the country unless we abandon segregation and gulp down the amazing report of the President's Committee on Civil Liberties.

We would like to disassociate Mr. Wallace from the Southern Conference for Human Welfare, but unfortunately the report of a congressional committee issued June 12, 1947, lists him as a member of the advisory board of that organization.

The infectious smile and magnetic personality of the man probably won for him the personal liking of most persons who met him, but neither Mr. Wallace nor the Southern Conference for Human Welfare is rendering any real service to the South.

As Sam Welles says, "On the contrary, quite the reverse."

"Southern"

BY ALEX S. BOONE

Truly, there is nothing Southern about that so-called "Southern Conference For Human Welfare." That bunch of professional do gooders and race baiters are alien to decent principles of Southern white and black people.

Southern? Why that brat was born in New York of mix-breed parents. Its hippen fixers are mainly in the North with the exception of a scalawag head nurse in Atlanta.

In school, Clark Foreman was given the nickname of "Puke." Schoolboys are hard to fool about a budding character. If Clark was a Puke in school, it is not surprising to find him acting the part today.

The Secretary of Puke's so called Southern thing has the name of James Dombrowski. Sounds like Russian to me!

Most touted member is Henry Wallace of Iowa, and there are others, few of whom were born in the South Yet they have the crust to call their mix-blooded brat: "Southern."

Any decent white or colored person should resent that deceiving name of Southern when applied by Puke, Henry et al to their so-called Welfare Racket.

If Northern skunks and a scatter of Southern scalawags want to do things for human beings, then why don't they organize under the honest name of The Northern Conference For Human Welfare are then do something for Harlem which is described by a New York Magazine as the "Wickedest city in the world." To do that, perhaps would be honest but would it get one on the payroll of some foreign power which wants rotten work done? I don't know. Do you?

Records in Washington allegedly show that Clark "Puke" Foreman was first white government official to employ a Negro Secretary.

Personally, we are satisfied that the moves now being made by Foreman are satisfactory to Soviet officials in Russia.

Henry Wallace, Hel-eanor Roosevelt, Vito Marcantonio, Edwin Embree and Aubrey Williams!

When such birds as above named are all found stirring up Race hatred in the South, there must be some deep-seated reason for such skunking. I personally think their reasons may be founded in finance Their actions can but help Russia in its cold war upon America

Surely, no one is silly enough to believe that Henry and Puke Foreman are spending their own money to mix the races.

In reason, neither Puke nor even Hel-eanor nor all of them together, have such money as the scalawags are spending in this nation-wide campaign to promote the mixing of the white and black races.

The treasury of some mighty foreign nation might find enough money to finance a continent wide plan to weaken America by making mongrels out of its citizens. But no individual, however rich, has the money in sufficient volume to cover the expenses now being made to mulatto-ize our people black and white.

When a woman sells the use of her body for money, in all lands, she gets the title of "Harlot."

When any white man or woman sells the white race down the river by insisting that Blacks and Whites mix, then such a white person is nothing more than a "Political Harlot," selling their principles and perhaps a thousand degrees lower than a poor, pitiful prostitute, selling her body, who perhaps can plead poverty to justify her sales.

Truly, Puke and his fellow pukes are just un-blushing political harlots, possessing no principles on race.

Time, eventually will disclose why Puke and his puppets are that way. Long after the crime, Old History has a way of digging up devious secrets.

For example, 'tis known today that Talleyrand was a traitor to France and in the pay of Napoleon's enemies. And here in America, it is known that a son of Benjamin Franklin sold out to the British. Too, it is known that Gen. Charles Lee second in command to Washington, was a traitor in pay of the British. A few years will have to roll by before historians will dig up the list of traitors that Russia paid in other lands. When that list comes to light will there be found the names of any major member of that Southern thing headed by Puke Foreman and James Dombrowski?

ATTACK ON CLEMENT IS DIRTY POLITICS

* * * A member of the [City Executive Committee] board has charged that Dr. Clement is a Communist sympathizer because he once belonged to the now defunct Southern Conference for Human Welfare.

This newspaper is proud of the fact that it contributed largely to the demise of that organization. We were twice threatened with lawsuits because of our exposure of it; therefore, we believe we have some authority to speak.

The Southern Conference for Human Welfare was organized by honest, loyal Americans, with a viewpoint to organizing all constructive forces in the South to improve the South's economic and social status. It later was infiltrated by Communists, but for a good many years it was composed of and led by persons of unquestioned loyalty, during which time its membership was about 99.95 per cent loyal. It offers the typical example of a few rotten Communists spoiling a good barrel of apples.

Even so, it was not until a good many years had passed, and after most of the membership had withdrawn, including Dr. Clement, that persons of suspected communistic tendencies took over what remained of the organization. They did not long endure, largely because this newspaper exposed them and kept upon them the full light of publicity. Therefore, we feel free to say that this smear attack on Dr. Clement was false and unworthy, and those conducting it reflect no credit on themselves, our city, state and region. * * *

Sign These Petitions

Petitions asking clemency for Carl Braden and Frank Wilkinson, now serving one-year terms for contempt of Congress, are now circulating throughout the country.

Every American who believes in fairplay, or who is opposed to segregation's denial of human dignity, or who is disgusted with the House Un-American Activities Committee's rough-shod methods, should affix his signature to one of these petitions.

More than 1,000 prominent Americans, including Dr. Martin Luther King Jr., Dr. Reinhold Neibuhr and the Rev. John Hayes Holmes have already signed the pleas.

They signed because they know the only reason Carl Braden and Frank Wilkinson are behind bars is because they dared speak and work for the end of racial segregation in schools, parks, residential areas, recreational areas and every tax - supported facility as required by the United States Constitution.

That was the only reason they were summoned before the House Un-American Activities Committee during a star chamber hearing in Atlanta.

This is the same committee which has yet to see anything un-American about the subversive activities of the White Citizens Councils or the Ku Klux Klan.

Since May 1, Braden and Wilkins have been in federal prison at Greenville, S.C. Just remember every day they are required to serve is another 24 hours of tribute exacted by segregationists because of their firm belief in equality.

They already have served 85 too many. Sign the petition and get your friends to sign to get them out.

SCHW Opens Contest On "Americanism"

WASHINGTON — (ANP) — A nation-wide search for the best definition of "Americanism" is being launched by the Southern Conference for Human Welfare.

The contest will be announced over more than 100 radio stations from coast to coast in connection with a transcribed debate between Dr. Clark Foreman, president of the SCHW, and Rep. Alvin O'Konski (R. Wis.), president of the American Anti-Communist Association.

The radio debate, a presentation of both sides of the issue, was recorded in Washington, as a part of the regular series, "Is Congress Its Job?

RULES OF CONTEST

In some localities, radio stations are sponsoring local Americanism contests with merchants giving prizes for the best home-town entries. Anyone can enter the contest—man, woman or child.

All that is necessary is to write an original definition of Americanism in 100 words or less, and mail it to "Americanism Contest, P. O. Box 1037, Washington, D. C." Winners will be notified by mail, and announced in daily newspapers. Contest closes Sept. 30. Entires will be judged on content and aptness of thought. First prize will be $100; second, $50; third $25 and 25 honorable mention awards of $1 each. Decision of the judges will be final. In case of ties, duplicate prizes will be awarded. All entries become the property of the Southern Conference for Human Welfare.

Wants Retraction

Label McGill Article False

Pittsburg Courier 7-21-29

ATLANTA—(ANP)—The Southern Conference for Human Welfare last week demanded a retraction of "malicious, false and libelous statements" in a signed article by Ralph McGill, editor, carried in the Atlanta Constitution, accusing officers of being subversive.

The demand for retraction was made by Thomas W. Johnson, Macon attorney.

Johnson wrote Clark Howell, president of the Constitution, stating that McGill's departure from the country did not in any way relieve the Constitution of the "responsibility of publishing statements and innuendoes that are libelous, particularly after they have been so notified on Friday night in time to change the article."

NO TALMADGE FRIEND

The statement by Mr. McGill that the officers of the Southern Conference for Human Welfare intended to "assit Herman Talmadge" was particularly objected to by Mr. Johnson.

The SCHW attorney stated: ,

"Mr. McGill knows well that the Southern Conference for Human Welfare, through its officers, has long opposed the principles for which Herman Talmadge stands and that they have worked effectively in the past against both Talmadge and his father."

THE TRUTH ABOUT
COLUMBIA
TENNESSEE CASES

Frankly to say, between us. I do not much care for this - it leaves out all commendation of the sheriff etc - who did play a fairly good role - That is the method of propaganda.

ON THE NIGHT OF Monday, February 25, 1946, the Negro citizens of Columbia, Tennessee, courageously prevented a lynching.

For this service to the community and the state, 100 of them were arrested. They were illegally held incommunicado for periods ranging from three to eight days. They were denied the right to communicate with friends on the outside to arrange bail and counsel. They were denied the constitutional right of being represented by counsel at the preliminary investigation. Many of them were cruelly beaten while in custody. Two were shot and killed inside the jail by officers of the law who were questioning them. At least 15 of them have been charged with assault with attempt to commit murder and others with minor offenses.

The fair-minded citizens of Tennessee should be grateful to the Negroes of Columbia that there was no lynching on the night of February 25. We think they would be, if they could know the facts. But they cannot know the facts, because the incidents which brought on violence have been misrepresented, the story of the lynch mob and its attacks on the Negro community suppressed, the circumstances surrounding the shooting distorted, and race relations in our state poisoned by stories about a "race riot" which never took place.

That is why we are publishing this pamphlet, presenting the results of our own investigation, to tell the people of Tennessee what their officials will not tell them—the story of what really happened in Columbia.

CLARK H. FOREMAN, President
Southern Conference for Human Welfare

What Happened in Columbia

IT STARTED in the Casner-Knott radio repair shop at about 10:00 o'clock Monday morning. There was an argument between a Negro customer, Mrs. Gladys Stephenson, and the white repairman, Will Fleming. Mrs. Stephenson had had a repair job done and she claimed she had been cheated on the job. Fleming was angered that a Negro would dare make such an accusation against him, a white man. He struck and kicked Mrs. Stephenson.

The woman's son, James C. Stephenson, 19, was there and saw what happened to his mother. He was a young veteran, just returned from overseas service in the Navy. He had volunteered. He was not afraid to strike back when his country was attacked. And he was not afraid to strike back when his mother was attacked, even though it was a white man who did it. He struck the repairman. Fleming, in falling, struck and broke a plate glass window.

The repairman was not seriously hurt. Nevertheless the crowd drawn by the incident jumped on the young veteran and his mother and beat them up. One man stamped on Mrs. Stephenson's face after she was knocked down. When the police came they arrested the victims, but not the men who did the beating and kicking. Nor did they arrest Fleming, whose brother, Flo Fleming, is the Democratic Party nominee for sheriff of Maury County.

All afternoon the word went around the town that a mob was forming to lynch the Stephensons. A man bought a rope in a hardware store on the square. He told the clerk he was going to use it on a Negro that night and, if he didn't, he hoped someone would use it on him.

Late that afternoon, a Negro property holder made bond for the Stephensons, though the authorities advised him against it, saying there might be trouble. The bondsman was just in time.

Between 5:00 and 6:00 that afternoon an armed mob stormed the jail and tried to kick the door down. They told the sheriff they had come for the Stephensons. The young veteran and his mother were gone and some time that night fled to safety.

Angered at having their intended victims snatched away, the mob turned toward the Negro community. But there again they were frustrated.

They Remembered the Rope

If you don't know much about lynchings, you may wonder why the Negroes did not rely on the police to protect them from the mob. They didn't because they remembered how a Negro had been hanged from the courthouse window years ago—and how the county authorities had left the rope hanging there as a symbol and a warning and pointed it out proudly to visitors. They remembered that a mob had gone from Maury County to Nashville after 14-year-old Cordie Cheek and brought him back and lynched him—after the Grand Jury had found him innocent on rape charges. They remembered that Negroes had identified members of the mob that murdered Cordie Cheek—but they were never arrested. And they knew that the mob was milling on the courthouse square, less than two blocks from the heart of the Negro business section, and that it had not been disarmed or dispersed.

They Waited . . .

So they did the only thing that they could do, which was just what you or I would have done if we had been in their position. They retired to their homes, got out their guns, most of them ordinary hunting guns, some of them war trophies, and waited.

All that night armed men roamed the streets looking for a Negro to lynch. They did not find one, because the Negroes kept to their homes. They did not dare invade the Negro community, because they knew the Negroes would fight back. Some of them, however, drove past the section in automobiles, firing into Negro homes as they went by. It was these auto raiders, not the Negroes, who fired the first shots. Because of them, to keep from presenting an easy target, the Negroes turned out their lights.

Twice that night white persons who invaded the Negro area were peppered with birdshot and driven out. On one of those occasions, the four men who stopped birdshot were police officers. Of course, the Negroes, waiting in the dark for a mob attack and seeing these men approach, had no way of knowing that they were officers. And of course, too, no more than two or three men out of the whole Negro community had fired at all. But the Columbia police cared nothing for such considerations. Negroes had fired on officers; that was excuse enough for taking vengeance on the whole Negro community.

Mob in Uniform

They phoned the Governor for reinforcements. Gov. McCord sent in during the night more than 100 highway patrolmen and more than 400 troops of the state guard. These forces took no action against the lynch mob. Instead they threw a cordon around the tiny Negro business section where the shots had been fired. The cordon included armed civilians—members of the mob.

At dawn the law enforcement officials moved in. They arrested every Negro trapped in the surrounded area, whether there was any reason to connect him with the shooting or not. Large numbers of those arrested were veterans, some discharged so recently that they were still in uniform. After these men had been captured, disarmed and lined up, they were kicked and cursed and beaten with blackjacks, fists and guns.

It was the armed forces of the State of Tennessee who did the real rioting. They broke the windows of the buildings and sprayed the interiors with machine gun fire. At the Morton Funeral Home they poured embalming fluid over the expensive casket furnishings, smashed lighting fixtures, broke the reading lamp over the pulpit, and marked "KKK" on a coffin in huge letters. At the Blair drug store, they destroyed the soda fountain, looted the stock and stole money from the cash register. Juke boxes all down the street were jimmied open with bayonets to steal the nickels. At none of these places was there any resistance. Not a business establishment in the area escaped damage.

Blair Barber Shop after it was vandalized by the state patrolmen.

The newspapers have deliberately left the impression that 400 guns were found in this raid on the Negro business section. They were not. After the raid was over, deputies made a house-to-house search of every Negro residence in Columbia. They claim to have seized 400 guns from the homes of a Negro population of 3,000. In the outlying sections, where the mob had not come close, these guns were found in trunks and attics. They were such squirrel rifles and bird guns as could be found by raiding the same number of homes in any community, white or colored. The house-to-house search was conducted without regard to either the Constitution of the United States or the Constitution of Tennessee, both of which contain provisions against search and seizure without warrants.

Incommunicado

Sixty-eight Negroes were arrested that day and, in the days that followed, the number grew to 100. All of them were held for days, some for more than a week, while a "board of investigation" sifted the evidence to decide which ones should be charged with crime. While they waited they were not permitted to make bond, nor to obtain counsel on their own behalf. Z. Alexander Looby, Negro attorney of Nashville, and Maurice Weaver, white attorney of Chattanooga, were employed for them by the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People. Officials refused Weaver the right to see the prisoners and to be present when they were questioned.

Some of these prisoners, including women, were beaten inside the jail.

Murder in the Jail

On Thursday, February 28, two of these prisoners, William Gordon and James Johnson, were shot to death in the jail. The official explanation was that Gordon had grabbed a gun from the confiscated weapons stacked in the room and fired it, giving Deputy R. T. Darnell a slight flesh wound in the left arm. No one has explained why prisoners were in a room where there were loose guns lying around, nor why the prisoners could not be subdued without killing them, nor what methods of questioning were used which could drive helpless prisoners (against whom there were no serious charges) to so desperate and hopeless an extremity. The official attempts to explain how it was possible for a prisoner to have on hand the right kind of ammunition to load such a gun have been notably unconvincing.

The most charitable interpretation it is possible to put on the circumstances of this horrible killing makes the officers guilty of incredible negligence and stupidity—and of killing prisoners who could have been subdued without killing, which is a very serious criminal offense. The explanation which fits the facts better and is easier to believe is much uglier even than that—though it is an old story in Southern police dealings with Negro prisoners.

Our Shame and Our Duty

The Columbia case is a shame to the state and the nation. The Columbia defendants have been ruthlessly hurt and hounded for the offense of preventing a lynching. They are under the threat of long prison terms, for the crime of defending their lives in the only way open to them. The way in which the officials involved and the newspapers have blown up these courageous and guiltless acts into a "race riot", with dark hints of a planned Negro uprising, is a ghastly travesty on both truth and fair play.

Protect the Constitution

The Columbia defendants have been subjected to wholesale violations of their civil rights under the federal and state constitutions. They have suffered arrests without warrant, searches without warrant, holding incommunicado, denial of bail, denial of counsel, destruction and looting of property, theft of money found in premises which were vandalized, denial of due process of law, denial of equal protection of law, beatings and third degree, and the unjustifiable slaying of two of their number.

Even if our consciences would let us stand by idly while these rights are denied to a minority, the experience of other countries has shown that we cannot afford to—lest these rights be so undermined that ultimately we lose them ourselves.

Negro Veteran: Test Case

The significance of this case goes far beyond the fate of the individuals involved. Cases of violence against Negroes have been increasing rapidly since the war ended and, almost always, it is Negro VETERANS who are attacked. These men fought for democracy and have come back expecting to share in it. The Klan-minded element, a tiny minority of the white population, is trying to throttle these just aspirations in the only way they know—with violence and murder. A new pattern of race relations is being worked out. It MUST NOT be the pattern launched at Columbia.

What You Can Do

You can help prevent that by letting the Governor of Tennessee know that you do not want state forces used as substitutes for a lynch mob. You can help by demanding that the federal government intervene to protect civil rights when they are violated by state and local officials. You can help by contributing money toward the defense of the brave men on trial at Columbia.

In doing so, you will help to offset the harm which the Columbia case has already done to peaceful relations between the races. You will be keeping faith with the Negro and white veterans who fought side by side for democracy and the rights of minorities. You will be keeping faith with the soldiers of all races, colors and creeds who died side by side for the same cause.

CHRISTIANITY AND THE ECONOMIC ORDER

By Dr. E. A. Rauber

The discussion of "Christianity and the Economic Order" is a task of more than ordinary magnitude. Either half of the topic would alone be more than sufficient to consume many times over the amount of time at my disposal. To attempt a discussion of both of them, and of their relationship to each other would seem to be quite out of the question in any brief talk such as this one.

In view of this difficulty, whatever I shall say will necessarily be very sketchy and over-simplified. I do not tonight intend to discuss the manifold specific economic problems that plague the modern world, overlaying the discussion with a veneer of Christian moralisms. My reason for not doing so is that I believe that most specific problems are merely particular instances of a more general problem -- the fundamental relation between what may be called the Christian dynamic and the dynamic of our economic system. It is to this general problem that I would direct your attention.

By "dynamic," of course, I simply mean the central purpose or principle around which individual and social conduct is, or should be, organized. For example, in the first of these forum meetings Dr. Smart said that the real purpose of the textile industry is "to provide clothing for God's family." This statement would assume that the central purpose of industry is service -- that it exists primarily to satisfy the material wants of people. Whether or not this is so is a matter that will engage our attention in a moment.

A discussion of Christianity in relation to anything labors under one serious handicap from the very start -- the fact that Christianity means different things to different people. I am therefore under the obligation of stating just what I mean by Christianity, for what I have to say later on will be the logical outcome of my definition. If you, on the other hand, mean something different by the term "Christianity," then you will probably come to some very different conclusions about our economic system.

To me it seems to be profoundly important to find out just what Christianity is. The world today seems to be disintegrating in a welter of selfish strife before our eyes. Certainly, a civilization that claims to be Christian, even though in name only, but that nevertheless rends itself to pieces in one suicidal war after another; that possesses unheard-of productive power but which nevertheless frustrates its own productive possibilities by its countless internal struggles -- such a civilization certainly has serious reason to examine itself. If our Christian heritage yields such fruit, something is seriously wrong somewhere. It may be that Christianity itself is wrong; or it may be that we have misinterpreted it; or, it may also be that we refuse to apply our religion to the world in which we live.

What, then, is Christianity? I don't think we would make any mistake if we called Jesus the first Christian, and said that Christianity, in its origin is the substance of what Jesus taught and lived. If this be so, then Christianity would have to be considered as the religion OF Jesus -- that religion in which he himself believed.

Historically, however, as we all know, Christianity has become much more than this, if it has not actually become something quite different from it. It has, in effect, become a religion ABOUT Jesus.

I can think of nothing more disheartening than to read the history of theological controversy during the long centuries when Christian theologians were carrying on a running fight with the heretics -- heretics being the theologians who ultimately lost out in the fight. The mere mention of the names of some of these controversies is depressing -- the struggle with Gnosticism; the struggle between the proponents of the doctrine of homo-ousia with those of homoi-ousia -- whether Christ was of "one substance" with the father, or whether he was of "the same substance" as the father. Then there were the struggles over Arianism, Nestorianism, Appolonianism, Eutycheanism, Sabellianism, Docetism, Monophysitism, Pelagianism, etc., etc. The issues in these controversies were definitely abstract and rarefied. What was the relation of the pre-existing Son to the Father? Does the Holy Ghost proceed from the Father only or from the Father and the Son? Was the Holy Ghost merely the spirit of God at work in the hearts of men, or is he a separate person? Was Christ a part of God, or was he all of God, yet numerically distinct from the Father? If Christ was God, was his human shape merely an illusion, and his suffering an illusion too? If he was really a man, and also God, was he one person or two? If he was one person, did he have one nature or two natures? And if he had two natures in one person, did he have two wills or just one will? And so on and on.

These arguments, as you can see, were all arguments ABOUT Jesus, and the definitions that brought them to a close constituted a body of beliefs ABOUT Jesus, and this body of beliefs has come to be the substance of what we call the Christian Faith. It is frequently given as a matter of self-congratulation that Christian theology came through all these controversies without suffering corruption from the vagaries and extravagances of the heresies. To me, however, the mere fact that Christianity was ever debated in such terms at all, and that it took such pains to distinguish itself by hair-line definitions from competing thought systems, shows that it had already ceased to be the religion of Jesus and had become merely a religion about him. This type of speculative theology was foreign to Jesus and the intensely realistic Hebraic tradition from which Jesus sprang. It was of one piece, however, with the Greek philosophical tradition in its later phases. Jesus said that he came not to destroy the Law and the Prophets, but to fulfill them. He was the child of the synagogue. But Christianity, instead of being the fulfillment of the Hebraic tradition was subtlely converted into the fulfillment of Platonic and neo-platonic mysticism in the Greek tradition. Jesus was made to desert the synagogue for the Academy and the Porch.

We are thus left with two possible definitions of Christianity -- either it is the religion OF Jesus, Hebraic and realistic in spirit, or it is a body of beliefs ABOUT Jesus, Greek and speculative in spirit. It makes a great deal of difference which definition we hold. According to the first view, a Christian would be anyone whose life was motivated by the same purpose as that which Jesus expressed in his own life, regardless of whether the person formally claimed to be a Christian or not. When the disciples on one occasion found a man casting out devils, but who was not a formal follower of Jesus, they asked the Master if they should forbid him. Jesus told then not to forbid the man, for "he that is not against us is for us." It is acts and purposes that count; not formal professions of intellectual belief. Many other instances could be cited to illustrate the same point.

According to the second definition, however, a Christian is one who believes certain things about Jesus. In the first case, the test of Christianity is life — i.e., Jesus' purpose expressed in action. In the second case, however, the test is correctness of belief -- and this is a matter of thinking rather than of doing.

Because I do not find Jesus anywhere in the Gospel instructing his followers in theological abstractions, nor do I find him exacting from them any profession of belief in such systems, and because I do find him always calling men to a particular kind of life — action motivated by purpose — I feel compelled to think of Christianity as the continuity through history of Jesus' purpose, no matter where or by whom that purpose is lived out, and irrespective of what the person thinks or does not think about abstract theological propositions. "By their fruits ye shall know them."

What fruit indeed can theological speculation really be expected to yield? How differently, for example, would you act if you believed that Jesus was of "the same substance as the Father" instead of believing that he is "of one substance with the Father" as we say in the Creed? Would your conduct be different in any respect if you believed that the Holy Ghost proceeded only from the Father instead of from the Father and the Son?

The peculiarity of this kind of thinking is that it inhabits a world far removed from life; it deals with questions that, in the nature of the case, can find no verifiable answers in experience; it has no capacity for affecting human conduct; it can't be translated into life. And unless the word is made flesh so that it may dwell among us, it has no power to save and redeem.

If Christianity is the continuity of Jesus' purpose in history, we must ask ourselves: What is that purpose? On this point there can be no reasonable doubt. From the beginning of his ministry to its end the burden of Jesus' message was the coming of the Kingdom of God, or of Heaven. "I must preach the Kingdom of God to other cities," he says, "for therefore was I sent."

Where is this kingdom to be, and what is its nature? Here again I do not think there can be any reasonable doubt. It is to be an order of human society on this earth -- not a kingdom that is to be attained only in another world after we die. He taught us to pray for its coming on earth. "Blessed are the meek, for they shall inherit the earth" -- not a distant heaven. "Blessed are they which do hunger and thirst after righteousness, for they shall be filled." And the filling is not to be merely with spiritual satisfactions, for a little further Jesus says when speaking of the need for food and raiment: "Seek ye first the Kingdom of God and his righteousness and all these things shall be added unto you." In other words, build a human society around God's purpose and your economic problems will automatically be solved. That is what he is telling us.

What is the nature of the society that Jesus looked forward to as the goal of social development, and what is its organizing principle or dynamic? It is perfectly obvious, of course, that Jesus made no effort to describe the institutional framework of a Kingdom of God on earth. It is obvious, however, that he was at great pains to describe the spirit that must motivate it, what I have called its "dynamic." That spirit, of course, is love — not love as a mere sentiment or emotion, but as a motive to action.

Love in any of its aspects is always a motive that transcends self. It is a motive that restrains one from trying to appropriate the world to his own individual use and rather causes him to spend himself on others. The love of God and the love of neighbor are the sum and substance of our religion -- on this "hangs all the law and the prophets."

And who is the neighbor whom we are enjoined to love as ourselves? The parable of the Good Samaritan makes it perfectly plain that the Christian concept of community cuts across all natural, religious, racial, and national lines. My neighbor is anyone who is in need. Love, then, is a ministration to the needs of others, whoever they may be. An economic system based upon Christian principles, therefore, would be one designed to satisfy the want for material goods of all those who need them. It would be organized to produce food and get it to everyone who is hungry; it would provide clothing for everyone in need of clothing; it would house the shelterless; it would bring the healing arts of medicine to all the sick, and education to all the uneducated, just because the need existed and for no ulterior reason. In such an economic system Dr. Smart's statement would then be perfectly correct -- the textile industry would exist for the sole purpose of providing clothing for God's family.

One look at the present economic system, however, is sufficient to show how far it is from being motivated by this Christian dynamic. I would like to call your attention to two news items appearing side by side in the New York Herald-Tribune for January 29:

> 400,000 suits reported held.
> Suit makers holding back sales > to stores until OPA increases > prices.
>
> Manufacturers say that they cannot move the suits to the retailers at a fair profit and that they will hold the suits until the OPA gives relief.
> 3 million shirts in warehouses.
> Lack of low-cost shirts is said > to keep higher priced ones in > storage.
> More than 3,000,000 men's shirts valued at retail at $10,000,000, are lying in manufacturers' warehouses all over the United States, with the producers unable to ship to a shirt-starved public without incurring penalties of many thousands of dollars.

What is wrong here? Here we have God's family in desperate need of suits and shirts; the suits and shirts have already been produced; but still God's family goes suitless and shirtless. Why? Prices are not right! It would be easy to say that the trouble lies with a bungling OPA, and that if the market were only allowed to function freely that all would be well. This would be an easy answer -- too easy. The fundamental trouble is that these goods were not produced in the first place for the sake of the need that they would satisfy but rather for the sake of the price they would bring.

No businessman in our economic system goes into business primarily to make goods and to minister to the needs of his fellowman. He goes into business primarily to make money, although the making of goods may be incidental thereto. If more money can be made by producing more goods, well and good. If, on the other hand, more money can be made by producing fewer goods, production will certainly be restricted. No one would expect a businessman in his right mind to act otherwise. As a very famous teacher of mine once said: A businessman who tried to do business in terms of Christian principles would land in the bankruptcy court if he did not land in the insane asylum first. Our economic institutions almost seem designed to prevent one's behaving as a Christian should. The basis assumption of our economic system is that every individual will seek his own maximum economic advantage -- that he will seek to get as much as he can, and to give as little as possible.

We are so used to acting on such motives that we seldom consider their religious implications -- that is, we seldom consider the relation of Christianity to the economic order.

The late Archbishop of Canterbury, Dr. Temple, once explained the doctrine of Original Sin in terms that went something like this: A child, when born into the world, sees the world about him as a great circle of which he is the center. He begins to measure sizes and distances in terms of his own size and his own position. He thinks of himself, in other words, as the center of the physical world. Similarly, he comes to think of himself as the center of the moral world, although he really isn't, for God occupies that position. The way this comes about is simple. The individual begins to have experiences, some of which are pleasurable and some of which are painful. Those that are pleasurable he tends to call "good" and these he seeks to have repeated. Those that are painful he calls "bad" and these he seeks to fend off. "Good" and "evil" thus come to be defined in terms of the effects that experience produces on the individual. In order to repeat the pleasurable experiences and to ward off the unpleasant ones, it becomes necessary however, for the individual to reach out and try to manipulate and control the people and the things that constitute his environment. He must make them serve his purposes; he must treat them as though they existed chiefly for his benefit. Of course, when everyone attempts to act in this way, society becomes a battle-ground of conflicting individual purposes and interests. The social process tends to become a war of all against all.

This tendency of the individual to use the material world and especially other people for his own advantage, says the Archbishop, is the essence of Original Sin, and all particular sins are at bottom only expressions of this fundamental tendency. This sort of thing as you will immediately recognize, is precisely what we know as "economic behavior."

But in economics, of course, we don't call it sin. We have pleasanter names for it. The seeking of individual control over things and other people we call "private enterprise," or "economic individualism." The war of all against all we call "competition." The unrestricted right to participate in the struggle for economic power we call "freedom." When one individual, or a small group, gets sufficient power to restrict the entry of others into that line of business, and so can manipulate prices to their own advantage, we call that "monopoly." To all the other sweating and struggling contestants monopoly appears to be an evil and Government may be asked to step in and do something about it. But the monopolist is not peculiarly wicked; he has only succeeded in doing what everyone else would do if he had the opportunity and ability.

It is something of a marvel that the public interest gets served as well as it does when the livelihood of all of us is placed at the mercy of the interplay of the lowest and most divisive of all human motives -- the aggrandizement of the self. Writing in 1776, Adam Smith, the founder of political economy, also marvelled that "as though guided by an invisible hand" the common welfare was apparently brought about as a by-product of the selfish pursuit of private gain. The world in 1776 however was much simpler than it is today, for the full potentialities of the economic system were as yet undisclosed. But even at that early date Adam Smith recognized the jeopardy in which the public interest stood when it was entrusted to the operation of such motives. "People in the same trade seldom meet together," he wrote, "even for merriment and diversion, but the conversation ends in a conspiracy against the public, or in some contrivance to raise prices." Or again, where he is writing of the employers of capital -- what he called "stock" --:

> "The interest of the dealers, however, in any particular branch of trade or manufacture, is always in some respects different from, and even opposite to, that of the public. To widen the market and to narrow the competition is always in the interest of the dealers. To widen the market may frequently be agreeable enough to the interest of the public; but to narrow the competition must always be against it, and can serve only to enable the dealers, by raising their profits above what they naturally would be, to levy, for their own benefit, an absurd tax upon the rest of their fellow citizens. (Any proposal coming from this group of men) must be carefully examined, not only with the most scrupulous, but with the most suspicious attention. It comes from an order of men, whose interest is never exactly the same with that of the public, who have generally an interest to deceive and even to oppress the public, and who accordingly have, upon many occasions, both deceived and oppressed it."

This, then, is the general nature of our economic order. The relation to it of the Kingdom that Jesus envisaged is one of complete contrast in motives, in methods, and in results. Whereas our economic order is motivated by selfishness, Jesus' Kingdom would be motivated by love. With us, commercial combat and monopolistic greed are made to replace conscious co-operation and mutual aid. Instead of treating our fellowman as ends in themselves, our economic order compels us to treat them as means to our own selfish ends. Instead of goods being distributed on a basis of human need, they are divided up on the basis of the relative power of individuals to exercise control over the things that we all need in common. The Kingdom of God and the economic order stand in complete opposition to each other.

We must, however, put our faith in one or the other. We can say, of course, that Christianity is a lot of silly utopianism anyhow and we can't be expected to take it seriously. Or, we can treat it as a Creed -- a mere form of thought concerning things belonging to the world beyond and thus keep it out of any rude contact with the facts of life in this world. Or, finally, we can take it seriously and accept our obligation as followers of Jesus to do everything within our power to mold the economic order, and all human relationships, into a closer semblance of the Kingdom of God.

With regard to the outcome, however, no Christian can be in doubt. If there is a God, and if it is his purpose to create on this earth a human family bound together by the motive of love, then that purpose will inevitably be attained. The church should be the most powerful instrument in bringing it about. But if the church refuses this duty, it will still come about, albeit without the benefit of clergy. "The Kingdom will be taken from you and given to a nation bringing forth the fruits thereof."

Moreover, if our economic order and its institutions stand athwart God's purpose, as they most obviously do, they will inevitably be destroyed. In spite of all the political and economic nostrums that we may apply to the solution of our baffling economic problems, it can be said with the utmost certainty that we shall stumble from one catastrophe to another until we learn, like the prodigal son amid the husks of the pigsty, that only in the bosom of a family -- our Father's family -- can there be any real security and economic wellbeing.

FOR RELEASE: IMMEDIATELY

SOUTHERN WELFARE HINDERED BY HISTORICAL CIRCUMSTANCES

A "Who's Who in Southern Liberalism" helped launch the Southern Conference for Human Welfare and shared the frequent headlines it commanded during its short lifetime. Upon its demise, the Conference barely warranted an obituary, and its elite guard had long since fled. But "human conduct may be judged not only by its results but also by its aims," writes Thomas A. Krueger in his new book, And Promises to Keep: The Southern Conference for Human Welfare, 1938-1948. The new volume, to be published on 10 May 1967, by Vanderbilt University Press (256 pages, $6.50), settles the historical account and puts many old ghosts to rest.

Hopeful spokesman for the South's rural and urban dispossessed, the Southern Conference came into being chiefly to bolster the New Deal. The world was just recovering from the depression and would shortly be plunged into war. Between the frying pan and the fire, the vast potential of the South cried out to be tapped. At stake were housing, agriculture, railroads, employment, education, civil rights (the poll tax and segregation were primary targets), natural resources, industry and, inevitably, political issues.

Conference participants represented all religious and all political convictions. Congressmen, youth as well as youth leaders, historians, journalists, labor leaders, and social workers all rallied to the cause. For a while, it seemed that men and women of diverse persuasions could work together. The names of Joseph Gelders, Eleanor Roosevelt, Lister Hill, John L. Lewis, Claude Pepper, Paul Robeson, Rob Hall, W. T. Couch, Lillian Smith, James Dombrowski, Clark Foreman, Ellis Arnall, Mary McLeod Bethune, Earl Browder, and Henry Wallace often appear side by side, incongruously, on the pages of And Promises to Keep. Nearly every one of them deserted the ranks, sooner or later.

Chronic financial difficulties, internal power struggles, and ill-defined goals weakened the Southern Conference, but its foundations were largely undermined by the recurrent charge that it was "red." Professor Krueger maintains that the Southern Conference was not a Communist front. At least between 1935 and 1945, the American Communist Party did not constitute a clear and present danger to the Republic. On the contrary, the Conference was torn by its various constituent elements, each of which had "loyalties potentially in conflict with the Conference's declared purposes." No faction dominated. There was even a point at which the Conference descended "into the witless rhetoric of American jingoism" and turned somewhat toward the right. At least one leader accused of being a Communist by the House Committee on Un-American Activities was known as a red-baiter. "No amount of Congressional pettifoggery can turn peaceful propaganda in support of New Deal reform and Negro voter registration into subversive activities," writes Dr. Krueger. Nonetheless, the Conference purged its ranks several times. Trying to please everybody, it modified its stand on foreign affairs to the point of inanity. It tried to co-operate in winning the war and, later, to build the peace. It managed to climb uphill. Yet, it could not withstand the ultimate onslaught from the CIO, combined with the cold shoulder from former allies. From a peak of ten thousand members in 1946, with committees in several states, the Conference declined rapidly. The especially successful Washington Committee was the last to go. It went down fighting.

Communism was not really the issue. Professor Krueger's research substantiates that the inability to become a mass organization was largely to blame for the Conference's failure. Where it should have reached out for the workers, it dealt with labor leaders. It drew sustenance from the middle class when it meant to elevate the impoverished.

All that now remains of the Southern Conference is the Southern Conference Educational Fund which, in the declining years, was separated from the parent organization. The Fund is devoted entirely to civil rights and none too successfully, according to Krueger. Beyond that, rusty chains shackle the spirit of a Southern Conference that once boasted the flesh of a hardy pioneer. Many of its original arguments are today in common use but these often echo like empty platitudes. And "the closets with the white sheets and the long ropes" bear evidence of the South's continuing predicament.

An assistant professor of history at the University of Illinois in Champaign, Professor Krueger taught earlier at San Diego State College and at the University of Minnesota (where he received the doctorate in 1965). Two grants from the latter enabled him to complete the research for And Promises to Keep. Born in Missouri, Professor Krueger received the B. A. degree from Antioch College and the master's degree from the University of Wyoming.

these 13 states are democracy in the balance.

Our greatest reservoir of human and natural resources—now cruelly misused, underdeveloped, and a danger to our entire economy.

In these states live 1/3 of our nation, many of them ill-fed, ill-housed, underpaid midst rich resources—needing the help of all Americans for the benefit of all America.

The South has our highest birthrate — our highest deathrate; the most children—the least to spend on education; rich farmlands—poverty stricken farmers; great mineral, timber, and waterpower resources—relatively little industry; a great democratic tradition and little democracy; some of our greatest citizens—some of our most dangerous demagogues.

Here is conflict—latent and developed. Much depends on you.

The Southern Conference for origin —

In 1938 the President issued a report by a group of Southerners succinctly summarizing the economic plight of the South and describing the 13 southern states as "the Nation's Number One Economic Problem." Shortly thereafter 1500 Southerners organized the Southern Conference for Human Welfare to work for improvement in the social, economic and cultural conditions so startlingly revealed in the President's report.

work —

Since 1938 the Southern Conference has worked unceasingly with business, labor, farm, civic, church, and professional groups to mobilize the resources of the South for the benefit of the Nation in peace and in war.

The Southern Conference has worked for the abolition of the poll tax and other restrictions to freedom of the ballot, for abolition of railroad rate and other discriminations against Southern industry, for the protection of the rights of labor and racial and religious minorities, for the extension of Federal aid to farmers and education, for specific measures to help the development of the South.

Human Welfare

The work of the Southern Conference is carried on through the organization of interested citizens into local and state groups; through the publication of pamphlets, educational material, and a newspaper, The Southern Patriot; and in periodic conferences with leaders of Southern affairs.

support —

Hundreds of our most distinguished Americans support the work of the Southern Conference. These include government leaders, industrialists and small businessmen, leaders of major labor organizations, and church, farm, and professional leaders in and out of the South.

you —

The Southern Conference wants and needs your support and the support of every American interested in securing the Victory we are winning abroad. Contributions, which are tax deductible, should be addressed to either the New York office, The MURRAY HILL HOTEL, 112 Park Avenue, New York 17, N. Y., or the National Office SOUTHERN CONFERENCE FOR HUMAN WELFARE PRESBYTERIAN BUILDING, NASHVILLE 3, TENN.

YOU and the SOUTH

- From a costly war we learn that a lasting peace must assure to all peoples freedom from want and freedom from fear. Conflict is the expression of insecurity.

- Unless we realize the potential that is our Southland, we will harbor in our own nation the seeds of future conflict.

- The extension of democracy in the South — the development of vast human and material resources —is an essential of lasting peace.

- The South is YOUR problem. It is a land of hope, but it is our greatest danger if you fail to act.

The SOUTHERN CONFERENCE for Human Welfare

★ The Southern Conference for Human Welfare was organized in 1938 by about 1,500 Southerners as a response to the publication of the President's report on economic conditions in the South.

★ Seeks to unite for common action all persons of good will and progressive minds in and out of the labor movement, both white and colored, who are concerned with improving the social, economic, and cultural standards of the South.

★ Uses the methods of investigation, education, and legislation.

★ Has a program both constructive and practical.

★ Works for: Total Victory, Full Employment, Complete Democracy, Permanent Peace.

★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★

Advocates:

1. Mobilizing every Southern resource, including total man-power for the winning of the war. Vigilance against home-grown forms of reaction and fascism.

2. Abolition of the poll tax and all other restrictions on the freedom of the ballot.

3. Abolition of railroad rate and all other discrimination against the South.

4. The right of labor to organize and the practice of collective bargaining as an expression of democracy in our economic life.

5. Abolition of all discrimination on account of race, creed, or color, at the ballot box, on the job, and before the courts of justice. A permanent Fair Employment Practice Committee to realize the basic democratic concept of equal economic opportunity for all.

6. Extension of Federal aid to Southern farmers—retention and strengthening of the Farm Security Administration, its rehabilitation program, tenant purchase, soil conservation, and cheap credit for the redemption of the tenant and sharecropper and to give the small farmer a better living.

7. Federal Aid to give equal educational opportunities to all.

8. A minimum American standard of living for all, through extensive Federal programs for public health, housing and Social Security.

Accomplishments:

1. Mobilized over 6,000 progressive Southern leaders to abolish the undemocratic poll tax.

2. Early in the present conflict cooperated in promoting a "Win-the-War" conference in Raleigh, N. C., with representative leaders from all Southern states.

3. In Mississippi cooperated with leading citizens to secure the signatures of 75 outstanding white citizens to a statement in support of the governor's efforts to bring mobsters to justice.

4. Initiated a statement signed by over 400 leading white citizens of Alabama protesting the attempt by reactionary forces to make political capital from an appeal to racial and religious prejudices.

5. Through press releases and special bulletins helped to educate the Southern electorate on important issues of a local, regional and national nature.

6. Publishes the Southern Patriot, a monthly magazine of news and opinion on Southern trends, with an average circulation of about 10,000 and with special editions up to 30,000.

PROGRAM

Dinner in honor of

JUSTICE HUGO BLACK

Statler Hotel, Washington

April 3, 1945

Hugo Lafayette Black

Born February 27, 1886, the last of eight children, to William Lafayette Black and Martha Ardella Toland Black. The father, a Confederate soldier at the age of 14, was a native of Alabama. The mother, a native of South Carolina, was brought to Alabama by her parents while a child. The Blacks settled in the hills of Clay County and there in a small cabin all the children were born. Before Hugo was old enough for school the family moved to Ashland, the county seat, where the father opened a general store.

Attended: public grade school and high school; one year in medical school; three years in the law school of the University of Alabama. Picked cotton, set type, wrote pieces for the paper to help make school expenses.

Practiced law in Ashland until a fire in the grocery below destroyed his office and his law library. Moved to Birmingham, taking his wealth, $9, and his experience, 21 years, with him. Found a desk in a lawyer's office and began the practice of law.

Eighteen years later in a speech in the town square at Ashland, he said:

> "It is true now, and I believe it will be true hereafter, that the humblest son of the humblest citizen, born in the humblest surroundings, can lift his eyes toward the star of hope. So may it ever be."

To his old neighbors, Black offered proof of this creed. He was a candidate for the United States Senate.

In the intervening years his law practice had grown and he had prospered. He had been elected municipal judge and prosecuting attorney. He had served two years in the army and had married a yeomanette, just out of the navy, Miss Josephine Foster, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Sterling J. Foster, of Birmingham.

He was elected to the Senate, taking the seat of Oscar W. Underwood. Six years later, on his record as an independent legislator, he was re-elected. Near the end of his second term he was appointed to the U. S. Supreme Court, the first appointment to that court by President Roosevelt.

After a Senatorial battle comparable to those made against Louis D. Brandeis and Charles Evans Hughes, he was confirmed. Now, after seven years on the bench, the partisans of each of those great, but different, jurists, concede his right to rank with either of them.

". . . the humblest son of the humblest citizen . . . So may it ever be."

The South Is Due an Apology

EVERY RESIDENT of the eleven Southern states from Virginia to Texas is due a personal apology from three organizations which united to publish a slanderous and prejudicial document purporting to show that there has been a general breakdown of law and order in the South in the past four years.

The 30-page booklet, entitled "Intimidation, Reprisal and Violence in the South's Racial Crisis" was published jointly by (1) Southeastern Office, American Friends Service Committee of High Point, N.C.; (2) Department of Racial and Cultural Relations, National Council of Churches of Christ in the United States of America, of New York City; and (3) the Southern Regional Council in Atlanta.

The purpose of the tract, obviously, was to amass a box score of real or alleged "incidents" from newspaper clippings, and to present the total listing largely out of context without benefit of any statistical comparisons on which it could be properly judged or evaluated, in an effort to prove that the South is fairly wallowing in race riots and anarchy.

FROM THE RESULTING conglomeration came a "news release" announcing widespread "erosion of individual liberties" in the eleven Southern states involved, attested to by a list of 530 specific cases of "violence, reprisal and intimidation" in the four-year period. The story made page 1 of New York papers last Monday. Editorials of condemnation followed. Declared the South-hating Washington Post & Times Herald: ". . . there is little hope for the South to shake off this trend toward violent eruptions until its own basic thinking about adherence to the law as defined by the courts is straightened out."

Thus, the three groups responsible for the publication have, for reasons best known to themselves, contrived through a misleading document to fan the fires of sectional animosity.

LET'S TAKE A LOOK at the report itself, which covers the period from Jan. 1, 1955 to Jan. 1, 1959, during which 530 specific cases of violence, intimidation or reprisal were cited. How many cases occurred in the four years from 1951 to 1955? This is not listed, but if twice as many occurred, it could be said that conditions in the eleven states are improving. More important, what would the box score show for the same period in eleven Eastern or Midwestern states, of any eleven chosen at random with the highest Negro-white ratios of population, if a similar count were made? Would the South show more cases—or would it show less?

Since no attempt was made to give such a comparison, the motive of the joint endeavor may be taken for granted—namely, to hold the South up to scorn and contempt.

DOES A TOTAL of 530 "incidents" in eleven states over a four-year period show a general breakdown of law and order? This would average out to about a dozen incidents per state per year.

Last year a congressional committee investigated more than 800 specific incidents of violence (not including intimidations and reprisals) during the same period of time in one labor dispute in Kohler, Wis. And this was by Walter Reuther's union—we don't even have to get into the statistics from the real bad boys such as Jimmy Hoffa. Does this indicate a widespread erosion of individual liberties in Wisconsin? And if so, why was this not included in the report?

On race incidents, what about Cicero, Ill., or Levittown, Pa., or Dearborn, Mich.? What about New York, Washington, Baltimore, Philadelphia and Chicago? The box score, had one been kept, of similar incidents, would have shown a greater number in New York or Chicago during the four-year period than the 530 total for eleven Southern states!

IN FACT, when we consider that the Southern states have the highest proportion of Negro population to white, we'll bet our last dollar that an honest survey would prove race relations in the South to be better and more amicable than any other area of the country where there is an appreciable Negro population.

The organizations responsible for this report have done an irresponsible thing that will not help the cause of better race relations in the South or elsewhere. Their report, itself, admits "this is not a comprehensive survey . . . It describes only their angry, violent side." We ask them—Why? We think the South is due an explanation.

Hold On, Senator

SEN. PAUL DOUGLAS of Illinois has leveled a broadside against retired military officers who accept positions with industry. He said that when firms seeking defense contracts "hire former officers of high rank to negotiate with their former fellow officers—some of whom they have promoted—the potential and actual

... highly controversial issues. But before we look at them, it will be useful to understand, if we can, the historical situation in which the issues have been posed.

Since the war which ended 15 years ago Franco-American relations have been based on a premise which was never openly avowed but has always been assumed both in Paris and in Washington. The premise has been that France, though it is counted among the victors, was in fact defeated, and that her colonial empire is in the process of dissolution, and that she is no longer a first class power. The chronic instability of the post-war governments in France, the budgetary and monetary disorders, supported this view.

LIPPMANN

Our government acquired a habit of not consulting France regularly and genuinely, and indeed of treating her with less intimacy and confidence not only than Great Britain but even West Germany. On two recent occasions which might have led to a war involving France—the landing in Lebanon and the affair at Quemoy—there was no full consultation with Paris.

THE ADVENT to power of Gen. de Gaulle was bound to mean, as it has meant, that France would not accept the lower position which she has occupied. She has been regarded not only as not so great a power as Russia and the United States, but not even as being in the second rank with Great Britain or even with Adenauer's Germany.

We must never forget that Gen. de Gaulle, to his everlasting honor, is the Frenchman who never surrendered and who never accepted defeat, and it is a kind of historic justice that he should be the man who now insists that France must not be treated as a defeated and inferior power.

In this context we may look at the issues. They were raised diplomatically last summer and then in a note addressed to President Eisenhower and Prime Minister Macmillan on Sept. 24, 1958. This note has never been published. But it is said to set up three French objectives.

NEWS RELEASE

SOUTHERN REGIONAL COUNCIL
63 Auburn Avenue, N. E.
Atlanta, Georgia
June 23, 1959
JA. 2-8764

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

Senator Herman Talmadge has reportedly attacked the Southern Regional Council, the American Friends Service Committee and the National Council of Churches for a recent joint report on "Intimidation, Reprisal and Violence in the South's Racial Crisis."

The Senator could not have read the report before making his charges. If he had, he would have found that each incident reported was taken from objective newspaper accounts and that arrests and convictions of offenders were also reported. Moreover, cases in which Negroes were the perpetrators of violence against whites were also included.

As the report itself states, these incidents are related by their common origin in the heightened racial tensions of the last five years. The publishing organizations have also reported frequently on positive developments during this period.

The Senator is grossly misinformed if he believes that these organizations engage in "racial agitation." Each of them is known for its temperate, responsible approach to race relations.

It is a great pity that Senator Talmadge is not more concerned about these critical problems of lawlessness, rather than unjustly attacking those who soberly point out the dangers.

Talmadge Hits Racial Strife Study

By ALBERT RILEY
Constitution Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON, D.C.—Sen. Talmadge took the floor of the Senate Tuesday to denounce a report published last week on racial incidents in the South since 1954.

The Senator called the report "an irresponsible, unfounded, and slanderous attack upon the good name of the South."

He branded the three groups who published the report as "organizations dedicated to racial agitation."

ORGANIZATIONS NAMED

They are the American Friends Service Committee, of High Point, N.C., the National Council of the Churches of Christ in the United States of America, of New York City, and the Southern Regional Council, of an Auburn avenue address in Atlanta.

They joined in publishing a 30-page booklet titled "Intimidation, Reprisal, and Violence in the South's Racial Crisis."

Talmadge said the three agencies "sought by innuendo, distortion, association and half truths to conclude from a series of 530 unrelated 'incidents' spread over a four-year period that law, order and harmonious race relations no longer exist in the 11 states of the South."

CALLED ONE-SIDED

"This studied effort to indict a whole region of our nation is wholly one-sided and makes no pretense at comparison with other periods or regions, nor does it attempt to report on the manner in which these so-called 'incidents' have been dealt with under due process of law in the states and localities where they occurred," Talmadge declared.

"The hypocrisy which motivated this biased and inflammatory publication is unspeakable and deserves the condemnation of all fair-minded Americans regardless of their place of residence," the Senator added.

Talmadge inserted in the record editorials from The Augusta Herald and The Savannah Morning News attacking the report as a biased distortion of facts slanderous to the entire South.

ATTACK CALLED UNJUST

In Atlanta, the Southern Regional Council issued a statement expressing belief Talmadge had not read the report and calling his attack unjust.

The statement said, in part:

"The Senator could not have read the report before making his charges. If he had, he would have found that each incident reported was taken from objective newspaper accounts and that arrests and convictions of offenders were also reported. Moreover, cases in which Negroes were the perpetrators of violence against whites were also included.

HITS AT TALMADGE

"The Senator is grossly misinformed if he believes that these (sponsoring) organizations engage in 'racial agitation.' Each of them is known for its temperate, responsible approach to race relations.

"It is a great pity that Sen. Talmadge is not more concerned about these critical problems of lawlessness, rather than unjustly attacking those who soberly point out the dangers."

Dear Sirs:

It is our understanding that on February 9, 1962 a station editorial dealt with Communist activities in the South. According to a recording of the editorial which we have, there was included the following statement:

> We've touched upon the Southeastern Conference of Human Welfare, Southeastern Conference Educational Fund, the Southern Regional Council, we showed how all of these organizations have similar same members of the board who are known communists.

Enclosed with this letter is a list of the Southern Regional Council's officers and members. These are distinguished Southerners whose devotion to the American Constitution and American ideals is unimpeachable.

I am sure you understand that a public allegation that persons are "known Communists" is, without proof, libelous. We categorically deny that any member of the Southern Regional Council is a "known Communist," or identified with the Communist Party. I therefore request that you make an appropriate retraction of this statement insofar as the Southern Regional Council is concerned, and notify us when and in what terms the retraction will be made.

Sincerely yours,

INTEROFFICE MEMO

Date February 21, 1962

To: LWD From: PR

Subject:

Concerning the Birmingham radio tape, I suggest that we send the transcript over to Joe Haas and request that he write the owner of the station calling attention to the statement that there are known Communists on our board, suggesting that this is an error, requesting any information the station may have in support, and requesting a retraction in the absence of such evidence.

I agree that this is not a particularly strong broadcast, but I think we should never let a public Red smear go by without a response. I think, too, that even this kind of broadcast does considerable harm to the Birmingham Council in the present climate there. Jimerson advises that a copy of the letter might well go to the President of Birmingham Southern for his information. Birmingham Southern apparently has some relationship with the station.

Dr. Henry King Stanford

file - Defense materials - Attacks

This tape is from Birmingham, Alabama, and is being sent to you for your consideration.

WSFM series of editorials on informing our listeners about communistic activities - we'd like to qualify with a few statements. We're not extremists. No individuals are putting us up to this. We do not belong to any organizations. We're doing it on our own out of the great alarm of ourselves after considerable study in the subject as to the activity in and around the area. Again we would like to repeat: there is great concern of the communistic activity in the area. The greater concern - and we do mean the greater concern - is the apathy, ignorance, and general shrugging of the shoulders attitude of most Americans thinking and hoping that this might die out, and all along your apathy, my apathy laying the foundations for a tremendous amount of inroads of social unrest and agitation which the communists are seizing upon, particularly in the South. We've touched upon the Southeastern Conference of Human Welfare, Southeastern Conference Educational Fund, the Southern Regional Council, we showed how all of these organizations have similar same members of the board who are known communists. This doesn't mean that these organizations are not to some degree causing some good. They happen to be about the only organizations entering into the problems of trying to do something for a lot of people in a positive manner. However, the motive is underneath, the communists are the masters of deceit, and it's up to us to be informed about it , one, ~~two [too?]~~ two, most important for us to do something positively in our own way and through our American processes. We can..we have personally..

we can criticize City Hall, and they certainly do a botched up job down in Birmingham City Hall. However, it's easy to criticize; it's far more difficult to do something about it even if such poor leadership is exemplified.

Now the Alabama organ of the Southern Regional Council is the Alabama Council of Human Relations, offices in the Comer Building, Birmingham, Alabama. The Reverend Robert Hughes, Methodist minister formerly residing on 3209 Ridgely Drive, Cohaba /?/ Heights, was the Executive Director through 1960. The Southern Regional Council was represented at the Highlander Folk School seminar Labor Day weekend, August the 30th-September the 7th, 1957 at Monteagle, Tennessee, by Fred B. Routh. Mr. Routh bears the title of Assistant Director of the Southern Regional Council. Notorious communists, veteran communist fellow-travelers and Negro leaders in all the recent major incidents attending integration were present at the Highlander Folk School 25th anniversary on quote "The Human Aspects of the Integration Struggle." The Highlander Folk School at Monteagle, Tennessee, was organized around 1932 by Miles Horton and Don West. Paul Crouch, before his testimony of the Subcommittee on Un-American Activities.. Mr. Crouch said, "I would like to mention in this connection that the Highlander Folk School at Monteagle, Tennessee, was a school organized by Miles Howton and Don West and which James Dombrowsky shortly thereafter joined." Paul Crouch who gave the foregoing testimony concerning the Highlander Folk School was the top communist functionary in the South. His communist record given to the Senate committee by Crouch himself attests his importance.

In the early period of the Highlander Folk School, a prominent, present Birmingham businessman was a member of its faculty. On August the 13th, 1938, Mr. John P. Fry, President of the Metal Trades Department of the AFofL testified before the Dies /?/ Committee on the Un-American Activities, and named Elizabeth Hall, this prominent Birmingham businessman that we just mentioned, and Miles Horton as persons who attended a secret convention in North Carolina, at which time plans were made for spreading the revolutionary theories throughout the South. Mr. Fry further testified in connection with this "I might mention that the Highlander Folk School at Monteagle, Tennessee, was mixed up in this secret convention in which three CIO organizations took a very prominent part."

We've offered over the years free copies of The Communist Menace, by J. Edgar Hoover. We'd like to offer it again to any of our listeners who have not received a copy. It's free for the asking; just call us at Fairfax 3-5291. We'll try to pass on any specific information of particular questions that you might have. If we have information about it we'll pass it on to you. We will not talk with you, however, unless you give us your name and address, and We must know who we're talking to. Call us at Fairfax 3-5291 for further information on this and if you'd like to receive The Communist Menace by J. Edgar Hoover. Now Again let us emphasize..we're just giving factual history. One of our listeners called up and asked us if we belong to the John Birch Society. We do not; we don't belong to any group or organization. We're concerned, -- want Americans to be concerned.

We continue with our morning programming, and the time is thirteen minutes until eight o'clock.

The preceding was recorded in the morning of Friday, 9 February, 1962.

On Friday, February 9, in the afternoon, it was learned by the Director of the Alabama Council on Human Relations that the officials and administration at Birmingham Southern had put a stop to the editorials. One of the members of the official Board at Birmingham Southern stated that any editorials were against the policy of Birmingham Southern. It is unknown the exact relationship between the radio station and Birmingham Southern, but there was sufficient relationship that the school could report there would be no editorial. On the following Monday it was learned that this man who spoke, who is the owner of the station, had stated that Birmingham Southern had stopped him but he would continue to make his exposes on his own. At this point it is quite uncertain as to how he proceeds to make his viewpoints known.

Dear Mr. Melonas:

We have your letter of March 16, 1962 in reply to our letter of February 23, 1962.

You state that you have retracted the statement that there are "known Communists" on the board of the Southern Regional Council. You further say that you "have stated in continuing editorials that known Communist affiliation of the Southern Regional Council."

We assume that the statement quoted contains a typographical error, and that you intended to write that you have editorialized to the effect that the Southern Regional Council has no Communist affiliation. Will you please confirm our interpretation of this statement?

In addition to this confirmation, I believe all that is required to terminate this matter is that you furnish us with the text of your retraction, and the date at which it was made.

I am not clear as to what information you want or require regarding the persons listed on the enclosure with your letter as having been associated with both the Southern Regional Council and the Southern Conference for Human Welfare. I shall be glad to furnish you any information I can, that you ask for, regarding the history, organization, or members of the Council.

Finally, may I say that I find startling your implied acceptance of the Daily Worker as an authoritative source of information. Regarding James Jackson, the fact is he has never had any affiliation with the Southern Regional Council and did not participate in its organization. I call your attention to the enclosed editorial of August 21, 1958 from the Richmond Times-Dispatch.

We await your early reply to the points raised in the third and fourth paragraphs of this letter.

Dear Mr. Dunbar:

Our sincere apologies for not answering your correspondence sooner. We fully intended to answer immediately however we have been extremely busy with the technical development and approval of our stereophonic transmission.

We have formerly stated that there are "known communists" on the board of the Southern Regional Council. We have retracted this statement and have stated in continuing editorials that known Communist affiliation of the Southern Regional Council.

The enclosed list of similar members who were on previous organizations boards that have been declared subversive is a point of serious question. On Page 6 of the Daily Worker of December 1, 1954 it states this about James Jackson: "he participated in the formation and building of the Southern Conference for Human Welfare, the Southern Regional Council and many other movements...."

We sincerely are continuing our editorial policies. If our statements are unfounded and without documentation please write us again as I am sure you will.

Sincerely,

James V. Melonas

Dear Sir:

This is with reference to your letters of February 23 and April 25, 1962, addressed to the Chairman, concerning an alleged objectionable statement made in an editorial broadcast by Station WSFM, Birmingham, Alabama.

It is noted in your letter of April 25, 1962, to Mr. James V. Melonas of Radio Station WSFM, that the station has retracted the objectionable statement. In view of the above, further Commission inquiry into this matter does not appear to be warranted.

Very truly yours,

Dear Mr. Waple:

Your letter of May 10 is not easily understandable. My letter of April 25 does not say that Station ESFM "has retracted the objectionable statement." We said that WSFM had stated that it had retracted, and the purpose of our letter was to ask for the text and the date of the retraction. We have had no reply.

Is it true that the Federal Communications Commission would regard the statements made in the editorial of February 9, 1962 by Station WSFM, and quoted in our letter of February 23, 1962, as "allegedly" objectionable?

Dear Sir:

This is with reference to your letter of May 14, 1962, commenting on our letter of May 10, 1962. Specifically, you refer to your letter of April 25 and you point out that Station WSFM, Birmingham, Alabama, had stated that the objectionable statement had been retracted. In addition, you indicated that the purpose of your letter to the station was to procure a copy of the text of the retraction and the date that it was made.

We regret that there has been some misunderstanding regarding this matter. It was assumed that the retraction had been made and that the station would forward the details of the retraction to you.

Since you have informed us that the station has not communicated with you, we are requesting the station to submit a statement regarding this matter to the Commission. Upon receipt of the station's response, we shall communicate with you further.

Dear Mr. Melonas:

We have your letter of June 17, 1962, in reference to our letters of February 23, 1962 and April 25, 1962.

(1) You state that on March 2, 1962 at 8:10 a.m., your station retracted its broadcast statement of February 9, 1962 (see our letter of February 23, 1962), regarding the Southern Regional Council, in the following manner:

> "That no known Communists were in the Southern Regional Council, however due to many of the members of the Board of the Southern Regional Council having past affiliations with the subversive Southeastern Conference for Human Welfare and the Southeastern Conference Educational Fund, we felt that communistic affiliation was a continuing thing."

(2) You ask for "a thorough history on each of your Board Members."

(3) You state that the objectives of the "past two organizations" and the Council "seem to be similar."

As to (1) your retraction of March 2, 1962 contained not only errors of fact, but by inference re-accuses the Council on the basis of alleged association of its members. We, therefore, cannot accept it as an adequate retraction.

What we request is very simple. It is that you make a statement over WSFM in substantially the following form:

> "On February 9, 1962 this station editorially said that there were known Communists on the board of the Southern Regional Council. On March 2, 1962 we modified and partially retracted this statement. At the same time, we implied that past associations of some members of the Council cast doubt on their loyalty. We wish to say now that we have no basis in fact for stating or implying that any member of the Southern Regional Council is a communist, or in any way disloyal to the United States or its government. We, therefore, apologize for any contrary impressions given to anyone by our statements of February 9 and March 2, 1962."

When a statement such as the above is made and shown to us, we shall regard this matter as closed.

Our public reputatiam is of great concern to us. We do not ask you to agree with our views, our policies, or our programs. We do ask, and insist, that in disagreeing with us you not impugn our loyalty. How serious this is and can be was emphasized by the recent decision in the New York Supreme Court in the Faulk case.

As to (2), we are enclosing for your information another copy of our roster of members and officers. Certainly there is no reason for us, simply because you are misinformed, to take on the burdensome and wholly uncalled-for task of supplying a "thorough history" of each of these persons. I refer you again to our categorical denial in our letter of February 23, 1962.

As to (3), we enclose for your information a copy each of our statement of policy and aims (The South of the Future) which, though adopted in 1951, has been within the past year reviewed by the Council and allowed to stand unchanged as representing our beliefs and program goals; and a short description of the Council and its history.

Sincerely yours,

Leslie W. Dunbar

RE: 8429, 600930

Dear Mr. Waple:

We would be more than happy to offer equal time to the Southern Regional Council over WSFM facility.

However there is a third party that has entered into this matter.

Birmingham Southern College on whose campus we are located has allowed editorials for over two years over WSFM. However the editorial in question with the Southern Regional Council and three others dealing with local political incompetency, lack of southern social justice in our social problems and inference that organizations are agitating the whole social picture, brought a great pressure to bear from Birmingham Southern College. They asked me to temporarily discontinue editorials until the College Board Action could be taken in the matter. The Commission will find a copy of our correspondence in our file addressed to the president of the College on May 12, 1962. Since then Birmingham Southern College has asked us to discontinue editorials and to please move from its campus and until we move not to further editorialize.

Our editorial department has been temporarily stopped until we locate in our new facilities, until then the fairness doctrine will have to wait. Our move will take place sometime this fall. Be it understood that a retraction cannot be made until our move.
Sincerely,

James V. Melonas

Dear Mr. Melonas:

This will acknowledge receipt of a copy of your letter to Mr. Waple of July 17, 1962. We assume that this was written before receipt of our letter of July 13. In it we stated that we wanted a simple retraction and indicated what it should include. We reiterate that request.

In your letter to Mr. Waple you stated that a third party had entered into the matter. Such is not our concern. It is our understanding that WSFM is licensed to operate and control the radio station and that it is responsible for the editorial policy and not someone from whom premises are leased. We cannot believe that Birmingham Southern would or could have objection to your correcting a libelous comment already made.

We insist upon immediate retraction. This matter has been delayed far too long.

Sincerely yours,

Leslie W. Dunbar

Dear Mr. Dunbar:

In our letter of June 17, 1962 we requested that you "give us a thorough history on each of your Board Members, to prove that such leanings or (communist) affiliations are not true." The issue in question is that some of your Board Members have been and are members of the declared subversive Southeastern Conference for Human Welfare and the Southeastern Conference Educational Fund.

Your present Vice Presidents Mr. Rufus E. Clement, Albert W. Dent, Marion A. Wright, and Miss Josephine Wilkins were all past directors with the SCHW and the SCEF.

Out of 141 members of the National Citizens Political Action Committee, 83% have records of affiliation with Communist and Communist front organizations. Mrs. M.E. Tilly appears on this roster of names and also appears on the SCHW, SCEF, and as a director on the Southern Regional Council.

The context of our complete editorial policy states briefly that we abhor some of the South's political incompetency. We desire as much as anyone social justice and an uplifting of our fellow man. If we as Americans do not resolve our own social problems, the Communists, and Communist front organizations will eat away at our foundations. At least on the surface we basically agree to the problems of the South and its objective goals. This is one thing. Motivation by subversion is another. We don't openly intend to impugn your loyalty. However the facts point in another direction in relationship to your directors and their affiliations.

Unless you supply further proof about your directors we cannot honestly retract our statement about the Southern Regional Council.

Again we would like to offer you equal time to state your case in an editorial either by visiting us in person or send a tape editorial as we suggested in our letter of July 25, 1962.

Social equality is not synonymous with Social Justice, and neither one take precedence over basic individual freedom. Basic freedom does not force its will upon another human, individually nor as a group. Is this the record of the Southern Regional Council? Or is Martin Luther King, one of your directors, forcing issues in Albany at present?

Sincerely,

Dear Sir:

I have your letter of September 22 informing us that you are to play our tape at 6:00 p.m. on September 23, 1962. The final three paragraphs of your letter seem to indicate that the letter, despite its date, is in fact a report of what you did do on September 23.

We call your attention to your letter of July 25, 1962 and the statement therein that "we will play it on the air in comparable time and verify its playing through a notary."

We call your attention also to our letter of September 16, 1962 in which we require a notarized statement verifying the broadcast.

We ask that you forward this notarized verification at once.

Very truly yours,

Leslie W. Dunbar

Dear Mr. Dunbar:

Thank you for your tape and your letter.

We plan to play Sunday night at 6 PM at peak time, September 23, 1962.

If you don 't have the opportunity to have any of your men to record the tape you sent us, we played your tape and also asked our audience why you have refused to answer questions in our correspondence to you. We read our letter to you dated August 12, 1962 and asked the question, "If WSFM is misinformed why does the Southern Regional Council neglect to answer our direct questions?"

I personally might add I do not like "pious platitudes" and "double talk" nonsense as you stated in your editorial. You people seem to be good and making things sound good publicly, But may I ask what is your record? Quiet sensible talk about the South's problems? Or is it forcing issues as I stated in my letter to you of August 12, 1962. I believe that you nor your organization is mature, sensible enought to discuss the plain facts about your organization in the open. This is evidenced in your attempt to cover the truth in your tape.

Since I countered your tape please answer the direct questions asked in our letter of August 12, 1962. Please answer them direct and fully with absolutely no tripe conversation. Thank you.

Sincerely,

Dear Mr. Melonas:

In accordance with your letter of July 25, 1962 we are forwarding enclosed a taped statement, in reply to your comments about the Council on February 9, 1962 and March 2, 1962. As specified by you, this is 7½ i.p.s. full track.

Our statement was timed at 3 minutes, 25 seconds. This exceeds slightly the time agreed to by your letter of July 25. We think you were incorrect in computing the "equal time" and we insist that you use the enclosed statement in full. In your February 9 broadcast you devoted far more than your indicated "90 seconds" to the Council, to its affiliated Alabama Council on Human Relations, and to our former Assistant Director, Mr. Fred B. Routh. You returned to the subject again on March 2.

We shall consider this incident closed when and if:

a. You notify us at least 24 hours in advance when our statement will be broadcast;

b. You broadcast the statement at the same time of the day, or an equally good time, as your editorial of February 9, 1962;

c. You furnish us a notarized statement verifying the broadcast.

Finally, I would like to make clear that if the broadcast of this statement is preceded or followed by any editorial comment from your station, we shall claim the right to equal time to answer that.

Sincerely yours,

I am Leslie W. Dunbar, and I am executive director of the Southern Regional Council, with offices in Atlanta.

On February 9, 1962, an editorial broadcast over this station stated that members of the Southern Regional Council are "known communists." This is categorically untrue.

On March 2, 1962, a WSFM editorial said "no known communists were in the Southern Regional Council"; the speaker added, however, that he "felt that communistic affiliation was a continuing thing" in the Council. This also is categorically false.

There is no need to defend the distinguished and patriotic men and women who comprise the Southern Regional Council. Nor shall I use this time to attack the misinformation and irresponsibility of this libel on ~~respectable~~ fine Southerners.

Rather let us deplore the ignorance or fear which inspires such slander of thoughtful and decent people. The South --and our country--are crippled and endangered by mindless or calculated punishment of free throught and free speech, and by the frequent insults flung against those who speak against or differ from social inertia and tradition.

The Southern Regional Council believes ~~in~~ freedom of ~~thought and speech, and individual, and group, expression free of such angry punishment.~~ We believe that our American Constitution guarantees the right of the wise, the stupid, the reckless, the cautious, the conservative, and even the radical, to speak his opinions; and that this right, freely and jealously exercised, creates a climate of social and political vigor ~~by~~ in which our country has grown and advanced to world leadership. We believe this liberty is essential to progress and to the creative solution of the present crisis in the South. We believe that without calm, rational discussion the South cannot and will not vanquish its problems. And we know that if men respond to calm argument with angry punishment with smears and inuendo, there will be little chance to keep the cool temper and clear heads the South must have.

We believe that we are obligated, as citizens, to help create and preserve ~~a climate of~~ free discussion of ideas, to which every American is heir and without which there is no freedom or vigor or progress. The only un-American activity there is, is to allow ourselves to be overswept by ignorant fears, by emotional response to emotional cries, by suspicion of each other, by suppression of contending ideas and debate.

As American citizens, all of us have a duty to avoid these things. We regret that station WFSM is not better informed about the Southern Regional Council. But, most of all, we urge its listeners, here in the Birmingham area where problems of such seriousness exist, to face these problems by encouraging free, calm debate and discussion of them.

This tape is from Birmingham, Alabama, and is being sent to you for your consideration.

WSFM series of editorials on informing our listeners about communistic activities - we'd like to qualify with a few statements. We're not extremists. No individuals are putting us up to this. We do not belong to any organization. We're doing it on our own out of the great alarm of ourselves after considerable study in the subject as to the activity in and around the area. Again we would like to repeat: there is great concern of the communistic activity in the area. The greater concern - and we do mean the greater concern - is the apathy, ignorance, and general shrugging of the shoulders attitude of most Americans thinking and hoping that this might die out, and all along your apathy, my apathy laying the foundations for a tremendous amount of inroads of social unrest and agitation which the communists are seizing upon, particularly in the South. We've touched upon the Southeastern Conference of Human Welfare, Southeastern Conference Educational Fund, the Southern Regional Council, we showed how all of these organizations have similar same members of the board who are known communists. This doesn't mean that these organizations are not to some degree causing some good. They happen to be about the only organizations entering into the problems of trying to do something for a lot of people in a positive manner. However, the motive is underneath, the communists are the masters of deceit, and it's up to us to be informed about it .. one; ~~two [Item]~~ two, most important for us to do something positively in our own way and through our American processes. We can..we have personally..

we can criticize City Hall, and they certainly do a botched up job down in Birmingham City Hall. However, it's easy to criticize; it's far more difficult to do something about it even if such poor leadership is exemplified.

Now the Alabama organ of the Southern Regional Council is the Alabama Council of Human Relations, offices in the Comer Building, Birmingham, Alabama. The Reverend Robert Hughes, Methodist minister formerly residing on 3209 Ridgely Drive, Cohaba [?] Heights, was the Executive Director through 1960. The Southern Regional Council was represented at the Highlander Folk School seminar Labor Day weekend, August the 30th-September the 7th, 1957 at Monteagle, Tennessee, by Fred B. Routh. Mr. Routh bears the title of Assistant Director of the Southern Regional Council. Notorious communists, veteran communist fellow-travelers and Negro leaders in all the recent major incidents attending integration were present at the Highlander Folk School 25th anniversary on quote "The Human Aspects of the Integration Struggle." The Highlander Folk School at Monteagle, Tennessee, was organized around 1932 by Miles Horton and Don West. Paul Crouch, before his testimony of the Subcommittee on Un-American Activities.. Mr. Crouch said, "I would like to mention in this connection that the Highlander Folk School at Monteagle, Tennessee, was a school organized by Miles Howton and Don West and which James Dombrowsky shortly thereafter joined." Paul Crouch who gave the foregoing testimony concerning the Highlander Folk School was the top communist functionary in the South. His communist record given to the Senate committee by Crouch himself attests his importance.

In the early period of the Highlander Folk School, a prominent, present Birmingham businessman was a member of its faculty. On August the 13th, 1938, Mr. John P. Fry, President of the Metal Trades Department of the AFofL testified before the Dies /?/ Committee on the Un-American Activities, and named Elizabeth Hall, this prominent Birmingham businessman that we just mentioned, and Miles Horton as persons who attended a secret convention in North Carolina, at which time plans were made for spreading the revolutionary theories throughout the South. Mr. Fry further testified in connection with this "I might mention that the Highlander Folk School at Monteagle, Tennessee, was mixed up in this secret convention in which three CIO organizations took a very prominent part."

We've offered over the years free copies of The Communist Menace, by J. Edgar Hoover. We'd like to offer it again to any of our listeners who have not received a copy. It's free for the asking; just call us at Fairfax 3-5291. We'll try to pass on any specific information of particular questions that you might have. If we have information about it we'll pass it on to you. We will not talk with you, however, unless you give us your name and address, and We must know who we're talking to. Call us at Fairfax 3-5291 for further information on this and if you'd like to receive The Communist Menace by J. Edgar Hoover. Now Again let us emphasize..we're just giving factual history. One of our listeners called up and asked us if we belong to the John Birch Society. We do not; we don't belong to any group or organization. We're concerned, we want Americans to be concerned

We continue with our morning programming, and the time is thirteen minutes until eight o'clock.

The preceding was recorded in the morning of Friday, 9 February, 1962.

On Friday, February 9th in the afternoon, it was learned by the Director of the Alabama Council on Human Relations that the officials and administration at Birmingham Southern had put a stop to the editorials. One of the members of the official Board at Birmingham Southern stated that any editorials were against the policy of Birmingham Southern. It is unknown the exact relationship between the radio station and Birmingham Southern, but there was sufficient relationship that the school could report there would be no further editorials. On the following Monday it was learned that this man who spoke, who is the owner of the station, had stated that Birmingham Southern had stopped him but he would continue to make his exposes on his own. At this point it is quite uncertain as to how he proceeds to make his viewpoints known.

PROCEEDINGS AND DEBATES OF THE 84th CONGRESS, SECOND SESSION

Address Delivered by Francis E. Walter, Representative in Congress, 15th District, Pennsylvania, at the 38th Annual Convention of the American Legion, Department of Pennsylvania, Convention Hall, Philadelphia, Pa., on July 20, 1956

OF

HON. FRANCIS E. WALTER

OF PENNSYLVANIA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Friday, July 20, 1956

Mr. WALTER. Mr. Speaker, under leave to extend my remarks in the RECORD, I include the following address:

ADDRESS DELIVERED BY FRANCES E. WALTER, REPRESENTATIVE IN CONGRESS, 15TH DISTRICT, PENNSYLVANIA, AT THE 38TH ANNUAL CONVENTION OF THE AMERICAN LEGION, DEPARTMENT OF PENNSYLVANIA, CONVENTION HALL, PHILADELPHIA, ON JULY 20, 1956

I would like to take the opportunity offered by this great occasion to talk to you about a matter of great importance, which is now before the Congress.

Even at this very late hour when everybody in Washington seems to be eager to see the Congress adjourn and go home in order to do some work on mending of political fences, I sincerely hope that the legislation I wish to discuss with you today will be enacted into law before we go to Chicago and to San Francisco, as the case may be, to nominate presidential candidates.

The thing I have in mind is a bill which I have introduced in order to restore good sense to the laws governing the United States Government's power to dismiss civilian employees when their employment is deemed to be detrimental to the interests of the national security of this Nation.

The purpose of my bill is to protect the United States Government from foreign infiltration by Communist agents through the hole opened by the Supreme Court of the United States. Also, it would serve to remind the Supreme Court of the United States of the place it occupies in the Government of this Nation and of the impropriety to develop a strange forgetfulness of the wording of articles I, II, and III of the Constitution of the United States.

Realizing the clear and present danger which the international Communist conspiracy and its methods of penetration present to the United States, the Congress enacted, in 1950, a law designed to protect the United States Government from infiltration of disloyal employees. The President has implemented that law in an Executive order and as you well know, the so-called security and loyalty program as it affected employees of the United States Government has, since its inception, been under a constant and sharp attack by the Communists, their allies, and their dupes.

One rather enterprising employee of the Department of Health, Education, and Welfare by the name of Kendrick M. Cole has agreed to become the tool of those who want to wreck this program, and after having been dismissed from Federal employment because of his questionable activities and associations he has taken his case to the courts.

He was turned down by a Federal district court and by a Federal court of appeals. He went to the Supreme Court of the United States and there he won a victory which represents one of the most stunning defeats for the United States Government.

A divided Supreme Court of the United States, with 6 Justices in the majority and 3 dissenting—Justices Clark, Reed, and Minton—has invaded the powers of the Congress and of the President of the United States and has mutilated the law of 1950 and the President's Executive Order No. 10450 of 1953. This unconstitutional action of the judiciary branch took the form of a decision (Cole v. Young), which, in effect, amends the law by adding to it just four words. Four words which, in limiting the scope of the law, open the entire United States Government to the infiltration of our mortal enemies.

In plain words, the law—the act of August 26, 1950—is applicable to "any civilian officer, or employee" of the United States. What it meant was simply that every civilian officer and employee who has the privilege of being employed by the United States Government must be without a peradventure of doubt loyal to the United States and not associated with any subversive organization.

To the words "any civilian officer, or employee" the Supreme Court has added four words, "in a sensitive position," thus providing that out of the 2,300,000 civilians who hold Government jobs, only one-fifth must be loyal Americans and the remaining four-fifths could keep their Federal jobs although their loyalty to the United States is questionable and although they may remain under Communist discipline.

Obviously, such preposterous thought never occurred to the Congress and it never occurred to the President of the United States that such was the intent of Congress in enacting the 1950 law.

The legislative history of that law is exceptionally clear, as legislative histories go. Reports filed by committees of the Senate and of the House of Representatives, and the debate held on the floors of both Houses of Congress, prove without a scintilla of doubt that the law was meant to apply to every executive agency, not only to the "sensitive" ones—and to every Federal employee, not only to those who hold "sensitive" positions.

No Member of the House and no Member of the Senate contradicted when those statements were made. In fact, no contradiction could have been voiced for there probably is no one in the Congress who believes that there is in the entire Federal Government one job which could be offered to a person whose loyalty to the United States is doubtful.

As Justice Clark—with whom Justices Reed and Minton joined—stated in his dissenting opinion, "the janitor may prove to be in as important a spot security-wise as the top employee in the building".

But let's not stop at janitors—look at the Tennessee Valley Authority. TVA supplies power for the most important of our atomic plants. An electrician in a TVA power plant is not classified as a "sensitive" employee. He certainly could not be so classified under the Supreme Court's ruling, and yet look at the extent of damage to our security that he could do. Think of the staggering blow that could be dealt to our atomic work if that electrician would simply throw a switch to cut off the power at a moment chosen by those under whose discipline he remains.

As a matter of fact, think of what a charwoman could find in an office that she is hired to clean after everybody else had left. And think about the nonsensitive file clerk who moves freely around offices where highly classified documents are stored.

The Supreme Court of the United States said in Cole v. Young, leaning over backward in order to misread and misinterpret congressional and presidential intent that all that was intended is to protect from subversive infiltration only those activities of the Government that are directly concerned with the protection of the Nation, and not those which contribute to the strength of the Nation "only through their impact on the general welfare." It clearly follows that the Supreme Court of the United States would not mind at all if agencies or parts of them, such as the services protecting the Nation's health and welfare, the education of our youth, agencies in charge of interstate and foreign commerce, mailing rooms, archives, certain communication rooms, etc., would become "honeycombed with subversives," if I may quote once more Justice Clark.

If we permit the decision of the Supreme Court of the United States to stand, we would simply open what Mr. Churchill so aptly called our "soft underbelly" to agents of the Communist conspiracy, who from that soft spot, skillfully worming their way upward, could easily reach the very nerve center of the Nation. In addition to that, if we do nothing about this decision, we would condone the Supreme Court's attempt to invade that area of Government which, under the Constitution, is reserved to the Congress and the President.

The 3 dissenting Justices were quite outspoken in that regard, actually accusing their 6 colleagues responsible for the Cole decision of raising a question as to the constitutional power of the President to authorize dismissal of executive employees whose further employment he believes to be inconsistent with national security.

In reading the Supreme Court's decision in the Cole case, I cannot help but feel that I was right several months ago when in reading another of our Supreme Court's decision,

394363—59607

I felt that the illustrious Justices dwell in ivory towers with windows shut tight and shutters drawn, carefully looking away from the mortal danger facing our freedom—the freedom which our laws are designed to protect and not to help destroy.

There is something uncanny in the stubbornness of some of our courts, including the Supreme Bench, with which they refuse to appraise properly the true meaning of the new skin that the Soviet leopard has now clothed itself. They refuse to see the same old spots on the leopard's skin, thus aiding and abetting the Soviet's effort to confuse and disarm the free world by stressing their peaceful intentions while intensifying their attempt to conquer through infiltration rather than through an open attack. It could be that the Supreme Court is not afraid of the danger of Soviet infiltration through actions of the Communist conspiracy because some of our Justices have shortsightedly accepted the opinion of the Fund for the Republic, the opinion which maintains that the Communist Party is nothing else but a political party of the United States just as is the Democratic Party or the Republican Party. That opinion was clearly and unequivocally stated in the report of the Fund for the Republic, dated May 31, 1955, a report for which Mr. Robert M. Hutchins, the fund's president, must accept responsibility.

In spite of congressional findings made in two legislative enactments, the Internal Security Act of 1950 and the Communist Control Act of 1954, where on the basis of irrefutable proof it was found that "the Communist Party of the United States, although purportedly a political party, is in fact an instrumentality of a conspiracy to overthrow the Government of the United States"—Mr. Hutchins and his research specialists arrived at the opposite conclusion.

What the Congress found is, of course, of little interest to the Fund for the Republic and I wish therefore to invite their attention to a most recent pronouncement coming from a source to which they might want to give more credence. I have in mind a major pronouncement printed in the official organ of the Communist Party of the Soviet Union, Pravda, just a few days ago, on July 16, 1956.

On that day, Pravda sounded a warning to the free world in general and to the United States in particular. Said Pravda:

"One should remember that among people who are insufficiently mature politically and excessively credulous, there may be some who would fall for the contention that international connections of Communist parties became superfluous. The consolidation of international connections is a historical necessity both for the working class parties of the lands of socialism and for the Marxist parties of all capitalist countries."

If you strip that Marxist "gobbledegook" of its dialectical embellishments and if you translate it into plain English, it simply means that Communist parties of both the captive and the free nations remain but a foreign branch or an arm of the Soviet Union. Accordingly, to treat persons disloyal to the United States because of their adherence to the international Communist conspiracy simply as persons who disagree with us on certain political issues, just as anyone of you, or I, myself, would disagree with a Republican or with a Democrat, is simply a case of suicidal folly.

Mr. Hutchins, of course, and some of the occupants of our Supreme Bench do not agree with that. However, in judging whether or not Communists and their sympathizers are agents of the Soviet Union and of the international Communist conspiracy, I prefer to accept Pravda's expert word rather than that of Mr. Hutchins. I feel today as if I should be making an award to you because after all it is you who are leading the fight to win the cold war in which it is my privilege to make some contribution. The things that are being done today by the committee of which I happen to be chairman are merely those things which have been of interest to our great organization for so long a time. I say with all the sincerity at my command it is you who should be receiving the award today because you have been steadfast in this cold war and I am sure that by your remaining steadfast we are going to win it, despite the opposition we find from many places today.

SUMTER COUNTY CITIZENS' COUNCIL

P. O. DRAWER 429

SUMTER, SOUTH CAROLINA

TO ALL MEMBERS OF THE SUMTER COUNTY CITIZENS' COUNCIL:

Recently a press release in the Sumter Daily Item, as well as The State and The News & Courier, brought to light that a small group of Sumter people, both colored and white, were planning a "workshop" at Morris College, the colored college in Sumter, for the purpose of "finding workable ways of further extending the lines of communication between responsible leaders in our community, to break down barriers, to change thought, and to widen the reach of goodwill." This group styled themselves a "Bi-racial" group, and appears to be connected with the South Carolina Council on Human Relations, which receives annual grants of approximately $12,000.00 from the Southern Regional Council. The Southern Reginal Council has been listed by the House Un-American Activities Committee. This workshop was scheduled for 18 July 1956, and was to be held from 5:00 P. M. to 9:00 P. M., accordng to the announcement made by Earle L. Kirby, the owner of Kirby's, a business establishment on East Liberty Street in Sumter, S. C., who is the chairman of the "Bi-racial" group. The Secretary of the group is Anna D. Reuben, the wife of O. R. Reuben, the President of Morris College. The meeting was to have been conducted by Ira Kaye, a lawyer who is a native of New York, but who has settled in Sumter after coming here while in the armed forces.

Insofar as can be determined by your Committeemen assigned to study the Press release and the information on the "Bi-racial" group which has been assembled, the group is composed of persons who believes that the Decree of the Supreme Court of the United States with regard to integration of the races should be obeyed and that all barriers should be broken down and our thoughts on the subject changed, and that Negroes should be accepted by us in all walks of life. Accordingly, it was determined that a member of any such "Bi-racial" group could not possibly have the same standpoint as that expressed by the Citizens' Councils, for the reason that such a group favors integration on a gradual basis while we of the Citizens' Councils have unequivocably taken the position that there will be no integration at all.

Immediately a meeting of the Policy Committee, the Membership Committee and the officers of the Sumter County Citizens' Council met and adopted the following resolution:

WHEREAS, the sole purpose of this organization is to maintain and preserve segregation; and

WHEREAS, this organization does not condone the actions of any group seeking to bring about integration in the public school or elsewhere in this State, whether directly or through the process of "gradualism," now therefore,

BE IT RESOLVED: That any member of the Sumter County Citizens' Council who knowingly joins or affiliates with any group seeking to bring about integration in the public schools of South Carolina, or in the lives of our people, shall immediately be expelled from this organization.

Thereupon, as Earle L. Kirby was a member of the Sumter County Citizens' Council, he was summarily expelled from membership, was so notified by letter, and his membership fee returned.

The "workshop" was called off.

This report is made for the information of Members of Citizens' Councils. For additional information the following news is furnished: The "workshop" panel, chosen, according to the Press release, "because they have wisdom and experience in ways that work to relieve tensions and promote understanding for better living in South Carolina," were, in addition to Ira Kaye, the attorney from New York, Jack O'Dowd, of the Florence Morning News, who has written many editorials favoring the Decree of the Supreme Court and integration (Mr. O'Dowd has now moved to Chicago), Rev. Henry L. Parker, Orangeburg, Rev. Hawley Lynn, Columbia, and Rev. J. D. Rice, from Morris College.

It should be noted that the "workshop" was scheduled from 5:00 P. M. to 9 P. M., a time during which most of us are at home eating supper.

After the occurrance of the matter reported above, the Mayor of the City of Sumter, M. Priscilla Shaw, who is also the Vice-President of Shaw Lumber Company, wrote from North Carolina that she was in favor of the "Bi-racial" group established here. She mentioned on several occasions in her letter which was published in the Sumter Daily Item that she thought the group would prevent "violence" and "bloodshed." The Citizens' Councils have not advocated any such bloodshed and violence. Your Committee does not understand the frequent reference to "violence and bloodshed" in that the Citizens' Councils initially went on record as being opposed to any violence and, having so stated, has quietly stood on its record, believing that such a course is calmest and best, rather than to continuously refer to such unsettling phraseology.

Your Committees and your officers have met frequently to discuss questions raised by the turn of events as related. Your Policy Committee and the officers recently adopted the following resolution:

"WHEREAS, the purpose of the Sumter County Citizens' Council is to maintain and preserve segregation and

WHEREAS, any person or Bi-racial group advocating and seeking to bring about integration of the races in our public schools or otherwise in the lives of our people are instruments of destruction of our society and therefore should be recognized as such, now, therefore

BE IT RESOLVED, by the Policy Committee of Sumter County Citizens' Council in meeting assembled that these facts be brought to the attention of the membership of the Sumter County Citizens' Council.

BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED, that a copy of this resolution be sent to all members of the Sumter County Citizens' Council for their consideration."

Your Committees and your officers realize, of course, and appreciate the sentiment of the members of this Council. The foregoing is brought to your attention to show how insidiously those opposed to our views approach this situation, and the necessity of a watchful and united effort of those who wish to preserve our way of life.

Your Committees wish to commend to your attention that Ford, Phillip Morris, Philco, and others have been forced to retreat from certain active support of the forces of integration and the NAACP by actions of members of the Citizens' Councils and other anti-integration groups. Let us keep up the good work. We never know when, where, and in what form, the forces of integration and the destruction of our country may show themselves.

My dear Mr. Walter:

A broadsheet lately issued by the Sumter County Citizens' Council, P. O. Drawer 429, Sumter, South Carolina, and issued over the printed names of F. E. Gibson, Chairman, Policy Committee and T. D. Keels, Chairman, Sumter County Citizens' Council, dated August 14, 1956, complains of a bi-racial meeting proposed to have been held in Sumter at some date in July. The broadsheet runs on: "This group styled themselves a 'Bi-racial' group, and appears to be connected with the South Carolina Council on Human Relations, which receives annual grants of approximately $12,000.00 from the Southern Regional Council. The Southern Reginal [sic] Council has been listed by the House Un-American Activities Committee."

Our Council is not aware that it has at any time been listed by your Committee.

We would appreciate information from you as to whether the Southern Regional Council has or has not been listed by your Committee.

Dear Alice:

Here are the promised copies of the material concerning the Sumter County Citizens' Council's accusation against SRC. Harold's advice is that you should talk the matter over with people in Sumter County and decide whether or not you want to release Mr. Walter's letter to the Sumter County newspaper. We think that the release of the statement is the only thing that should be considered at this time.

Three points in consideration are: whether the South Carolina Council should release the statement to the paper, whether we, SRC, should release the statement to the paper, or whether the statement should be released at all?

Let us know what your wishes are.

Sincerely,

Dear Dr. Mitchell: ATTN.: MR. JOHN CONSTABLE

The steering committee of the Sumter group has asked me to express to you their thinking as to the handling of the Sumter County Citizen's Councils accusation against the Southern Regional Council.

If you sent Mr. Francis E. Walter a copy of the broad sheet, do you suppose he would respond favorably to your request that he write Mr. T. D. Keels, giving him the information that SRC has not been cited as subversive or un-American by the Committee nor by the Attorney General, and request that he give the same distribution to the correction as he did to his erroneous statement? If so, please ask Mr. Walter to send you a copy of his correspondence. The Sumter group would like copies of this correspondence; also, several copies of the original broadsheet and reply to you by Mr. Walter.

If the above is not feasible, would you be willing to write Mr. Keels, quote from your letter by Mr. Walter and request him to make a public correction of his statement? Mr. Ira Kaye, attorney, who is a member of the Sumter steering committee, thinks we all need copies of your correspondence (if handled this way) as proof of the response or lack of response of Keels and Co!

Thank you.

Dear Alice:

This is in regard to the Sumter County Citizens Council's accusation against SRC and Congressman Walter's letter which refutes it.

I am sure that Mr. Walter would feel that he has done all that is required of him by answering our letter as he did. The matter now is one for us to handle.

We will be glad to do whatever you and the Sumter group feel is wise. If you would like us to write Mr. Keels enclosing a photostatic copy of Mr. Walter's letter and requesting a public retraction of his earlier statement, we will do so. Let me know if this is the course you would like us to follow.

Meanwhile, enclosed are several copies of Mr. Walter's letter and of the broadside distributed by the Citizens Council.

Meeting of Board of Directors

Mrs. Morris S. Young	A. R. Suritz
J. M. Dabbs	Dr. D. M. Duckett
Dr. E. C. Jones	W. W. Jones
James Burrell	Mary E. Frayser
Rev. Howard G. McClain	Rebecca Reid
Earle Kirby	James T. McCain
Rev. Hawley Lynn	Alice N. Spearman

In the absence of Rev. Claude Evans, due to illness, the vice-president, Dr. D. M. Duckett presided.

Call to order by the First Vice-President
Invocation
Because the minutes of the last meeting were sent to all members of the Board, the reading of the minutes was dispensed with.

I. Treasurer's Report was given by Mr. McClain:
Books will be audited by Mr. J. W. Hunt, C.P.A.
Balance in bank September 30, 1956, $610.27.
Received $430.00
Treasurer's report accepted.

II. "New Look" for the Southern Regional Council, Inc. as planned at the last Executive Committee meeting was reported by Mr. Dabbs. The Executive Committee feels there can be no cutting down of program now, but there must be expansion. Urge that Fund for the Republic enlarge its contribution for larger scale, nation-wide objectives. Three year grant not sufficient for the whole nation is involved. More responsibility should be put on individual states, with more consideration of individual states needs. Grants should be based on achievements of separate states. Should be cut off altogether if no progress is in evidence. Mississippi specially unhappy in failing to meet standards. States will receive less each year and are expected to raise more. $3,500.00 last year, $6,500.00 next year for South Carolina.

A statement submitted to Dr. George Mitchell, Executive Director, by Rev. Claude Evans, Chairman of the South Carolina Council on Human Relations, asserted that the S. C. Council has not, during the fiscal year October 1, 1955-September 30, 1956, engaged in carrying on propaganda, or otherwise attempted to influence legislation, or otherwise engaged in any form of political activity. Signed by Mr. Evans. This document was accepted as information.

III. New Local Council in Spartanburg in process of organizing and hope to affiliate if and when they can qualify.

Minutes, October 7, 1956

IV. Quaker Meeting in Philadelphia attended by Mr. McCain, September 17th, Lincoln University. A document will be issued in April consistent with Southern point of view, broadly representative, dealing only with Negro-white relations. Plan to get reactions to document in new year.

V. Personnel: Mrs. Paul resigns, Mrs. Spearman reports, from representation on SRC because dates conflict with her professional obligations. Mrs. Paul, as chairman of the SCCHR nominating committee placed in nomination the name of Mrs. Young. She was elected.

VI. Mr. McCain reported on research made in the State for the SRC, which is being carried on in ten states on Negro Suffrage. Forty-six counties were visited by him in the month survey. In two counties in S. C. there were no registrations of Negro voters: McCormick and Calhoun. There are 99,890 registered Negro voters in S. C. Reasons for not registering mostly apathy; also lack of education and pressures. Under the latter were listed economic dependence on white landowners; discriminatory practices on registration days; threats; a lot of fear. The smallest percentage of non-voters among tenant farmers. Apathy true in both white and Negro. Percentage of voter, average white 75.1%, Negro 25.6%. The Southern Regional Council will release this information in pamphlet form. Information limited by refusal in some case to allow books to be seen. Negroes have trouble registering in 10 counties, intimidation. In 21 of the 46 counties Negro population exceeds white. In some counties qualified voters exceed whites. In Conway and Darlington County certain precincts are controlled by Negroes. Mr. Lynn asked if there was any way to break the barriers in McCormick and Calhoun Counties. The reply was that the matter was being worked on, but the fear is great. It was suggested that the difference between Alabama and South Carolina in this connection is that there is closer alliance between Citizens Councils and political powers in South Carolina.

VII. Vacancies: Mr. Lynn reported that Rev. Clyde Helms is leaving the State and Mr. Gil Rowland has resigned. The Nominating Committee, Mrs. Paul, Mr. McClain, Mr. Lynn and Mr. Solomon, suggest for consideration and further thought, Rev. Dan Williams of Greenville, Baptist minister, and Mr. B. B. Compton of the Epworth Childrens Home. More suggestions are requested. The suggestion that Rev. Redd is leaving the State was postponed till further developments. These matters were accepted as information and the Nominating Committee instructed to continue investigations till the next meeting.

VIII. Sumter: A report was made about the effort to have a workshop in Sumter in the early summer, and the pressure brought to bear on Mr. Earle Kirby as chairman of the Sumter group. Relative to the charge brought by the local Citizens Council that the SRC was on the list of the Un-American Activities Committee in Washington, and the statement by that Committee that the accusation was not true, it was stated that Dr. Mitchell was asking the Citizens Council to give this denial the same circulation as that given by the false statement. The final result of this correspondence was not known at this time. As to the suit brought against the NAACP and especially 12 of its members in Sumter by Shepherd Nask, the case was finally concluded without jury verdict for $10,000.00 instead of $120,000.00. The NAACP refused the first suggestions for compromise, and accepted the one that left them free to carry on. Special mention was made of Mr. Kirby's attitude under persecution, commending his refusal to back down or compromise because of pressure.

IX. Anderson: Mrs. Young expressed her reluctance to accept the position on The SRC Board because of her sense of confusion on procedures and methods of indirection which she does not know how to share. She stated that while all is confusion, she is even more confused, not being a native to this situation. She is speaking before numerous Negro organizations.

X. Rock Hill: Dr. Duckett reported a communication to the School Board by a committee of Negro leaders and the reply that the Board had no power to act at present on the matter of desegregation. Dr. Duckett also stated that the Mayor's Committee had not met in a year; it has become a "stand-by" committee. It is stated that 300 Rock Hill citizens are ready to sign up with the White Citizen's Council. The Parochial Schools are integrated. The question came up as to whether relations are worse at the present time or a stage to mark the revolution of progress. Mr. Suritz quoted Dr. George Mitchell as saying they are worse than 2 years ago.

XI.. Greenville: Mrs. Spearman reported that Greenville is in process of finding a chairman.

XII. Charleston: Dr. W. W. Jones reported conditions improving in relations between the races.

XIII. Mr. McClain quoted Dr. Nicholas Mitchell of the University of S. C. as saying that a new and creative South must let hate go in an atomic age. The Christian Action Council, President Rev. Wright R. Spears, holds there should be better opportunities for Negroes and whites to think together. The organization has been authorized to appoint a bi-racial committee to study the processes of citizenship, and they are asking for suggestions on citizenship education.

XIV. Mrs. Spearman reported that more requests are being received in the office for statements to help reduce confusion. Especially requested are definitions of words being carelessly used and misused in press--such as "Segregation", "Integration", "Mongrelization", etc. These requests are coming from intelligent citizens and will be taken up in the next Newsletter.

Minutes, October 7, 1956

XV. Membership: Mr. Suritz reported 534 members in South Carolina.

XVI. Finance: Mr. Dabbs reported $10,000 from Atlanta next year, $3,751.03 raised last year, $430.00 now on hand deposited since October 1, 1956 and that $6,000.00 must be raised this year. Each member of the Board is asked to be responsible for $50.00. Eight people did this last year. The contributions should be gotten in as soon as possible. $20.00 was contributed this afternoon. Of membership dues, $2.00 goes to Atlanta. Membership lasts a year from date of payment of dues.

XVII. Pamphlets: Rev. Hawley Lynn reported the judgment that pamphlets should be printed by the Atlanta office. Mr. Dabbs'statement refuting Mr. Byrnes assertion seems to be lost in the office of The State. Is Mr. Booker responsible? Mrs. Spearman was asked to investigate and follow up. Mr. Dabbs authorizes its publication. So much nonsense being circulated, it ought to be answered.

XVIII. The secretary was asked to write letters relative to the: Death of Mrs. Marian B. Wilkinson; Resignation of Mrs. Warren Greene; Illness of Mr. Evans; and Hospital experiance of Dr. Duckett.

IX. Mrs. Spearman brought up the question of a meeting of the SCCHR in connection with the State Conference of Social Work November 1st. This meeting was encouraged and Mrs. Spearman was authorized to proceed with arrangements. Members were also urged to attend the Conference meetings to be held before and after as a part of the Conference of Social Work.

XX. A meeting of the Board to be held in three months, time, place, etc, at the discretion of the Chairman.

XXI. Mrs. Spearman called to attention an announcement by the Ford Foundation of the establishment of an "American Traditions Project", which will award $20,000 for true stories of Americans whose actions "have advanced the cause of freedom and justice in their communities". Names of several people in South Carolina who might qualify for first, second or third prize. A committee was appointed by the chairman to submit a letter to the project regarding Mr Earle Kirby:

Dear Mr. Keels:

Several weeks ago our attention was called to a printed circular, dated August 14, 1956, distributed by the Sumter County Citizens' Council and bearing your name as chairman. In the first paragraph of this circular the statement is made: "The Southern Reginal Council has been listed by the House Un-American Activities Committee."

This statement is wholly untrue, as evidenced by the enclosed copy of a letter from Representative Francis E. Walter, Chairman of the House Un-American Activities Committee.

See original in folder Marked Walter E Francis Chm. House Un-Amer. Act. Comm.

I trust that you will recognise the seriousness of such an unfounded charge and that you will give equal circulation to a correction.

Dr. George S. Mitchell

My dear Dr. Mitchell:

Your correspondence with the Committee on Un-American Activities concerning the charges brought by the Sumter WCC, was brought before the Planning Committee of the Sumter Bi-racial Group at its regular meeting on September 11. Three options were discussed:

1. Release of statement by the Atlanta Office
2. Release of statement by Sumter Group
3. No release at all

It was definitely agreed that any release should be made by the Atlanta Office, since the charges were brought against the Southern Regional Council.

However, a fourth line of procedure was unanimously adopted as preferable, if possible, and the secretary was instructed to convey this suggestion for your consideration:

That the Committee on Un-American Activities be asked to write a letter stating that the Southern Regional Council has not been cited as subversive and is not on the list of subversives of the Committee on Un-American Activities, and that this letter be sent directly to the Sumter Officials who signed the false statement, with the request that it be given the same circulation and publicity given their members in the letter circulated. That Dr. Mitchell would be the proper person to make this request if he considered it favorable or practicable.

The general opinion was that the avoidance of press publicity might be advisable at this time of tension here and certainly the avoidance of bringing the matter down to a local controversy, which reduces the whole matter into the smog of emotion and prejudice.

The opinion was that if this fourth line of procedure was not possible, the release to the press of the statement from the Washington Committee would come with more grace from the Atlanta Office.

Your judgement will be respected in this matter.

Secret Communist Document Is Bared

RACE MIXER

Carl Braden's Background:

Who is Carl Braden?

He is an identified member of the Communist party who serves as field secretary of the Southern Conference Educational Fund, Inc., an organization cited as a front for the Communist Party

He served 10 months in the federal penitentiary in Greenville, S. C., for contempt of Congress.

He was sentenced to 15 years in prison and fined $5,000 for dynamiting a house he bought.

It was charged "the dynamiting was a communist plot to incite a racial disorder in the city (Louisville)."

Richard Arens, staff director of the U. S. House of Representatives Subcommittee of the Committee on Un-American Activities, told Braden at a hearing in Atlanta in July ot 1958:

"Sir, it is our understanding that you are now a Communist, a member of the Communist Party; that you have been identified by reputable witnesses under oath as a Communist, part of the Communist Party which is a tentacle of the international Communist conspiracy.

"It is our information further, sir, that you as a Communist have been propagating the Communist activity and the Communist line principally in the South; that you have been masquerading behind a facade of humanitarianism; that you have been masquerading behind a facade of emotional appeal to contribute

The action nullified Kentucky's sedition laws and, consequently, his conviction was reversed on June 22, 1956.

It was during that trial that both Braden and his wife, Anne, were identified as members of of the Communist Party.

He denied the charge.

NATIONAL 'LEADER'

Mrs. Braden was listed on a letterhead of the Emergency Civil Liberties Committee in 1957 as a member of the organization's national council, with headquarters in New York.

The House Un-American Activities Committe and the Senate's Internal Security Subcommittee has cited the organization as a Communist front.

Mrs. Braden was subpenaed with her husband to testify at the 1958 hearing in Atlanta. She was excused, however, because she had to be at home with their children.

The Supreme Court later upheld his contempt conviction.

He started serving his sentence on May 1, 1961, and was

Red Helped Plan Jackson Integration

Carl Braden, a man identified by several witnesses under oath as a Communist, has been active in Mississippi recently.

The Jackson Daily News has intercepted a highly confidential report by Braden of his activities during a field trip into the state from July 13 to 19. In his secret memorandum, Braden identifies persons with whom he worked on his survey mission and he names the places visited. He says there are "heartening and saddening factors" in the integration program in Mississippi.

Braden says he worked with people in Jackson, Hattiesburg, Tougaloo, Laurel, Greenwood, Holly Springs and Clarksdale, setting up workshops on "civil liberties, nonviolence and the First Amendment."

In addition to these workshops, he held meetings with what he called "key leaders" at Edwards, Tougaloo and Cleveland, Braden's report reveals.

Braden who once dynamited his own home and then screamed "racial prejudice and bigotry" in Louisville, Ky., charges state law enforcement authorities with beating prisoners "in order to maintain the feeling of terror in the community." Braden has plans for getting the maximum of national publicity out of these alleged acts of "police brutality."

He plans to establish a seminar near Edwards this fall to concoct techniques of "using" the wire services, newspapers and magazines to spread his propaganda about "police brutality," a phrase frequently used by racial agitators in Mississippi. Although scores of charges of "police brutality" have been broadcast by the wire services and supposedly investigated by

I needed to get some perspective on the situation, as there are both heartening and saddening factors in the situation in that state.

Bob Moses and I traveled about 925 miles up and down and across the state in a period of six days — from July 13 to 19. We used three different automobiles, as Amzie Moore's gave out under us at the end of about 450 miles. We then used the Rev. James Bevel's car for about 350 miles and wound up returning to Jackson with Charles Butts, editor of the Mississippi Free Press. (The Rev. Mr. Bevel is Diane Nash Bevel's husband.)

We conducted workshops on civil liberties, nonviolence, and the First Amendment in Jackson (two there); Hattiesburg, Tougaloo, Laurel, Greenwood, Holly Springs, and Clarksdale. The latter was really more of a mass meeting, as more than 150 people were present. All Told, we reached about 300 of the key leadership in Mississippi, including a few whites.

In addition to the workshops, we had conferences with key leaders at Edwards, Tougaloo, and Cleveland. At Edwards, which is between Jackson and

He served 10 months in the federal penitentiary in Greenville, S. C., for contempt of Congress.

He was sentenced to 15 years in prison and fined $5,000 for dynamiting a house he bought.

It was charged "the dynamiting was a communist plot to incite a racial disorder in the city (Louisville)."

Richard Arens, staff director of the U. S. House of Representatives Subcommittee of the Committee on Un-American Activities, told Braden at a hearing in Atlanta in July ot 1958:

"Sir, it is our understanding that you are now a Communist, a member of the Communist Party; that you have been identified by reputable witnesses under oath as a Communist, part of the Communist Party which is a tentacle of the international Communist conspiracy.

"It is our information further, sir, that you as a Communist have been propagating the Communist activity and the Communist line principally in the South; that you have been masquerading behind a facade of humanitarianism; that you have been masquerading behind a facade of emotional appeal to certain segments of our society; that your purpose, objective, your activities, are designed to further the cause of the international Communist conspiracy in the United States."

GOES SILENT

Braden invoked the first amendment many times during the committee hearing in Atlanta.

"I stood on the same grounds as I stood before," Braden testified. "You are probing into private beliefs and associations, which are protected by the first amendment of the United States."

Braden challenged the "pertinency" of the committee's questions.

He says he studied for the Catholic priesthood from 1928 to 1930, when he halted his formal education.

Braden worked for several newspapers and labor publications.

DYNAMITE INCIDENT

The dynamiting conviction came on Dec. 13, 1954, on a charge of advocating sedition against the state of Kentucky. He was charged with instigating the purchase of a house in the Louisville suburbs and then transferring its ownership to a Negro family. Braden and several other persons were convicted.

The U. S. Supreme Court, however, ruled in another case an individual state could not enact anti-subversive laws. Congress, it held, had preempted that right.

The action nullified Kentucky's sedition laws and, consequently, his conviction was reversed on June 22, 1956.

It was during that trial that both Braden and his wife, Anne, were identified as members of of the Communist Party.

He denied the charge.

NATIONAL 'LEADER'

Mrs. Braden was listed on a letterhead of the Emergency Civil Liberties Committee in 1957 as a member of the organization's national council, with headquarters in New York.

The House Un-American Activities Committe and the Senate's Internal Security Subcommittee has cited the organization as a Communist front.

Mrs. Braden was subpenaed with her husband to testify at the 1958 hearing in Atlanta. She was excused, however, because she had to be at home with their children.

The Supreme Court later upheld his contempt conviction.

He started serving his sentence on May 1, 1961, and was released on Feb. 1 of this year.

The National Guardian, an ultra-leftwing publication, reported on his conviction and said 17 white and Negro Southern leaders had initiated a petition to President Kennedy asking clemency.

DR. KING'S FRIEND

The publication quoted Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr., one of the clemency petition initiators, as saying: "I have no doubt they are being punished — particularly Mr. Braden — for their integration activities. We are not upholding Communism in any way. We simply feel the House Un-American Activities Committee should not be used to thwart integration."

Arens said this as he question-

Butts Admits Touring State With Braden

Charles Butts, editor of the Mississippi Free Press, admitted to the Jackson Daily News today that he traveled from Cleveland to Jackson with Carl Braden, an identified Communist active in the state recently.

Butts, almost 21, said he was in Cleveland to contact Amzie Moore, identified as an integration worker by Braden.

"Braden was in contact with Moore," Butts said, "and Braden was coming to Jackson. Four of us drove to Jackson."

He identified the other two as Sally Woodman of New York, who was working for Butts, and Bob Moses, who traveled in the state with Braden.

"I was glad to have him (Braden) drive in my car," Butts said, "and I would certainly invite him again."

He said they "talked about many things—including my work and families."

"I think the fact that he was before the House Un-American Activities Committee is not an indication of his guilt or innocence." Butts said in an interview. "He just retained his rights under the fifth amendment not to answer certain questions."

"The fact that he did not reveal certain names is no reflection on his guilt or innocence," he added.

Butts said Moore introduced him to Braden.

Butts made his remarks in an interview today. He later asked if they could be retracted.

Last night, he told a Daily

Moses Jailed In Indianola

INDIANOLA, Miss. (Special) — Bob Moses, a Negro linked with identified Communist Carl Braden in a tour of the state in July, was arrested here today for distributing handbills without a permit.

Police Chief William Love said Moses, 27, was held but could probably be released on $50 bond.

Love said Moses lived in New York. He has spent time in Jackson.

FBI Probes Closing Of Integrated School

BURAS, La. (AP) — The FBI today started to investigate the rocky road to desegregation at the Our Lady of Good Harbor Catholic school "at the specific request of the Attorney General of the United States."

H. G. Maynor, special agent-in-charge of the New Orleans office of the Federal Bureau of Investigation, announced the inquiry.

As FBI agents began their probe, the pastor of the school unexpectedly called off classes for the day, fearing violence. The action came only 20 minutes before the third day of classes was to start.

The Rev. Christopher Schneider apparently hoped trouble might subside during the long Labor Day weekend.

About 100 persons were milling outside the brick school building which enrolled five Negroes Wednesday and became the first desegregated parochial elementary school in Louisiana. Many carried the same placards which appeared Thursday.

The spectators, swatting at a sudden invasion of mosquitoes, were not immediately told of the decision not to hold classes.

Father Schneider, a member of the Franciscan order, read a short statement to newsmen:

"There is no school today because of numerous threats of physical violence and fear of insufficient police protection."

He asked newsmen to read the statement back and declined to elaborate.

The five Negroes who attended classes the first day of school Wednesday stayed home Thursday.

Only 25 white children attended the school Thursday. Last year the school had an enrollment of about 340.

Excommunicated political leader Leander H. Perez Sr., said he would go to the school today to whom he worked on his survey mission and he names the places visited. He says there are "heartening and saddening factors" in the integration program in Mississippi.

Braden says he worked with people in Jackson, Hattiesburg, Tougaloo, Laurel, Greenwood, Holly Springs and Clarksdale, setting up workshops on "civil liberties, nonviolence and the First Amendment."

In addition to these workshops, he held meetings with what he called "key leaders" at Edwards, Tougaloo and Cleveland, Braden's report reveals.

Braden who once dynamited his own home and then screamed "racial prejudice and bigotry" in Louisville, Ky., charges state law enforcement authorities with beating prisoners "in order to maintain the feeling of terror in the community." Braden has plans for getting the maximum of national publicity out of these alleged acts of "police brutality."

He plans to establish a seminar near Edwards this fall to concoct techniques of "using" the wire services, newspapers and magazines to spread his propaganda about "police brutality," a phrase frequently used by racial agitators in Mississippi. Although scores of charges of "police brutality" have been broadcast by the wire services and supposedly investigated by the Federal Bureau of Investigation, not a word has been reported of any indictments or substantiation on these nationally publicized charges.

Braden ruefully indicates the people of Mississippi have changed in attitude in the past year and that the people who run things are making a great effort to keep down violence.

He ended his memorandum with a tone of encouragement. "Despite the attempts at terrorism and the lack of funds, those engaged in the (integration) projects are happy and enthusiastic. They are not only registering people to vote, but they are laying plans to have sit-in demonstrations, picketing, parades, etc."

He adds, "It is my judgment that we should seriously consider raising some funds as a special project to aid the work in Mississippi."

Following is Carl Braden's secret report in full:

A REPORT BY CARL BRADEN ON A FIELD TRIP THROUGH MISSISSIPPI

July 13-19, 1962

CONFIDENTIAL — Not for publication, July 23, 1962.

I have waited until today to start my report on the Mississippi trip for two reasons: (1) I was worn out when I got back; (2) I needed to get some perspective on the situation, as there are both heartening and saddening factors in the situation in that state.

Bob Moses and I traveled [illegible] 925 miles up and down and [illegible] the state in a period of six [illegible]ys — from July 13 to 19. We [illegible]sed three different automobile[illegible] as Amzie Moore's gave out under us at the end of about 450 miles. We then used the Rev. James Bevel's car for about 350 miles and wound up returning to Jackson with Charles Butts, editor of the Mississippi Free Press. (The Rev. Mr. Bevel is Diane Nash Bevel's husband.)

We conducted workshops on civil liberties, nonviolence, and the First Amendment in Jackson (two there); Hattiesburg, Tougaloo, Laurel, Greenwood, Holly Springs, and Clarksdale. The latter was really more of a mass meeting, as more than 150 people were present. All Told, we reached about 300 of the key leadership in Mississippi, including a few whites.

In addition to the workshops, we had conferences with key leaders at Edwards, Tougaloo, and Cleveland. At Edwards, which is between Jackson and Vicksburg, we met with David Lollis and his wife. They are operating the Mount Beulah Christian Center about two miles from Edwards.

This center is on a 1,300-acre tract which was formerly Southern Christian Institute, a junior college. After S. C. I. was combined with Tougaloo Christian College at Tougaloo, Miss., this campus was made available to the student movement for work shops and seminars.

The conference with the director had to do with plans for an Adult Education Workshop which the students were planning for this week. Recruits for this workshop were enlisted by Bob and me during our travels throughout the state. The response was very good and they probably have as many as 50 to 75 people there this week.

Bob and Dave Lollis and I also met with A. D. Beitel, president of Tougaloo Christian College, in regard to plans for the workshop. He (Beitel) is most interested in this project and pledged whatever help he could give in making the project a success.

Beitel was getting ready to leave for an interracial Conference at Lexington, Ky., sponsored by the Christian Churches and the United Church of Christ. I gathered from him the feeling News staff writer he was graduated from Oberlin High School, near Cleveland, in 1960. He said his father is a professor at Oberlin College.

His present job his first full-time newspaper post but he said did some part-time news work in the North.

He said he feels "there is real opportunity in the South."

Butts listed these basic goals of the Free Press:

1. Help establish good government.

2. Improve economic standards, including democratic labor unions.

3. Improve educational and social freedoms.

4. Improve better communications with labor unions, and management, with the white and the Negro, and urban with rural segments.

"I am very much in favor of voter registration campaigns to encourage people to vote," Butts said. "They should be qualified to the extent of knowing what good government is."

Butts said they should be educated on government and added his paper is publishing a series of articles on voter qualifications and state elective offices.

He is of the opinion that a recent strike in Jackson against building contractors for increased wages "was right."

Butts said he is against labor bosses like James Hoffa and "I'm not siding with them."

"We need responsible labor union leaders and the labor union members should be educated as to their responsibility," the young editor, not yet old enough to vote, said.

Butts said he is "definitely opposed to the Communist methods and the general dictatorship of Communism."

"I am opposed to the whole works," he added.

Butts said his paper, printed in Memphis, has a subscription list of some 400. Additionally, he added, some 1,200 are sold on Jackson streets and another 500 over the state.

He assumed his post last June.

"I have had many encouraging calls on our editorial policy," Butts said.

SCEF Is Identified As Commie Front

What is the Southern Conference Educational Fund, Inc?

This is a timely question because of exposure of a secret memorandum from Carl Braden, field secretary of the Southern Conference Educational Fund, on his recent agitation junket into Mississippi.

The U. S. Senate's Judiciary Committee has said the SCEF is operating with "substantially the same leadership and purposes as its predecessor" — an organization "conceived, financed and set up by the Communist Party in 1938 as a mass organization to promote Communism throughout the southern states."

The earlier organization was The Southern Conference for Human Welfare.

"Earl Browder, former general secretary of the Communist Party in the United States, in a public hearing, identified The Southern Conference for Human Welfare as one of the Communist Party's 'transmission belts,' the committee reported following a hearing in March of 1954.

J. B. Matthews of New York City, an acknowledged opponent of communism, told Mississippi's General Legislative Investigating Committee in November of 1959 the Southern Conference Educational Fund has had a "continuing history from November, 1938."

"In November, 1938," he said, "the founding convention of the Southern Conference for Human Welfare was held in Birmingham, Ala. There were distinguished individuals brought in to support the founding of this Communist outfit.

"When I say it was a Communist outfit," Matthews added, "I'm not dealing in generalities, I'm dealing with the specific fact that at least five well-known Communists, most of them young Communists, were of major importance in the founding of this organization. They were manipulating every move of the conference behind the scenes."

Matthews pointed out the fund organization retained the same executive secretary, James A. Dombrowksi, when it assumed the functions of its predecessor.

He said it also kept the same headquarters address in New Orleans and "didn't bother to have its telephone number changed."

"It kept the same magazine, The Southern Patriot," Matthews added, "and was supported by the same individuals, by and large, throughout the South."

Mississippi Sen. James O. Eastland's Judiciary Committee reported the human welfare organization was cited by two congressional committees as a "Communist-front organization."

It quoted a report saying the organization "seeks to attract southern liberals on the basis of its seeming interest in the problems of the South." It said its "professed interest in Southern welfare is simply an expedient for larger aims serving the Soviet Union and its subservient Communist Party in the United States."

Matthews told the Mississippi panel he considered "Dombrowski to have been, all these many years, one of the shrewdest Communist operators in the history of the Communist movement of this country."

He cited "an aggregation of veteran Communist fronters, a few of whom are party members, supporting the southern Conference Educational Fund in its drive to create social chaos in the South."

"In 1956," Matthews testified, "the Communists in New York set up an organization known as the provisional Committee for Justice in Mississippi.

"The organization put on a rally in New Orleans in February of that year, as announced in The Worker (official Communist publication)," he said, adding:

"They had as their principal speaker, Mrs. Andrew W. Simkins, NAACP leader, Southern Regional Council leader, Southern Conference for Human Welfare and Southern Conference Educational Fund — not to mention dozens of others which are in the record before me.

"She has been a vice president of the Southern Conference Educational Fund.

"Mr. Chairman, I have here the complete tabulations on the records of 251 individuals who have been affiliated in one way or another with the Southern Conference Educational Fund.

"Their records involve many thousands of separate affiliations of the Communist apparatus. .

that the atmosphere in Mississippi has changed greatly just within the last year. He indicated the belief that people who run things in Mississippi are making a great effort to keep down violence against persons favoring integration.

In traveling over Mississippi, we did hear of fewer cases of people beaten to death in the jails and on the streets. This was formerly routine, especially in the Delta. Nowadays it seems that police content themselves with beating prisoners in order to maintain the feeling of terror in the community. For example, beatings at Greenwood are regularly administered with a leather whip about four feet long.

Greenwood is the core of White Citizens Council activity in the U. S. A. and was formerly the center of an area where the killing of Negroes was an everyday affair. Now a killing is rare, resulting mostly when police beat a prisoner too much, without realizing that they have gone past his limit of endurance. A case of this kind was reported at Greenwood recently.

The continued beatings have caused the leadership people in the state to see the great need for a constant stream of reports going out across the country. However, there is nobody in the state equipped to do this job. It requires proper gathering of facts and then presenting them so that they will be used in the news media.

In line with this, Bob Moses and I discussed the possibility of holding a seminar on news media at Mount Beulah in the fall. You will recall that Ella Baker and I have been proposing this for some time; Original plans were knocked askew by my being detained in federal custody for 9 months.

Bob planned to discuss this further with Ella this week at the Mount Beulah workshop, as she was to be one of the resource people there. It is our idea that an intensive course in news coverage should be given over a period of two weeks. Participants would not be limited to people from Mississippi, but would come from all over the South.

We should also consider the possibility of concentrating our efforts in Mississippi and Alabama and exposing the police brutality in both states. I believe we could put a stop to it within six months by proper publicity.

The student movement now has bases in Jackson, Laurel, Hattiesburg, Greenwood, Holly Springs, Vicksburg, and Greenville. Amzie Moore's place in Cleveland provides a base there for the Southern Christian Leadership Conference, and it is also available to the students.

The wisdom of keeping Amzie Moore in Cleveland is demonstrated by the fact that both SCLC and the Student Nonviolent Coordinating Committee make use of his facilities, contacts, and resources in pushing the voter registration drive in the Delta. In fact, James and Diane Bevel live at Amzie's house and others stay there as the occasion arises. They spread out from Cleveland all over the Delta.

The operation of so many bases strains the finances of the student movement greatly. They do not have money for gasoline and food toward the end of the period of an allotment. They got $5,000 from the Voter Education Project to operate in Mississippi during May, June, and July. It is now near the end of that period, and the fact was reflected in the eating habits of field secretaries on the project.

One field secretary at Greenwood told me he eats once a day — about 2 o'clock in the morning before going to bed for a few hours. I guess he doesn't like to go to bed hungry.

DR. A. D. BEITTEL
Tougaloo President

You can see why funds are so thinly spread when there are seven offices to maintain and about a dozen staff to feed.

Despite the police attempts at terrorism and the lack of funds those engaged in the projects are happy and enthusiastic. They are not only registering people to vote, but they are laying plans to have sit - in demonstrations, picketing, parades, etc.

This was one of the reasons they wanted me to conduct workshops around Mississippi — to tell the people their rights under the First Amendment and to discuss the philosophy of nonviolent direct action. Which we did.

It is my judgment that we should seriously consider raising some funds as a special project to aid the work in Mississippi, if the Voter Education Project does not come through with more money. When I left Mississippi, Bob Moses had not heard whether the V. E. P. was going to give them funds for the three - months period starting August 1. He planned to let you know if nothing materialized.

There is also a great need for cars to transport potential voters to the registration offices. The problem is particularly acute in Jackson and Cleveland. I sent David Dennis of CORE the names of five people from our mailing list in Jackson who might be helpful. Amzie Moore is in bad shape since the rear end fell out of his car after Bob and I made a trip in it.

ed Braden: "And let is be clear also, sir, that I do not propose, nor have I thus far at any time undertaken, to probe any private beliefs.

"We are interested here solely in your participation in an organization which is controlled by a Godless, atheistic conspiracy, which is seeping the world and which ultimately threatens, and will threaten, the integrity of this Nation; and if this committee of the United States Congress cannot solicit from a citizen information respecting the operation within the confines of the border of this Godless, atheistic conspiracy, God help this country."

WORKS FOR INTEGRATION

Braden testified his organization is a "southwide interracial organization working to bring about integration, justice, and decency in the South."

More testimony taken from the committee records:

"Arens: Now would you kindly tell us whether or not Mrs. Alberta Ahearn, A-h-e-a-r-n, was in error which she took an oath before the Committee on Un-American Activities and testified that while she was a member of the Communist Party she knew you, sir, as a member of the Communist Party. We would like to now afford you an opportunity to deny that identification while you are under oath, sir. Do you care to avail yourself of that opportunity?

"Braden: I stand on the same grounds as I stood on before. You are probing into private beliefs and associations, which are protected by the first amendment of the United States. The question has no possible pertinency to any legislative purpose. The mandate of this committee is so vague that nobody know what you are supposed to be investigating.

"Arens: We will tell you now, communism and Communists —

"Braden: Integration is what you are investigating. All the people subpenaed here are integrationists.

"Donald L. Jackson, representative from California: Are all the people subpenaed here also Communists:

"Braden: I leave that to you.

"Jackson: We are trying to determine that fact; and it would certainly seem that when we have testimony under oath which so identifies witnesses, that there must be some flame with all of the smoke."

Jackson told Braden that "we are not going to be clouded, so far as I am concerned, by talking about integration and segregation."

"This committee is concerned in what you are doing in behalf of the Communist conspiracy," he said.

The exchange continued:

"Braden: Two hundred Negro leaders in the South petitioned the Congress of the United States last week in connection with this hearing in Atlanta.

"Jackson: After looking at some of the names on this list, the letters went into the circular files of many members because it was quite obvious that a number of names on that letter were names of those that had been closely associated with the communist Party.

"Their interest and major part does not lie with honest integration. Their interest lies with the purposes of the Communist Party. And that is what we are looking into, and let us not be clouding this discussion and this hearing this morning by any more nonsense that we are here as representative of the United States Government to further, or to destroy, or to have anything to do with, integration. I resent it as an individual member of the Congress.

"Braden: I think the 200 Negro leaders who signed that statement ought to resent your statement about political affiliation."

Braden also identified himself as associate editor of the Southern Patriot, "which is a paper that disseminates information on integration in the South and about the people who are working for integration."

ON YOUR GUARD

Pro-Red Abolitionists Make Carl Braden A Hero

To help its reader keep on guard against propaganda, the Daily News brings you an authoritative weekly roundup of pro-Communist activities. The following is reproduced from a recent column by Mr. Lotto.

By JACK LOTTO

The "wreckers" have moved into Washington.

The smashers call themselves the "National Committee to Abolish the House Un-American Activities Committee which tells their goal and target.

A bigger batch of pro-Communists would be hard to find. At least six top leaders of this group have been identified as Communist Party members by the House committee.

They are Harvey O'Connor, of Little Compton, R. I.; Rev. William Howard Melish, of New York; Miss Florence Luscomb of Cambridge, Mass.; Russ Nixon of Washington, Richard Criley of Chicago, and Frank Wilkinson, of Los Angeles.

The pro-Red lobbying in the nation's capital is aimed at scuttling the House committee by the side door method — getting its budget chopped to the point where it would become inoperative.

They, of course, would prefer to try to get Congress to kill the committee outright, but they know they don't have a chance on this goal this year. So, they decided the realistic short term project should be to concentrate their fight on the funds.

The Washington office is being used by these birds and some affiliated pro-Red organizations to "coordinate" the cut-the-budget campaign.

Meanwhile, a hero's welcome was being prepared for the "big brains" behind the over-all abolition drive—whose jail term ends on Feb. 1.

COMMIE AND PARTNER

The "coming out" parties are planned for Wilkinson, an identified Communist Party member, and another imprisoned partner, Carl Braden, of Louisville, Ky.

Braden, identified under oath as a Red, is active in the anti-House committee drive and integration propaganda in the South.

Both received one year prison terms, which end Thursday, Feb. 1, for contempt of Congress.

Wilkinson will be hailed at a New York reception the night he gets out of jail. A pro-Communist Chicago group does the honors the next night, with a welcome home party scheduled in Los-Angeles, on Feb. 14th, among others.

CHEERS FOR BRADEN

Braden isn't being overlooked either in the cheers department. Braden will be the honor guest at a New York reception sponsored by a group called the "N. Y. Committee of the Friends of Southern Conference Educational Fund."

BOB ZELLNER
Jailed At McComb

The star attraction is field secretary of the Southern Conference Educational Fund, Inc., of New Orleans, cited by a Senate committee as a national Red front.

Listed speakers at the Braden party are Rev. Wyatt T. Walker, executive secretary of the Southern Christian Leadership Conference, Ella J. Baker, of Atlanta, member of the executive committee of the Student Nonviolent Coordinating Committee, and Bob Zellner, Southern student recently jailed in McComb, Miss.

"SEMINAR" REGISTRATION FORM

The Jackson Daily News has intercepted an inflammatory registration form to be completed by Negroes attending "workshops" and "seminars" that are conducted under the sponsorship of Carl Braden, an identified Communist who recently visited Mississippi to drum up support for voter registration and integration activity. The Braden meetings are being held at Mount Beulah Christian College near Edwards, Tougaloo Christian College and other points throughout the state. Special attention is called to Question No. 19.

Application Form At 'Workshop' Cited

By JAMES M. WARD

At a "voter registration" workshop held at Mount Beulah Christian Institute near Edwards under the sponsorship of Carl Braden, an identified Communist and field secretary of the Southern Conference Educational Fund, an inflammatory registration blank was passed out for prospective participants.

A source qualified in such activity said the questionnaire has all the earmarks of a snare for Communist Party membership.

Soliciting various personal background data on candidates for the workshop, the registration blank also asks for information on the participant's desire to engage in voter registration work and agitation for integration in schools, churches and private facilities.

The explosive portions come near the end of the long form with such questions as:

"Do your political views differ basically from those of your parents. Do they approve of your working in programs for the greater equality of the races?

"Do you think that the Negro has a better life in Mississippi—— or in Africa——?

"If you had the opportunity to move to Africa, would you be willing to do so?

"Do you think that a transition to the Communist system of government would better or worsen the lot of the Negro in Mississippi?"

WHAT IT MEANS

An authority on subversion said the latter question was highly interesting. After giving a group of Negroes a heated lecture on how they are being mistreated they would tend to answer they favored a transition to the Communist system. If they did answer in that manner, they were then considered ripe prospects for recruitment into the party. If the signed "yes" and later changed their mind, their original answer could be used as blackmail to make them conform to party discipline and the victim could be used as a dupe.

The questionnaire was used at Mount Beulah in connection with an Adult Education Workshop conducted by the Mississippi Adult Education Committee.

A confidential report by Carl Braden published in full in yesterday's Jackson Daily News revealed Braden instrumental in setting up the workshop and Braden reported that he and Bob Moses, 27-year-old Negro native of New York who has been active in integration attempts in Mississippi within the past two years, recruited participants, signing up some 50 to 75 people.

Moses was arrested in Indianola yesterday on a charge of passing out handbills without a permit. Police said he went to jail and made no effort to post the $50 cash bond necessary to be released.

Braden has revealed that he will return to Mississippi in the near future to set up a special workshop at Mount Beulah to plan means of getting the maximum amount of national publicity on "violence and police brutality" in Mississippi.

In connection with his plan, Braden said:

"The continued (police) beatings have caused the leadership people in the state to see the great need for a constant stream of reports going out across the country."

Braden's deep interesst in voter registration, integration of schools, churches and private places is not new. Upon release from a Federal prison last February he has resumed a busy schedule of agitation in the South.

Much of the planning for his current crusade was made at a conference on "The Deep South: Ways and Means to Integration" at Birmingham last April 13-14.

The conference was sponsored by the Alabama Christian Movement for Human Rights, Student Non-Violent Co-Ordinating Committee and the Southern Conference Education Fund, Inc.

Participants on the program included Bishop Edgar A. Love, president, Southern Conference Education Fund, Baltimore; Aubrey W. Williams, president emeritus, who made a financial reward to the Rev. F. L. Shuttlesworth, president, Alabama Christian Movement for Human Rights and agitation leader in Alabama; Miles Horton, director of the Highlander Center at Monteagle, Tenn., an institution that was closed by the State of Tennessee upon exposure of its pro-Communist training work.

Braden's chief role at the Birmingham rally was to explain his plan for "Getting better and fuller coverage in the news media."

Listed on the printed program was the Rev. Murray Cox, Gulfport minister and chairman of the Mississippi Advisory Committee to the U. S. Commission on Civil Rights. Rev. Cox, like Braden, has an intensive dislike for the House Committee on Un-American Activities. He recently was a co-signer of an ad in the New York Times urging abolition of the committee.

Rev. Cox did not attend the meeting due to "a "conflict" but he said he gave his name to be used as a participant.

Highlander Folk school, shut down by Tennessee as a public nuisance, is out of business and its property is being auctioned.

With Braden's intensive interest in Mount Beulah near Edwards and Tougaloo College, is the successor to Highlander Folk school to be established at one or both institutions?

Mt. Beulah Denies Link To Braden

Official Says Investigation Of Workshop Report Planned

The president of the missionary society that owns Mount Beulah Christian Center, near Edwards, today denied that Carl Braden had sponsored a workshop there and said he is investigating charges based on Braden's "confidential report" on his activities at Mount Beulah.

In Braden's report, published by the Daily News Friday, the identified Communist wrote that he and Negro Bob Moses had recruited 50 to 75 people to attend a workshop at Mount Beulah during a six-day tour of Mississippi last July.

"As a matter of simple fact I want to state categorically that the workshops at Mt. Beulah were not held under the sponsorship of Carl Braden," declared A. Dale Fiers, Indianapolis, Ind., president of the United Christian Missionary Society.

Fiers said he flew to Jackson to make a personal investigation of the workshop story. Before returning to Indianapolis this morning, he said he had conferred with the Mount Beulah center's director and that he intends to "find the truth or misinformation which may be contained in reports of the situation and to take whatever remedial action or make whatever clarifications are appropriate."

However, Fiers said, "there is no present plan for a workshop to be held under (Braden's) sponsorship in the future nor will there be."

In the "confidential report" published Friday, Braden said "we had conferences with key leaders at Edwards, Tougaloo, and Cleveland. At Edwards, which is between Jackson and Vicksburg, we met with David Lollis and his wife. They are operating the Mount Beulah Christian Center about two miles from Edwards.

"Recruits for this workshop were enlisted by Bob (Moses) and me during our travels throughout the state. The response was very good and they probably have as many as 50 to 75 people there this week.

"Bob and Dave Lollis and I also met with A. D. Beitel, president of Tougaloo Christian College, in regard to plans for the workshop," the report added. "He (Beitel) is most interested in this project and pledged whatever held he could give in making the project a success.

NEWS SEMINAR DISCUSSED

The report continued to say Bob Moses and Braden "discussed the possibility of holding a seminar on news media at Mount Beulah this fall. . .It is our idea that an intensive course in news coverage should be given over a period of two weeks. Participants would not be limited to people from Mssissippi, but would come from all over the South.

Braden's report said purpose of the seminar was to train people in the "proper gathering of facts" regarding alleged police brutality and "then presenting them so that they will be used in the news media."

Fiers said today in completing his investigation of the Mount Beulah situation, he would "give full and careful consideration to any further evidence that may still be presented either publicly or in private."

QUESTIONNAIRE QUERIES

During the weekend the Jackson Daily News received numerous queries about the registration blank passed out at Mount Beulah by the Adult Education Workshops conducted by the Mississippi Adult Education Committee.

Portions of the inflammatory questionnaire were reproduced in Saturday's editions with special attention devoted to Question No. 19 which asked, "Do you think that a transition to the Communist system of government would better or worsen the lot of the Negro in Mississippi? Better—— Worsen——."

In order to acquaint readers with the full details of this application form, it is reproduced in full below.

Dear Dr. Wells;

Thank God for one Georgian with conviction and courage to speak out!

In this mornings news I read of your speech in Brunswick, and it lifted me from the slough of despondency and I felt I must let you know that one 75 yr. old native Georgia woman hopes you will keep up the good work. God bless you.

Sincerely,

INTEGRATION ASKED BY WELLS

Brunswick, Jan. 17 (AP)--A native Georgian and long-time educator Tuesday called upon the people of his state to abide by the U.S. Supreme Court's decision requiring an end to public school segregation.

Dr. Guy H. Wells of Atlanta, former president of the Georgia State College for Women declared:

"We need in Georgia today a group of sane people to solve the race problem. We don't have that today--only the politicians are telling us what to do."

Wells, now associated with the Georgia Council on Interracial Cooperation, told the Brunswick Rotary Club that all the Supreme Court asked was that the south proceed with "deliberate" speed toward integration. He expressed the opinion that Negroes will want most things to continue as they are for a long time, "but we must be willing to make some intelligent compromises."

Three schools of reaction to the court's ruling were described by Wells--politicians who say it is "absolutely silly," people who accept it but hope they are dead before segregation ends, and those who acknowledged the decision as law.

He expressed hope Rotary members would be in the last group.

Sir

After reading the clipping attached I can Well under stand why you are no longer president of the Georgia State College for Women as you know, the citizens and not the Policticans expressed their view on the matter on November 2nd 1954.

The officials of this state are only carring out the Voters Demand that segregation stay. All the trouble would stop if men like you and Ralph McGill would stop stirring it up.

The negro, does not want to mix. It's so called White men like you that taking their money and using the Negro for money gain.

I sincerely hope the attorney General of Georgia will see fit to place your organization and the Southern Regional Cancil name on the Subverive organiga-tions list of the State of Georgia:

Dear Mr. Cook:

I have your letter of February 21 and the enclosure which purports to be an account of my remarks at Paine College on Feb 13th 1956.

Please be advised that the written statement which bears the name of Mr. C. Brescott is in no sense an accurate account of what I said. It is a distorted, garbled account obviously dictated by the bias of the writer. Neither you, the Governor, nor any member of the General Assembly were even mentioned.

Aside from this misrepresentation of my remarks, I am disturbed by the tone and implications of your letter, particularly your expression of "hope" that I, "the recipient of a substantial retirement fund, did not so discredit Georgia's official segregation plan and libel members of the General Assembly, the Governor and me," and your threat to transmit the Prescott "charges" to the Governor and General Assembly. This obvious attempt on the part of the chief legal officer of the State to intimidate a private citizen in the expression of his opinions is an offense to the very concept of free speech. I am appalled by your suggestion that my retirement fund, based upon my years of service as an educator, denies me the right to express my views on the most critical questions affecting our State.

(a) Because I regard this as a grave and immediate threat to the liberties of every Georgia citizen, I am making public your letter with enclosure and this reply.

Dear Dr. Wells:

Mr. Carl C. Prescott of Millen, Georgia, handed me a typed statement, copy of which is herewith enclosed, respecting some alleged inflammatory and disparaging remarks you made at a meeting of the Inter-racial committee at Paine College a few days ago.

Please examine these alleged statements attributed to you and others present and advise me whether they are true. Should you fail to unconditionally deny them, I feel it my duty to transmit them to the Governor and members of the General Assembly, properly sworn to by Mr. Prescott.

I sincerely hope that you who are honored by the State to hold the position of President Emeritus of one of our highest institutions of learning and the recipient of a substantial retirement fund, did not so discredit Georgia's official segregation plan and libel members of the General Assembly, the Governor and me.

Incidentally, Mr. Prescott advises me that his brother accompanied him and will verify the charges made.

Sincerely yours,

Eugene Cook

My Experience at Inter-racial Meeting

In beginning, I would like to make some explanation as to why I attended this meeting. In my church, which is Methodist, some of us were very much concerned about this Interracial committee. We understood that the Ford Foundation and the Methodist church was paying this committee. I had talked with some very influential people about this committee and some of them seemed to think that there was no harm being done. I still was not convinced.

On Monday, Feb. 17th, I saw in the Augusta Chronicle that there was going to be an interracial meeting at Paine College. Dr. Guy Wells was to be the speaker with Dr. Lester Rumble, Pastor of St. John's Methodist Church introducing him. Right then I made up my mind to attend that meeting, hoping that my opinion of this committee was wrong and that they were trying to do a good work for the general public; so, on the date of the meeting, I stopped by Waynesboro, picked up my brother, Eugene Prescott, and went to Paine College.

To my utmost surprise, this committee was putting out propaganda that was detrimental to any real Georgian or to our State of Georgia.

Dr. Rumble introduced Dr. Wells and seemed very happy in endorsing everything he had to say. On looking out over the group of Negroes and White (Appr. 12 White, 25 Negro) sitting mixed in audience. Dr. Rumble made the statement, "What a beautiful setting this is."

Dr. Wells praised the Supreme Court decision as great. He told this group that he wanted to apologise for the crazy, stupid Legislators and Governor of this State. He said some one once asked to see a peanut and was shown a Georgia Legislator; he then wanted to see a mule and was shown the Governor of Georgia. (This was highly applauded.) Dr. Wells stated that two-thirds of the people of the World were colored people and that it was time for the White to look up to them. He told of three politicians going to Heaven. One asked St. Peter if there was any separation there and St. Peter replied, "Get back, Eugene Cook, to Hell where you belong." High applause again. He told the group, We must work on the Women, they are more lenient to our cause. He stated that Bishop Moore was with them 100 per cent; also, most of the Daily Newspapers, Preachers, and Educators; although, the Atlanta newspapers had not come out as bold as he would like for them to, mainly on account of business and economy reasons. (some private paper might come in.) He said the Educators would not express themselves on account of the Gov. we have, but that, they hoped, would be eliminated.

Then he told the group this tale- A man once bought some mules that was not broke or tamed, so the buyer asked the seller to break them for him. The seller said that is easy. He haltered one, took up a crow bar, knocked the mule to his knees, and said the first thing you have to do is to make a mule respect you. Dr. Wells then pointed his finger over the group and said, Now that is what you have to do to make the White respect you. He said they had not been able to organize insome areas on account of the criticism and general feeling of the public on the situation but they would get in to all of them before they were through with it.

After finishing the speech he called for any comments or questions. One Negro said there were six Parks in Augusta, and he was not permitted to enter one of them. He said that the thought that he or any negor should be allowed to enter with the White. Dr. Wells replied, "how right you are."

Speaking personally, I think Religion is the basis of a good, lawful state of life; however ministers are now making it seem impossible for any one to go to Heaven unless he permits the Negro and White race to mingle and inter-marry.

Speaking as a Methodist, I think it is time for us to wake up and see what kind of men we have for leaders in our churches. Do we have the right man for Bishop and do we have the right kind of men for our District Supt. and ministers, or xxxxxx as a Georgia citizen, are we going to let a few Half-Communists crackpot Whites lead the Negro into overriding and destroying the peaceful and traditional way of life that we have known and lived all our lives.

Signed

C. C. Prescott

P. S. I think if the good Methodist people and the General Public of Georgia knew what their Church leaders and this Committee are trying to do, We could put a stop to this nonsense and put this inter-racial in its knees.

Dear Gene:

I have your letter and the copy of the alleged account of my Augusta talk. It is very inaccurately reported and many statements attributed to me are untrue. I at no time mentioned the Governor or you, and the injection of names into the stories was unfounded.

I did deplore the passage of the so-called "private school" laws which most people believe are unconstitutional. At no time did I recommend violence or extreme measures, but suggested cooperation between the two groups to work out a satisfactory solution. Dr. Lester Rumble, President E.C. Peters, and other persons who were present can verify these facts.

Dear Dr. Wells:

I sincerely regret that anybody would so misrepresent the meeting held at Paine College on February 13 that out of it would come any hostility to yourself or anyone else.

For more than twenty years I have attended meetings of state and local chapters of the Georgia Committee on Interracial Cooperation. These meetings have furthered racial understanding through the years. The meeting at which you spoke on the subject, "The Marks of an Educated Man" was very mild in character. Your message might have been given to any Rotary or Kiwanis Club in the state and have received applause. It would have been a fine message to deliver to a college audience in chapel.

It so happened that previous to coming to the interracial meeting at Paine that night I led prayer for a Kiwanis meeting at the Bon Air Hotel, next morning the paper carried a report of that meeting. I remarked to someone upon reading it that you did not say anything in your address that was stronger than the speaker at the Kiwanis meeting uttered. The report of his speech was in the Chronicle for February 14.

It so happened that I had a call from someone previous to our meeting asking if it was to be an "open one". I said "yes." During our meeting I saw two men present who seem not to be a part of what was going on. They left before the time to pay dues or get new members. When I got home after the meeting there was a phone call and a voice, that remains "anonymous," cursed me out in no uncertain terms. I judge the source of your difficulty and my being abused is the same.

Sure we have not come to such a condition on our state that what is attempted against you can succeed.

Sincerely,

Lester Rumble

COPY COPY

Dear Mr. Cook:

I have read Mr. Prescott's account of the Interracial meeting in Augusta on the night of February 13. This account is very inaccurate and biased. I was present at the meeting. Dr. Wells did mention and deplore the passage of the Private School laws, and said many people thought them unconstitutional.

He made the point we needed to keep our good sense of humor, and Christian tolerance, and told some stories, and did not put names into these stories. He never mentioned any Government official. Mr. Prescott has supplied these names. He at no time recommended anything but tolerance and cooperation between the races. He did say we would have to rely on Christian ministers and the women to help work out the problem.

I saw nothing but good common sense in his speech. This is how it impressed me.

Dear Dr. Mitchell:

Here is the manuscript about which I talked with you yesterday.

I have long been aware that something of this sort needs to be said. The need has, of course, been made more critical by the events following the decisions of the Supreme Court. I am not sure that I have said it the way it should be said; you be the judge of that.

In the event that you decide that you can use the manuscript, I shall be glad to make whatever changes you may consider wise, provided it does not alter the basic approach.

Dear Mr. Crook:

One of us has read carefully your manuscript, and I am well into it. We both like it. But what that will mean about finding a publisher I am not as yet prepared to write.

However, I suggest that some of the statistics as to colleges open to Negro entry (say around page twenty-three) could be brought more nearly up to date by the use of a new pamphlet -- copy of which I separately send you.

Sincerely,

Dear Mr. Crook:

I sent the MS. on today to Mr. Miller, at 161 Eighth Avenue, North, The Christian Life Commission of the Southern Baptist Convention, in Nashville, with my warm commendation. I think he will be writing you, and soon. Meanwhile, I would get word to him through friends.

By sending it to Mr. Miller I do not dismiss it. I think SRC would have a hard time printing it ourselves, but I don't rule out that possibility; and if this present hope fades I would try other devices to get it into print.

Dear Dr. Mitchell:

I am enclosing a copy of a letter which I received yesterday from Dr. A. C. Miller, of the Christian Life Commission of the Southern Baptist Convention, together with a carbon of my reply to him.

I am grateful for your help in seeking a publisher for my manuscript, and shall certainly keep you informed of developments with Broadman Press.

Dear Dr. Crook:

Mr. Mitchell of the Southern Regional Council sent to me your manuscript of "Sit Down With Abraham". I have read it with much interest. It is the kind of objective and factual treatment we need. It must be published and distributed everywhere.

Our mutual friend, Dr. Lamm has discussed the matter with me some. He has told me about you. After his conversation I recalled I had seen you at the Seminary although briefly and not often.

To the point: If Broadman Press will publish your book and make it available through all their channels do you want them to have it? I do not think they would make but little revision if any except to revise it in spots for clarity and style.

I have shown it or mentioned it to no one except to and with Dr. Lamm. I am leaving for ten days, returning December 11. Write to Dr. Lamm, if you wish. He will see me when I return.

Our Commission would be very happy to sponsor the printing of your book, but that might reduce its circulation. We want it everywhere we can get it. Either Broadman or Abingdon will do a whale of a job in promotion and circulation.

Sincerely yours,

A. C. Miller

Dear Dr. Miller:

I appreciate very much your letter of November 30, and the nice things you said about my manuscript, "Sit Down With Abraham."

When I talked with Dr. George Mitchell before he sent the manuscript to you, he indicated that he believed that it should be published by a denominational agency here in the South, and asked my permission to sent it on to you. I was quite in agreement with him that if The Christian Life Commission, or even better the Broadman Press, were to publish it, it would reach many people who need some help in the Christian approach to the problem.

If, therefore, the Broadman Press will publish the book, I will be happy for them to do so. I will appreciate your taking up the matter with them.

Dear Mr. Fleming:

You may remember that I have been in correspondence with Mr. George Mitchell concerning my manuscript, Sit Down With Abraham. I believe that you and Mr. Mitchell discussed it before he sent it on to Mr. A. C. Miller, of the Southern Baptist Christian Life Commission.

I have just heard from Mr. Joseph Green, of the Broadman Press. I am quoting one paragraph from his letter:

> As I implied in my earlier letter, we believe that it has real possibilities for publication. There are, however, some revisions that are necessary. Although I cannot commit us to publication before seeing a revised manuscript, our interest is serious enough that I feel justified in encouraging you to revise for resubmission to us.

Since you expressed such a definite interest in the manuscript, I am passing this information on to you. I am now at work revising it, and hope to get it back to Mr. Green in a short time.

Dear Mr. Mitchell

I want to thank you for your hospitality and interest in our interne-in-industry group this summer. The summer was a great success as far as I am concerned, in spite of our collective hard luck with jobs. Financially I might have done better other places but educationally Georgia was tops. I think I learned much more about race relations than industrial relations, and I'm not sorry about it.

After the project ended I took a trip to Koinonia Farms, a cooperative enterprise near Americus in the heart of conservative south Georgia. The sheriff there once paid a visit to the founder of the farm because somebody had reported a seeing a white girl and a Negro boy working in the fields together. No wonder Negroes move to Atlanta.

I hope future Interner groups will have the pleasure of hearing from you.

Dear Miss Cunningham:

At the request of Mr. William G. Carr of NEA, I take pleasure in sending you a copy of a pamphlet we have just put out. It tries to be a temperate and balanced treatment of the current school issues before the Supreme Court.

We are in hopes that it will be widely used by local discussion groups, especially in the South, as a means of getting in as many counties as possible, at least a small body of people who understand the issues and can help the general public in avoiding confusion when the Court does finally make its ruling.

If you think well of the pamphlet and care to suggest ways in which its disrribution can be furthered, we would be most grateful.

Dear Sir:—

Can you give me the names of the communities in Texas where the public schools are now integrated. If that is too much to ask, can you give me the names of, say, the 15 largest communities closest to Houston. If you cannot do this can you tell me where I can get this sort of information in an authoritative way—

Thank you—

Dear Mr. Currie:

I am glad to have your letter of June 12.

Enclosed is a copy of Southern School News for May 1958. The map facing page 9 shows the status of desegregation in all of the Southern states including Texas. Those counties in Texas where school desegregation has been begun or completed or is in prospect, are indicated. For detailed information on whichever of these communities seems to be most appropriate, I suggest that you write to the Superintendent of Schools of the city or county involved and request such background information.

As of more general usefulness, I am asking our information staff to send you separately such materials as we have that shed light on successful steps to desegregation.

If we can help you and your committee further in any way, please don't hesitate to call on us.

MILTON K. CUMMINGS
CHAIRMAN OF THE BOARD

September 19, 1966

Mr. Charles E. Spahr, President of Standard Oil of Ohio and Chairman of the Plans for Progress Advisory Committee, has written to the committee's corporate contacts urging them to seek expanded public relations activities in their equal employment opportunity programs. Mr. Spahr is further asking Plans for Progress companies to organize, or to participate in, local merit employment councils at their various plant locations.

In an effort to carry out the recommendations of Mr. Spahr and the committee -- and to promote the economic growth and human resources development of Alabama -- we have scheduled in Huntsville an event to quietly explore chances of expanding such local merit employment councils throughout this state. We would like to include in this event Alabama representatives of firms which are members of Plans for Progress, plus representatives of firms which are not members. This local employment council idea is a vital factor in any state's attempt to escalate its economic growth and to enhance its general business climate.

We in Huntsville are fortunate in that we already have such a local group -- The Association of Huntsville Area Contractors, established three years ago. It works closely with Plans for Progress and is considered the equivalent of a local council. It has enjoyed considerable success.

I have promised Mr. Spahr and Mr. E. G. Mattison, Plans for Progress Administrative Director, that I will work with them in implementing the new emphasis on local and state councils. Consequently, I would like to extend a cordial invitation to the representative of your company's outlet in Alabama to join us in a one-day conference on November 4, 1966 -- on the occasion of the annual meeting of The Association of Huntsville Area Contractors. At that time we hope to examine the possibility of supplementing efforts of Plans for Progress, which is establishing local and state-wide councils over the nation. Mr. Spahr is expected to be with us as guest speaker.

We are interested mainly in assembling a limited number of responsible company officials to tentatively explore this plan, without the usual attendant publicity. If your company wishes to participate, would you send us the name, title, address and telephone number of the official who will represent you. I will then be pleased to extend him a personal invitation to attend the luncheon and meet with Mr. Spahr afterwards.

We shall be most grateful for your cooperation.

Hugh K. Fleming

Dear Dr. Cuninggim:

C. H. Parrish, who was through here yesterday, spoke warmely of his short conversation with you. The materials he passed along leave me to ask several favors.

First, let me say that I am most impressed by the Spring No. of the Perkins School of Theology Journal. This is as thoughtful and constructive a symposium as I have seen anywhere. I am particularly impressed by your own analysis, "The Southern Temper." All of us who are deeply concerned with race relations in the South often feel frustrated by our inability to formulate clearly what we feel about the complexities of Southern opinion. You have succeeded magnificently in doing this, and I should like to do what I can to enlarge the readership of your article. May we have your permission to reprint it? And would you also let me know how many copies of this issue of the Journal are available and at what unit cost?

Dr. Parrish also told me that a faculty member of the School is preparing two lists identifying the signers of the opposing statements by Protestant ministers of Dallas. If these lists will be available to others, we should greatly appreciate receiving copies.

The leadership you are giving increases our pride in your membership on the Board of the Southern Regional Council.

Dear Mr. Fleming:

Thank you very much indeed for sending me a copy of the Southern Heritage. This is most gracious of you, and I am finding the book to be most stimulating and altogether sound. I do hope that I will have an opportunity some day of meeting Mr. Dabbs, for I have the highest respect for him.

With best personal wishes,

Very sincerely,

Dear Mr. Fleming:

It was awfully good to be able to be present for the recent meeting of the Southern Regional Council, and I found it to be a most stimulating session.

When I planned to make the trip, I did not realize that my expenses would be covered by the Council. This is a great help indeed, but I do not feel that I should charge the whole amount to the Council. My total expenses came to $134.06, but the amount I am submitting to you, as per the enclosed statement, is half of this, namely, $67.03.

With deep appreciation for the leadership you are giving through the program of the Council, and with best personal wishes,

Very sincerely,

Merrimon Cuninggim

Dear Dr. Cuninggim:

Thank you for your letter and for what is, in effect, a contribution to the Southern Regional Council. Next time, I will hope to convince you that the cost of your travel is a modest price for the Council to pay in order to have your participation.

It was good, indeed, to meet you after so long a time. I am looking forward with pleasure to our continued association in the work of the Council.

Dear Harold:

Thanks very much for sending me a copy of your Annual Report. It is excellent, and I have enjoyed reading it very much indeed.

Have you given any thought to the possibility of commissioning a systematic study of the role of the churches in the desegregation story? It might be a kind of companion piece to the study of the role of the Southern press, though I hope, if it were done, it would be considerably more solid. Christianity and Crisis gave an issue to this subject a couple of years or so ago, but it was by no means the kind of scholarly analysis that I'm thinking of. Perhaps the time is not yet right, and what might happen to be said now would probably be forced to be so overwhelmingly negative in its conclusions that many church leaders might be unnecessarily offended. Maybe I am wrong, however; and maybe such a study might show that churches and church leaders have been more effective than I know. One way of getting such a study done on a basis of competent scholarship might be to get somebody like Waldo Beach at Duke or Douglas Jackson at Perkins, SMU, to put one of their graduate students to work on the question as a thesis or dissertation task.

You and the Council as a whole are doing a simply magnificent job in these difficult times. Blessings on you.

Most cordially,

TO: HCF

FROM: LWD

There is something interesting here, undoubtedly, though the field has been worked over a good bit. Pettigrew and Campbell's Little Rock study is not "systematic," but there is always the question of whether a systematic study--assuming it is feasible--would be more enlightening. On the other hand, what does "systematic" mean?

Perhaps a study of steps taken and problems encountered by two or three of the largest denominations in implementing at the local level their conventional pronouncements would be an approach. A study of how the denominations and local churches have reacted to pressure and overt attacks might be another.

At any rate, it might be worthwhile to invite Cunninggim to write another and larger letter explaining what he has in mind.

I have always been intrigued by the notion of having a graduate student work on a question for us as part of his thesis research. On several grounds, however, I have generally thought it impractical. I am, nevertheless, willing to explore it again. But I would like to do it at one of the Negro universities.

In raising the question, is Cunninggim implying that his Foundation might be financially interested?

If he is, maybe a sensible first step would be to call a few people together--Campbell, Tarplee, Morris, etc.--and throw at them the questions 1) whether there is anything which needs doing 2) how it would be best defined.

Dear Merrimon:

This is an unpardonably long delay in replying to your thoughtful letter concerning a possible study of the role of the churches in desegregation. I held the letter until I could discuss it with other staff members, then fell ill before I could reply.

We are agreed here that the idea has great merit, though the means of carrying it out raise questions about which we are uncertain. First, such studies on a fairly large scale have been drawn up as proposals by two different institutions -- the National Council of Churches, and the Emory University Theology School. Neither has been able to secure foundation support, possibly because the projects are so ambitious as to be forbiddingly costly. The Emory University group, with whom I have been in frequent touch, is willing to scale its study down and make further attempts to get foundation support.

Feeling that such auspices would be far better than ours, we have persisted in the hope that one of these efforts, or another like it, would succeed. Our experience in encouraging needed research through theses or dissertations has not been rewarding. However, this may reflect only the lack of proper faculty guidance in the instances we know about.

Thanks to your good suggestion, Dr. Douglas Jackson is now a new member of the Southern Regional Council. If you have no objection, I should like to share your letter with him and solicit his reactions. In view of your longstanding relationship, you might prefer to write him yourself. But unless I hear from you to that effect in the near future, I will feel free to raise the matter with him.

We value your suggestions here, and I hope you will continue to give us the benefit of them. With best personal regards and every good wish for the New Year, I am

DELTA COUNCIL
Stoneville, Mississippi

REPORT OF EDUCATIONAL POLICY COMMITTEE

A subcommittee to the Delta Council Educational Policy, consisting of W. E. Bufkin, S. H. Kyle, J. H. Pettey, Walter Sillers, W. T. Wynn, Fred Young, and P. F. Williams, was appointed by order of the Board of Directors at its meeting in Cleveland on June 5, 1945, to study Senate Bill 619, which has for its purpose the enlargement of vocational education in Mississippi; and to make recommendations regarding Negro education in Mississippi. The special subcommittee met Thursday, June 14, 1945, and the Educational Policy Committee met Friday, June 15. The Delta Council Educational Policy Committee recommended as follows on each of the two problems:

A. That the Delta Council endorse the principles of Senate Bill 619 for the enlargement of vocational education in the State, but that the bill be so amended as to permit State control of the grant of Federal funds and that there be no interference or dictation to the State Department of Education by the Federal government.

B. The following recommendations regarding Negro education be endorsed by the Delta Council and be transmitted to the Kyle Legislative Committee, which is now studying the public school system with the idea of making recommendations to the Legislature at its meeting in January, 1946;

1. That better school buildings and equipment be furnished to Negroes of the State, this to be effected by legislation permitting counties to levy up to a two-mill levy and a biennial appropriation by the Legislature of two million dollars to match funds secured by the two-mill tax.

2. That the multiple adoption of textbooks be recommended.

3. That increased salaries be paid to better trained Negro teachers.

4. That a junior college be established in the Delta for training Negro teachers, this college to be established and maintained by State appropriation.

5. That the county superintendents of schools in the Delta counties be urged to have county surveys made of their respective Negro school systems, with the idea of relocating schools where necessary and to establish a county vocational high school, if necessary.

6. That the Delta Council urge the Board of Trustees of Higher Institutions of Learning appoint a liaison man to supervise the training and instruction in Negro institutions of higher learning.

VIRGINIA QUARTERLY REVIEW

"What the Negro Wants", edited by Rayford W. Logan

Every thoughtful white person in the United States should read this book. Moreover, W. T. Couch of the North Carolina Press deserves citation for arranging for its writing and publication. Here fourteen Negroes of experience and unquestioned leadership among their people have set forth in frank unflinching language what they desire and what they expect for their race in this country, North and South. The papers are remarkably well written and logically presented; from this statement only two of the fourteen should be excepted. The views represented are intended to include the "conservative, liberal, and radical opinion." They differ little, however, in what they demand for the Negro, which is no less than everything that anyone else has and on the same terms. They differ in the methods by which they think these desires can be achieved and in the tone and spirit of the arguments. There is in practically all of these papers an amazing failure to recognize the historical implications of the story of the Negro race in the South and the necessity of living in a world in terms of how things came to be and how they are, as well as how they are imagined ideally to be and how we would like to have them.

There is no more ominous cloud hanging over America today than that of aroused racial consciousness. This book is an important book because it is a sincere statement of a racial creed. It asserts objectives that most thinking white Southerners will not believe possible of realization within the vision of this generation. It will broaden the views of most Americans to read and ponder these papers, including the able dissent of Mr. Couch; it will probably also toughen the determination in the hearts of many Southern readers.

SUPREME COURT OF ARKANSAS

TEE DAVIS ..... Appellant

vs. No. 4340

STATE OF ARKANSAS ..... Appellee

APPEAL FROM CRITTENDEN COUNTY CIRCUIT COURT

STATEMENT OF FACTS

The appellant lived in Crittenden County, out in the country, about three-quarters of a mile West of a little Negro town known as Edmondson, on a plantation. On the night of March 22, 1943, same being the date on which this trouble happened, the appellant was at his humble home in company with his wife attending strictly to his own business. He was not expecting any trouble and had no reason to expect any so far as the law was concerned; however, his house had been robbed some two or three weeks prior thereto and some meat stolen. He had only been in this particular neighborhood since February and only knew a few people. This neighborhood and the town of Edmondson is inhabited entirely by Negroes except Mr. Weaver and possibly one other white family.

It so happened that a certain Negro by the name of Eddie Maberry, who lived in the immediate neighborhood, had stolen a cow and officers Ivan Dixon and Bob Holland were searching for Eddie Maberry. They had come to Edmondson and gotten Mr. Weaver to accompany them. They had searched all the houses in this neighborhood, the last one being Will Gilyard's home, who lives about 200 yards from Tee Davis, with the exception of Tee Davis' home, which was the last home to be searched. The three officers searched Gilyard's home and Tee Davis, appellant lived about 200 yards south of Will Gilyard's place. There was a swamp or muddy slough between Gilyard's and appellant's home and officers Dixon and Holland went down the railroad track, which was East, towards Edmondson. Mr. Weaver went South, as he had on boots and could cross the slough to Davis' home.

When Mr. Weaver got to his house, which was after dark, he started rapping on the door and kicking the door so hard that it burst the door and said his name was Weaver and to open the door. Appellant asked him what he wanted and replied according to evidence of appellant: said, "Open the door, you God damn, black son of a bitch" and appellant asked him again what he wanted and he continued to kick the door, whereupon appellant fired twice through the door near the bottom and Mr. Weaver—who it developed later was the man—fired three or four shots through the door and ran and jumped into a ditch.

Officers Dixon and Holland, who were going East towards Edmondson heard the shots and rushed to Davis' home. Upon reaching the home they asked Weaver if he was hurt and he answered that he was all right. They then went to the house, upon the porch and Mr. Dixon, according to his own testimony said "Open the door, you God damn, black son of a bitch, I am the law." Appellant immediately opened the door. Two of the officers went in and searched the house, although they had no search warrant, but found no trace of Eddie Maberry, whom they were looking for. The officers arrested Davis and carried him to Marion where he was placed in jail and remained until this case was tried.

EVIDENCE UPON THE PART OF THE STATE

The state introduced Mr. Weaver, Mr. Dixon and Mr. Holland and relied upon their testimony for conviction.

MR. WEAVER'S EVIDENCE

Mr. Weaver testified that he went alone to Davis' house; that it was dark; that he rapped on the door and said that his name was Weaver. He admitted that he did not announce that he was the law. He admitted that appellant asked him what he wanted and he only stated open the door. He admitted that appellant had only seen him one time some weeks prior thereto and had only talked to him a few minutes then. He denied that he used any profane language, but admitted that he did not announce that he was the law; admitted that it was dark and that appellant could not have known that he was the law when he fired; that officers Dixon and Holland came up sometime after the shooting, admitted that Davis was in his own home and that he said his house had been robbed and some meat stolen a few weeks before.

This is the true story of Tee Davis, Negro farmer, exactly as it appears in a brief in the official records of the Supreme Court of the State of Arkansas. Tee Davis is now serving a ten year sentence in an Arkansas Prison Camp for firing a shotgun to frighten away an intruder who was breaking down the door of his home. When he asked who it was, a voice said, "Weaver." And when he asked what he wanted, through the splintering door came the shout "Open the door, you God damn black son-of-a-bitch." And so to protect his home and his family, Tee Davis aimed his shotgun at the bottom of the door and reluctantly pulled the trigger.

Weaver, in his own words, testified that he never said he was an officer of the law.

EVIDENCE OF MR. IVAN DIXON

Mr. Dixon testified that they were looking for a Negro by the name of Eddy Maberry for stealing a cow; that appellant Tee Davis had no connection and was not charged with anything; that he and officer Holland, when they heard the shots, went to Davis' house; that he knew nothing about what had taken place before they arrived, except they heard shots; that when he arrived, he asked Mr. Weaver if he was all right and he said he was, whereupon they went upon the porch and Mr. Dixon, according to his own testimony, said, "Open the door you God damn, black son of a bitch, we are the law" and that appellant immediately opened the door as soon as he heard him say this is the law; that they went in the house and searched it and found nothing suspicious or illegal, neither did they find Eddie Maberry, whom they were looking for.

Dixon admitted that Davis was not wanted for anything, and that as soon as he said, "... we are the law," Davis immediately opened the door.

EVIDENCE OF MR. HOLLAND

Mr. Bud Holland, Marshal of West Memphis accompanied Mr. Dixon to the scene of the trouble and his testimony was the same as Mr. Dixon's.

SUMMARY OF EVIDENCE UPON THE PART OF THE STATE

Now let us see by way of summary, just what evidence the state introduced and whether or not this is sufficient to warrant a conviction. The state has three witnesses, two of which know nothing at all about what actually happened at the place, except they heard a shot. Appellant and his wife and Mr. Weaver are the only three people who know what actually happened. Mr. Weaver admitted that he had only seen appellant one time and that he wouldn't have recognized his voice and wouldn't have remembered his name and that he, Weaver, did not announce that he was the law. Admits that appellant was at his home, admits that he had no warrant and no charges against appellant; that he did rap on the door and that appellant asked him two or three times what he wanted and never did say what he wanted, just kept knocking; that it was dark, that he had no badge or anything on that would indicate in the slightest that he was an officer; that appellant had no reason to suspect that an officer was calling; that appellant lived out in the country on a plantation and that stealing had been going on, in fact he was looking for a cow thief at the time; that appellant opened the door immediately upon learning that it was the law and that appellant said his house had been robbed.

Weaver conceded that he had no search warrant, and that when Davis asked him two or three times who he was - he didn't answer.

EVIDENCE UPON THE PART OF THE APPELLANT

Appellant introduced two witnesses besides himself in support of his defense; that he had a right to defend his home and family; that of Will Gilyard and appellant's wife, Elizabeth Davis.

EVIDENCE UPON THE PART OF TEE DAVIS, APPELLANT

When Mr. Weaver came to my house on that night, he came upon the porch and he kicked the door with his foot, so hard that he burst the door from the cross bar on the bottom. He said, you, God damn, black son of a bitch, open this door and I said what do you want. He said open the door and open it quick. I was frightened and I hit the trunk and fell and when I fell I got my shot gun and turned back and shot it off. I did not recognize Mr. Weaver's voice. I made no connection with his name. I wasn't expecting anybody and I did not know it was the law. He did not say he was the law. The reason I fired the shot, I didn't know but what he was trying to break in or what he was intending to do. I couldn't imagine what it was all about. I hadn't bothered anybody or done anything. I thought he was breaking into my house. My wife was there at home and she broke out and went into the back room. I didn't find out it was the law until Mr. Dixon and Mr. Holland came upon the porch and Mr. Dixon said, "Open the door, you, God damn, black son of a bitch, this is the law" and I immediately opened the door. This was the first time I had any idea this was the law. My house had been robbed and meat stolen a few weeks before. I did not fire the gun with the intent of killing anybody and fired it, thinking they would quit, that it would scare them off. I had no reason to expect the law, as I hadn't done anything to anybody. I have nothing against Mr. Weaver, never saw him but once, was not mad at him or anyone else and I am not now mad. I was trying to protect and defend my home and family.

Davis swore under oath that he didn't know why Weaver was breaking down the door, or what he wanted. All he knew was, "... that I hadn't done anything to anybody."

EVIDENCE OF ELIZABETH DAVIS, WIFE OF APPELLANT

Elizabeth Davis corroborated the testimony of appellant to the effect that they were home; that it was dark, that someone kicked the door; I was undressed. My husband opened the door as soon as they said that it was the law. I had two dogs and there were other dogs there and they had been barking for the longest.

BEST COPY AVAILABLE

EVIDENCE OF WILL GILYARD

Will Gilyard testified that he lives 200 yards from appellant's house; that the three officers searched his house, after which Mr. Holland and Dixon walked down the railroad East; that Weaver went to Davis' home by himself, which is in the opposite direction somewhat South. The two officers were going East; that he heard shots fired at Davis' home, that the dogs were barking and raring; that he heard the shots and dogs barking, but couldn't hear what was said; that he had known appellant about eight or ten years; that appellant moved on this plantation in February, 1943. After the shooting was over, I heard the words, "Open the door, you black so and so" and this was all that I could hear. It was dark. I am not related in any way to appellant and I have nothing against Mr. Weaver or anyone else.

Davis' neighbor stated that all he could hear was, "Open the door you black so-and-so."

When the officers came to my house, I had my gun and was standing in my house, as the dogs were raring, charging and barking and I asked my wife to see what the dogs were barking at. He (the dog) was circling around my house. She said nothing and I said the dog is after something and I got up and stood in the floor and said I will get a gun. I don't know what it is and about that time someone came up and I asked "Who is that and what do you want" and Mr. Bud spoke to me and said "Mr. Bud" and I said "Yes, sir," and opened the door. I knew Mr. Bud and liked him well.

ARGUMENT

The writer now limits the argument to a few brief statements, as the evidence is so plain and very little controversy and the principle of law, that a man has a right to defend and protect his home and family and property, that I feel it is not necessary to burden the court with the discussion of these principles of law as this court has repeatedly held that the law requires a search warrant in order to search a person's house; that any man has a right to defend his home, his family and his property; that if he thinks his house is about to be burglarized or that he and his family are in danger, that he has a right to defend himself, home and property, even to the extent of taking life if it is necessary, in order to defend himself.

Now let us see just what we have in this case. The state has failed to prove any motive whatsoever for the reason that there was no motive upon the part of appellant to fire the shots, except in the defense of his home and family and property. Appellant testifies that he thought his house was being broken into for the purpose of robbery; that his house had been robbed a few weeks before; that he was not expecting the law and it is admitted that nothing had been said to indicate that it was the law; that the door was being pounded upon and he, appellant, repeatedly asked what do you want and the only answer he got was, "Open the door you God damn, black son of a bitch." Mr. Weaver denies that he used this profane language, but admits he did not say that he was the law and while Mr. Dixon admits that he did say you God damn, black son of a bitch, open the door, can we not reasonably conclude that Weaver used this same language? It is proven and admitted that as soon as appellant learned that it was the law, that he immediately opened the door. It was a dark, wet, foggy night and appellant was not expecting anybody, had violated no law and his home had been robbed a few weeks before and appellant testified that he thought his home was being broken into and fired to scare them off. How can it be said in fairness and justice that appellant honestly believed under the circumstances otherwise than that his house was being broken into for the purpose of being robbed and possibly harm or even lost his life or that of his wife? Stealing and robbing had been going on in that immediate neighborhood, the officers were looking for Eddie Maberry, who had stolen a cow and who later was apprehended and pled guilty and sentenced to the penitentiary and as above stated appellant's home had been robbed; therefore, how can it be argued that under these admitted circumstances that a man would not have a right to protect his home and how else could he have protected himself, his family and his property when the man was kicking his door so hard as to burst it and refusing to tell what he wanted after repeatedly being requested? We contended that if a man ever had the right and if circumstances ever were such as to justify a man in defending his home, that the facts and circumstances in this case certainly justify appellant in doing what he did.

According to law, Weaver definitely exceeded his rights. Arkansas law requires a "search" warrant. As a matter of fact, it even justifies homicide if necessary to protect your home. But See Davis is a Negro.

INSTRUCTIONS OF THE COURT

The court instructed the jury as follows: (Tr. page 67).

"The defendant contends that he fired the shot in defense of his home or place of residence. Section 2998 of Pope's Digest of the Statutes of Arkansas provides: Every man's house or place of residence shall be deemed and adjudged in law his castle. And Section 2999 provides that a manifest attempt and endeavor in a violent, riotous and tumultous manner to enter the habitation of another for the purpose of assault or offering personal violence to any person dwelling or being therein shall be justification of homicide. A bare fear of those offenses, to prevent which the assault is alleged to have been committed, shall not be sufficient to justify the assault. It must appear that the circumstances were sufficient to excite the fears of a reasonable person, and that the party committing the assault really acted under their influence and not in a spirit of revenge."

There is no question that Weaver was "violent and riotous." He refused to say who he was, and left Davis no alternative but to fire in self-defense.

How can it be said that there was any revenge, as appellant did not have the slightest reason for such, had only seen Mr. Weaver on one occasion and how can it be said that there was only a bare fear, as it was dark, appellant had been called a God damn, black son of a bitch and to open the door and open it quick? The door was being pounded upon and kicked with such violence as to burst the door and the apparent intruder, although requested two or three times to state what he wanted, refused to do so. We contended that if there ever was Gestapo Tactics used, it was in this case and the appellant had every right to believe as he did and to act as he did.

The court further instructed the jury, as follows:

"If you find from the evidence of this case that the defendant made the assault, acting in good faith and as a reasonable person under the apprehension that his home or residence was about to be entered by some person for the purpose of committing burglary or robbery or for the purpose of assaulting or offering personal violence to any person dwelling therein and that he fired the shots under that belief, acting in good faith and as a reasonable person, then he would not be guilty of any crime and your verdict should be not guilty."

This was the law as given by the court and the jury was bound by this instruction and therefore we say that the verdict was absolutely contrary to the law as given the jury by the court and that the verdict was contrary to the evidence, as all the evidence showed that appellant had every reason to believe, acting in good faith and as a reasonable person, that his home was about to be burglarized or robbed.

Furthermore we contended that the jury was prejudiced by reason of detailed evidence being offered; that the appellant was formerly convicted of shooting into a bunch of Negroes during a cotton-chopper's strike in Crittenden County. The defendant was not convicted, but entered a plea of guilty, in order to get off light and we further contend that the court erred in permitting detailed evidence concerning this affair and that the jury, being composed of all white men principally planters and their friends, were so prejudiced because of this that they could not give appellant a fair trial.

We charged that the verdict was excessive. Mr. Weaver testified that only one shot hurt his finger and that he didn't discover that until he had gone a distance of approximately a mile to his store at Edmondson. Furthermore, he told officers Dixon and Holland that he was all right when they arrived upon the scene; therefore we contended that this testimony should not be given any weight and even assuming that his thumb was blazed with a shot; that the judgment is excessive and proves prejudice and malice upon the part of the jury.

WHEREFORE appellant contends in the first place that considering all of the facts and circumstances that this case should be reversed and dismissed and in event that this court should not agree, we further contend that the verdict should be reduced to not more than one year. It is not our purpose in contending that the verdict is excessive and should be reduced, that we do not earnestly, sincerely and solemnly contend that the case should be reversed and dismissed, because we do sincerely believe that it should be reversed and dismissed.

Very respectfully submitted,

K. T. SUTTON,

Attorney for Appellant.

Davis acted in "good faith." It was proved that he fired only to scare off the intruder – even at point blank range, Weaver was not hurt. But Davis is a Negro and this was Arkansas

Investigation of this incident, showed that Davis had fired into the air to warn the incoming Negroes that they were being imported as strike-breakers. But the jury, being white planters and their friends were satisfied to overlook the circumstances. The previous governor also used this same reason for denying a pardon and continuing the unjust imprisonment of Tee Davis

Gentlemen:

I want to tell you the story of a black man in Arkansas.

It is an old heartbreaking story familiar to us who live in the South. We have heard it a thousand times. Always it is the same story of a black man stripped by white men of his rights as a human being.

This time it is about Tee Davis. One night, Tee Davis, a black man, refused to open the door of his little shack when a white man kicked the door and yelled at him to open up. Instead Davis, afraid of thieves, picked up his shotgun, aimed it at the bottom of the door and fired. No one was hurt. But the voice ordering him to open the door belonged to a white sheriff and though he had no warrant and had not said that he was sheriff, he arrested Tee Davis. The white plantation owners saw to it that the black man was sentenced to ten years in prison.

Tee Davis's crime was that he did not do what a white man told him to do. Simple as that.

Your crime and mine is that we let things like this happen to human beings in our country. We can not blame the sheriff too much; nor the plantation owners too much; for these men would not dare do these things if we did not let them. We cannot release ourselves from guilt by blaming a "villain" far away. We "good people" of America are permitting this to happen. We can stop it if we want to.

One way is to support the Workers Defense League in their work of dramatizing specific cases such as this one of Tee Davis. For one Tee Davis we hear about, there are a thousand others unknown to us. But by turning the spotlight on Davis, we turn it also on the others. If Tee Davis is freed it will not be as easy next time to put a man in jail and keep him there just because he doesn't do what a white man wants.

Your money will help. Your letters to the governor, who has refused a pardon, will help. These are the things to do now. But the big thing is to reach out with your heart and mind and learn to feel what it means to be a Negro in America today. If you once do that, you will never rest until he is treated like a human being. The simple truth is that none of us can be human unless we all are human.

Don't forget it. Do something about it today. Send a contribution to Rev. Aron S. Gilmartin, Chairman, Workers Defense League, 112 East 19th Street, New York 3, N. Y. Send in $100, $50, $25, whatever you can spare to help to free Tee Davis, and to help the League in all the vital work it is doing in the defense of black and white workers.

Sincerely yours,

Lillian Smith

RECEIVED
JUL 19 1946
Southern Regional Council

INFORMATION FOR FRIENDS OF THE COMMITTEE

Readers of the Information Bulletin and supporters of the work of the Committee will like to know some of the activities of the Committee.

PUBLICATIONS OF THE COMMITTEE

INFORMATION BULLETIN goes out monthly to over 2,000 readers.
PRESS RELEASES on critical developments in the Far East are issued constantly; over forty such releases have been sent out to editors, writers, and commentators.
ANALYSES AND MEMORANDA, more lengthy and documented studies of Far Eastern situations, are made when specifically requested by government officials, responsible commentators or groups.
ACTION LETTERS are issued from time to time urging individuals and groups to make their views known to the authorities.

ACTIVITIES OF THE COMMITTEE

Speakers are furnished for groups, forums, panels, conferences, conventions, labor unions, citizens organizations, women's clubs, and mass meetings.

Groups of American Veterans of Asiatic Theatres have been organized for men and women who saw service in the Far East, were impressed by the democratic movements in the Orient and have returned deeply alarmed by the trend of American foreign policy in its relation to democracy in Asia. Groups of veterans from China, Japan, Korea, Philippine Islands and India meet to discuss, produce material, and engage in responsible citizenship action to further a democratic foreign policy.

Cooperation with other organizations with like purpose is carried on constantly.

Interviews and conferences with Washington officials by officers of the Committee help carry out the purpose of the Committee.

Press conferences and off-the-record luncheons and teas help disseminate "inside" information by returning correspondents and Far Eastern experts.

An Information Committee of about twenty Far Eastern correspondents and experts meets regularly to furnish the Committee with information, analyses and interpretations of developments in Asiatic countries.

In April a "Spotlight on the Far East" dinner was held in New York City. Over seven hundred people attended. Speakers included Madame Sun (by record flown from Shanghai), Agnes Smedley, Theodore White, Hugh Deane, Congressman DeLacy, Senator Tobey, Richard Watts, Jr., Albert Kahn, and others.

Miss Maud Russell has succeeded Mr. H.A. Fletcher as Executive Director.

MEMBERSHIP INVITATION

The Committee for a Democratic Far Eastern Policy has now had one year of work. The accompanying "Information" sheet brings you news of the activities of the Committee.

There are increasing demands for the resources of the Committee - its reliable material, its research facilities, its speakers, its help in the organization and work of other American groups with like purpose in the field of foreign policy.

There are also inquiries from individuals asking if they "may join the Committee?", saying they want to feel more identified with the purpose and work of the Committee.

The Executive Committee recommended and the Board of Directors authorized that the Committee for a Democratic Far Eastern Policy be put on a Membership basis; and that the 2500 people now receiving our publications be invited to become Members of the Committee.

Anyone who approves the purpose and program of the Committee for a Democratic Far Eastern Policy -

1. To support an American foreign policy which encourages the democratic aims and efforts of the peoples of the Far East

2. To oppose an American foreign policy which involves any cooperation with or support to reactionary, feudal, or fascist groups in Far Eastern countries is invited to become a Member of the Committee for a Democratic Far Eastern Policy.

Membership categories are as follows:-

General	$3.00	Supporting	$10.00
Subscribing	5.00	Sustaining	25.00

CLEAN-CONSERVATIVE-CONSTRUCTIVE! ALABAMA'S GREATEST NEWSPAPER

1602, 6th Avenue No. — Phone 3-1973
BIRMINGHAM 3, ALABAMA

RECEIVED
Jul 9 1948
Southern Regional Council

July 8, 1948

Dear Mr. Mitchell:

For five months or more, I have given a great deal of time to getting an Urban League unit going in Birmingham against the wishes of some very powerful anti-Negro and anti-right forces in this community.

I had a pledge of several thousand dollars early this year - money which I needed in my business, but when I would not agree to the substitution of a "doing nothing" setup in place of the Urban League, I did not get the money.

In order to get the league established, I have had to personally invest upwards of $500 in the effort, but we have it. We are in the midst of our first annual "Goodwill Week" celebration during which newspapers, radio stations, civic-minded citizens of both races are holding forth on the general theme of "What Can We Do To Create A More Friendly Atmosphere In Birmingham?" - prior to actual effort to raise our first year's operation budget.

Some weeks ago when tension was so high in Birmingham, I was called upon by the President of the Mineral District Medical Association to give a week's time to calling upon white people in key positions and urging upon them the importance of taking a stand against this business of aiding and abeting hypertension between the races.

I did not have the time, but I did it and fortunately when the Girl's Camp incident broke, the persons previously contacted, moved constructively against the KKK and similiar groups and their nefarious activities.

After my series of interviews were over, I was convinced as never before of the importance of someone on the local level taking the time out necessary to personally contact and talk with key people in the community -- pointing out how they can use their good offices to affect understanding, appreciation and the making of justice the key to action in our day to day dealings with out fellow men.

The newspapers, ministers and enlightened organizations in the community have followed our suggestion and it has, indeed, made things better.

I have decided to do a lot more of that sort of thing in this area. It is going to take time, but it is a thing which should be done.

I need some help. The leader of our Urban League Campaign has assured me that once the campaign is over, I will be reimbursed the upwards of $500, I am out on the proposition. I was wondering if your office could advance me $350 to enable to keep up the contact work referred to - to be repaid when our Urban League Campaign is over and I am reimbursed for money advanced by me in that effort.

This is a low advertising season and the cost of production climbs higher and higher each day.

If you could and will do as requested, I will give you a detailed report of the total effort after the November election. Out of it may come that which will enable the SRC Program to be made most effective on the local level in areas susceptible to hypertension.

If you look with favor on this, the advance would be worth a thousand dollars to me if in hands by Saturday A. M.

Respectfully,

Robert Durr

I count it a very great privilege to be of service to The Southern Regional Council at any time you wish to call upon me.

Sometime, I think so far as is able, I have on the whole armor of faith in what we are trying as a team to do for all the people of this region.

If at any time in the future you want to get a message over through my syndicated columns as we did on the erroneous AP release on the Council's position on the President's Civil Rights Committee report, please do not hesitate to command same of me.

As soon as copies of my presentation on the Negro Press is off the press, kindly send me a few copies for friends who have asked for same.

Dear Mr. Durr:

I was glad to have your letter of yesterday with its additional useful news of the special problems of Birmingham just now.

What you have been doing is surely very helpful. I should like to see some special unit of people of good will set up in Birmingham to keep ahead of this present tension. That is, of course, a standard thing to do in situations of that kind. Quite possibly the various groups you mention can either do the job as they are or with some further fitting together for this purpose.

I don't feel authorized to send over money to meet your present need, particularly as the Council is still struggling with the deficit left from last year. However, I called the Reverend Mr. W. H. Marmion and told him that you had special problems and asked him to get in touch with you today. I hope that in this way whatever can be done locally will be furthered.

Dear Mr. Davis:

Thank you for your letter of July 26. We are glad you like Mr. Jackson's pamphlet.

The Council has a little short of three thousand members of both races, scattered over the South. Our members pay two dollars a year in dues or, for a joint membership of husband and wife, three dollars. Members get a copy of each of our publications, including the monthly magazine, New South, of which I enclose a recent copy or two.

We expect those who join to be alert to situations of racial tension and do what they can, individually or in cooperation with others, to smoothe the path of progress in the South.

As Texas has continued the Texas Interracial Commission (under an affiliation agreement with the Southern Regional Council), we have not attempted any separate organization of Council members in Texas, but rely upon the Commission to undertake its own program of betterment within Texas. The Chairman of the Interracial Commission is Mrs. James S. Crate, 2410 Inwood Drive, Houston 6, Texas, and you should be in touch with her.

We do hope that you will send us your membership.

Dear Dr. Davie:

I have meant to write you for all these many months, and I am ashamed to say that it took your recent letter to the Council to give ~~the~~ me the prod I needed. That does not mean that I have not thought nostalgically of New Haven and the Graduate School many times. But Atlanta, we have found, is a most interesting and pleasant place to live. I have been at the Council since January as researcher and sort of general helper-outer, and I have have enjoyed it tremendously.

I am sending you, in the attached envelope, the material you requested. The survey of Negro police was made almost a year ago, but I have enclosed a mimeographed copy of our latest count. An up-to-date report will be published this September in New South, the Council's monthly magazine.

I have also enclosed a recent survey of civil rights practices in the South which I thought you might find useful. Also, purely out of maternal pride, an article I did myself!

If you are interested in receiving Council publications regularly, we would be delighted to have you become an associate member. Or, instead, you or the Sociology Department could subscribe to our publications service. Either way, we would have to assess you two dollars.

Please say hello to everyone for me. And my very best to you. I shall always remember last year as one the most valuable and pleasant years I have had -- and certainly an excellent background for what I am doing now.

Dear Mr. Dent:

The Council lately put on a super-industrious file clerk, who came up with a long list of things relating entirely to Dillard.

Dr. Alexander was here yesterday and I consulted him about what ought to be done with the Dillard items. He said express them down to you. His idea was that someone at Dillard would sort out whatever items might be considered at Dillard as interesting and valuable there. The rest, presumably, to be destroyed in your discretion.

I have not examined the material closely and therefore I don't know to what degree it contains items which you might wish to have confidential treatment. Dr. Alexander said he trusted entirely to your judgment on that.

The bulk is not great - don't be worried. It will all arrive by express within a few days' time.

Dear Mr. Dunjee:

Word has reached us that the Daily Oklahoman for a date approximating September 23, 1948, carried a story saying that the secretary of the State Election Board in Oklahoma City has ruled that when a Negro is a candidate for office in Oklahoma the word Negro must be printed on the ballot beside his name.

This is an undemocratic and undesirable departure which, obviously, ought to be stopped at its beginning.

It is hardly likely that the matter will have escaped your attention, but I take the precaution of writing to be sure that you and your friends know of it and are unrolling measures to stop it.

I would appreciate any further information that you care to give us about the matter.

You will recall my promise at Chicago the other day to send you what information I could find on convictions of lynchers.

We have brought together the attached information* from standard sources.

The penalties in most of these cases are so slight that they amount to a qualification merely of your statement, if I recall it aright, that there had been no convictions for the crime of lynching.

We have thought it important to keep the South aware of the fact that lynchers have been convicted. In the absence of any knowledge of any precedents, future juries will all too easily fail to convict.

All whom I talked with at the Chicago meeting greatly enjoyed your rich and earnest paper.

I am hastening to set these scraps of information against what you have drawn together over these many years.

Sincerely,

George S. Mitchell
Executive Director

Dear Mrs. Davis:

How very kind and generous of you to send us such a long and detailed letter. I have dictated letters which should put us in touch with half or better of the people you listed. In each case, I asked some trusted member in the neighborhood to go and see the official you listed and tell them about our materials, and try to interest them in using some of the things.

I am to be in North Carolina soon, and will look up Mrs. Jarnigan in person.

I have written Mrs. Brown of the National Council of Negro Women in Washington.

DEC 13 1947

Dear Mr. Mitchell:

I have your letter of December 6 asking for information regarding parent-teacher groups in North Carolina and in other Southern States.

The National Congress of Colored Parents and Teachers is composed of State branches of the organization which are largely located in Southern States where there are segregated school systems. The National Congress holds annual meetings at which time they are always anxious for materials to be used in their exhibits. The State branches also hold annual meetings and usually have exhibit materials. I know that these organizations would like very much to have for exhibit in these meetings samples of materials that have been prepared by the Southern Regional Council. If order blanks could be sent with the samples of material showing where copies can be bought and the prices of the material, I am sure that you would get a response from the members attending these meetings. Contact either through letters or personal interviews when you are in the area would make the officials aware of the work of the Southern Regional Council and the use of the material with the local groups.

Following is the name and address of the National president of the colored parent-teacher association and of the State presidents. Through the State presidents, you will be able to determine the active local groups.

North Carolina has a very strong and active State association of colored women's clubs. I am sure that you will find Miss Ruth Rush a very important person to know and a person through whom I think the materials developed by the Southern Regional Council can be disseminated to the local clubs in North Carolina.

I am sure you are acquainted with Mrs. Mary McLeod Bethume's organization the National Council of Negro Women, 1318 Vermont Avenue, N. W., Washington 5, D. C. Mrs. Jennetta Welch Brown is the Executive Director. The organization has a monthly publication called Telefact and a journal. I am sure Mrs. Bethune would be willing to give the Southern Regional Council a write-up in her publication telling of the work of your organization and of materials that will be useful to local councils especially in the Southern area.

Thank you kindly for arranging for me to receive New South regularly. Will you let me know if my subscription is due? Also am I a paid member of the Southern Regional Council?

I do hope that the leads that I have given you will prove fruitful and that the excellent material that has been put out by the Southern Regional Council will have a wider circulation.

Dear Mr. Davis:

A staff member of ours who hails from North Carolina has suggested some possible leads for Classmate, which I am glad to pass on to you:

(1) Credit unions reflect the growth of the cooperative movement. Mr. D. R. Graham, N. C. Dept. of Agriculture, Raleigh, can supply information.

(2) You might be interested in the status of trade unions in the state. William Smith, state director of CIO, 4th St., Charlotte, is a good source.

(3) A good selection of pictures is available from Mrs. James Gust, Division of Research Interpretation, Institute for Research in Social Science, Box 1078, Chapel Hill.

(4) A valuable innovation is the Communications Center at the University of N. C. which offers classes in visual education, radio, and other media. The Center has the largest broadcasting studio in the state. The director is Earl Wynn.

As for race relations generally, the new governor, Kerr Scott, has publicly announced a determination to grant equal opportunity to Negro citizens. He has promised to appoint Negroes to the Board of Education and to boards of institutions serving Negroes. This policy -- which is in keeping with North Carolina's reputation as the most progressive Southern state -- will be watched closely for performance by progressive Southerners of both races. As for North Carolina's standing in specific fields -- health, education, housing, suffrage, etc. -- most of our data have been presented in New South.

I shall be on the lookout for leads in the other states you mention. If we can help in other ways, please let us know.

Attention Mr. Harold C. Fleming

Gentlemen:

Classmate, national youth weekly of the Methodist Church, which goes regularly into a third of a million homes, plans a series of illustrated feature articles on a number of the States. We have listed, among Southern States, the following to be covered in such features, in approximately the order named: North Carolina, Georgia, and Kentucky. Others will be included in later features, if the idea clicks with Classmate's million and more of readers, young and old.

Our usual approach will be the Governors' offices, chambers of commerce, and railroads and selected industries, to get an all-around selection of facts and photos which are likely to interest young people. We are saying less about tourist attractions than about both educational and vocational opportunities in these States, and we are also planning to emphasize some of the cultural and economic developments to be expected in the 1950s, which should have more than casual interest to Methodist young people.

I am receiving at present your monthly, New South, and shall watch it fof items that deal in particular with the three States listed for first treatment in the series. However, if you have at any time special releases or leads for stories of success in the lines of progress in which the Council is most interested I would be most grateful for any of these aids. North Carolina news would be most useful if it reaches me by March 1, probably the deadline for the first of the three projected articles dealing with the South. With appreciation and best wishes to you in your fine work,

Sincerely,

Bert H. Davis

Dear Sir:

Thank you for the materials, which were sent to me recently. I have read them with interest.

Let me say, as one who is vitally interested in this whole problem, that one of the things that bothers some of us who sincerely want the lot of the Negro improved is what seems to us to be the danger in the FEPC. I certainly have no desire to keep the Negro from equal employment rights, and, yet, it seems a great danger in violating the employer's right of hiring whomever he pleases. It seems to me that an employer should be allowed to say what men will best fit into his organization to do the job that he wants to get done most efficiently.

Yours very truly,

It was a real pleasure to meet you, after many years of hearing about you, both in the North and in the South. I am counting on many more meetings in the future, either in Chapel Hill or in Atlanta. And I hope you will think of yourself as a kind of counsellor to the Press. Aside from the tips that I hope you will send me from time to time as to writers or book projects that I should know about, please feel free to let me have general criticism, both pro and con, of the Press' policy as you see it. Any organization such as this faces the danger of ingrowing, and needs a word from outside from time to time to put it into a proper sense of its own condition. Dear Mr. Mitchell:

I appreciate ever so much your valuable suggestions about our report, "How A National Health Program Would Serve The South".

We have decided on the following procedure: We have mimeographed 100 copies (1 enclosed) and want to send about 85 of these out to selected people asking for comments on the subject matter and presentation, and also for suggestions as to how the report, when published, can best be distributed.

Could you give me a list of say 50 persons to whom we might send the mimeographed copy immediately? We will meanwhile bear in mind your suggestions for comprehensive distribution.

I should appreciate very much your reply in the near future as we want to get the pre-publication copies out the first of next week.

Dear Dr. Davis:

The Council has its 3,200 paid-up members in the South, and an additional 1400 subscribers to its magazine, making a total mailing list of about 4,500. These are people scattered over thirteen southern states, and they are influential in their local communities. Perhaps half are white and half are Negro. I could probably mail out to them your study, when it is done. I know it would be good for our people to get. We are so broke that we have to feed the postage meter in tiny sums as we can get them. Any possible chance that your Committee could meet the postage-only cost of our mailing the pamphlet out to our 4,500 people?

You would strike probably a somewhat larger mailing list with Jim Dombrowski and his Southern Conference Educational Fund, 808 Perdido Street, New Orleans. It would have a good many duplications with mine but, by and large, it would reach people a bit more agitated than my people.

I could supply you with the names and addresses of head persons in each southern state of white parent-teacher associations and, similarly, of each state Negro teacher association.

I have also the addresses of all of the church papers in southern states. There are about sixty of them.

You would doubtless help your cause greatly by getting the NAACP in New York to send copies out to their local chapters over the South. A supply also to each of the eleven Urban Leagues in the South would do good.

The southern office of the National Farmers Union (Myles Horton, Highlander Folk School, Monteagle, Tennessee) reaches directly 2,500 southern members of the Farmers Union. I should think that Horton could make excellent use of 150 to 200 copies for his people.

Were I in your shoes, I think I would get in touch with the CIO Political Action Committee and the AFofL's Political Education League. They operate a pamphlet distribution engine. You would have little chance of getting your material out to local unions except through some official channel like that. If necessary, I could supply you also with membership lists of the Southern Political Science Association, the Southern Sociological Society, and the Southern Economic Association.

Be at pains to get the pamphlet listed with the various library indices. We find those things get a deuce of a lot of pamphlets into people's hands. Another one to get into is: Pamphlet Index

Dear Mr. Mitchell:

We are completing the preparation of a study, "How a National Health Program would serve the South." It will take the form of a report of perhaps twenty pages, analysing briefly health conditions and needs in eleven southern states, describing the substantial steps which many of these states have already taken toward meeting their needs, and further describing how a national health program, through federal grants-in-aid and health insurance, would assist the states further.

I am writing to ask your suggestions and help in distributing this report to interested individuals and organizations. Can you furnish me lists or suggestions of the sources of lists, particularly of organizations? The report will be in non-technical language, although designed for already interested persons rather than for the man in the street.

With cordial regards and appreciation of your cooperation, I am,

Sincerely yours,

Dear Mr. Mitchell:

I concluded after you failed to arrive last week that I should have answered your communication. It occurred to me, however, that if I had written you, my letter would not have reached Atlanta before you started on your itinerary.

Yes, I am sorry that we did not get to have the conference on the work of the Southern Regional Council at the time you had planned. I hope that you will be coming this way again soon and that we shall find something for you to do on the campus. I expect to teach the course in Inter-racial Relations again next semester. I shall also plan to take my class to visit Kentucky State College.

If I can be of any assistance to you or others in directing the work of the Council, please instruct me what to do.

My apologies for not getting in touch with you on my Tuesday-Wednesday-Thursday sally into Kentucky. The Berea people were wound up in some sort of celebration and couldn't take on an extra lecturer. Kentucky State College at Frankfort kept me there until mid-afternoon of yesterday. Although I came on back to Lexington and called your home a couple of times, I couldn't reach you, so I got myself back to Atlanta by plane last night.

I hope I will succeed next time in getting to see you. I also hope I caused you no inconvenience by raising the possibility that I would get to your campus.

Dear Mr. Dorris:

We have all been interested in your kind letter which Mrs. McKoy answered the other day.

I am to be in Lexington May 10 to talk to the meeting of the Catholic Committee of the South, about the Council. I am spending the two or three days after that talking here and there at colleges--on the 11th at the University of Kentucky, on the 12th at Kentucky State College, and possibly on the 13th at Berea.

I will try very hard, in the course of the afternoon of the 12th, to get to your college and hunt you up. Meanwhile, if you happen to have an afternoon class that you would want me to talk to, I will try to work out some close connections on the Kentucky bus system and get there at what time you might set. I am probably necessarily in Frankfort, however, until 12 or 1 o'clock on the 12th.

Maybe if I could be of any use to you on the 13th, you and Miss Adelaide Gundlach at Berea could work out some gearing in of schedules.

Howsomever, my main need is not to talk to classes (I will have done about enough of that in those few days), and it would be a pleasure to stop by the campus and get acquainted with your work.

Dear Mr. Dorris:

Thank you so much for your check covering dues for the current year. This has been credited to your account and now can be forgotten until 1950.

I was much interested in your letter with its account of the work you have been doing in interracial relations. The contribution that is being made by teachers like yourself to sound development and helpful change is of basic importance in any assessment.

Mr. Tydings is indeed chairman of our Kentucky State Division and we esteem him most highly.

I am passing along to Mr. Fleming, editor of New South, your suggestion as to the possibility of reviewing once in a while the work that is being done by colleges and universities of the South in the field of bringing about better race relations. Thanks so much for your offer of help in any of our undertakings here. I will make a note of this. It is good to know where help can be found.

Dear Mrs. McCoy:

3.00 ck
Mr. K.
C.A.C. for this

I am enclosing a check for three dollars to pay my current dues in the Southern Regional Council. I thought, by the way, that they were already paid for the current year. You may be interested to know that I had planned to attend the meeting of the Council last fall, but at the last moment found it inadvisable to attend. I am expecting to come to Atlanta at the next meeting.

Your office would be interested to know that for a few years I have been teaching a course in Inter-racial Relations. On four different occasions I have taken my class to visit the Kentucky State College in Frankfort. This last time the class of thirty-two met for more than two hours with some hundred students and faculty members of Kentucky State College in a conference on inter-racial relations. This meeting was in the afternoon after we had visited parts of the campus and had dined with the students in their cafeteria. The conference was a most profitable experience. My students regarded it has the most helpful part of the course in Inter-racial Relations. The fact is students in that course look forward to the visit to the Kentucky State College as a red letter day in their college experience. I had two Filipinos and one Chinese student in the class last semester. Of course, they appreciated the privilege of visiting this negroe college. They said they would not have missed it for anything.

Out of this conference there has developed a joint relations committee consisting of six students of each college. The object of this inter-college committee is to promote more cordial relations between the two colleges and to encourage better inter-racial relations generally in the state and nation at large. Just now I am expecting to offer the course in Inter-racial Relations the first semester of the next year. The class will visit the college in Frankfort as formerly, and another conference of white and negroe students will be held during the visit.

Mr. John Tydings, who represents Kentucky in the Southern Regional Council, paid our campus a visit last week. We like John very much and believe that his work will result in bringing about better race relations in Kentucky.

It seems to me that the publication of the Council might review once in a while the work that is being done by colleges and universities of the South particularly in bringing about better race relations. Perhaps such information has been given already, and I have omitted seeing it. I just want to say that if I can contribute anything to the work which is being done in Atlanta, I shall be glad to do so.

With best wishes for the good work of the Council, I am

Sincerely yours,

I am grateful to you for giving me your time. In the course of our journey we saw a number of members of your council, both white and Negro. Dear Organization Leader:

The Economic and Social Council of the United Nations will begin its ninth session on July 5, 1949 in Geneva, Switzerland. It is expected that it will be in session for approximately six weeks. This meeting of the Council is of particular importance since it will discuss and outline the projected program of technical assistance to underdeveloped areas. The United Nations Secretariat will present plans for the administrative structure and the substantive program which the Council will examine.

In addition, the Council will examine the world economic situation together with current international cooperative efforts to improve conditions. The question of East-West trade, including United States trade policies toward eastern Europe, will come up in the study of the report of the Economic Commission for Europe. The status of business in the United States will be another important matter which will be discussed. Forced labor and refugees are among the items included in the agenda.

We would be interested to know if your organization is planning to have a representative as an unofficial observer at this meeting in Geneva, and if so, the name or names of those to be expected. Gilbert W. Stewart, Jr., press officer of the United States Mission to the United Nations, has been designated as the U. S. delegation representative to maintain liaison with non-governmental organizations.

Will you please notify the Division of Public Liaison if you are planning to send a representative? Further details will be sent to those organizations indicating their intention to be represented at this meeting of the Economic and Social Council. This does not apply to those organizations which are affiliated to international non-governmental organizations which have been granted consultative status under Article 71 of the Charter. These organizations should seek representation through their international affiliates.

Dear Jim:

Nice to hear from you.

I send you several things which may be helpful. The most topical is the account of the law suit in King George County, Virginia. A similar suit has lately been introduced in a South Georgia County and others are popping over the South. It is clear to me that, after the impact of these suits has become a little more severe, the members of Congress from the Southern States will be active on behalf of Federal aid for the construction of school buildings. Such a bill has been in Congress for some time.

A neat story with a good lesson is in what North Carolina did eight or ten years ago about equalization of salaries. On that occasion, as now, law suits popped in Virginia. The Governor of North Carolina read the handwriting on the wall. He called in thirty-odd Negro leaders, whome he talked with in his office, and told them he knew what the suits meant and that he hoped that North Carolina had reserves of statesmanship which would enable the working out of an orderly program of equalization without law suits. For his part, he undertook that over a five year period salaries would be equalized. He made no effort to bind the Negroes not to introduce suits. There was never a suit on the subject in North Carolina, salaries were equalized, and white people and colored people are still patting themselves on the back because North Carolina handled that one so well.

BEST COPY AVAILABLE

Now, this new one should be handled the same way, in states, in counties, and in cities.

That Governor of North Carolina was Broughton, and he is dead, but plenty of people in the North Carolina State Department of Education could give you the story accurately.

On the King George and Gloucester suits in Virginia, there have been interesting recent events which people in Richmond could give you.

Sincerely,

George S. Mitchell

Dear Mr. Domas:

Thanks for telling me about the problems of your membership.

We have no record of your ever having joined the Southern Regional Council per se, and suppose that you have not. If you will be kind enough to join the Council, there is a blank on the back of this leaflet with the map.

Apparently you are a member of the Georgia Interracial Committe, which is in quasi-independent affiliation with the Southern Regional Council. You joined it in November, 1947, and probably paid its full dues, plus a dollar to cover subscription to New South. Your New South subscription would have run along in '48 and '49 without new dollars from you. As we find no stencil in our addressograph stack, we suppose that when copies were returned from the West Peachtree address, and when a tracer failed to turn up to our clerical staff your new address, your stencil was simply pulled.

You have several choices:

(a) Pay up your membership in the Georgia Interracial Commission for '48 and '49, plus a dollar for New South for each of those years. Georgia IRC's dues for two years amount to $6.00.

(b) Do that and also join the Southern Regional Council (omitting the extra dollar for New South, because membership in SRC will bring you New South.

I send with this the last three issues of New South.

Sorry this is so complicated. We hope someday to make it easier.

We shall look forward to seeing you at the annual membership meeting on November 10. It will be a pleasure to meet you then and talk to you. We hope that you will become a member of the Council.

I am afraid that we would need more information about your misunderstanding with the Federal Agency before we could properly advise you. However, the "grant-in-aid" referred to in the pamphlet, "To Secure These Rights", means federal to states for various programs and is not directly concerned with individuals.

Your congressman might be able to help you straighten out the matter, or you might see a representative of the Veterans Administration. If there is a Veterans Administration contact officer in Roanoke, you might talk to him, or to the contact officer in a town near Roanoke.

Without knowing more about your problem, I am afraid we are of little help to you in suggesting specific remedies.

Dear Mr. Davidson,

I am to be in Miami January 13, for a talk to something called the Kind of Clubs. I'll work my way back up during the week January 13-21.

Meanwhile Mr. Morton McDonald has kindly asked me to talk to the Rotary Club at Deland on January 13, which I have of course agreed to do. That gives me Daytona Beach as at least a pausing place on the way down, and the 14 as a free day between.

I thought perhaps there might be some opportunity to further my project for getting the Good Neighbor Club into some close link with the Council. If I can be useful to you or your friends on the 14th. or after the 17th, let me know!

Kindest wishes to you both,

The job has been assigned to me to provide two Rotary Club programs for the 3rd and the 10th of January, respectively. I thought it would be of value if you could fill one of these engagements, speaking on "Can the South Solve Its Own Problems?" or something of the kind. There are many tourists here at that time of year, and we might expect an audience of about 150, of which at least one-third would be visitors from the North. I can see how this could be valuable promotion for the Southern Regional Council.

Meetings are held on Mondays at 12:15. If you could come down on Sunday, we'd be glad to put you up at our home. I can't remember ever knowing whether there is a Mrs. Mitchell, but if she cares to come with you and spend a couple of days with us, we'd be glad to have her too. Dear Mr. Duncan:

Paul Williams and I have both been sensible of your two letters as to what the Council ought to do.

Actually, when the Board met, they found that they themselves and the Divisions in the various states could conservatively undertake to raise by June 1, around $11,000, and some largish gifts brought the total pledge to $15,500. That's enough to see us through till the end of the year except for $8,000 still lacking, and we reasonably hope to turn up some good big gifts to cover almost the balance. So by one means or another we think we will get through till the end of the year.

The chief device put forward to raise funds in the future is to get several thousand sustaining members who will undertake to give $10 a year for five years. A Finance Council is working on that scheme.

All this you will see from the minutes, which have already gone forward.

We are grateful for your good letters. Perhaps the future will close in on us, but with a pulse or two more of firm endeavor we think the Council can be pulled through.

Mr. Lawrence A. Davis, President

Dear Mr. Davis:

I am writing you in your capacity as President of the Association of Negro Land Grant Colleges.

It has occurred to me that a new vocation is opening up in the field of rural home plumbing. Rural housing is improving rapidly and farmers are finding the means to install electric pumps and kitchen sinks and bathrooms -- let alone barn installation? So far as I know the situation, few States are sufficiently supplied with personnel who can supervise the installing of such equipment. It involves, of course, septic tanks and trench disposal fields and pipes and pumps and so on. I think it is beyond the capabilities of the ordinary farmer to do such installing without outside advice. It is also probably beyond the purse of most farmers to fetch out a city craftsman for the work. I have in mind somebody who in this modern time would fill the place once occupied by the old-fashioned chimney builder. He had a piece of land of his own, maybe a farm, and did not try to make a living out of installing an occasional chimney, but he got most of the jobs and was a great convenience. If, similarly, the South had dotted over it men who were good at such rural installations, I believe they could substantially help their incomes. I suppose that they would generally strike a deal under which the farmer dug the ditches and perhaps roughed in some of the plumbing. But there is all the business of getting a level for the disposal field and taking care of surface drainage (safeguarding the well) and hooking up a septic tank (sometimes casting one), plus the siting of the pump to protect it from freezes or other interference.

You are of course aware of the new funds available in the Housing Act for farmhouse repair with loans and of grants from the Farmers Home Administration. Probably here and there a certain amount of the subsistence checks from Veterans On the Farm Training classes is going into such facilities.

So far as I know, this is a field which Negroes have thus far not entered in any number. It is also one in which the Negro mechanic would be widely welcomed. Their patronage would be both white and Negro.

I am suggesting that various of the Negro Land Grant Colleges might wish so to sharp their courses in agricultural engineering as to turn out a body of men who would have this particular skill. I have also thought that it might be a good idea for campuses to display for the public, sample installations.

I have talked about this with people at Tuskegee and Tennessee A & I and Fort Valley and Hampton, and it has seemed in all those places to be an idea worth digging into further.

I thought probably that you would care to reproduce this letter or any parts of it and send it out to your various Colleges.

Sincerely,

President A. W. Dent
Dillard University
New Orleans, La.

Dear Mr. Dent:

I was in Chicago the other day and happened into the offices of the Henry Strong Educational Foundation, 50 South LaSalle Street, Chicago, Illinois. This is an old foundation making loans to students. They prefer to help Juniors and Seriors and an occasional graduate student. Loans usually run from around one hundred dollars to three, four or five hundred dollars. The interest is three per cent, which begins to accrue only upon graduation. The first tenth of the principle repayable one year after graduation and in later years, increasing amounts. Their money accumulated pretty well during the G.I. period, but is currently in great demand.

They do not help students in eastern institutions but bracket the South with the West as their territory. They have no affiliation with the Hattie Strong Foundation in New York, which merely happens to have a similar name and do a similar job.

I was told that Dillard University, along with Tuskegee, Morehouse, and Fisk, was some years ago put on the Strong Foundation's approved list. Few or no loan requests have come from any of these institutions. The implication was obvious that the Strong Foundation was prepared to help students in those colleges.

They were proud of the minimum of red tape involved in a loan from them. In ordinary applications, the loan is approved by the appropriate college official (frequently a loan officer) and an application so approved usually gets a check from them mailed on the same day the request was received. I thought perhaps it would be well to let you know of this current opportunity.

My dear Mrs. Tilly:-

I have just returned from a rather extended absence from home, and I find in my mail your letter of September 8th. I am sorry for the delay, and I hope you have not considered me rude or indifferent.

Having made my apologies, I think that I cannot be of much help to you. I should imagine that the Southern Regional Council would have the records of the old Interracial Commission which it absorbed, and could therefore trace the date of its origin. I know that it was just after the First War, and that it was organized as a result of the meeting here of the defunct Inter-Church World Movement, but I do not know the exact date.

None of the things about which Mr. Dickson asks had any relation to Emory or to Durham's connection with it, and so there are no records here on the campus.

Mrs. Durham, Plato's wife, is still living and active. She is in Richmond, but unfortunately I do not know her address. If you are interested in following it up, you can find her address by writing to Rev. B.S.Via, Methodist Home for the Aged, Richmond. She is not at the home, but the Vias know her, and were talking to me about her only a few days ago.

I am sorry not to be of more help, but I will confess that I didn't even know that Durham founded the Commission on Church Cooperation or the Christian Council - if he did.

Dear Guy:

As though you hadn't enough to do, I presume to ask you to take on another interviewing errand.

The National Cyclopedia of American Biography has asked us to run down a fact or two about a now deceased minister, Plato Tracy Durham of Atlanta.

The question: In what year did he found the Commission on Church Cooperation and the Christian Council of Atlanta? During what years was he president of the latter?

I have queried various people and don't get an answer.

I now learn that his widow is living in Richmond. I haven't her accurate address, but it can be had from the Rev. Mr. B. S. Via, who himself (not Mrs. Drham) resides at the Methodist Home for the Aged in Richmond.

Do you suppose you could see out Mrs. Durham and ask her those questions and let me know?

I don't think Plato Durham founded the Interracial Commission, though he was a big wheel.

Speech by Dr. Dowell at Tuskegee Inst.
Sent by Albon Holsey

My trip over from Georgia to Alabama was one of peculiar pleasure as I recalled the many associations I had with Alabama, Auburn, and Tuskegee in my official capacity as State Superintendent of Education and as President of the Alabama Polytechnic Institute. The pleasant memories of those official relations were heightened by the many courtesies and the consideration shown me, personally as well as officially, and by the first hand opportunity I enjoyed of meeting Dr. Washington, Dr. Moton, Dr. Carver, and other members of the faculty and staff, various members of the Tuskegee Board of Trustees and other notable friends.

I had learned long since to think of Tuskegee Institute as the lengthened shadow of Dr. Washington, a truly great educator, orator, patriot and a statesman of the first rank. The story of his life, of his long and eminently successful administration as President of Tuskegee Institute, of his matchless oratory, and of the monumental service he rendered entitle him to a place with those of highest honor in the annals of American history.

The inscription on his monument, the gift of one hundred thousand members of his race, summarizes in terse and telling fashion the nobility and the spirit of his distinguished life: "He lifted the veil of ignorance from his people and taught them the way to peace and prosperity through education and industry." One of the sublimest sentences in the English language and one which epitomizes the guiding principle of his life is also inscribed on this monument: "I will never let any man drag me down so low as to make me hate him."

In looking back over his life and the marvelous story of his achievements, we do well to recall his interpretation of the "Tuskegee Spirit" -- the spirit of cooperation and consecration. As he expressed it, "In the relation to our government, then, what is the fundamental mission and what should be the spirit of such an institution as the Tuskegee Institute?" As I conceive it, a part of the mission of this school is expressed in the purpose and determination to assist the race in laying such a gradual and permanent foundation in right living, through the accumulation of property, industry, thrift, skill, education of all character, moral and religious habits, and all that which means our usefulness to the community in which we abide, that naturally, logically, sympathetically we shall make ourselves grow into the full and rightful enjoyment and intelligent use of the privileges and rewards of citizenship."

And so Tuskegee and Booker T. Washington came to be regarded as national assets of the first importance, by North and South, white and colored, alike.

Following Dr. Washington's death, literally hundreds of thoughtful people were deeply concerned about the future of Tuskegee and were inquiring who would take up the mantle of Elijah. Again Hampton Institute led the way in the person of Dr. Frissell, who arranged for a conference of the trustees with Major Moton as they returned from the memorial exercises in Tuskegee. The invitation to Dr. Moton to succeed Dr. Washington resulted and his acceptance followed after serious deliberation. In this connection Colonel Theodore Roosevelt expressed his impressions in the following excerpt from a letter to a fellow trustee who was present for the conference. We all of us ardently wish you had been with us on the train when we saw Major Moton.....it is the greatest relief to me to say that I believe if he is appointed we insure for ourselves every reasonable probability of success in carrying on the great work of Booker T. Washington. I believe that he can run the institution. I believe that he can get on with the Southern people as well as any Negro now living.....I believe that he will get on with Northern white men and be able to help us in getting the necessary funds. He has a very powerful, and at the same time, an engaging and attractive personality. I cannot speak too strongly about the favorable impressions he has made on me. Finally I believe that he will be able to wisely interpret the feelings and desires of his own people to the white people of both the North and the South."

Dr. Anson Pehlps Stokes in his Founders' Day address at the 50th anniversary celebration at Tuskegee closed with a stroking contrast between the two great Negro leaders. He called attention to the pretty general feeling that Booker T. Washington's ability was due to the white blood in his ancestry while Dr. Moton was of pure Negro stock and known to go back to an African chief of the 18th century. Dr. Washington showed that some Negro blood does not prevent outstanding character and ability. Dr. Moton has shown that a man of Negro blood purely can measure up to great responsibilities and exacting duties in the most praiseworthy fashion.

Dr. Moton's force and his wisdom found prompt expression in his inaugural address from which we quote: "In order that this institution shall continue to carry forward the ideas and ideals of its great founder; in order that it shall not cease to render large service to humankind; in order that we shall keep the respect and confidence of the people of this land, we must, first, every one of us, principal, officers, teachers, graduates and students, use every opportunity and strive in every reasonable way, to develop and strengthen between white and black people, North and South, that unselfish cooperation which has characterized the Tuskegee Institute from its very beginning. Second, we must patiently and persistently and in the spirit of unselfish devotion, follow the methods of education, which in this school have been so distinctive, so unique, and so helpful. Third, we must consecrate and reconstruct our lives to this work as instruments in God's hands for the training of black men and women for service, in whatever capacity, or in whatever locality they may find a human need. Fourth, there must be no cantankerousness here -- we must all work absolutely together."

Perhaps the most revealing paragraph in that address is the following: "If we are to be true to this great and sacred trust, if we are to carry out the aims and purposes of Booker T. Washington, the Founder of Tuskegee Institute, we must each cherish and maintain the spirit which has always permeated the life and work of this place-- the spirit of self-forgetfulness-- the spirit of service and sacrifice -- the "Tuskegee Spirit" -- the spirit of cooperation and consecration."

In his report to the Board of Trustees in April 1, 1930, Dr. Moton further defined the policies of the Founder and his own objectives. Tuskegee first, was to be a demonstration of Negro capacity in maintaining "a community in which Negroes are responsible for all the activities incident to the maintenance of community life;" second, a social laboratory for the advancement of the Negro race as a whole and for national welfare; third, a research center for investigation and study of the problems and the processes of racial development and interracial contact. Furthermore, it was to be a point of interracial contact between the two races in America in their efforts toward understanding and cooperation and in the promotion of good will, without which one of the major instruments for justice and equality before the law and for the promotion of self respect and mutual good will between the races would be sadly lacking. "If we meet this demand," he declared, "I have faith to believe that succeeding generations will supply the institution with resources necessary for its successful functioning."

He closed the report with this highly significant paragraph: "Because of its past, as well as its prospects for the future, I am anxious that whatever we do at Tuskegee shall be done as well as it can possibly be done by anybody under the circumstances. I am anxious that our equipment shall be of the best, consistent with rational economy and intelligent efficiency. I am anxious, too, that, our teachers and workers should be representative of the best in character, culture, training, and spirit that are to be found anywhere. In our methods of service, changes are unavoidable to meet the changing times and conditions; but always the institution must be faithful to the heritage of unselfishness, service, and good-will left us by the Founder. It is a proud privilege to work at Tuskegee Institute. My own conviction is that nowhere else in the world is a larger opportunity presented to be of direct, helpful, and lasting service, not only to the Negro race, but to all mankind. It is our constant desire to measure up to this opportunity and its responsibilities."

Among the careful plans and effective agencies for realizing his idea that whites and Negroes should work together without suspicion and prejudice was the Conference for Education in the South, initiated by a few Northern and Southern men for the purpose of developing sentiment and securing the facilities for educating all the children of the South. Among those attending the conferences were Robert C. Ogden, renowned business executive and statesman, William H. Baldwin, Jr., First Chairman of the General Education Board which had its inception in the Conference, Walter Page, Albert Shaw, George Foster Peabody, John D. Rockefeller, Jr., Edgar Gardner Murphy, Edwin A. Alderman, Charles D. McIver, Wallace Buttrick, H. B. Frissell, and other men of like vision and dedication. Let it be noted that these men were both Southerners and Northerners. No movement in America has been quite so influential in creating and spreading sentiment and support for the improvement of educational service, and ~~the monumental work for~~ the General Education Board and ~~of~~ the Rosenwald Fund which grew out of it, and of the Anna T. Jeanes Foundation and the John F. Slater Fund, which ~~is~~ were greatly improved by it, have all made their respective contributions to the advancement to the Negro race and to the public welfare.

All along during this period Tuskegee Institute was and still is the center of many conferences by representatives of the two races for understanding and good will. The most important of these have been those sponsored by the Commission on Interracial Cooperation. According to Dr. Will W. Alexander, foremost among the leaders in the South, it was begun in France soon after the signing of the Armistice that marked the close of World War I, and the original idea was conceived in the mind of Dr. Moton. In this connection Dr. Anson Phelps Stokes, a great patriot and philanthropist, gave this appraisal of Dr. Moton's influence in this movement, "When the history of the South is dispassionately written, Dr. Moton will be inscribed permanently as one of the half dozen most useful and distinguished Southerners of this generation."

At the dedication of the Lincoln Memorial in Washington, Dr. Moton proclaimed the gospel of cooperation between the races in this forceful language: "In the providence of God there has been started on these shores the great experiment of the ages -- an experiment in human relationships where men and women of every nation, of every race and creed are thrown together in daily contact. Here we are determining how different races can not only live together in peace, but cooperate in working out a higher and better civilization than has yet been achieved. At the extremes the white and black races face each other. Here in America these two races are charged under God with the responsibility of showing to the world how individuals, as well as races, may differ most widely in color and inheritance and at the same time make themselves helpful and even indispensable to each other's progress and prosperity."

The various conferences at Tuskegee in which Dr. Moton played the major role, the work of the Interracial Commission, centering in Atlanta and directed by Dr. Will W. Alexander, the work of the University Race Commission centering about the University of North Carolina and the University of Virginia, and the career of Dr. James H. Dillard and the interests he represented were all highly influential in the remarkabel progress in race relations that took place in the South. Just how to evaluate the work of the Southern Interracial Commission and the cooperating organizations and agencies and their capable officers is too intricate and complex a task for me to attempt, but I venture to mention the names of a few great leaders whom I had the honor to know personally and to learn first hand something of their stature and spirit: Dr. James H. Dillard, Dr. Jackson Davis, Dr. H. Ashby Jones, Dr. F. M. Favrot, Dr. James A. Gregg of Hampton, Dr. Isaac Fisher of Fisk, Dr. John Hope of Moorehouse and a score of others who helped both to mold and to execute the policies of the Commission.

Great praise is also due to the University Race Commission, the Southern Sociological Congress and more recently to the Southern Regional Council, "a group of Southerners representing both races, many occupations, all faiths and denominations who got together in 1943 and decided IT'S UP TO US as Southerners, to join together, face up to the South's problems honestly, and work to solve them."

The activities of our national government in defining and establishing the rights guaranteed in the Constitution, of those public spirited organizations and agencies that played worthy parts in cultivating and in advancing the principle and practice of friendly relations and fair play, and of the churches of every denomination in working for a genuine Christian attitude in all our relations owe much to the life, the labors, the spirit, and the ideals of Robert Russa Moton, patriot, priest and prophet, who merits our everlasting gratitude and honor for his grand motive and his great mission to mankind.

Recognizing the implications and importance of the race problem in America the Carnegie Corporation decided to attack the problem practically, scientifically, and thoroughly. ~~The great social economist,~~ Dr. Gunnar Myrdal, a distinguished social economist of the University of Stockholm and economic adviser to the Swedish Government, was secured. His searching and scholarly study and findings were given in his two volume report, "An American Dilemma", and in four other volumes by members of his staff of noted scholars. Dr. Myrdal declares that the problem is not based on any separate factor such as economic exploitation, color prejudice, or Southern malice and conservatism, but that it is a combination of many factors, intricate and subtle, which basically have to do with a moral issue.

You understand, of course, that the time limit prevents me from attempting more than a brief summarizing of this all-important book which has attracted the attention of the whole country. The moral issue, the author insists, is the differentiation between the American profession and practice of its democratic creed and its many ramifications. Politically, that creed defines democracy as government by the majority through duly elected representatives where the voice and right of the minority are always heard and respected. Economically, that creed defines democracy as looking after the welfare of the people so that no group shall fall below the minimum standard of living, arbitrarily set in terms of the nations growing sense of values and its increasing economic production. Socially, that creed defines democracy as a good society in which there is free intermingling of peoples according to their abilities, essential equality of all people and the recognition of the right of all to develop their abilities, to contribute to their self-realization and to the total welfare.

If this creed is admitted to be a moral issue, we must accept it as a religious issue, for on what does democracy as formulated in the Declaration of Independence and in the Constitution itself rest except on Christianity? From what does our sense of values of personality and individual worth derive except from the Christian tradition? From whence comes our sense of the unity of the great human family in which each is given according to his needs and to which each contributes according to his ability, except from the revelation in Christ of the fatherhood of God and the brotherhood of man?

And so the thing that concerns us politically is not so much the civil rights program per se as the extra-legal interpretations by which most of the discrimination against a minority group has been justified in the past.

To be sure we stand for the guarantee of civil rights but by the same token we need to be constantly reminded that so long as the fourteenth and fifteenth amendments are all too frequently misconstrued to selfish ends we will not have won the fight by legislation. The thing that concerns us economically is not only sub-standard housing, clothing, or diet, but the drage, the hindrance to the over-all economic progress of our commonwealth that persists so stubbornly among our citizenry. As Christians we can not help from being indignant that many are deliberately kept from employment, or from employment that is wholesome and profitable, that they, therefore, are denied their share of the goods of this life. The thing that concerns us socially is not only the ghetto --like existence imposed upon so many of our fellowmen but the moral callousness, the all too prevalent insensitivity to humane feelings and the psychological frustration of those who think themselves superior and would keep others inferior, a spirit that not only damages, but destroys. In this connection I think I ought to say that I am well aware of many unjst things that have been done to members of the Negro race and that my own heart has been torn by the evidences of discrimination and oppression.

Measured by Christian principles the violations thatMyrdal calls "Moral" become downright sin. "For he who loves not, knows not God", and "He that loveth not his brothers whom he has seen, how can he love God whom he has not seen?" are the clear statements of the Scriptures.

For those of us engaged in the field of Christian education the thing that concerns us especially, in the light of the tremendous progress being made in public education and the prospect of more phenominal progress from year to year is, how are like facilities for the higher education of Negroes as well as whites interested in Christian education to be provided and maintained? We know that the State and Federal Government are going to provide the facilities for public education on the higher level. But what of the private and church-related institutions whose supporters in the past have led in the pursuit of truth, free from bias or complications? What about the private and church-related colleges that pioneered in providing the pattern and that have served as custodians of liberal education? Are they not the bulwark against teaching and seeking truth in terms of some special interest, or as propaganda?

In the light of the conditions that prevail today and the part that Drs. Washington, Moton, Patterson, and others who share their faith and courage have played and are playing in the life of our country, what should we do as citizens of liberty-loving America do about it? What are the difficulties to be overcome? (Is it not true that the problem is complicated by the fact that the Negroes remember slavery and emancipation and with theliberating rights of education and progress are claiming full freedom, and that the whites remember war and reconstruction and hold on tenaciously to the traditional role of master, still regarding the Negro as a servant race? Is it not also pertinent to say that as long as two self-conscious races live together in the same teritory there will be continuing problems of adjustment that must be solved rationally and in the spirit of mutual concession and good will? Are we not already convinced that the solution does not lie in some law or theoretical device, but in the spirit of mutual respect and regard? Have we not learned from sad experience that men of good will in both races may come to understand each other through conferences and collaborations participated in by members of both groups, in which ways of cooperating are discussed and developed and to which each contributes according to his ability?

The race problem here in America involves in the main certain national racial groups with their sharp differences, Jews, Japanese, Indians, and Negroes. By reason of religious differences as in the case of the Jews and because of physical characteristics in the case of the Negro, intermarriage and assimilation, it has been said, are too remote to afford much hope to those who would solve the problem in that way, or to cause fear to those who resent the idea of amalgamation. Neither the law or the Constitution can remove the tensions or correct the injustices that stem from prejudice and passion. The Negro must be regarded and respected as a person and he must be given "the rights granted to him under the Constitution of the United States including the right to vote, to serve on juries, to receive justice in the courts, to be free from mob violence, to secure a just share of the benefits of education and other funds, and to receive equal service for equal payment on public carriers and conveniences." Myrdal called attention to the facts that the American Creed, involving the "ideals of the essential dignity of the individual human being, of the fundamental equality of all men, and of certain inalienable rights to freedom, justice, and a fair opportunity,"

The adequate remedy for racial antagonism is not primarily economic, political, or cultural, but spiritual, and in the practical application of the principles of Christianity we must find our way out. This principle was stated clearly in a resolution passed by the Southern Baptist Convention representing a constituency of more than six million members, "That the Convention recognize its responsibilities for the promotion of interracial good will and urge upon our Baptist people and all Christians the duty of ordering our racial attitude and actions in accordance with Christian truth and Christian love." In this connection may I venture to suggest in all frankness that we may well beware of the two extreme points of view which are manifest today. There is grave danger that we may undo the work that has been so constructive by impatience and by the demand for all or nothing. I feel that I am voicing the sentiment and deliberate judgment of the best Southern leaders - not only of those whom I have already mentioned but of those who today are looking forward confidently and actively to a better era in the South and in the Nation. Things of permanent value are not brought about by radical measures. They grow out of the lives of such leaders as Washington and Moton, as I have already indicated. Accordingly we must not let the traditions of Tuskegee and of the other best Southern institutions and agencies be lost either by reason of a revival of reactionaries and prejudiced Southern leaders of the white race or by the bitterness and radicalism of the leaders of the Negro race and their friends.

In the life of Major Moton we have the embodiment of certain qualities of character, consecration, and culture that are both elemental and fundamental, that have perpetual validity, and that provide the pattern for universal peace, good will and brotherhood, namely: integrity, love, faith, courage and patience.

If, as we all believe, Robert Russa Moton, belongs in the company of those whom Carlyle defined as men of superior power, courage, and understanding, who draw up into and concentrate in themselves the thoughts and qualities of masses of men, who sum up an age or create it, and who render themselves immortal by making themselves masters of their time, may we not on this hallowed anniversary honor him and honor ourselves by dedicating ourselves to the perpetually contemporaneous service of trying to sort out, cultivate and establish those qualities and qualifications that connote true goodness and greatness? May we not also hope that if we can indoctrinate our youth with these precious and priceless character constants, we will have traveled far in building into the lives of our people the criteria that will demand for all or nothing. bring to the lowest individual, black or white, "that full measure of justice and equality of opportunity for which America stands as a symbol before all the world.

There come to me in visions of the night
The schemes of men who compromise with right
For common usage now proclaims as good
The evils that bring wealth and plentitude,
The wealth that in entrenched in human greed.

Behind the mask of profit, who will heed?
For practice makes acceptable the laws
And conscience seared by gold counts not the flaws.

The world needs men, upright, stalwart men,
The kind of men that money cannot buy or promised fame.
The kind of men who will refute the lie,
That each man has his price,
That if the lure is big enough
The best will not endure.
There are brave men who will not count the cost,
There are true men or else the world is lost.

The ethics of the present will not do,
Our age must build it's moral code anew.
The past has said that money is success,
The future must be built on righteousness.
And service to mankind shall findr reward,
Esteem of men and "Well Done" of the Lord.

Then ring ye out the clarion call again,

to build a better day,

This world needs men.

TO ALL MEMBERS OF THE GEORGIA ACADEMY

FROM: Mary Kate Duskin, Treasurer

The Program Committee is at work planning meetings that will be interesting and will help us to find answers to many of the perplexing problems with which we are confronted today. From the things I hear, I believe it is going to be a program worth supporting.

I hope that all who were members last year will immediately send in their memberships and thus assure us of continued interest and support for the coming year. All memberships are due October 1, and it would be wonderful if we could know by the end of the month what our budget will be. Remember memberships are as follows:

Individual	$2.00
Two in family	$3.00
Student	$1.00.

If you know of people who might be interested in joining, please send their names to Cullen B. Gosnell, Emory University, Emory University, Georgia.

Thanks for the cooperation I am sure we are going to have, and please send you checks to:
